CHINESE LABORERS

How They are Regarded by the Treasury Department.

DUTIES OF CUSTOMS OFFICERS.

Rules Laid Down for Coolies While Passing Through the United States.

They Are Required to Produce a Through Ticket Across the Whole Territory to be Traveled—A Bond of $200 Must be Given That They Will Leave the United States Within Twenty Days.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The Treasury Department has issued a circular to customs officers prescribing the conditions under which Chinese laborers will be allowed to pass through United States territory in the course of a journey to or from other countries.

Such persons are required to produce to the Collector of Customs at the first port of arrival a through ticket across the whole territory of the United States intended to be traversed, and such other proof as they may be able to adduce to satisfy the Collector that a bona fide transit only is intended.

The Collector is required to stamp or mark the ticket and other evidence presented to prevent their use a second time. The Collector is also required to issue duplicate descriptive lists of all such persons.

These lists include the name, age, occupation, last place of residence, height, complexion, color of eyes and physical marks of each person, one of which is to be kept by the Collector at the port of arrival and the other forwarded to the Collector at the port of exit.

The first-named Collector is also required to take a bond in the penal sum of no less than $200 for each Chinese laborer conditioned for his transit and actual departure from the United States within a reasonable time not exceeding twenty days from the date of arrival.

This bond may be given either by the United States Transportation Company issuing the through ticket or by some person on behalf of the laborer, and will be called on receipt from the collector at the port of exit of a certificate showing that the person specified in the bond has actually departed from the United States. These regulations, which take the place of those existing on this subject, are issued in accordance with the ruling of the Attorney-General of July 25th last.

THREE AMERICAS' CONGRESS.

The Delegates to Be Received To-Morrow By the President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—The delegates to the Three Americas' Congress were occupied to-day chiefly in discussing in a general way the programme to be followed. All their conferences and the proceedings of the Congress are to be kept secret. It is still undecided who will be the President of the Congress, but either Mr. Henderson or Minister Romero will probably be chosen for that position. It will probably be considered more courteous to let the foreign delegates select the President.

The details of the programme have not been decided upon. The delegates will be presented to the President to-morrow and during the evening Secretary Blaine will entertain them at dinner at the Normandie.

On Thursday they start on their tour through the country and every preparation has been made for their pleasure and comfort. The Secretary of War has detailed Capt. John G. Bourke, Third Cavalry, and First Lieutenant Henry R. Lemly, Third Artillery, as special aids on the party that will accompany the South American delegates to the Congress on their tour over the country. These officers were selected on account of their proficiency in the Spanish and Portuguese languages.

THE SYRACUSE CONVENTION.

New York Democrats Now in Session at the Salt City.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Lieut.-Gov. Jones was elected Temporary Chairman of the Democratic State Convention to-day.

Charles R. Deforest of Troy, Maurice Houlihan and Joseph E. Newburger, of New York and M. E. Delaney of Buffalo are Temporary Secretaries.

In the contest in the Fort Wayne District, the State Committee seated the delegation headed by Superintendent of Public Works William Burnham, thus making the Poucher delegation the contestants before the Committee on Credentials.

There does not appear to be any doubt but that the Hill slate, so-called, will be nominated, viz:

SECRETARY OF STATE—Frank Rice, of Canadaigua.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL — Charles F. Tabor, of Buffalo.

COMPTROLLER—Edward Wemple, of Fonda.

TREASURER—Elliott Danforth, of Chenango County.

STATE ENGINEER AND SURVEYOR—John Bogart, of New York.

JUDGE OF THE COURT OF APPEALS—Denis O'Brien.

The platform to be adopted to-day will thoroughly endorse Gov. Hill's administration; reaffirm the National Democratic platform; declare that revenue reform is not a failure, and it will probably reiterate the last plank on that subject.

A Woman Found Hanging to a Tree.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 1.—The body of Mrs. John Simmons, wife of a farmer living near Smyrna, Del., was found hanging to a tree in the woods back of the house late yesterday afternoon. The body was cut down but had been hanging several hours. Domestic troubles are supposed to have been the cause of her suicide.

HE LOVED THE OLD HOME.

And When Ordered to Move Daniel Ruggles Committed Suicide.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Oct. 1.—Daniel T. Ruggles, a retired merchant, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in the temple. He was seventy-five years old, and leaves a widow, nearly as old, in fair circumstances. Three years ago Mr. Ruggles' only son, Julian, died in the Knapp mansion, where the family resides. Quite recently ex-Mayor Adams, administrator of the Knapp estate, notified Mr. Ruggles that he must move, as the mansion was to be sold for the benefit of the heirs. While superintending the packing of his furniture yesterday Mr. Ruggles suddenly walked up before a pier glass, drew a revolver from his pocket, and before his wife could interfere to save him he was lying dead on the floor.

The widow was heartbroken, and in her grief accuses ex-Mayor Adams with having caused her husband's death by driving him from a home endeared to him by memories of his deceased son. Mr. Ruggles was a very eccentric man, and during the past few days had driven away at the point of a pistol several persons who had called to inspect the property.

TEXAS FEVER.

Fatal Effects of the Disease Among Cattle in Erie, Pa.

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 1.—The Texas fever has broken out in the southeastern portion of this city with fatal effect. This section was infected by a herd of Texas steers shipped here by Armour & Co. The cattle broke away and attacked men, women and children, creating a panic.

The entire territory covered by the cattle is under the ban of the disease, and a score of the milk cows have died, and as many more are deathly sick. The fact that a dairyman's stock is stricken has created a panic among the patrons of his dairy.

Trouble at a Soldiers' Home.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 1.—It is charged by a paper here that Superintendent Munson of the Noroton Soldiers' Home has opened letters containing pension checks addressed to inmates of the home and compelled the veterans to turn the money over to him or be dismissed from the institution. The charges are based upon information furnished by a late inmate of the home, who said he was discharged because he refused to give his check up to Superintendent Munson.

Booth and Modjeska Appear Together.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 1.—The first joint appearance of Edwin Booth and Mme. Helena Modjeska, as stars, and also the opening of their season, took place last night at the Grand Opera House before a large and fashionable audience. The play selected, "The Merchant of Venice," Mr. Booth as "Shylock" and Mme. Modjeska as "Portia," gave the artists opportunity to display their talent as Shakespearian impersonators.

Two Men Killed.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 1.—Two unknown men were struck by a train on the Philadelphia and Wilmington Railroad at West Yard last night and instantly killed. In the pocket of one was found naturalization papers with the name of Patrick Ryan, a native of Ireland, aged 40 years. The papers were taken out in Burlington county, N. J., September 20, 1889. The men are supposed to be laborers.

Thrown From a Carriage.

WOODBURY, N. J., Oct. 1.—A team belonging to Thomas Williams, a farmer, residing near Thoroughfare, in Gloucester county, ran away on Cooper street yesterday evening throwing out the occupants of the carriage. Mr. Williams was severely injured about the head and Mrs. Williams was severely injured internally. Miss Williams, their daughter, was only slightly injured.

A Girl Drowns Herself.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 1.—Yesterday afternoon a note was found in the room of Miss Minnie Robinson, the 18-year-old daughter of Samuel Robinson. It was penned by the young lady and said that her body would be found in French Creek. Relatives proceeded to the spot mentioned and found the girl's body lying in the shallow water.

Gen. Sherman Shaken Up.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 1.—Gen. Sherman's private car was attached to the express train from Cincinnati on the Pan Handle Road, which ran into a freight train at Bowerstown yesterday. The express was running forty miles an hour and the engine was completely wrecked. Gen. Sherman received no injury.

Road House Burned.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 1.—Ben Newhall's road house in Cumberland, near Woonsocket, was burned to the ground last evening by the explosion of a lamp. The loss will exceed the insurance, which is $5,300. Only a few articles of clothing were saved by the occupants.

Ashton and Godfrey Matched.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—A 25-round contest for scientific points for a cup valued at $1,000 was arranged last night to take place on November 7 in this city between Jack Ashton, of Providence, and George Godfrey, the colored pugilist of Chelsea. The loser will receive a present valued at $200.

Mrs. Blaine Will Recover.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The statement published that Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., is so ill that she can not recover was to-day pronounced untrue. Her attending physicians say that though she is very sick there is every chance of her ultimate recovery.

HE SAILS TO HAYTI

Minister Douglass Leaves for His Post of Duty.

ACCOMPANIED BY HIS WIFE.

A Salute of Fifteen Guns Fired on the Departure of the Minister.

The Commander of the Kearsage Surrenders His Quarters to Mr. Douglass—He Thinks He Has Been Handsomely Treated—A Statement from Washington About the Ossipee Trouble.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Minister Fred Douglass and his young wife left for Hayti at 10 o'clock this forenoon on the United States Steamer Kearsage.

Mr. Douglass arrived in town from Washington early last evening. After dining with a friend he went to the navy yard, and went aboard the Kearsage, the commander's quarters being assigned him, and Capt. Whiting will find accommodations in the ward room with the other officers during the trip. Mr. Douglass is accompanied by his wife, a lady friend, and E. D. Bassett, who will act as interpreter. He had a few callers on board last evening.

The Minister said to a reporter: "I do not believe that Commander Kellogg had the slightest objection to taking me to Hayti. I know him to be a brave, manly officer, and not likely to make the slightest objection to any order he might get from the Secretary of the Navy.

"It is not a new thing for me to be on a man-of-war. I was a member of the San Domingo Commission and was on the Tennessee, commanded by Captain Temple, with Senator Wade, Samuel G. Howe and Alexander D. White, of Cornell University."

Commander E. M. Shepard, of the Kearsarge, was yesterday detached from duty on the Kearsarge, and Commander Whitely, who has been stationed at the navy yard for two years, was detailed to command her. The officers on the vessel profess that they believe that Mr. Douglass' presence has nothing to do with the change.

A telegram from Washington last night says that it has transpired that Commander Kellogg, of the Ossipee, was released from the Ossipee four days before it was known that Mr. Douglass was to come aboard, and that it was Chief Engineer Rabie, of the Norfolk Navy Yard, who pronounced her boilers unfit for sea.

A salute of fifteen guns was fired in honor of the Minister on the departure of the Kearsage.

A BRIDE FAINTS AWAY.

She Says She Saw Her Dead Mother Pointing a Finger of Warning.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—A marriage that was to have taken place at Camden was interrupted Sunday night in an unexpected way. The contracting parties, Henry Brown and Miss Mary Morgan, stood before Rev. Mr. Clayton preparatory to becoming man and wife.

A portion of the service had been already read, when the bride uttered a loud scream. All eyes were immediately fixed upon her. She was seen to raise her hand and point toward a corner of the church.

The next moment she fell to the floor in a swoon and had to be carried out. Physicians worked with her for nearly an hour before she recovered consciousness.

When fully recovered she gave a curious explanation of her conduct. Her mother, who died about four months ago, was opposed to her marriage with Brown.

Miss Morgan says that just when she was about to pronounce the binding words she raised her eyes and saw her mother's ghost pointing the finger of warning. It is thought the marriage will only be delayed, not abandoned by the event.

NATALIE MEETS HER SON.

More Than a Year Has Elapsed Since He Was Torn From Her Side.

BELGRADE, Oct. 1.—Ex-Queen Natalie paid a visit to her son, King Alexander, yesterday. All the foreign representatives, with the exception of the Ambassadors of Germany and Turkey, afterward waited upon the ex-Queen.

Her arrival was pointedly ignored by the Government officials, but she was most enthusiastically received by the crowds which lined the streets through which she had to pass. On the private residences and places of business throughout the city flags were displayed in her honor. The reception was spontaneous, and the enthusiasm of the people was indescribable. It is estimated that 50,000 persons were in the streets. After a brilliant triumphal progress to her residence the ex-Queen was obliged to appear on the balcony to respond to the plaudits of the multitude.

Later on in the evening the city was illuminated and throngs of citizens were in the streets singing the National hymn. The Russian Minister and all the attaches of the Russian Embassy visited the ex-Queen, remaining half an hour.

Fire in Churchville, N. Y.

CHURCHVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The Bodette block and the contents, with the exception of a little furniture, were entirely consumed by fire yesterday. The building was owned and occupied by V. N. Bodette as a grocery and boot and shoe store.

Thrown From His Buggy and Killed.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 1.—Lewis Markle, a well-known and highly respectable citizen of Hublersburg, this county, was killed yesterday by being thrown from his buggy while trying to control a vicious horse.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The Marsh family will hold their sixth reunion in Newark on Oct. 2 and 3. The Marshes from far and near have been invited.

—Mr. Chas. F. Denecklau, a practical plumber and gasfitter, is located at No. 2 Park avenue, and all orders left there will be cheerfully attended to.

—The reception to mechanics in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, this evening, promises to be an interesting event. The ladies nine will have charge of the refreshments.

—Mr. John Linbarger of this city caught seventeen fine bass at the dam below Bound Brook, yesterday. Other local fishermen report corresponding good luck.

—A runaway horse on West Fourth street, near Park avenue, at 7 o'clock last evening, succeeded in wrecking the shafts of the covered wagon to which he was hitched.

—The members of Amoskeag Council, No. 25, Order of American Firemen, will hold a fair for the benefit of the Order, in Dunlap's Hall, from Oct. 21 to 26 inclusive.

—A meeting of the Chautauqua Circle of the Congregational church is called for this evening at 8 P. M., in the church parlors, to organize and arrange for the year's work.

—It is strange how some landlords neglect to provide comfort for their tenants when it could be done by simply stopping leaks in the roof. They are around on rent day, however.

—To-morrow evening at Dunlap's Hall, the North Avenue Social Club will hold a sociable. Prof. Frazee will furnish the music for dancing, and a good time is promised for those who attend.

—Everybody, including children, ought to be informed that in case by a storm or otherwise an electric wire is broken it should not be touched by other than the linemen. It is very dangerous business.

—The Plainfield Bicycle Club has accepted invitations to participate in the lantern parades of the Atlantic wheelmen of Newark on October 10, and also the parade of the Elizabeth wheelmen on October 26. On each occasion the parade will be followed by a "smoker" and general jollification.

—Mrs. L. Adams, of No. 5 East Front street, opp. Park avenue, respectfully invites the readers of THE PRESS to visit her millinery emporium on Friday and Saturday of this week and inspect the latest styles and novelties in trimmed and untrimmed hats, bonnets, etc., that will then be shown on her counters.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. A. D. Mallinson and family of North Plainfield, are at home again, after a brief absence from the city.

Miss Leonie A. Martin has returned from Dingman's Ferry, Pike county, Pa., where she has been for the last two months.

At the residence of the bride in Elizabeth, today, occurred the marriage of Dr. A. W. Anderson of this city, and Miss Henrietta B. Young, Rev. E. B. Cobb of Elizabeth officiating.

Mr Marc Clawson, of West Second street, is lying dangerously ill with pneumonia, at Alfred University, Alfred Centre, N. Y. The young man's mother started for Alfred Centre, last evening.

A Vocal Society in this City.

Lovers and advocates of vocal music will be glad to learn that a Vocal Society is about to be organized in this city, and it is the intention to give a series of subscription concerts during the coming Winter months.

A committee of ten, composed of some of the best people in the city, met in the First Baptist church last evening, and took the preliminary steps toward organizing the Society. It is proposed to limit the memership to 100, and a competent conductor will be engaged to rehearse the chorus.

Invitation will be sent out in the course of a few days, and a meeting will be held in Assembly Hall, probably next week, to complete the organization.

Those of our readers who remember the vocal concerts a few years ago, will doubtless give their hearty co-operation to have the affair crowned with success.

Queen Victoria has a remarkably fine head of hair, for a lady of her age; but her son, the Prince of Wales, is quite bald. Had he used Ayer's Hair Vigor earlier in life, his head might, today, have been as well covered as that of his royal mother. It's not too late yet.

THE PROPOSED STREET RAILWAY.

An Enthusiastic Meeting in the Republican Association Rooms, Last Evening—Mr. Leo Daft Gives the Estimated Cost of the Road—Resolution Adopted Favoring the Project.

In response to a notice sent out, a fair representation of the citizens gathered in the Republican Association rooms, last evening, to consider the matter of organizing an incorporation for the purpose of applying for a franchise to operate the Daft Electric Street Railway system here. Mr. John W. Murray was elected chairman and Mr. J. B. Coward, secretary.

The chairman stated the object of the meeting, and after a few preliminary remarks, Mr. Daft addressed those present. Among other things he said that it was the intention to use the Johnson girder rails in the construction of the proposed street railway, the rails to be placed on steel chairs, the latter to rest on chestnut ties about eighteen inches under the surface of the roadbed. By so placing the ties, Mr. Daft said it would only be necessary to replace them once in every eighteen years.

The route as laid out makes a continuous line of about four miles, and the consent of over 90 per cent. of the property owners along the route has been obtained. About $46 daily expenditure will maintain the road. The total cost of the road and its equipment will be about $64,606, divided up as follows:

Cost of track	$28,356
Seven cars	28,000
Real estate	1,500
Buildings	1,500
Dynamo	2,500
Wiring	750
Preliminary expenses	500
Legal expenses	1,500
Total	$64,606

Mr. Daft said that it was intended to issue $70,000. He further stated that outside capitalists would be connected with the corporation, but for strength and confidence it was desired that some Plainfield capital be invested in the road.

In answer to a question, Mr. Daft said it would cost about $7,000 per mile to extend the route. Cars are to be run on the ten-minute schedule between six A. M., and 9 P. M., and at intervals of twenty minutes from 9 P. M., until midnight. This will average 18 trips a day for each car.

Freeholder Vanderbeek, James E. Martine and others spoke in favor of the proposed road, after which Corporation Counsel Marsh introduced the following resolution, which prevailed:

Resolved, That this meeting is heartily in favor of the project and believes that the best interests of the city will be subserved by its success.

The meeting then adjourned.

Ditto, Plainfield!

The St. Paul Association Memoranda, says: "A good many people sympathize with the St. Paul Association because of their insufficient quarters; they are sorry that the building does not progress more rapidly, but their sympathy has not yet taken practical shape; it hasn't cost them anything; it has failed to reach their pocketbooks. We need a good deal of hard-pan sympathy just now. We want about fifty thousand dollars of it in cash. A beautiful way to express it would be for you to send your subscription or check to the Secretary. Nothing could be more encouraging than to have some such tokens of sympathy come in an unsolicited manner. How much do you sympathise with our Association?"

The same question may be asked Plainfield's philanthropists.

The Time for an Outing.

The people who can only spare a limited time for their annual vacation have returned home and are at work again now as a rule. The vacation season ends just about where it ought properly to begin. The city is hot and disagreeable in July and August it is true, but these things are also true of the average resort.

But take your vacation in October and you will have everything your own way. The whole range of such hotels as remain open are yours. The air is cool enough to make walking, riding, wheeling or tennis a delight. The foliage of the deciduous trees is more gorgeous than a painter would dare to put on his canvas.

Union County Gets Her Share.

During the past seven days the rainfall has been slightly above the average in the counties of Union, Mercer, Essex, Middlesex Gloucester, Monmouth, Bergen, Atlantic and Burlington, falling on from three to five days out of the seven. The amount of sunshine has again been greatly deficient, while the temperature has been about the average for the last week in September. Light, harmless frosts occurred in a few localities on the mornings of the 22d and 23d. These conditions have been very unfavorable to all maturing crops; potatoes, tomatoes and corn suffering most.

The N. J. A. C. Wheel Tournament.

The bicycle tournament of the N. J. A. C. will take place on October 12 at Bergen Point, and will be a great event among the wheelmen. The club have put a force of men to work on its quarter mile track and it is being rolled and scraped into record breaking shape. The entry list contains such names as Crist, Phil Brown, W. D. and A. C. Banker, Schoefer, Schumacher, Hende, Taxis and other well known flyers, and of course the N. J. A. C. team. The list of prizes consists of watches, dressing cases, diamond rings, scarf pins and other useful articles.

To Care for the Disabled.

It is creditable to the Newark conference of the M. E. church, of which Plainfield is a part, that its members are taking a renewed interest in the matter of making provision for the worn out ministers of their denomination, and their widows and orphans. During the recent camp-meeting at Mount Tabor the subject was considered in a business way, resulting in a proposition to raise $50,000 for this purpose. By the way of encouragement, Judge S. T. Smith, of Waterloo, promptly pledged $1,600 of the amount, and there is but little doubt that the whole fund will be raised. Faithful ministers who, on starvation salaries, have worn out their energies for the good of others, should not, when broken health or decrepit old age comes upon them, be sent to the poor house or turned out like old horses to die upon the commons; neither should their widows and orphans suffer want and neglect. Proper care of all such is one of the strongest proofs that Christianity amounts to something more than an empty profession.

Hurlbut Chautauqua Circle.

A public meeting of the Hurlbut Circle, C. L. S. C., for organization and election of officers, will be held in the parlor of the Young Men's Christian Association, Thursday evening at 7.45 o'clock.

The original Hurlbut Circle, the first in Plainfield, was organized by Dr. Hurlbut at his home, Sept. 27, 1883, with 45 members. Sept. 18, 1884, Circle No. 2 was formed by him, with 40 members. The two were united in the Fall of 1886 as the Hurlbut Circle. The Circle has always been friendly, yet independent, and it is the desire to so keep it. Mr. Robert Gorton is the President.

The Circle will be glad to welcome at the coming meeting, all friends or strangers desiring to join with them in the readings for the coming year.

The Great Fair of the East.

The Inter-State Fair, at Trenton, opened yesterday. In addition to the immense exhibition of agricultural, industrial and art products, the speed events and amusement attractions are so numerous as to keep one constantly interested and to thoroughly satisfy everybody. The management of the Inter-State Fair are making an honest endeavor to make this exhibition achieve the same prominence in the East that the St. Louis fair has in the West and it looks as though they would succeed.

Burdened With Gifts.

Masters Seymour and George Smith, and Roland Tomlinson, have also sent gifts to Willie Hamilton. THE PRESS must ask its generous friends to send nothing more unless it is a subscription—no matter how small or large—towards purchasing the invalid chair proposed.

One wagon load of books and toys received, has been sent already to Willie who is so surfeited with such things now that the surplus yet on hand will be sent to the Children's Home.

A Plainfielder Injured at Elizabeth.

The Elizabeth Journal of yesterday says: "Early last evening Officer Walsh was informed that an old man had been injured on West Grand street, near Price. He went to the place and found the old gentleman who could not tell how he was hurt, but it was presumed he had fallen down. He said he lived near Plainfield, and the officer took him to police headquarters, where he remained until this morning. He gave the name of Stephen E. Boughton."

Opening Court.

The October term of the Union county courts opened at Elizabeth, this morning, when the Grand Jurors were sworn. Judge VanSyckle delivered his charge to the jury, after which the members at once entered upon their duties. Court then adjourned over until to-morrow, after granting five liquor license applications.

The Grand Jurors from here are: Messrs John B. Brown, M. Estil, George W. Cole and George C. Mahon.

From Fanwood—Hezekiah Hand.

A Bachelor's Club Organized.

A club of young men, which is to be known by the above title, was organized last evening with about 20 charter members. The club has handsomely fitted up rooms in the White and Stelle building, on the Park avenue side. The following officers were elected:

President—David J. Carney.
Secretary—John L. Force.
Treasurer—A. C. Blair.

Additional Mails.

In accordance with general orders, a morning mail is now despatched each day from the Plainfield post office, going West on the 5:12 A. M. train, and one also received from the West on the 2:25 afternoon train. These additions, with the late evening mail of eight o'clock, recently established, greatly increase the labor of the clerks in the post office.

—From the way things are shaping now it seem quite likely that Plainfielders can go calling on street cars, New Year's Day, provided, of course, that the proposed system is in operation by that time, and Mr. Daft says it will be if a franchise is granted at the next Council meeting.

Tickling the Palate.

FIGHTING FOR FRAZEE'S FORTUNE.

Residents of Plainfield Excluded From the Jury in the Contest Over the Lee "Boys" Wealth.

The Frazee Lee will contest, which for prolixity promises to rival the famous case of Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce, was revived yesterday in the Union County Court at Elizabeth, when a struck jury was picked out to try the issue between the Scotch Plains Baptist church, to whom the miser and hermit, Frazee Lee of Plainfield, bequeathed the bulk of his property, worth $200,000, and the hermit's natural heirs, Ezra and Daniel Hetfield, who claim that the testator was insane when he made his will.

The claimants are uncles of the deceased, and are respectively 89 and 92 years old.

Residents of Plainfield and Scotch Plainfield were excluded by mutual consent from the jury, which has been picked out from the other townships of the county.

R. V. Lindabury represents the contestants, and Jackson & Codington of this city, the church. Mr. Lindabury says that his clients made a perfectly square offer of settlement by dividing the estate, but the church authorities refused.

NOT RED "SKINS."

But Clean Indians, Yet They Startled Paul.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I wish to state most emphatically that I protest against the practice of permitting cigar signs to wander on our public highways unaccompanied by their cigar stores. While on my way to Scotch Plains the other day, I encountered four and a-half of these articles and received a severe mental shock.

During a three years' sojourn in the far West, I frequently encountered the same species of bric-a-brac and have been scalped on several occasions. Therefore, although this band made no effort to pur-Sioux me, to find four and a-half clean Indians so far from the plains, (Scotch Plains), was too much. I fled precipitately, in spite of the tender memories of the gentle and considerate treatment often received at the hands of their kind.

I see by your paper this evening that they were not cigar signs, but were advertising Indian remedies. I most humbly beg their pardon. By the way, you also owe them an apology for they are genuine Indians, and not as you stated—red "skins."

PAUL PILGRIM.

Notes of the W. C. T. U.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will commence to-morrow. Boys and girls remember the hour, at 4 o'clock, and be prompt at the first lesson.

Kitchen Garden commences at 4 o'clock on Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 7 and 8, and the Cooking class the following Saturday, Oct. 12, at 9 A. M.

The Gospel Temperance meetings for which the W. C. T. U. are arranging, to be conducted in November by Mr. Burdick of New York, should meet with the hearty and prayerful co-operation of all our Christian people.

The meetings of the W. C. T. U. which were held Sunday as usual, were deeply interesting. Mrs. Haviland of Chicago was present at the 4 o'clock meeting and her earnest words as a temperance worker for many years, held the wrapt attention of her large audience until nearly the close and the testimonies of many which followed, proved that the pledge and the gospel should go hand in hand.

The Jersey Coast is Slowly Sinking.

The late Prof. Cook, the eminent State geologist, in a statement made a short time before his death, gives little comfort to those who desire to make their Summer homes on our New Jersey coast. He shows by indisputable evidence that the ground is gradually sinking and the sea surely encroaching upon the land.

Within a short period of geological time there has been a sinking of the coast or a rise of the water level to an extent of from ten to twenty feet. If this keeps on Long Branch and Asbury Park and many other Summer resorts will have to move inland, for the places that know them now will soon become a playground for the gray old sea.

Awarding Bridge Contracts.

A committee from the Union county Board of Freeholders met in this city, yesterday afternoon, and awarded two bridge contracts to the Wrought Iron Bridge Co., of Canton, Ohio. The bridges are to be of the iron girder pattern. One over Cedar Brook at Arlington avenue, 50 feet wide and 20 feet roadway was contracted for $1,046, and the other over Cedar Brook at Randolph road, 25 feet wide and 20 feet between walls, was contracted for $739.57.

Many young children become positively repulsive with sore eyes, sore ears, and scald head. Such afflictions may be speedily removed by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old alike experience the wonderful benefits of this medicine.

—The Union County Republican League has been called by its executive committee to meet on Friday evening next, at the district court room, Elizabeth, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year.

Physicians say that there is no remedy for consumption. In some cases this may be correct. We know however of many cures made by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and we will guarantee relief.

A sensible woman will not fail to keep a bottle of Salvation Oil on hand for men's cuts and bruises.

"TAX THE GUN."

Percy Ohl's Just and Profitable Scheme.

Mr. Percy C. Ohl, of this city, writes as below to the Editor of the Fanciers' Journal, of Philadelphia. The communication was published in that paper but a few days ago, yet it is being copied all over the United States and is endorsed as a just scheme, by many of the most prominent sportsmen of the country. This is the letter:

"Under the heading "Tax the Gun," there appeared in last issue of the American Field a very able article which should receive the attention of all sportsmen, and the subject should be brought before our Legislature this coming Winter, as something must be done to raise funds sufficient to assist in carrying out our game laws. Our game societies, however, are doing their utmost and deserve great praise. Having the honor of being the president of the New Jersey Game and Fish Protective Society, I can positively assert there is more quail in the State of New Jersey than there has been in the past ten years, and particularly so in the thickly populated and best guarded localities. So it is on Long Island, in New York and elsewhere, which plainly shows the good work accomplished by protection. Credit is also due to our game wardens, but as game wardens are generally dependent upon the arrest and conviction of the law breaker for his pay, he does not feel like leaving his business in search of some supposed violator, and the uncertainty of his reward will not warrant him giving the matter his attention.

"So as has been suggested, let us have paid officers, whose sole duty it shall be to assist in the protection of game. Friends or neighbors could not expect favors from them, as they would be paid for attending to their duty, and paid well.

"To avoid the taxation for this falling on any but those directly interested the remedy is simply to tax the gun. A tax of $2 per gun will give ample funds to secure a sufficient force of efficient officers.

"The game societies in several States receive quite a revenue from its members, and it is compulsory for non-residents in New Jersey, Delaware or Maryland to join a game protection society or purchase a shooting license. This brings in quite a little money, but the revenue thus obtained is not sufficient to give all the protection needed, and it has been clearly proved that only by protection game will flourish.

"So let us tax the gun and hire police. The law would not be observed in our cities if it were not for the properly appointed officers; so we cannot expect the game laws to be unless enforced.

"Rifles, and especially the Flobert and other boys' rifles and guns should all be taxed alike and $50,000 to $75,000 a year could be raised in New Jersey alone. To avoid the annoyance of collecting this tax, make it compulsory for every person owning a gun to bring it to the justice of the peace or county clerk and receive a certificate or a metal attachment to the gun with the year stamped upon it.

"I shall be pleased to correspond with any persons or societies on this matter, and have a bill properly drawn to present at the next session of the New Jersey Legislature.

"Yours, etc.,
"PERCY C. OHL."

The Law Doesn't Affect Plainfield Milkmen.

The dairymen of Burlington county have organized to secure the repeal or modification of the present Milk law by the next legislature. They say it is evident that there is something wrong about the present milk law. The standard is placed at too high a mark. During the past Summer a great deal of milk has been condemned as falling short of the requirements of law, and lost to the owners, that was undoubtedly put upon the market just as it came from the cows.

That it lacked in solids was no fault of the dairymen. The unusually wet Summer no doubt affected the pasture, and hence Nature, and not the dairymen, is to blame for the inferior milk. The law needs to be improved. It certainly is not right to entail loss upon the dairymen of the State by seizing their milk and subjecting them to law suits when they honestly put their milk upon the market as it comes from their cows.

Experimenting With Cows.

Experiments are being made at the farm connected with the State experiment station in New Brunswick with the different breeds of cows to ascertain the cost and value of the products of the different breeds. Those being tested are the Ayrshires, Guernseys, Holsteins, Friesians, Jerseys and Shorthorns, and different cattle clubs have selected three cattle of each breed as subjects for the test. The experiments, which include feeding, milking, weighing, measuring, etc., will cover a period of from two to four years.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

State Items of General Interest and Late Notes from Home and Abroad.

The Inter-State Fair opened at Trenton, N. J., yesterday and will continue until October 4.

Mr. Gladstone is confined to his room with a slight cold, contracted while felling a tree at Hawarden on Saturday.

Three young ladies of Morelia, Mexico, who lost a fortune at the gaming table, have just committed suicide.

William Doyle and George Hunt, who stole a $350 horse at Newark, N. J., have been arrested at Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

John Barney, a well-known citizen of Wilkesbarre, Pa., was killed yesterday. His horse ran away and overturned the wagon.

It is estimated at the Treasury Department that the reduction in the public debt during September will amount to $13,500,000.

The barn and outbuildings with their contents at Belvidere, N. J., belonging to Daniel Rankle of Asbury were burned yesterday. Loss, $3,000; partly insured.

Seton Hall College has begun practice on the football field, and reports from Orange, N. J., indicate that the College team will be up to last year's standard.

The New Jersey Athletic Club will hold its first annual bicycle tournament Oct. 12 at Bergen Point, N. J. There will be an interesting programme and handsome prizes.

Four-year-old Willie Broderick was run over and instantly killed yesterday by one of the heavy brewery trucks belonging to Peter Hauck & Co's brewery at Harrison, N. J.

During target practice at Allentown, Pa., yesterday, Matthias Gruber, of Company B, Fourth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, was shot through the abdomen. He died last night.

Seeley Hopkins, the murderer of his wife and mother-in-law at Phillipsburg, Pa., on the 22nd inst., was taken to the Bellefonte County jail yesterday. He is in such a condition that it was necessary to carry him to the railroad station on a stretcher.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

BOSTONS CLOSING UP

They Win in Their First Contest With the Clevelands.

THE GIANTS PLAY A TIE GAME.

Only Three Points Separate the Two Great Leaders for the Pennant.

Six Innings Played in Pittsburg and Eight in Cleveland—Chicago Wins from Washington—The Game at Indianapolis Postponed on Account of Rain—No Association Games Scheduled for To-Day.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 1.—A nasty drizzling rain fell here nearly all yesterday afternoon, yet a six-inning game was played between the New York and Pittsburg teams. The rain and approaching darkness caused the game to be called at the end of the sixth inning with the score a tie. Pitchers Keefe and Galvin did excellent work.

The Pittsburgs were the first to score, making one run in the third inning. The Giants began to bat in the fourth inning and scoring three runs proceeded to set the pace.

In the sixth inning Pittsburg scored two runs and made the game even. Deacon White was sent to first on called balls and went to second when Fields banged the ball to left field. Hanlon hit safely and White scored on Dunlap's hit to right field. Fields then ran home.

The Pittsburgs have now won eight straight games and were highly pleased to escape defeat.

Clarkson's Terrible Curves.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 1.—The grounds were in miserable condition to play yesterday's game, which was lost through a combination of lucky hits by the Bostons in the seventh. The Cleveland team agreed not to play any longer, owing to darkness, and Umpire McQuaid called the game.

BASEBALL RECORD.

The scores of yesterday's games were as follows:

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

No games scheduled.

The Association Championship.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 1.—The Brooklyn team have ten scheduled games to play, and the St. Louis nine, and their percentage of victories to date are respectively .677 and .645, Brooklyn leading by thirty-two points. Supposing Brooklyn is unable to play off either of the two postponed games and St. Louis but one of their postponed games, each will have a possible score of ten victories at command.

The next seven games Brooklyn has to play are three with the Athletics and four with the Baltimores. This leaves a margin for success even if Brooklyn loses all three of their games at Columbus. The next nine scheduled games St. Louis has to play are three with Kansas City at St. Louis, three at Louisville and three at Cincinnati, and supposing they play off their Louisville postponed game at St. Louis to-day, the St. Louis will have to win seven of these games to get a show to equal Brooklyn.

Boston Secures Omaha Players.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—Information received from Milwauke says that Director Conant of the Bostons has purchased the release of Nichols and Nagle, the Omaha's battery, for $3,000 and $2,000, respectively. Mr. Conant, the despatch adds, has also purchased for $1,000 the release of pitcher Conway late of Kansas City, now with the Western League.

SHOEMAKERS ORGANIZING.

The International Union Reports Everything in a Flourishing Condition.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—The National Executive Board of the Boot and Shoemakers' International Union has received from General Secretary Skiffington and Organizer Moulton reports showing that there are 70 local unions; that 45 more unions are forming; that the finances of the parent union are in a healthy condition; that at New England points wages had been increased and reductions prevented in a number of instances. The Board ordered the issue of charters to five new unions in New Hampshire, six in New York, four in Maine, three in Wisconsin, one in Kentucky, two in Missouri and eleven in Massachusetts. It voted, to make every endeavor to have the graded price-list established.

PUBLICLY COWHIDED.

An Editor's Wife Plies the Lash on a Floor Walker in a Dry Good House.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—William C. Young, floor walker for a Broadway dry goods house, was publicly cowhided in the store by Mrs. Baron, wife of Abraham Baron the telegraph editor of the "Westliche Post," yesterday. Young's offense seemed to be in engaging himself to marry Miss Jennie, the daughter of the indignant lady, whilst he still had a wife in England.

Mrs. Baron plied the lash repeatedly while a circle of under-clerks gathered around to witness the fun. Young finally dashed from the store and escaped.

Cause of Batterson's Death.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—H. R. Batterson, who committed suicide in the New England Monument Company's office, No. 1321 Broadway, was the brother of J. B. Batterson, president of the Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford. He is a millionaire and the proprietor of extensive quarries at Westerly, R. I. The suicide, who was dependent on his brothers and sisters for support, was at one time secretary of the Lincoln Monument Association of Hartford. The difference between his own condition and that of his brother was a thorn in his side. Of late years he has been suffering with a chronic incurable disease. This, added to his soreness of spirit, drove him to suicide.

France Apologizes to American Ladies.

SAG HARBOR, Me., Oct. 1.—The French Govovernment has made an apology to the three American ladies for ill treatment they received at Mentone, France, while traveling last summer. The ladies decline to make public the correspondence in connection with the matter but state the explanations and apology received are entirely satisfactory to them.

Electric Motor Power a Failure.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 1.—A petition has been filed in the Chancery Court for a receiver for the Union Passenger Street Railroad of Richmond by John S. Wise. The petition alleges that the electric motor power has been a financial failure and prays to return to horse power as a means of having the property pay a dividend.

An Unknown Man Burned to Death.

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 1.—The large barn of Mrs. Dr. Willets, of Harrisburg, near New Cumberland, was burned yesterday with its contents, consisting of six horses, several head of cattle, farming implements, hay, grain, etc. The charred body of an unknown man was found in the ruins.

They Want Pugilist Sullivan for Congress.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—A meeting of sixty or seventy Fourth District Democrats was held at the Sherman House yesterday in the interest of John L. Sullivan's candidacy for Congress in that district. Eulogistic speeches were made and plans laid for securing the champion's nomination at the expiration of Hon. J H. O'Neil's term.

Frieze Surrenders and is Now in Jail.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 1.—John Frieze, the young fellow who shot his sweetheart, Georgie Stone, Sunday, on the Falls road, walked into the Central Police Station yesterday and gave himself up. Frieze stated that he did not intend to shoot the girl but wanted to kill Robert Moore, who was walking with her at the time. He was committed to jail.

Jury Disagreement in a Railroad Case.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Oct. 1.—The case of Mott vs. the Central Vermont Railroad Company, which has been on trial several weeks at North Hero, Vt., has been concluded by the jury disagreeing. Henry Mott of Alburgh was among the injured at Hartford, Vt., two and one half years ago and brought suit for damages. The case has been hotly contested on both sides and able counse employed.

Baby Beatrice Surrendered.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1.—Capt. Perry, counsel for Mrs. Hamilton, came to the city in company with Sheriff Johnson's wife of May's Landing, and called upon Mrs. Rupp, who has Baby Beatrice in charge. They wanted the baby. Mrs. Rupp finally surrendered it to them and they returned to May's Landing with her.

Hungarian Riot at a Christening.

PHILLIPSBURG CENTRE, Pa., Oct. 1.—A Hungarian christening at Allport, four miles from here, ended in a riot in which a Hungarian named Mike Ketch was killed and two others seriously injured. Four of the rioters are in jail and the police are looking for several others. It is not certain that the murderer has been arrested.

The Douglas Axe Works Running Again.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 1.—The Douglas Axe Works at East Douglass have resumed operations to run out the stock on hand and will probably continue in operation three months. The help expect their back pay to-day.

Boston Knights to Leave the Order.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—The Tin Plate and Sheet Iron Workers of Boston and vicinity have decided to leave the Knights of Labor and organize an independent union. The immediate cause of withdrawal is said to be the support given by D. A. 30 and the general officers of Cigar Makers Local Assembly 80.

Sheriff Flack Indicted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—The grand jury has handed in true bills indicting for perjury and conspiracy Sheriff James A. Flack, William Flack his son, and Referee Meeks, Mrs. Raymond and Judge Monell.

NEVER HUNT BURGLARS.

Make a Noise and Scare Them from the Premises.

Various Kinds of Devices That Alarm the Intruder as Well as His Intended Victim—Automatic Alarms for Banks and Offices.

"Burglars in the house! Get up, quick!"

"Let 'em burgle."

"But I hear them rattling the silver. I'm sure we are being robbed. Do go downstairs."

"Well, I would rather lose your silver than my life, so I guess I'll stay in bed."

The conversation may have occurred between Jones and his wife at three o'clock in the morning, after she had been awakened by strange sounds coming from the dining-room.

Was Jones a coward?

That is open to argument, for there are a good many people who have concluded, from recent events, that it is wise policy to avoid encountering a burglar plying his trade.

Most persons in such a case would make a lot of noise in the hope of frightening the intruder off; some nervous women might pull the bed-clothes over their heads so they could neither see nor hear and let things take their course; some men might march boldly down-stairs, and perhaps be shot or stabbed by a desperate robber.

Obviously it is better to keep burglars out of your house. The question is: How can it be done? What the people want to know is: How can they be protected against the visits of midnight marauders?

"Every body should know," said a police detective to a New York Journal reporter, "that the police can not stop burglaries. The best they can do is to catch the thieves after they have done their work.

"I think," continued the detective, "that every body who can should have some kind of burglar alarm. It doesn't matter what it is—any thing that will make a noise. And my advice to people is, if you think there is a thief in the house, tramp around, rattle things in a lively fashion. Nine times in ten you will scare him off. If you go to chasing after him unprepared to make a desperate fight, you are pretty apt to have trouble."

The principle of dealing with burglars as laid down by the detective has been recognized as the correct one, and devices for giving alarm to the inmates of a house of the entrance of a burglar have long been in use. Patents have been granted in Washington for over one thousand devices. The principle in all of them is substantially the same. The difference is only in the modus operandi.

Of course electricity is brought into play in the most approved modern burglar alarm. Wires run from every door and window in the house to the alarm apparatus, which in a city house is generally placed in the second floor hall, or in the sleeping apartment of the head of the house.

There is an indicator similar to annunciators used in hotels. When the house is closed for the night, a switch is turned, and the arrangement is in order. If a door or window is open, the big alarm bell will ring, and the indicator will show exactly which door or window is open. Thus you can determine whether the servants have left things in proper order. Of course at no time in the night can any door or window be opened without setting the bell going, and it will ring until you stop it. The bells commonly used are large enough to arouse every body in the house. But the burglar is the first to hear the sound, and he scampers off as lively as he can go.

This electric burglar-frightener sometimes goes off without sufficient provocation. Mice or rats have been known to interrupt the circuit by tampering with the wires, or pushing open a door not fastened. Under these circumstances there is apt to be consternation upstairs, and perhaps a solemn procession of white-robed figures armed with guns and pistols to the scene of the trouble as shown by the indicator.

One of the most ingenious devices of the kind is an idea of an actor, known for his partiality to fine jewelry and diamonds. It is a pick-pocket alarm. In his vest pocket he carries a French battery no larger than a match safe, with a tiny bell attached to it. The electric circuit runs through his watch chain. No one could steal his watch from his pocket without breaking the circuit and ringing the alarm bell.

The mechanical burglar alarms are devised principally for travelers, as electricity has largely supplanted them for use in homes. It gives the traveler some feeling of security to go to sleep in a hotel with the knowledge that if any one opens the door or window a bell will sound an alarm. The appliances for doing the work he can carry in his valise, or, may be, in his pocket.

A drummer recently displayed to some friends a novel device which he uses in his travels. When he goes to bed he screws it to the door-jam. It is simply a tube with a weight in it. A fulminating cap that goes off with a loud report is put in the tube. When the door opens it strikes a trigger which releases the weight and the cap is discharged, the drummer awakens and the intruder thinks he is shot.

Mechanical alarms can be purchased which are wedge shaped. They are simply put on the floor in front of the door. Opening of the door depresses a spring and clock-work rings a loud alarm. Scores of other devices do the same work in as many different ways.

The general public does not know how many of the banks, jewelry houses and other places of business where valuable goods are kept are protected against burglary. Watchmen sometimes fall asleep, or wander off, or are not trustworthy. So an ingenious electrician established a central protection office, with wires running from it to various places of business.

Safes were provided with electric-lined cabinets, and doors and windows were connected with the circuit. Any disturbance of them whatever rings an alarm in the central office, and men are hurried over to see what the trouble is. If the business house is entered by an employe after being closed for the night, the alarm goes in just the same, and a record is made of the fact.

Buttons in Her Nose.

According to a Cincinnati Enquirer correspondent, Miss Clara Boll, the twenty-two-year-old daughter of Mrs. John Boll, of Canton, O., is the subject of an odd experience. For years she has been troubled with what she supposed was catarrh. This affliction has bothered her since she was two years old, and a few days ago Miss Boll consulted a physician, who made an examination, and came to the conclusion that some foreign substance was lodged in one of the nostrils. He probed for it, and, after removing a few small pieces of bone, came upon a substance which, upon close examination, proved to be a small cloth-covered button. A second search brought forth another button. Now Miss Bell is breathing better than she has since infancy. When a babe she forced the buttons up her nostrils, and they have remained imbedded there ever since, and gave rise to the symptoms of chronic catarrh with which she thought she was suffering.

LABOR AND LABORERS.

REUTLINGEN, Germany, has a weaving school. At Reutlingen operatives lunch at 10, and from 12 to 1, and have afternoon rest from 3 to 3:30, and supper at 7. Singing is always to be heard and the operatives, especially the girls, are pictures of health and beauty.

FRENCHMEN call Canada New France. It contains 2,250,000 of that race. The average family has nine members, and those of fifteen and eighteen are not uncommon.

A DRIVING YOUNG MAN.

He Was a Trifle Behind Time, But Got There Just the Same.

"Talk about get up and get, with a dash of American nerve, I saw a good specimen of it yesterday," said Uncle Silas Bowersox to a New York World reporter. "A young man jumped on a Broadway car at Chambers street followed by a bootblack. With a curt 'don't mind us' from the youth the bootblack went to work on the young man's boots, while he pulled a writing tablet out of his pocket and proceeded to dash off a letter.

"'Here, young feller; you can't black your boots on the car,' exclaimed the conductor.

"'Oh, but I must,' replied the young man. 'Got to do it; case of emergency.' And as he handed the conductor the fare he whispered something in his ear that seemed to satisfy that official.

"When we reached Prince street the man's boots wore a patent-leather shine. He had four letters written, sealed in an envelope and addressed. Handing them to the bootblack, with a coin, he gave the boy directions where to deliver them and return with an answer. 'I'll be there at 4:45—just twenty minutes,' he said, looking at his watch, 'and you have just time to make it. Now gallop.' The boy left the car and disappeared on a run.

"The young man took a seat in the car, opened a grip, and taking out a clean pair of cuffs, collar and white necktie, put them on. He then took out a hair-brush and pocket mirror, brushed his hair, put wax on his mustache, squirted some cologne on a fresh handkerchief, put a clove in his mouth, knocked the dust from his hat and clothing with a wisp-broom, and giving his cuffs a finishing jerk turned to the people in the car and said:

"'Ladies and gentlemen, an apology is due you, and some explanation is likewise due myself. I don't wish to be considered fussy. I'm no dude, and I don't spend half my time before the looking-glass, as you might infer. I'm a plain, practical, every day sort of a chap from Bridgeport, Conn. In just twenty minutes by the watch I am to be married to the boss girl of New York City, barring none. My train is two hours late, but thanks to the conductor of this car and your own kind indulgence I'll get there just the same.'

"And all the people in the car thought he would."

A PRIZE FISH YARN.

It Was Told by a Kentuckian, Hence It Must Be True.

The Chicago Times tells the most remarkable fish yarn of the season. It is ascribed to a Kentuckian, and runs as follows:

"Thomas D. Snyder, in the Illinois Bank building, is a fisher of men, enticing them to bite at his real-estate office. He hasn't had a rod in his hand since he played truant at school. Still he had a friend who, he says, was fishing in an Illinois river a short time ago when he caught a sixteen-pound pickerel. 'That is not so extraordinary,' continued the good-natured real-estate man. 'Just as large fish have been caught before, and will be again. But I am assured by him that when he opened the fish he found it had swallowed a muskallonge weighing nine pounds. Opening the muskallonge he found in its stomach a four-pound black bass, inside of whose stomach was a one and one-half pound yellow bass, which in turn had swallowed a half-pound sunfish, and inside the latter was a beautiful, ruby-throat humming-bird, not yet dead. Indeed, he has it at home in a beautiful little cage, where it hums happily all the day long. All the fish were as sound as though life had not been extinct, and from the fact that the humming-bird was yet alive, and it being the first of the crowd that was swallowed, it would seem that all this extraordinary swallowing, winding up with the capture of the pickerel, must have been within the space of seven minutes.' While Mr. S. declined to verify the statement in all its particulars, he said his informant was the son of a preacher and born in Breathitt County, Ky., either of which distinction ought to be sufficient proof of his veracity and his character for truth."

DELIBERATING FOR KNIGHTS.

The K. of L. Executive Board in Session at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 1.—The General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, now in session in this city, will have many interesting features to look after that have not yet been publicly noted, outside of special interests which brought the present meeting to St. Louis.

Several matters are of interest to the Knights of Labor at Pittsburg. Local Assembly No. 1,648, from Pittsburg, will present an application for a charter to take in all the glasshouse packers not covered by Local Assembly No. 300, the American Flints and Green Bottle Blowers' Assemblies.

The Slaters, Marble and Tile Workers' Union and Musicians' Union troubles at Pittsburg will also be considered. All complaints not only from St. Louis and the Southwest, but from all parts of the country will be fully investigated. An effort will be made to straighten out all the many present entanglements of the order.

Contractor Snaith Arrested.

ALBANY, Oct. 1.—Attorney-General Tabor, having begun an action in the Supreme Court at Utica before Judge Merwin against Contractor John Snaith upon the Assembly ceiling fraud, that official granted an order for Snaith's arrest yesterday, and the execution was placed in the hands of Sheriff Rooney, and Snaith was arrested late last evening. He subsequently gave bonds in the sum of $50,000, Isaac Brilleman, a jeweler, and Henry L. Smith, a clothier, becoming his sureties.

Married in Japan.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—A cable message was received here yesterday from Japan, announcing the marriage of Rev. John G. Fagg, of Yokohama, to Margaret W. Gillespie, of Jersey City. Mr. Fagg was once pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church at Cobbleskill. He is now a missionary in Japan. The bride was up to six weeks ago a teacher in Public School No. 8 in Sherman avenue, Jersey City.

The New York Central Accident.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Manning, Miss Tate and Wm. McElroy, who were injured in Friday night's accident on the New York Central Road, are all much better to-day. The funeral of Charles Franklin, the porter who was killed in the accident, was held yesterday.

CHURCH CONVENTION

The Great Episcopal Triennial Meeting Opens To-Day.

A NUMBER OF BISHOPS PRESENT.

Radical Changes Proposed in the Prayer-Book and Hymnal Service.

A New Name for the Church—Reappointing Representatives to the Convention. Names of the Prominent Bishops, Clergymen and Lay Delegates Present.—The Convention to Last One Month.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The Triennial General Convention of Episcopal Churches was opened this morning at St. George's Memorial Church in East Sixteenth street, with a full service. Trinity and St. George's choirs, consolidated, furnished the music.

The convention will be in session for about three weeks or a month and will be one of the most important ever held in the history of the Church. The questions which will come up for consideration are of great importance and affect the welfare of the Church very materially. Many radical changes are proposed, and as there is a great diversity of opinion regarding them, it is expected that some red-hot discussions will arise.

The attendance on the convention is unusually large. There are from seventy-five to a hundred members of the House of Bidsops and about 400 lay delegates. In addition to these members, who come from all parts of the country, there are also present distinguished members of the Church from England, Ireland, Scotland and Canada.

Among the many important matters none will excite greater interest than the proposed prayer-book revision. In line with this will be the revision of the Episcopal hymnal and the question of missionary work.

The Church of the United States.

It has also been proposed to effect a change in the name of the church to the "Church of the United States." Another important matter will be that of reapportioning representatives to the convention. It is claimed that under the present system representation is not fairly in proportion to the strength, in numbers, of the churches. Under the system now in vogue small churches have as much voting strength in the convention as churches in the large cities, which is manifestly unfair to the latter.

The names of the more important bishops in attendance are as follows: Bishop Williams of Connecticut, Bishop Doane of Albany, Bishop McLaren of Chicago, Bishop Galleher of Louisiana, Bishop Whipple of Minnesota, Bishop Starkey of Newark, Bishop Leonard of Ohio, Bishop Clark of Rhode Island, Bishop Whitaker of Pennsylvania, Bishop Coxe of Buffalo and Bishop Potter of New York.

Among the clerical delegates present are Rev. W. H. Vibbert of Chicago, Rev. Dr. Harwood of New Haven, Revs. Browne and Baker of Brooklyn, Rev. Phillips Brooks of Boston, Rev. Dr. McVickar of Philadelphia, Rev. Dr. Richards of Providence, and from this city Rev. Morgan Dix, E. A. Hoffman, W. R. Huntington and C. E. Swope.

Some of the Lay Delegates.

Of the prominent lay deputies present are Hon. Erastus Corning of Albany, Henry Coppee of Lehigh University, Benjamin Stark of Connecticut, ex-Governor A. H. Rice of Boston, J. M. Woolworth of Omaha, Cortland Parker of Newark, James S. Biddle and Lemuel Coffin of Philadelphia, Columbus Delano of Ohio, and from this city Stephen P. Nash, Hon. Hamilton Fish, J. Pierpont Morgan and W. Bayard Cutting.

Among the distinguished visitors from abroad are Bishop Courtney of Nova Scotia, formerly of St. Paul's, in Boston, and Lord Plunkett, Bishop of Dublin.

The visiting bishops will be cared for and entertained by Bishop Potter. A luncheon will also be provided daily for all members of the convention at the expense of the diocese of New York city.

SECRET SESSIONS.

The Executive Board of the Knights of Labor at Work in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2.—The General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor are in secret session at the Laclede Hotel. Matters of interest to the South and Southwest are being considered.

Referring to the Furlong case, Mr. Powderly said: "I have requested the District Assembly to call a meeting of members, present and past, at which I will be present. I want to learn how official names and seals were secured to endorsements of Furlong that were forwarded to Secretary Windom. The opposition to Furlong on the part of the Knights of Labor grew out of the press reports that were sent from St. Louis during the Southwest strike and which induced the order to believe that Furlong was engaged in persecuting our order."

A private meeting of the Knights of Labor was held last night to discuss the situation in St. Louis and receive reports from the Grievance Committee. To-night a public meeting will be held at which Mr. Powderly will deliver a speech. He will be introduced by Mayor Noonan.

His Body Cut in Two by a Buzz Saw.

EXETER, N. H., Oct. 2.—Yesterday Frank Cummings, aged 40 and married, while at work in Hampton, near the Exeter line, fell on a circular saw and his body was cut, completely in twain. Death was instantaneous.

Ex-U. S. Treasurer Hyatt for Warden.

NORWALK, Conn., Oct. 2.—Hon. James W. Hyatt, ex-U. S. Treasurer, has been nominated for Warden on the Democratic ticket. The nomination is considered equal to election.

A VENERABLE TOWN.

Stratford, Conn., to Celebrate Its 250th Birthday To-Morrow.

STRATFORD, Conn., Oct. 2.—All the arrangements have been perfected for the celebration to-morrow of the 250th anniversary of the settlement of the town of Stratford and the dedication of a soldiers' and sailors' monument which has just been erected on Academy Hill. If the day should be fine it is believed that there will be more than 1,500 people in line, and preparations have been made to feed 3,000. Owing to generous contributions, there is no lack of funds to carry out the programme in splendid style.

A fine pyrotechnic display has been arranged for, and the streets for more than half a mile will be strung with Japanese lanterns. Decorators have been busy putting up flags and bunting, and at some of the oldest houses in town there will be tableaux representing industries of the olden times. The Consolidated Railroad will decorate the station, and every residence in the old town will be seen the best side out.

The lower room of the Town Hall has been secured for a loan exhibition, and a special stage has been erected adjoining the Episcopal church for the use of the tableaux committee. Special scenery has been painted, to assist in reproducing actual events in the early history of the settlement, in which Indians, backwoodsmen, hunters, etc., will be prominent.

THE LECONEY INQUEST.

A Verdict that the Girl Came to Her Death at the Hands of a Person Unknown.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 2.—The coroner's inquest into the murder of Annie Leconey resulted in a verdict that the girl came to her death at the hands of a person unknown.

Edward Burroughs, foreman of the jury, is said to be a life-long friend of Chalkley Leconey, the uncle of the girl, who is accused of complicity in her murder, and has taken no pains to conceal his interest in the suspected farmer's welfare. What his influence on the other jurors may have been is not now known, but it is believed that the verdict shows a desire on the part of Leconey's friends to compel the prosecution to produce the evidence they are withholding for his trial.

"SULLIVAN BOOMERS."

The Pugilist's Friends Working Hard to Secure His Nomination for Congress.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—It is said that the cause of John L. Sullivan's return to Boston yesterday, was on account of the secret meeting of the "Sullivan boomers." It is confidentially stated that his followers will wage an earnest campaign in the fourth Congressional district; that men who are known to be favorable to Sullivan's candidacy were not idle last night, and that it is alleged that important action is about to be taken by the Ways and Means Committee of the "Sullivan boomers." At the Parnell street house it was stated that Sullivan would return to New York on Friday next.

Rochester University's New President.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 2.—The Baptist Social Union tendered a reception and banquet last night to D. K. Hill, LL. D., the new president of the University of Rochester in the chapel of the First Baptist Church. Over 200 covers were laid. Addresses of welcome were delivered by Rev. J. W. A. Stewart, pastor of the First Baptist Church and Rev. Dr. A. H. Strong, president of the Rochester Theological Seminary. Dr. Hill received an ovation when he arose to speak. He responded in a graceful and brilliant address.

BAY STATE DEMOCRATS.

They Are Holding Their Convention To-Day at Worcester.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 2.—The State Convention of the Democratic party met in this city at 11 a. m. to-day to nominate a complete State ticket.

Nathan Matthews, Jr., a young Boston lawyer, was elected chairman. In his address he outlined the principles upon which the campaign will be conducted, which will be substantially on the national issues of 1888. He arraigned the present Administration, especially with regard to the Treasury decisions, the management of the pension office, etc., and he heartily endorsed the Democratic doctrine of tariff reform.

The platform reaffirms the principles of the National platform of 1888 and condemns the Republican party in the State and nation for incompetency, violation of pledges and for enforcing ring rule; it takes radical grounds on the tariff and State questions.

Hon. Wm. E. Russell, of Cambridge, will be unanimously nominated for Governor, there being no opposition.

Indignant Irish Farm Laborers.

DUBLIN, Oct. 2.—The farm laborers of County Clare are indignant at the farmers who, they claim, are using the National League for their own profit, while they oppose in every way the interests of the laborers. A meeting has been held by the laborers at which it was resolved to form a laborers' league and to demand the power to elect representatives to the local boards.

A German Count Will Remarry His Wife.

BERLIN, Oct. 2.—Rhenish newspapers announce that the re-marriage of Count von Hatzfeldt, German ambassador to London, to his divorced wife, formerly a Miss Moulton, of Canada, will take place shortly at Weisbaden. Their separation, the papers allege, was merely formal and for political reasons.

The King Desired to Meet His Mother.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—The "Standard's" correspondent at Belgrade says notwithstanding reports to the contrary it is known that the young King of Servia was only prevented by main force from going to meet his mother, and that there was a scandalous scene in the palace while Natalie was passing.

FINISH THEIR WORK.

New York Democrats Nominate Their Candidates.

FRANK RICE HEADS THE TICKET.

Tabor, Wemple and Bogart Nominated After Considerable Opposition.

The Names of ex-President Cleveland and Governor Hill Enthusiastically Cheered. Maryland, Republicans Nominate a Comptroller—Massachusetts Democrats in Session To-Day.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 2.—The Democratic State Convention closed at 6 o'clock last evening, having first nominated the following ticket:

SECRETARY OF STATE—Frank Rice, of Canadaigua.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL — Charles P. Tabor, of Buffalo.

COMPTROLLER—Edward Wemple, of Fonda.

TREASURER—Elliott Danforth, of Chenango County.

STATE ENGINEER AND SURVEYOR—John Bogart, of New York.

JUDGE OF THE COURT OF APPEALS—Denis O'Brien, of Watertown.

There was great unanimity on all the nominations with the exception of two, in which New York and Kings County seemed to be pitted against the rest of the State. These were the nominations for Comptroller and Attorney-General, but more especially in the case of the latter. In neither did they carry their point.

Tammany and the County Democracy were out openly against Tabor and Wemple, and so announced themselves before the convention was called to order by Chairman Murphy, of the State Committee. Lieut.-Gov. Edward F. Jones served as both temporary and permanent chairman, with Charles R. Defreest, Michael F. Holihan, Joseph E. Newberger and Frank W. Gethoefer as secretaries.

Chairman Jones read a carefully prepared speech. He was frequently applauded. His allusion to the name of Grover Cleveland evoked tremendous enthusiasm, and the cheers lasted nearly a minute. When he mentioned the name of Governor Hill the excitement again broke out in cheers.

The platform adopted reaffirms the national platform of 1888 adopted at St. Louis, and declares that the Democratic party was not an advocate of free trade, but believed in a tariff reform. Grover Cleveland's administration as President of the United States was endorsed, and a storm of applause and three cheers for Cleveland followed.

President Harrison was arraigned for removing good men from office before their time of appointment had expired. The Republican Legislature of the State was arraigned and charged with causing a great increase in taxation. The numerous vetoes of Governor Hill during his term of office were highly commended.

As to the temperance question, the platform declares that the party does not want rum power, neither does it advocate prohibition, but as a happy medium uniform rates for licenses all over the State and a rigid enforcement of the present laws, if no others can be framed.

The platform calls for electoral reform and home rule for cities, also the liberal maintenance of the canal system. Governor Hill was indorsed for his very satisfactory administration.

After appointing a new State Committee the convention adjourned sine die.

The State Committee organized with Edward Murphy, of Rensselaer, chairman, S. A. Beardsley, of Oneida, secretary, and W. B. Kirk, of Onondaga, treasurer. The Executive Committee will be appointed by the chairman.

The Tammany and County Democracy trains left for New York this morning at 9 o'clock.

MARYLAND REPUBLICANS.

George L. Wellington of Allegany Nominated for Comptroller.

WESTMINSTER, Md., Oct. 2.—Hon. Henry Stockbridge of Baltimore was elected permanent chairman of the Republican State convention yesterday. The resolutions adopted rejoice in the return of the party to National power; pledges the Republican party to support the Peace election law, with such features of the Australian system as may be adaptable; arraigns the Democrats for alleged corrupt expenditure of money, call for a new assessment of property and for colored teachers in negro public schools; denounce Democrats for arrests to intimidate negroes; favors high license and civil service reform; demands the maintenance of the Chesapeake & Ohio canal and the protection of the oyster interests.

George L. Wellington of Allegany county was nominated for Comptroller.

After a speech by the nominee and the creation of a new State Central Committee the convention adjourned sine die.

Ceiling Contractor Smaith Secures Bail.

ALBANY, Oct. 2.—Contractor Smaith, who was arrested upon a warrant issued by Judge Merwin of the Supreme Court at Utica, before whom Attorney-General Tabor has begun action against Smaith upon the Assembly ceiling fraud, gave bonds in the sum of $50,000 and was released. Isaac Brilleman, a jeweler, and Henry L. Smith, a clothier, were the bondsmen.

Large Vessel Wrecked.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 2.—Captain Johnson, of the schooner Augusta H. Johnson, from Grand Banks, September 12, five miles south by east from south west light, Sable Island, passed the wreck of a large vessel, apparently a steamer. One yard was visible above water and another was seen below the surface.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—Oh, for a freight yard in the suburbs.

—The thermometer took a tumble during last night.

—This is the season when chestnuts are appreciated.

—Sparrows are being utilized for trap shooting instead of pigeons.

—The season for wrestling with the treacherous stovepipe is here.

—The leaves of the trees have turned a shabby yellow, russet-shoe tint.

—The two candidates for Governor will be at the Inter-State fair on Thursday.

—The people want the freight yard moved, and a park laid out in its place.

—The Union County Freeholders will meet at Elizabeth, to-morrow afternoon.

—The Latimer will case at Elizabeth today, was again postponed until Friday.

—The railroad freight yard should be removed from its present location near the main passenger station.

—Customers of the Holly Grove milk dairy are requested to see notice in our cent-a-word column today.

—The condition of the roadbed on Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, would be greatly improved by the use of a roller.

—At the conference of the Court of Errors and Appeals at Trenton, on Monday, November 19, was fixed upon as opinion day.

—The breaking of the ground has begun for the erection of the new public school building on the North side of the railroad at Dunellen.

—Leal's foot ball team will use the Crescent's ball grounds for the balance of the season, and conduct a series of games there during the Fall months.

—The regular monthly business meeting of the Reform Club will be held to-morrow, Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, at which a full attendance is desired.

—At the Trenton Inter-State Fair, now in progress in the building devoted to women's work, are interesting exhibits from the State Prison and from the State Industrial School for Girls.

FOR SHAME.

Are the Plainfield People Ignorant or Heedless?

The list of attractions already presented at Music Hall, this season, and those to follow, reflect great credit upon the management and should command the appreciation of the public. But such appreciation has not yet been felt.

Last night's presentation of "Captain Swift" was perfect in every way. Messrs Forrest and Huntington, and Misses Eytinge and Kimball were especially good, and the entire company was far ahead of what Plainfield deserves. But the audience was disgracefully small.

New York does not get anything better than Frederick Warde gave Plainfield last week, nor anything better than Louis James will give next week. But the people of this city and the Borough literally don't patronize Music Hall "for a cent."

As the boys say: "What's the matter with Plainfield, anyhow?" Is it ignorance or heedlessness that causes the light houses at the first-class attractions offered at Music Hall? The people fairly hollered for an opera house when there was none, and now they don't seem to know what a play is when they hear of it.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. C. DeLacy Evans and wife have gone to Baltimore for the Winter,

Mrs. Baughn of Jersey City, is the guest of her niece, Mrs. W. L. Wright of Park avenue.

Mr. Frank Newman, of West Fifth street, has returned to the Boston School of Technology.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gilligan of Second place have removed to No. 230 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Pliny Fisk and child, of West Seventh street, have returned after a Summer spent in Vermont.

Mr. "Bert" Demarest of Craig place, North Plainfield, is able to go out after a month's confinement to the house by illness.

Mr. T. B. Penton and family of Rock View avenue, North Plainfield, have gone to Lake Hopatcong for an indefinite period.

Mrs. John H. Evans and Miss May Evans, have taken up their residence at the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, for the Winter.

Mr. G. S. McGinness, says the New Brunswick Fredonian, left this afternoon for a well earned vacation, which he will spend in Plainfield.

Mrs. Geo. L. VanEmburg of East Sixth street, accompanied by her friend, Miss Colwell of Long Island, are spending a fortnight at Greenwood Lake.

Mr. Thomas Clacy, who lost a hand while at work in Mr. W. P. Smith's residence at Netherwood, a few weeks ago, has again returned to Mr. A. M. Griffin's employ.

Mr. P. B. MacIntyre and bride (nee Miss Carrie Manning), returned from their bridal trip yesterday, and are stopping with the bride's parents on West Seventh street.

Mr. W. K. McClure and family, have returned to their Broadway residence after a two weeks' absence at Lake Hopatcong, very much improved in health. Mr. McClure has again resumed his law practice.

Mr. Geo. Thatcher's handsome residence at Seventh street and Central avenue, has been leased for the Winter to a gentleman named Rogers, who will be given possession at once.

Mrs. M. Heft, of Easton, Lieut. Dentler of the Sixth Infantry stationed at Chicago, and Mrs. D. S. Roberts, of this city, started from here yesterday to accompany Mrs. M. Tooker and son to Mason City, Ill., where the latter two reside.

At her home on the Rahway road, near Fanwood, this afternoon, occurred the death of Mrs. Cornelia Sliter, the estimable mother of Manager W. S. Sliter of the District Messenger office in this city. The deceased was 58 years of age. Her death was sudden, having resulted from hemorrhage.

Popular Meeting of City and County Young People.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church are making extensive plans for a popular meeting for the young people of the city and county, to be held in their church the evening of Oct. 17.

Rev. F. E. Clark of Boston, who is at the head of the Christian Endeavor work of the country, has fortunately been secured to give the principal address of the evening.

Special attention is being given the music which will be furnished by representatives from the various churches. Further notices will be given later.

Take Them In.

It is not according to the rules for any man or boy to wear a straw hat after the first day of October, and yet a few violations were observed yesterday morning. The atmosphere had almost a touch of Summer about it, and no doubt the hats felt comfortable. All the same, the big bell has struck to call in the straw hats, and the very few that are now seen will soon be put away in camphor until 1890.

Annual Election.

The annual meeting for election of officers of the Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue church, will be held on Friday evening, after prayer meeting, at Bethel chapel.

—The uniforms which the Central Railroad company ordered its ticket and station agents to wear, have not yet arrived.

WELCOMED BY PRESIDENT MURRAY.

A Reception to Plainfield's Mechanics.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather, a goodly number of young men attended—in response to the invitation of the Y. M. C. A.—the reception tendered last evening to the young men in the shops engaged in mechanical pursuits. They were gladly received by the Reception Committee, and were made to feel entirely at home by the hearty speech of welcome by President Murray.

Mr. A. J. Gavett explained the object and aim of the classes in mechanical drawing. These classes were very successful last year and there is no doubt will be equally so during the coming year. The principal part of the entertainment of the evening was furnished by Mr. Charles H. Little, humorist, of New York. It certainly was a treat to hear him. His witty remarks, and really good jokes, kept the audience almost continually convulsed with laughter; while his excellent character delineations were received with uproarous applause.

Mr. David E. Titsworth sang two solos in a charming manner, much to the delight of the young men. Mr. Titsworth never sang better in his life. His voice is steadily improving. It is regretted that the storm kept some away from this really enjoyable reception, but there will be others at intervals during the season. The "Ladies Nine" furnished coffee and cake.

Sandy Hook Route Abandoned

In consequence of the formation of an inlet a little to the North of Highland Bridge, and of the great damage done by the storm to the track from Seabright to Sandy Hook, a damage which, although easy of repair, another storm may repeat, the New Jersey Central Railroad company has decided to build a new line from Seabright Northwesterly across the salt meadows to the Matawan spur running to Atlantic Highlands, and to make Atlantic Highlands their terminus instead of Sandy Hook.

This will give Seabright an all-rail route by way of Matawan to New York, and a bay route by way of Atlantic Highlands. The time will be no longer by water, and by rail it will save the long detour by way of Branchports. This will greatly develop the beautiful Highlands. The map has been filed at Trenton.

The Somerville Fair.

The Twentieth annual fair of the Somerset County Agricultural Society will open at Somerville on Tuesday, October 8, and continue throughout Wednesday and Thursday. The grandest field of trotters ever assembled on these grounds will be there on the second and third days of the fair, including the winners at Trenton on Monday last. Wednesday's programme will include a special county race for a purse of $150; a $300 purse for the 2.25 class; a $250 purse for the 2.40 class, and a race for 4-year-olds for $100.

On Thursday there will be double team racing, besides races for the 2.30 and 3.09 minute class. A purse of $500 is offered for the free-for-all. The agricultural and household exhibits, will exceed those of former years.

Election of Officers.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Warren Mission chapel, elected officers last evening as follows:

President—M. M. Dunham.
Vice President—J. W. Gavett.
Rec. Sec'y—Miss Lillie Bird.
Cor. Sec'y—Miss E. Bosterli.
Treasurer—Miss Ida Deacon.

It Should be Enforced in Plainfield.

In order to put a stop to a long-standing grievance the Street Department of Elizabeth has issued an order calling for the arrest of any driver who runs his vehicle over or across a sidewalk. The order will be strictly enforced.

Choosing Mr French's Successor.

The regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Reform Club will be held to-morrow evening at eight o'clock.

Business of importance in relation to the election of a President, will come before the meeting.

—The annual parade of the Elizabeth Fire Department will take place to-morrow. Visiting firemen will attend from this city.

—The young Elizabeth dude who "hung up" a Plainfield boarding mistress for board at the seashore this Summer, has not mentioned the fact to his friends.

—All persons interested in the organization of a co-operative grocery store, in this city, are requested to meet in the hall over Stelle's drug store this evening at 7.30.

—Mr. Chris. VanArsdale, the proprietor, will open a handsome new bowling alley at Somerville, on Thursday evening. A delegation from the Plainfield Bowling Club will be present at the opening.

—Tax Collector D. H. Terry, of Fanwood, recently shot a pair of handsome wood drakes which are now being stuffed by Taxidermist McIntosh. The plumage of the birds is particularly beautiful.

—The Vocal Society which is to be organized in this city, and which was reported exclusively in The Press of yesterday, will doubtless receive the hearty support of all the well-known vocalists in this city.

—A handsome new safe of the Marvin make, weighing about 2,000 pounds arrived at the freight house today and was transferred by truckman William Wright to Mr. Edward Love's new building at the corner of North avenue and Peace street.

MEDICAL MEN MEETING.

Dr. Rushmore, of Plainfield, Elected a Vice President.

The State Homœopathic Medical Society held its semi-annual meeting yesterday, in Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City. Dr. E. M. Howard, of Camden, and Dr. John Younglove read papers. President H. J. Anderson, of New York, presided.

The Legislative Committee reported favorably on a bill to regulate the practice of medicine so as to prevent incompetent physicians from practising. A resolution was adopted that a National Board, to be composed of the Legislative Committees of the State Boards, should be formed to secure necessary legislation. The following officers were elected:

President—H. Anderson, Newark.

Vice Presidents—Edward Rushmore, Plainfield; N. D. Youngman, Atlantic City; J. P. Johnston, Hightstown.

Recording Secretary—B. H Sleight, Newark.

Corresponding Secretary—Wallace McGeorge, Woodbury.

Treasurer—Francis A. Gue, East Orange.

Necrologist—George W. Richards, Orange.

Censors—E. M. Howard, Camden; J. N. Lowe, Milford; C. B. Holmes, Rahway; A. W. Baily, Atlantic City; J. G. Strul, Bridgeton.

A SIMULTANEOUS MOVEMENT

For the Cause of Religion.

Simultaneous meetings, in behalf of the cause of foreign missions, were held two years ago, under the direction of the Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey, in nearly all the churches of that denomination, throughout the State. Considerable enthusiasm was aroused and such increase of interest followed that it has been resolved to repeat the movement this Fall.

The committee appointed by the Synod have set apart, for that purpose, the week, Nov. 3 to 10, and are making arrangements to secure the co-operation of every church, Sabbath school and missionary society.

The 300 Presbyterian churches in this State, with their 56,293 members, and the 64,280 members of the 352 Sabbath schools, will find an opportunity, in the coming November simultaneous meetings, which may well enlist their deepest enthusiasm.

The Opinion of a Great Soldier.

Just forty-eight hours before he died, that great soldier, General Hancock, wrote as follows about Gen'l Mulholland whose pictures of Gettysburg are to be exhibited at Music Hall, Wednesday, the 16th inst.:

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND, N. Y., Feb. 6, 1886.

Mr. Matt Morgan:

My Dear Sir—Your favor of January 17th was only received by me on the 30th inst., and my confinement to the house since that date by a temporary indisposition has further delayed its acknowledgement.

In answer to your inquiry I would suggest as your military adviser and critic General St. Clair A. Mulholland, of Philadelphia, who was an officer of distinction durihg our civil war, and is a professional painter of some repute. He has just returned to this country from a residence abroad for several years—in London and Paris chiefly—and is engaged, I believe, in writing some war papers for "The Century." At this moment I can think of no one freer from bias or more useful to you.

I am, very truly yours,

WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

"Hamlet" Next.

Mr. Louis James' first appearance here as Hamlet attracted a large audience to the Windsor Theatre, last night, says the New York Telegram, and all who went were rewarded by witnessing a very effective and unconventional impersonation of the character. Mr. James plays Hamlet as a blond and makes him a more robust personage than he is usually represented to be. Mr. James is one of the best readers on the stage, and it is a pleasure to listen to Shakespeare's lines as they come from his lips. His reading of Hamlet's soliloquies last night were admirable as elocutionary efforts and his performance, as a whole, is deserving of high praise.

Mr. James will impersonate Hamlet at Music Hall, on Monday evening, Oct. 7.

Conference at Cranbury.

The local conference of the Y. M. C. A. was held at Cranbury on Sunday. There were delegates present from New Brunswick, Plainfield, Princeton and elsewhere. The pulpits of three churches were filled in the morning by delegates from New Brunswick and Plainfield. Meetings were held in the morning, afternoon and evening, and addresses were made by the difierent delegates. The delegation from this city were Messrs Stephen Cahoone of the District Committee, and E. L. Suffern. The latter addressed a mass meeting in the evening.

A Cross Match.

Great though suppressed excitement was occasioned in Music Hall, last evening, after the play commenced, by the entrance of a young white man of this city escorting a young black woman. They had orchestra seats and were entirely at ease in their conversation and actions during the entire performance, although the cynosure of all eyes.

Last Night's Storm.

The heavy rain storm which passed over the city about five o'clock last evening, did no serious damage in this locality. The storm was accompanied by much thunder and lightning, but so far as reported no damage was done by the lightning. During the progress of the storm, a considerable quantity of hail fell.

—The Y. M. C. A. classes in mechanical drawing will be resumed on Tuesday evening, October 8. A new class will be organized at once and commence work on the 15th. Information given and names enrolled at the Association rooms.

The Railroads in the United States.

Poor's railroad manual for 1889 gives the total railroad mileage in the United States at the end of 1888 at 156,082 miles, being nearly one-half the total mileage of the world. Twenty-eight thousand and eighty-two miles were built between 1886 and 1888.

Twenty-nine thousand three hundred and ninety-eight locomotives, 21,425 passenger cars, 6,827 baggage and mail, and 1,000,000 freight cars were in use in 1888.

All this great interest is only sixty years old, and the greater part not twenty-five years. In 1865 the total mileage was only 35,085 miles, and 121,000 miles of road has been built since that date, an average of over 5,000 miles a year. The number of passengers on all railroads in the United States transported in 1888 was 451,353,655, and the amount of fares per mile was 2,246 cents.

Nearly $1,000,000,000 was earned by the roads last year. Two hundred millions was paid for interest on bonds, etc., and over $80,000,000 in dividends. Over one-half of the total earnings are paid to employes or $629,000,000.

The total value of the tonnage moved in 1888, at $25 per ton, was $14,633,957,925.

An average of five persons per mile are regularly employed on all the railroads of the United States, making a total of 936,000 persons. If you add to this a number, representing six persons per mile, as the number of people employed in locomotive building, rail making, etc., there is a total of 1,716,000 operatives.

Suppose each of these operatives has a family of five persons. You have an aggregate of 8,580,000 souls over 90 per cent. of whom depend directly upon the pay derived from the railroad interest. To this great army add those who are building new roads, etc., making a total of over two million men, representing over twelve million people, about one-fifth of the total population of the United States.

To pay this vast number of people the railroads expend three million dollars per day.

No account is taken in the above estimate of the stock and bond holders which number a million people, representing five million dependents, who received an average of 1.77 per cent. in 1888 upon their investments.

Of Interest to Milkmen.

An interesting case was tried in Trenton a few days ago, under the State milk law, which was stoutly resisted in South Jersey over a year ago. The law requires 12 per cent. of solids in the milk, and a sample taken by Health Inspector Mc Guire from one of the cans belonging to F. B. Croasdale, of Ewing, proved, upon analysis by Shippen Wallace, the chemist, to contain only 11.62 of solids.

These facts were brought out in the Justice's Court, but the defence contented itself with proving that the milk was fresh from the cow and not adulterated with water or other substance. It is said that the reason it failed to come up to the legal standard was that the cows were fed on new clover. The jury acquitted Croasdale.

Dunellen Personals.

Mr. A. M. Smith and wife of Franklin Furnace, N. J., are visiting at the residence of Mr. W. J. Hamilton.

Mr. Alvah Gray has purchased the land opposite the engine house and will erect a neat cottage thereon.

Mrs. Swackhamer and daughter of Dunellen, have gone to Joliet, Ill. on a visit.

Mr. Leonard Benton and wife of New York city, spent last Sunday at his home here.

Recommending a Girder Bridge.

A joint committee from the Union and Somerset County Boards of Freeholders met in this city on Monday afternoon, to take action with reference to rebuilding the Somerset street bridge over Green Brook. The Somerset county delegation, it is said, were unanimous in recommending the erection of an iron girder bridge at that point, and their recommendation will be reported at the next meeting of the Board.

Cleaning Up at Johnstown.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 2.—A committee of Johnstown citizens composed of Dr. H. W. Storey, Hon. John W. Rose and J. C. Sheridan had a consultation last night with Governor Beaver. They requested the Governor to continue the work of clearing the streets and he agreed to furnish $10,000 for the carrying on of the work for the next ten days. At the end of that time the members of the committee asserted the streets would be satisfactory.

Salvation Army Reception.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Marshal Ballington Booth, Commander-in-Chief of the Salvation Army, was tendered a reception at Chickering Hall last night in honor of his return from England, by his American followers. Members of the Army were present from all parts of the United States and Canada, and the reception was an enthusiastic one. General Booth was accompanied by his wife.

Maine Veterans at Gettysburg.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 2.—The Gettysburg party of the First, Tenth and Twenty-ninth Maine Regiment Association, which includes Governor Burleigh and staff, State officers and their ladies, are due at Gettysburg at 3 p. m. to-day and will leave on the homeward trip at 10:30 a. m. Friday.

We indorse all the proprietors have said relative to the merits of Salvation Oil. It is the greatest cure on earth for pain. Price only 25 cents.

Yarborough House, Raleigh, N. C.

The funeral of the late Rev. Father O'Haran was held this morning at Wilkesbarre, Pa. The church was heavily draped in mourning and the effect was most solemnly imposing.

The Coroner finds that William Anderson, of Philadelphia, who jumped from an electric car at Newport on August 18, came to his death by his own act and not by the carelessness of the officers of the road.

Secretary Dee, of the Pennsylvania State Board of Health, reports that Gov. Beaver will arrange for the retention of a sufficient force at Stony Creek, Johnstown, so that the sewerage may be carried away.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

THE BOSTONS LEAD

They Win Another Game from the Cleveland Infants.

GIANTS FIVE POINTS BEHIND.

They are Defeated by Pittsburg With Welch in the Box.

Only Four More Games to Play—Philadelphia Takes Third Place and Pittsburg Fifth—St. Louis and Athletics Both Win a Game—Standing of League and Association Clubs.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 2.—The champions have taken a back seat, for a short time at least, in the desperate struggle for the championship. The players feel it sorely, but have not yet given up hope. A slight turn of good fortune may still help them out, and they have certainly earned a gleam of sunshine by their long spell of ill-luck. The widespread interest which is felt in the battle was shown here last night by the big crowd that gathered in the Anderson billiard room after the local game was over and eagerly watched the bulletin board for tidings of the unfinished Cleveland game.

The Giants' dump into the consomme did not utterly overwhelm their supporters and bets were still made by New Yorkers that their favorites would wind up Saturday in the lead.

The Giants hit the ball much harder yesterday than the local club, but there seemed always to be a fielder in the right spot, while the wind took especial delight in helping to rob Ewing of some long hits.

Boston, 8; Cleveland, 5.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 2.—Boston had all the luck in yesterday's game and won it in the face of the hard hitting of the Clevelands. Umpire McQuaid was very severe on the home team and gave them the worst of all ball and strike decisions throughout. The day was very cold and windy. Kelly played a miserable game, and Richardson's batting virtually won for Boston.

REBELLIOUS STUDENTS.

Considerable Commotion at Dartmouth Over the Dismissal of a Junior.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 2.—About two weeks ago a student in the junior class at Dartmouth, charged with breaking down the door of a freshman's room, was expelled by the faculty. His classmates united in efforts to reinstate him and submitted evidence, which, they say, was sufficient to prove his innocence, but the faculty thought differently, and declined to allow him to return to the college.

Tuesday over thirty of the class, which numbers fifty-three, applied to President Bartlett for honorable dismissal papers, expressing their determination to leave. This action, which is generally disapproved by most of the other students, has caused considerable commotion, and the result is awaited with interest.

Presidential Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The President has appointed the following named Postmasters:

New York—Edson G. Gillett, at Skaneateles.

New Jersey—Edward L. Konklin, at Newark.

Delaware—Thomas Jefferson, Jr., at Smyrna.

World's Fair Committee Meeting.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the World's Fair it was decided to call a meeting of the General Finance Committee next Tuesday.

THE NEW STATE ELECTIONS.

Montana Democratic and the Dakotas and Washington Republican.

BISMARCK, N. D., Oct. 2.—North Dakota polled a full vote for its first State ticket. Reports are very meagre, but the Republican majority will probably be 7,000. Prohibition was defeated by a small majority.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 2.—A full vote was polled throughout South Dakota. The Democrats made little fight, and the entire Republican ticket, including Legislature and two Congressmen, was successful. Aside from the capital question, prohibition was the main issue. This is probably defeated.

HELENA, Mon., Oct. 2.—The Democrats are sure of victory, except in Choteau County, where Power, Republican, is likely to be ahead of Toole. The Australian system was very successful.

TACOMA, W. T., Oct. 2.—Ferry is elected Governor and Wilson Congressman in Washington, the Republican majority reaching 8,000. For the capital site Ellenburg is probably defeated. Its recent fire operated against its success.

STARVING IN THE WOODS.

Hunters Find a Family of Nine Persons in a Terrible Condition.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 2.—Late last night, hunters in the vicinity of Pitchen, this county, came upon a family, comprising husband, wife and seven children, all camped in the woods.

The sight was a terrible one. The nine persons had been traveling, but several weeks ago their money gave out, sickness attacked the father, and, too proud to beg, they lived in the woods. Since then they have subsisted on sour milk and potatoes. Their clothes have become so ragged as to barely cover their nakedness, and all of them are more or less diseased.

A sixteen-year-old daughter was found in an abandoned pigpen. She had typhoid fever and a baby lay in her arms. To-day the members of the family were brought here to the county infirmary and they ate ravenously of the food placed before them.

George William Curtis' Address.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—George William Curtis, in his address before the National Civil Service Reform League last night, entered into a long dissertation on the subject of reform in the civil service and its necessity in a country governed by republican ideas. President Harrison's failure to fulfil the promises made in the platform upon which he stood for election with regard to civil service reform was severely commented upon.

The Eloping Drummer Arrested.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 2.—Alfred Crotty, of Brooklyn, the drummer who eloped from this city on September 21 with Lida E. Bennett, the 19-year-old daughter of Andrew Bennett, a locomotive engineer, was arrested at Jamestown, N. Y., on a charge of seduction under promise of marriage. The warrant was obtained on complaint of the girl's father. Miss Bennett was with Crotty when arrested.

Buried in a Sewer Trench.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Oct. 2.—While working in a sewer trench yesterday, several laborers were buried by a cave-in, caused by failure to put in proper supports. Four were dug out. Christian Schunning is dead and Jacob Schunning, his brother, is dying. Anton Utne and Friechie Taylor are injured internally.

Frightful Railroad Accident in Germany.

STUTTGART, Oct. 2.—A serious railroad accident occurred near a place called Wild Park yesterday. The train left the track and was precipitated down a steep embankment. Three of the carriages were wrecked and seven passengers killed and forty-three severely injured.

Avery L. Rand Acquitted.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—The trial of Avery L. Rand, formerly of the Rand Avery Printing Company, who was charged with feloniously removing stereotype plates, the ownership of which was in dispute, from E. L. Fitzgerald's store house, ended in the acquittal of Mr. Rand.

Ex-President Cleveland at Lenox.

LENOX, Mass., Oct. 2.—Ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland and the Endicott party reached here last night by way of Pittsfield. Mrs. Whitney will give the Clevelands a reception this evening and the visitors will attend the Endicott-Theron wedding.

Judgment Against a Railroad.

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—In the suit of Robert J. Moffette against the Boston and Providence Railroad Company for injuries received at the Bussey Bridge disaster judgment has been entered for the plaintiff for $8,000. This is the last of the suits growing out of this accident.

Women's Christian Temperance Union.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 2.—The seventh annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union is in session at the First Presbyterian Church. Roll call showed 300 delegates present. The convention will last three days.

New York Bricklayers Still Out.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The situation with regard to the bricklayers' strike here remains unchanged. The workmen are still out, and it does not look as though any compromise can be reached to-day.

Strike Settled by Arbitration.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 2.—The strike of the Illinois Coal and Coke Company's miners has been settled by arbitration, the company agreeing to pay 70 cents a ton, which is good pay where the vein is four and a half feet thick, as here.

An Editor Nominated for Mayor.

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 2.—Charles R. Baldwin, proprietor of the Waterbury "American," was unanimously nominated for Mayor yesterday by the Democratic City Convention.

Presented to the President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—The delegates to the International American Congress were presented to the President to-day, and entertained at lunch by him.

Yale and Harvard Football Match.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 2.—The Yale and Harvard football teams have finally decided to play a match at Hampden Park, Springfield, on November 23.

SECRETS OF THE BLACK ART.

Some Amusing Features of a Magician's Life.

Prof. Herrmann Talks About His Business—How Some Astonishing Feats are Performed—Science Has Aided the Magician—Some Practical Jokes.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

It may be said that a magician like a poet is born and not made. Training and continual exercise will do a great deal, but unless there is something beyond and beneath they will achieve nothing. I have noticed this time and again. There is not a prestidigitateur, amateur or professional, who is not overwhelmed with applications from men and women to be taught the mysteries of our art. In many cases they succeed in having their wishes granted and become what may be termed students in legerdemain. Although they work hard and long, they seldom or never get ahead and finally they drop out altogether, disappointed and sometimes heart-broken at their lack of success.

Of course there are many notable exceptions to the rule. Edgar S. Allien of New York, Harry Lesle, one of Frank Leslie's sons, Lewis N. Megargee, William Muirheid, the president of the Palma club in Jersey City, and a score of others have done some remarkably excellent work in almost every field of professional magic. In fact many amateurs have contributed odd discoveries and ingenious inventions to our art. The curious chemical compound, which when burned increases three hundred fold in bulk and which is familiar to the public in the form of "Pharaoh's Serpents' Eggs," was first applied to this purpose by an amateur who had studied the art of so-called "magic" under a number of professionals. Of similiar origin are those powerful chemicals which change water to apparent blood, wine or ink, which enable a prestidigitateur to pour twenty different kinds of drinks from the same bottle and which alter the colors of flowers and fruits in almost any manner that may be desired.

So large has this field become of late years—what may be called the field of chemical conjuring—that it is possible for a well-educated man or woman without the slightest practical knowledge of magic to give a long and interesting performance in conjuring that in many respects will be superior to what is given by traveling fakirs. The demand for apparatus by amateurs who give such exhibitions in private parlors, and even before what may be called private audiences in the summer resorts of the country, is so great that there are several business houses which do an immense trade in supplying these goods, supplying amateurs with magical outfits, the chief features of which are of an electrical, mechanical, chemical or scientific character. Good types of such apparatus are found in the "goblin drum," which is suspended by a fine wire from the ceiling, and which, at the word of the performer, beats, answers questions and does arithmetical work. Of the same kind is the "spirit clock" which is a dial of clear glass similarly suspended and whose hands seem to possess human intelligence. In either case the wire is double and serves to conduct a current of electricity from a concealed battery to a clock-work inside the drum or in the hands of the dial. The performer or his assistant sets the battery in action and by a button controls the movement of the clock-work. Some of these scientific illusions are both striking and beautiful. One which is rarely seen, although it is exceedingly simple, is the "Fountain of Light." A barrel or tank lined with a cheap mirror is filled with water and its contents brilliantly illuminated, either by means of a dark lantern which throws its light through a glass window on the side or by incandescent globes suspended in the water. If, when the room is very dark, the faucet be turned and the water allowed to run out and fall into a glass pitcher or bowel, the liquid that falls, and that which is caught below, seems fluid fire, so perfectly does it carry the light in its particles. A large volume might be filled with the description of these scientific experiments. They are seldom employed by professionals and even when used are intended as expedients to distract the attention of the audience and not for any particular merit of their own. It is on this account that all first-class magicians keep a sharp eye upon the development of the modern sciences and make use of each new idea before it has become the common property and knowledge of the public.

Magic has undergone great changes in my own recollection, most of which has been for the better. When I began my professional career (and I was only eight years of age at the time) the average conjuror carried with him enough apparatus and paraphernalia to fill a baggage-car. With this he dressed the stage until it looked like the exhibition room of a great jewelry house. It was a legend of the profession that the richer and more brilliant the equipment the greater the success of the performer. One magician carried with him what are known in the dramatic world as "properties," and also the materials for a set-scene. He set his stage so as to resemble the interior of a Greek palace in the time of Pericles and went so far as to have his attendants attired in classical tunics.

Another popular performer of that period reproduced the den or laboratory of an alchemist, where strange fires burned, liquids boiled and mysterious vapors and perfumes ever and again broke upon the air. Still another played the part of a mediæval necromancer or wizard and used as ornaments the death's head, owl, alligator and black cat with which that individual was popularly believed to be surrounded.

The modern style of performing in a dress suit with the stage set as a drawing room took its use I believe with my father and Robert Houdin. It was well received by the public, but was opposed by the profession. Their ideas slowly forged ahead until to-day they are almost universally followed. The old system died hard. While it is seldom seen now-a-days in the large cities, it is occasionally encountered in small towns. Much of the apparatus then used has gone into the curiosity shop, some into collections of bric-a-brac and some has been put to plainer and more practical uses. The rule at present is to use as little machinery as possible, and to conceal or disguise that little as much as can be done.

There are exceptions in those cases where scientific illusions are produced. The "Sphynx" or "Headless Woman," where a head seemingly free of any body is suspended by a thread; Maskelyne "Cabinet" where a man apparently disappears without leaving a trace behind, and "Pepper's Ghosts" where men walk through each other as if each were a spiritual being, require the largest and finest mirrors and other expensive optical apparatus.

Some of the superb scientific tricks have been borrowed from the conjuror's repertoire and used in opera and drama. In some of Wagner's compositions, in the "Corsican Brothers," and I am told in at least two of Henry Irving's wonderful productions, mirrors, reflectors and electrical appliances have been employed with more than satisfactory results.

The effect of these scientific toys is great enough upon educated people. With persons of less intelligence it is far greater while with those of no education it is simply terrific. In some parts of Europe and Asia, I have at times risked life and limb from the superstitious and illiterate, who were convinced that I was in league with the devil. Every now and then you run across individuals who still believe in witches and wizards, in devils who go around disguised in human shape and in the ability of any man to sell his soul to the powers of darkness for almost any and every conceivable consideration. To such as these all legerdemain seems uncanny and every prestidigitateur a very suspicious, if not a dangerous character. When beyond this, they see something not only inexplicable but also incomprehensible that seems to involve power over spiritual beings good and bad, their supersititon overcomes all curiosity and they become the slaves of fear in regard to the spectacle they witness and of hatred and ferocity toward the actor.

Only of late years has the talent of the prestidigitateur been recognized by society and the public. A successful professional does an amount of work and undergoes a training that is a marvel. To do a trick, and do it well, demands years of the hardest practice. Dexterity is acquired only by continual and ever repeated experiences. The musician who plays and replays his pieces for hours every day, and the engraver who spends a month upon a picture hardly an inch square, are the only ones who may be compared with the magician as to daily toil. For years I practiced ten hours a day before a mirrow and even at the present moment devote some time every day to keeping my hand in good shape.

Nor is this all. A man to succeed in my vocation must study human nature and the art of conversation. The audience must be amused, startled and interested in order to be thoroughly mystified. The joke or epigram of to-day becomes stale to-morrow and must be replaced by something new. Beyond this he must keep up an intimate knowledge of chemistry, physics, electricity and mechanics. A great magician must be a well-trained, well-educated and well-read gentleman. There is hardly one I ever knew but what was such and was so treated the world over. In nearly every case he is feted at home and abroad and in those lands where such customs prevail he is the recipient of honors, stars, crosses and even titles.

There is a humorous side to the profession which is always pleasant. To keep in practice as well as for other reasons every professor is forever playing harmless jokes. The effect of these at times is indescribable. Once at the dinner table of a hotel there was a pompous individual who bored every one present by his loud voice and sublime egotism. I stood it a few minutes and then fixing my eyes as I raised my coffee to my lips, I pretended to swallow cup as well as contents. He gasped as if he had been struck and so called the attention of all there to himself and myself. I then swallowed the saucer and knife. It was too much for his composure. He broke down, the crowd burst into a roar, and we were troubled no more at that meal.

On another occasion when a man who was too fond of whiskey to be of use to anybody else, insisted upon joining the group to which I was talking, I suddenly took my hat off and let a large rat fall on the table. The man yelled and made a bee line for the street.

More curious was the conduct of a countryman in whose pocket I found a large assortment of regulation articles. Instead of laughing he fell upon his knees and prayed to be delivered from the Evil One.

SCARING A DRUNKARD.

Magicians seldom play pranks on women, as their natural nervousness and sensibility may be too strongly effected. On the other hand these very qualities make them invaluable as assistants. They enter into the spirit of the thing and do far better work than my own sex. Occasionally they go even further and perform themselves in good fashion. Thus, for example, Mlle. Catherine, a finished and cultured opera singer, who had lost her voice through illness, took up legerdemain as a business. Within one year she had gained a wonderful skill and dexterity and when I last saw her was doing far more creditable work than two men out of three in the same line. There is a large number of French and German women who are similarly occupied and who have made themselves very popular through their aptitude in every city where they have appeared.

There is another phrase of modern magic which is worthy of note. In the endeavor to keep pace with the changes in society produced by the spirit of the age, the conjurer has added to the list of his accomplishments the so-called "spiritualistic" powers of mediums, clairvoyants and clairandients. It is hardly needful for me to state that the imitators do better than the originals. Of the numberless tricks and subterfuges adopted by the dishonest to extract money from the pockets of the credulous, every one has been done so much better by prestidigitateurs as to ruin the original business. The "cabinet" of the Davenport Brothers, the sealed tent of the Eddys, the blood-red writing on the arm of Colchester, the reading of letters in gummed envelopes by Flint, the slate-writing of Slade, the levitation of Home and Foster, and last but not least, the "spirit pictures" of Mme. Dis Debar have been outdone repeatedly by members of our vocation. In this work I think we are entitled to great praise from all believers in truth and honesty. The public medium has through our efforts been driven from the stage and platform and now confines his efforts to private seances from which are excluded all but the confiding few who take stock in his manifestations. Our "second-sight" business, which was started by Robert Houdin, has been so systematized as to become a fine art. If nothing else, it has called attention to the vast possibilities of the mind and memory and given new ideas to the pedagogue and college director.

Liverpool Jack Found Guilty.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—John Fitzpatrick, alias "Liverpool Jack," who was on trial before Judge Cowing, charged with kidnapping men and shipping them to the Isthmus, was found guilty and remanded to the Tombs for sentence on Monday.

Money Lost on a Foot Race.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 2.—A foot race for a purse of $400 took place here between Fred Williams, of Nashua, a well known sprinter, and Merrill Farmer, a police officer of this city. Williams agreeing to cover five miles to Farmer's four and one-half. Williams won by 22 seconds. About $1,500 changed hands.

BRILLIANT BANQUET

The All American Delegates Entertained by Mr. Blaine.

HE OFFERS A SINGLE TOAST.

"The Perpetual Friendship and Prosperity of All American States."

A Beautiful Floral Display—Tropical Plants and Ferns Banked About the Tables—A Three-Hour Dinner and No Speechmaking—The Delegates at West Point To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The banquet given to the delegates to the International American Congress by Secretary of State Blaine, as the representative of the United States, at the La Normandie last night, was a brilliant gathering.

The spacious dining room was handsomely decorated, but the artist seemed to have exhausted his art in the table decoration. The table formed a hollow square, in the centre of which were placed tropical plants and evergreens, and among these, at regular distances, were suspended electric lights, covered with different colored shades. The effect was dazzling and beautiful in the extreme.

Covers were laid for fifty-four guests. There were present, besides the delegates of the United States and the foreign delegates, all the members of the Cabinet, Gen. Schofield, Major Ernst, Mr. Walker Blaine, Minister Ryan, Mr. Lee, Mr. Moore, Mr. Mason, Mr. Parke, Mr. Adee and representatives of the press associations.

Having discussed the elaborate menu for three hours, the banquet was dismissed by Secretary Blaine, who said: "Before we start for the excursions, which, to a large number of those present, will begin to-morrow, and I hope will terminate happily, I will offer to the company a single toast—'The Perpetual Friendship and Prosperity of American States.'" The toast was drunk standing. No other toasts were drunk or remarks made, and at 11 o'clock the banquet was at an end.

Off for West Point.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—At 8:30 o'clock this morning the All American delegates left here on a special train for West Point, where they will arrive at 4 o'clock, passing through New York city at 2.

NAGLE IN BOSTON.

Terry's Slayer Doing the Hub Under an Assumed Name.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Deputy Marshal Nagle, of California, who shot Judge David Terry, is in this city. He is visiting Boston under the name of J. Jones, New York, and very few people have recognized him. To look at him one would suppose Nagle to be the last person in the world to kill a man. He is about five feet seven inches tall, of light complexion. He has a sandy moustache; his hair is cut short. He is dressed in dark clothing. His jewelry consists of a horseshoe pin set with diamonds, and a massive watch chain, at the end of which is a handsome, heavy gold watch, which was presented to him by Justice Field, as a token of gratitude for defending him against Terry. The Deputy Marshal weighs about 120 pounds. He is of a nervous temperament, and much decision is marked upon his frank, open countenance. Nagle is an old Boston boy, but this is the first time he has visited Boston for thirty years. He prefers to travel under an assumed name and cares to say but little about the shooting.

"In my position," he says, "a fellow can't say anything about the case. I leave it for my friends to do the talking."

In this city Mr. Nagle has an uncle, George Doherty, but he is enjoying the hospitality of Michael Meehan, the well known sporting man.

ANNUAL RAILROAD TOUR.

The Pennsylvania Company's Officers and Directors to Start Next Monday.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—The annual tour of the entire Pennsylvania Railroad Company's system will be commenced by the Board of Directors next Monday. The trip will occupy about a week. On the Monday following the critical inspection which the officers make will be commenced on the lines east of Pittsburg and Erie. At this time the award of prizes to the supervisors for the best-kept track and general good appearance of their section will be made. The prizes are $150 and $100 respectively for the best and next best showing. The company gives these prizes annually as an encouragement to the supervisors to devote their best energies to the work.

Ike Weir's Terms for a Fight.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The proposed fight between Ike Weir and Billy Murphy, of Australia, before the California Athletic Club, is apparently off. Weir originally stated that he would meet anybody of his weight for a reasonable purse. The California Athletic Club thereupon offered for a fight between Weir and Murphy a purse of $3,000, of which $1,700 was to go to the winner and $300 to the loser, and also offered Weir a round trip ticket to San Francisco. Weir then demanded that the winner should get $2,000 and the loser $250. As this is more than the club offers for men in Weir's class it is probable that the fight will be dropped.

Accident on a Race Track.

WESTWOOD, N. J., Oct. 3.—William H. Thompson, ex-Sheriff of Rockland County, N. Y., was taken suddenly ill at the fair grounds yesterday afternoon. Mr. Thompson was watching a horse race when he fell to the ground unconscious.

LIFE AT LENOX.

A Brilliant Reception to Mrs. Cleveland—The Endicott Wedding To-Day.

LENOX, Mass., Oct. 3.—The Whitney reception last evening was a brilliant affair. Mrs. Cleveland assisted Mrs. Whitney in receiving the guests, who were presented by ex-Secretary Whitney. Last night Mrs. Sloane gave a dinner to Mrs. Cleveland, the Whitneys, Endicotts, Fairchilds and a few other friends. Mrs. Cleveland will be present at Gen. Barlow's lunch to-day to Mr. and Mrs. Fairchild.

The great event to-day will be the wedding of Wm. Endicott, Jr., to Miss Theron at the residence of the bride's grandfather, Samuel G. Ward. A distinguished company of guests will be present.

Mrs. Whitney gives a grand ball to-night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, who return to New York to-morrow morning.

A HOWLING MOB.

Men Working for the State at Johnstown Tired of Waiting for Their Wages.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 3.—A howling mob surrounded the office where the workmen for the State were to be paid yesterday evening and were it not for a detail of militia with fixed bayonets there would have been trouble.

The men have waited around in the cold for nearly two days for their money and are getting tired of it. Captain Hamilton says that he cannot understand why the money is not here, as Governor Beaver promised it on Monday. He will try to make some arrangements with the banks here to borrow the money for a short time.

Suicide of a Connecticut Woman.

NORWALK, Conn., Oct. 3.—News is received here of the suicide on Sunday by drowning of Mrs. Augustus Phillips, who was visiting on the Pacific coast. It is reported that the cause was desertion. Her husband was a well known New York comedian. The lady was a grand-daughter of the late D. Blackman, a wealthy resident of Westport, and inherited his estate. Her maiden name was Mosie Richards, and she was a belle and great social favorite here during her girlhood.

Asks for an Apology.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—At the semi-annual meeting of the New England Amateur Rowing Association last night, Mr. Abern, of Providence, introduced a resolution to the effect that the New England Association shall apologize to the National Association for the action of the Regatta Committee in accepting the entry of J. J. Murphy, who had been disqualified by the National Association. The resolution was laid on the table until next Monday night.

A New Reading Branch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—The Reading Railroad has located the line for its proposed new road branching off from Lofty, on the Catawissa division, and extending to Hazleton and Drifton. This branch road will be about fifty miles in length and will afford a new outlet from the mines of Coxe Bros. & Co., on Green Mountain. The company expects to get a large coal tonnage from the collieries on the line of the projected branch.

LATEST ELECTION NEWS.

Montana Claimed by the Democrats and the Republicans Have the Other States.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 3.—The complete returns are not yet in, but the State is believed to have gone Democratic by a small majority. The counties of Deer Lodge and Silver Bow, in which the towns of Anaconda and Butte are situated, and which gave in the last Congressional election a Republican majority of 2,500, has gone Democratic this year. The Democratic managers claim the entire State ticket and a majority in the Legislature. The Australian system of balloting worked very well.

North Dakota Heavily Republican.

FARGO, N. D., Oct. 3.—The total vote of the State of North Dakota was about 37,000. The Legislature is strongly Republican. Democrats elect Senators in eleven districts, Republicans in twenty districts, with one district in doubt. Republicans claim the entire State ticket by 10,000 or 12,000. The Democrats concede their opponents 5,000 majority.

20,000 Majority in South Dakota.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Oct. 3.—Pierre has been chosen temporary capital. Huron was a good second and Sioux Falls third. It is estimated that the entire Republican ticket has been elected by 20,000 majority. Prohibition carries by about 15,000.

Washington Gives 8,000.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 3.—The Republican ticket is elected by more than 8,000 majority. Prohibition and woman suffrage are beaten. There is a Republican majority in the Legislature. Olympia has been chosen as the capital.

The Irish Champion Ahead.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Yesterday evening Tom Pettit, of Boston, and Kerr, the Irish champion, played the fourth game in their series for the world's tennis championship. Kerr won three out of four sets, the score being 6–0, 6–2, 4–6, 6–3. Kerr has won three games and Pettit one.

The Farce Nearly Over.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—The Cronin jury will be secured by the end of the week, as the defense has only seventeen peremptory challenges remaining. This afternoon there are seven jurors in the box. Once this farce is over the trial will commence in earnest.

Episcopal Conference at Lockport.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church opened here yesterday for a six days' session. There are 300 ministers and delegates present. Bishop James N. Fitzgerald, of Minneapolis, Minn., will preside.

SENSATIONAL TRIAL

An Ex-Priest Charged With a Brutal Crime.

A NATIVE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

The Victim a Seventeen-Year-Old North Carolina Girl.

He Narrowly Escaped Lynching After the Arrest—The Defendant Tells Her Story on the Witness Stand—The Crime is a Capital Offense Punishable by Death—A Jury Obtained in Two Hours.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 3.—What may be considered the most exciting trial on a charge of rape ever known in the State is now going on. The defendant is an ex-priest, John J. Boyle, a native of Pennsylvania.

It is alleged that on the 11th of last May he outraged his organist, a 17-year-old girl named Geneva Whitaker, in his room over the Roman Catholic Church of the Sacred Heart here. He narrowly escaped lynching after his arrest. The crime with which he is charged is a capital offence in this State, punishable by death. Interest in the case pervades all classes and when the trial began the court room was crowded. A jury was secured in two hours. There are some twenty-five witnesses—among them the alleged victim of the outrage and her father, together with two girls who were her companions, and a negro boy who was Boyle's servant. Boyle will be an important witness in his own defense.

Miss Whitaker was the first witness and proved to be a remarkable strong one, both in examination and cross-examination. She testified that her age was seventeen years, though she is apparently not over fifteen, and is undeveloped and very delicate. She said that the priest sent her a message by his negro boy while she was in church, saying that he had a note for her and that she should go to his sitting room after it. She went, and testified that he at once took liberties with her. She rebuked him and he told her it was no one's business if a priest choose to love. She struggled hard to get away and cried as loudly as she could for help, whereupon he threatened her with death, taking her by the throat and saying that he would shoot her. He then urged her to marry him promising her all the money she desired if she would run away with him. She refused and he therepon assaulted her with great brutality.

The ordeal on the witness stand was a trying one for the young girl. She said that on a former occasion the priest had taken her on his lap and when she left kissed her on the forehead; but that she thought it an honor to be thus noticed by her priest, whom she regarded only as her spiritual adviser. The trial will continue all the week.

THE LECONEY MURDER.

Two Important Witnesses for the State Tell Their Story.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 3.—The habeas corpus proceedings in the case of Chalkley Leconey, accused of murdering his niece, before Referee Vroom were interesting but devoid of result. The story of the two most important witnesses on the part of the State was told, and the main facts on which the prosecution will build its argument were divulged.

Garrett Murray, the colored farm hand, who worked for Chalkley Leconey, swore that on the morning of the murder he went to the stable, leaving Chalkley Leconey and his niece in the house. While in the barnyard he heard a muffled scream from the house and shortly afterward he saw Leconey come out to the pump and wash his hands. When they both got on the wagon to go to the field Leconey said: "You shut your mouth about this, or I'll shut it for you; I'll kill you."

William Smith, a neighbor, testified to Leconey's coming to him on the morning of the murder and telling him that he had a fuss with Annie and feared that he had hurt her. He said that Leconey told him to see that Garrett Murray kept his mouth shut and they would both be rewarded after the funeral.

This evidence will in all probability dismiss the habeas corpus proceedings and formally commit Leconey to await the action of the grand jury.

A LARGE FUNERAL.

Over 10,000 Persons Followed the Remains of Captain Jones to the Grave.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Oct. 3.—The funeral of Capt. W. R. Jones, manager of the Edgar Thompson Steel Works, whose death was occasioned by injuries received from the bursting of a furnace stack took place yesterday afternoon. Business was suspended and the entire town was in mourning. The funeral was by far the largest ever seen in this part of the country. The procession contained more than 10,000 persons.

The services were conducted by Revs. Dr. Boles of Braddock; E. Earl of Catsauqua, N. Y., and Father Hickey of Braddock. The services at the grave were conducted by Hailman and Braddocksfield lodges F and A. M. The honorary pall bearers were Andrew Carnegie, of New York; H. C. Frick, of Pittsburg; George Lauder, Pittsburg; Robert W. Hunt, Chicago; Owen Libes, Bethlehem, Pa.; Alexander Hamilton, Johnstown, and Thomas and James Fuller, Catasaugua.

To Marry at Eighty.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 3.—Ex-Mayor Horace F. Pioneer, one of the wealthiest men in the city, and who is nearly years old, has created a sensation announcing his early marriage to Miss Annie E. Force, a teacher in the Washington street public school. Miss Force is 34 years old. Mr. Pioneer buried his first wife two years ago. He is the father of a large family.

MARSH FAMILY REUNION.

Councilman Marsh of this City Delivers the Welcoming Address.

The Marsh Family Association of America, opened their sixth annual meeting at the North Baptist church, Newark, yesterday. The reunion commenced at 10 A. M., and closed last evening. The welcome address was delivered yesterday by Francis E. Marsh, of this city, and response was made by Lucius B. Marsh of Boston. Most of the words sung were original odes composed by members of this family. These meetings have been attended by persons from Canada and various parts of the United States, and much valuable historical knowledge has been gained. Only persons by the name of Marsh attend the meetings.

Besides the above and other exercises, a series of general remarks and questions was a feature of the programme. This was led by City Clerk, O. B. Leonard, of Plainfield, whose wife is a daughter of the late Elston Marsh. It had been intended to continue the reunion until to-morrow morning, but it closed last night. Mr. F. E. Marsh was elected Vice President for the ensuing year.

The last reunion was held at Bridgeport, Conn., Sept. 5 and 6, 1888. Mr. E. J. Marsh has published a volume of 200 pages, giving descendants of Geo. Marsh of Hingham, 1635. Col. L. B. Marsh of Boston, has published an account of the descendants of John Marsh of Salem, 1633. A pamphlet was published by the association in 1886, giving an outline of the descendants for four generations of six lines, viz: from John of Salem, 1633; John of Hartford, 1636; Samuel of New Haven, 1646; Alexander of Braintree, 1654; John of Boston, 1669; William of Plainfield, 1675.

O—HI—O!

A Plainfielder Capturing the Fine Horse Premiums in That State.

Mr. D. D. Schenck of this city, writes THE PRESS from Clyde, Ohio, under date of Sept. 25, in great praise of that State, its horses and its weather. Extracts from his letter are given below:

"I thought probably you would like to hear something of Ohio. Sunday, Sept. 22, we had our first frost and it was very heavy. The crop of corn is fine and of the average yield—from 100 to 140 bushels to the acre. I came here to spend a few months with Mr. Whitehead who was in Plainfield last Spring, and we are attending the State fairs with a lot of choice horses. We took nine head to the Erie County fair last week, and Mr. Whitehead was awarded 1st premium on his carriage team; 1st premium on his three-year old trotting team, time 2.50; 1st premium on his team of roadsters, and a sweepstake premium for the finest lot all raised by himself. We are now at the Clyde Fair, and next week will be at Fremont. Since the 16th of Sept only two showers have occurred."

To Form a Co-Operative Store.

The first meeting to consider the question of organizing a co-operative grocery store was held in the Sons of Temperance rooms, last evening. Mr. J. Patterson read the call for the meeting and Mr. W. F. Bartlett, by a unanimous vote, was chosen Chairman. W. B. Thorn was elected Secretary. Extracts from the by-laws of a co-operative store which has proven a success in Worcester, Mass., was read by the Secretary, to give those present an idea of the methods in working the same. Considerable interest was manifested and a committee of twelve was chosen to draft a constitution and by-laws. A large number of those present availed themselves of the opportunity to enroll as supporters of the movement. The meeting adjourned subject to call of the committee.

How Plainfield Supports Its Ball Nine.

A regular meeting of the Plainfield Bowling League was held in Force's Hotel, last evening. A new constitution and By-Laws was offered by ex-Councilman F. M. Slater, and other routine business was transacted. The base ball committee reported the gate receipts since the nine was taken charge of by the Club, as over $1,600.

Officers were elected as follows:

President—C. E. Kleb.
Vice President—C. Burnett.
Secretary—H. E. Teel.
Treasurer—J. A. Haynes.

Mr. S. G. Smith withdrew from the Board of Trustees, and Mr. J. K. Arnold was elected to fill the vacancy.

Dodge—Courvoisier.

At eight o'clock of Wednesday evening, Oct. 16, at the Eglise du Saint Esprit, on Twenty-second street near Fifth avenue, New York, will take place the marriage of Miss Elise Courvoisier, formerly of Central avenue, this city, and Mr. Henry Halsey Dodge, cousin of Mr. R. M. Stelle.

—The Warren Mission Industrial School will reopen Saturday, at 2:30 P. M.

GRASS.

It groweth everywhere. Its tender blade
Shooteth in the sunshine, and in the shade;
It groweth on the hillside, and the plain,
By the sheltering hedge, in the shady lane.
It springs by the roadside, under our feet,
In the garden, where buds and borders meet,
Under the shrubs, where blooms the scented rose,
And the wild jasmine and sweet almond grows;
It creeps up the bank, it runs down the slope,
It springs with the crocus under the cope
In the early Spring, and strays in the Fall
With the pansy that peeps under the wall;
In the fresh meadow, where the waters gleam
In the clear sunlight, and the sparkling stream
Winds its course, now hidden and now seen,
It spreads its modest, cheerful coat of green.
It groweth everywhere. On the mountain,
In the valley, by the springing fountain,
In the forest, in the field, on the beach,
Just where the daily flowing tide doth reach;
It creepeth close by the shore of the lake,
Where its soft rootlets seek their thirst to slake;
The waves that ceaseless lap its foam-crowned lip
Kiss the green leaflets that stoop down to sip.
The wild deer from the wood crops smooth turf,
As early he comes to sport in the surf.
The herds of the prairies, with the wild ass,
All find their homes in wide oceans of grass;
The droves of mustangs on Mexican plains,
The Tartar's wild horse in Afghan domains,
The goats of the Alps, that climb on the rock,
The horned zebras, and the fleet spring boks,
All ranging free as the birds in the skies,
Crop the sweet herbage that nature supplies.
The soft, modest grass is everywhere seen,
Spreading its carpet of beautiful green,
To cover the scars man makes in the earth,
And smooth over the soil that giveth it birth;
When hoofs of war horses trample the soil,
In the rage and strife of battle's turmoil,
When war's iron storm tears up the fair plain,
And ridgeth it over with tears of the slain,
The soft grass, in pity, spreads over the scene,
Covering it up with its mantle of green.

The Somerset County Fair.

Somerville, while it cannot boast of legitimate ball playing, it can boast of its successful county fairs. The fair which opens there Tuesday next, promises to be the most successful in the history of the organization. In addition to a more than usually fine display of products, machinery and ladies' contributions, there is this year an especially large and very fine field of trotters, the best ever entered for this fair. Among the fast horses to be present are the following well-known animals: "Daniel L.," "Billy Button," "Electra," "Arbutus," "Frank M.," "Wm. C.," etc. Those who attend the fair and races will be sure of an interesting and pleasant time.

Huribut Chautauqua Circle.

A public meeting of the Huribut Circle, C. L. S. C., for organization and election of officers, will be held in the parlor of the Young Men's Christian Association, this evening at 7.45 o'clock.

The Circle will be glad to welcome at the coming meeting, all friends or strangers desiring to join with them in the readings for the coming year.

Many young children become positively repulsive with sore eyes, sore ears, and scald head. Such afflictions may be speedily removed by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old alike experience the wonderful benefits of this medicine.

—According to DeVoe's theory "when thunder showers occur in November, Winter will not set in until January."

A Great Discovery.

The fact that castor-oil, as vile a medicine as was ever discovered, has so long held its own as a laxative, is because, until HAMBURG FIGS were discovered, no medicine could take its place. Now, however, ladies and children take HAMBURG FIGS, and like them. 25 cents. Dose, one Fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

It is the general opinion that Mr. James is now the best Hamlet on the stage. His physique is well fitted for the part, and his voice is strong and melodious.—N. Y. WORLD, September 24, 1889.

ELECTRIC CARS IN ASBURY.

THE PRESS Correspondent Tells Her Expetience With Them.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS—The electric cars in Asbury Park are considered a great success. During the Summer months the company did an immemense business. The cars were uncomfortably crowded, especially so between the hours of five and eleven o'clock P. M. Frequently we were obliged to stand on the street corner or sit on a neighbor's stoop, seeing five or six cars pass along upon none of which could we have found a seat. At last after having waited an hour, a car less filled appeared and at our signal the motorer called out "seats for two" and we boarded the car. "No standing room" is permitted, and no one taken on a car when a seat cannot be had. The ride round the circle of three miles is made in an incredibly short time, that is when nothing happens to prevent.

One never feels quite safe when on board of one, and an expectation of a lost grip, or an explosion of wires over head, or a leap off the track, or a collision, or a stop on the road two miles from one's destination, renders the trip one of necessity, rather than recreation. When the lost grip or "power" happens, the car abruptly stops; the motorer and conductor sit down resignedly; and the pious passengers fold their hands and sing some sacred hymn such as:

"We are waiting by the river,
We are watching by the shore
For the power that shall deliver,
That shall take us safely o'er."

When the "power" arrives the motorer starts up, stops singing, and off he shoots the car; the passengers simultaneously grasp hold of their hats, hug their parcels, and the children cling to their parents, for the car seems to fly over the road, the wind fairly taking away one's breath.

On a clear moonlight night, the ride is charming and novel. After making the circuit of the village, riding Northward, the car enters the most romantic and beautiful road imaginable. The moon coursing over head, and the many magnificent arc-lights appearing like lesser moons, washing the trees with silver—away speeds the car towards the lovely Sunset Lake, at the head of which old ocean's great breast expands and his cold breath pervades the air. Then over the rustic bridge we were borne, and through its hollow rumblings the bullfrog's protesting croakings were heard. Bare sands, flowery nooks, fragrant pine woods, picturesque cottages, each after each darted by so swiftly that their images lingered not in the mind except in dim confusion. Another turn in the road brought us face to face with the mighty ocean in all its moonlight grandeur. The car skirted its cool, sea scented beach for a mile, and the motorer irresistibly lessened the headlong speed of the car, turned his face seaward, doubtless echoing the "ohs!" and the "ahs!" of his fascinated passengers who, in spite of their delight over the incomparable scene, were nearly blown off the car by the fierceness of the sea breeze. Indeed the car itself was sometimes lifted and shaken on the exposed parts of the road.

There is a new sort of feeling experienced when riding in them at night, for they glide along with scarcely any motion or jar; no horses with rattling harness and jingling bells, with their accompaning sound of lashes and oaths; neither are the cars filled with the fumes of vile tobacco and whiskey. The motorer stands firm and watchful at the wheel, enveloped, as it were, by shooting blue sparks and darting electric flames, which is responded to from the wires over head every moment; and from the wheels beneath and from parts of the floor, the weird blue lights flashed about the feet of the passengers through the surrounding darkness, and it appeared as if the car was in possession of imps from the lower regions.

But the pious folks on board seemed to entertain no fear of any satanic presence in their midst, for had they not, during the whole week, been fighting the evil one himself in the Prohibition Meeting, the Inquirers Meeting, the Noonday Prayer Meeting, and the various revival meetings? Sure enough, after all that compound resistance to his majesty, he had fled never to return to their vicinity. Up grade and down grade the velocity never lessens, until the side track is attained, when a car from the opposite direction rushes up and the power is exchanged in a twinkling with scarcely a halt, and on they go, until a signal is given by some wayfarer to stop. No rules have they where to stop, but stop they must and run their cars back half a block if a call is made by some laggard who supposes the road was built especially for him. A conductor may have a woman call to him to stop away down a cross street, he stops the car, sits down and waits with the most sublime patience, until said woman has entered her house, gathered up her bundles, kissed her children, given orders to her servant, and reached the waiting car in the calmest manner possible. A woman signaled a conductor to stop his car, the other day. He did so, and she walked up to him and asked him for the time of day. He politely drew forth his watch, informed her, and she walked on her way a wiser woman, while he was conscious only of having done double duty to the public at large. But the conductor has more pleasurable duties to perform than merely passing the time of day with the fair sex. The very rear seat outside of the car, where he is given to stand, is fully occupied nightly by a bevy of pretty girls, who completely surround him, captivating him by their merry glances and sparkling converse. They sing and he joins them, and he is so agreeable that he easily persuades them to remain on the car the whole journey round.

The company is about to withdraw a large number of the cars, as the travel will now lessen and infrequent use for them will be required. I am glad to learn that the electric cars are soon to be introduced in Plainfield. If they will be run to and from the R. R. station, they will be of immense benefit to the public and do away with the miserable and exorbitant hack system which is a nuisance around any railroad station.

LOOKER ON.

RAILROAD CASUALTIES.

The Record in New Jersey as Presented by the Labor Bureau.

An interesting article from the pen of Joseph Fisher on "Railroad Casualties," appears in the last report of the Labor Bureau. It says that in New Jersey there is a record for railroad casualties for 36 years past and their increase has been noticeable especially during the past two years. An act of the Legislature requires the railroads to make annual reports, under oath, of accidents, but so little attention has been attached to the statistics so gathered that no attempt had been made to analyze or summerize them before the present article was begun.

At the beginning of the 50's there was less than 400 miles of track in the State; in 1865 over 860, which in 1874 had been increased to 1,267, and to over 1,900 in 1887. The total casualties of all kinds from 1852 to 1887 inclusive, foot up 10,499, of which 4,064 were reported as fatal. Employes suffered, 4,922 of them, with 1,208 as fatal, and passengers and others, 5,877, with 2,856 as fatal.

In 1887, the ratio of fatal casualties to road mileage was 1 to 19, and that of not fatal injuries, 1 to 3. The average for ten years has been 1 to 33 and 1 to 7, respectively. This is, apparently, a less favorable showing than most of the States, due, partially, to the more careful reporting of accidents in this State than is generally observed. The comparison is not much more favorable when the ratio of killed and injured to the total number of employed is considered. According to an estimate, based on the returns from the railroads operating four-fifths of the State mileage, there were 31,400 employes who spent a part of the time within the State in 1887—that is all included in the respective "divisions."

These figures mean that in 1887, 1 in every 314 employes was fatally, and 1 in 41 not fatally injured. Deducting the number of general officers, clerks and shopmen and only counting those engaged in the general management of trains, who constitute 70 per cent. of the total employes, the ratio was 1 in 218, and 1 in 29 killed and injured, respectively.

Of the total number killed and injured during 36 years, there were 1,847 trainmen, 1,549 miscellaneous employes, and 1,526 whose occupation was not reported in the returns. Of the latter number, the larger proportion, probably, were trainmen, who are naturally the most liable to meet accidents. In Massachusetts, during the ten years ending September 30, 1887, out of 2,044 casualties, 1,611 happened to trainmen—that is, 78 per cent. In 1887 the percentage was 84; while in Michigan, in 1860, it was only 60.

SAFETY APPLIANCES.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company, 776 miles and 11,000 employes, reported in response to an inquiry as to whether improved appliances were in general use on both passenger and freight cars, that atmospheric brakes and automatic couplers were in general use on passenger trains; freight trains partially equipped. Central, 394 miles, 5,000 employes, reported automatic brakes on passenger engines, and 1 passenger, 16 freight and 2 switch engines with steam brake appliances. All passengers cars have air brakes and Miller platforms and couplers. Six freight cars have air brakes and 23 pipe connections, but these are used in connection with passenger trains. D. L. and W., 197 miles, 3,700 employes; air brakes on passenger engines and coaches, automatic couplers on freight cars, and steam brakes being applied to freight and coal engines. Lehigh Valley, 173 miles, 2,000 employes: automatic couplers and air brakes; passenger cars steam heated. Philadelphia and Reading, 108 miles, 642 employes; automatic couplers and air brakes in general use on passenger and freight cars. N. Y., L. E. and W., 79 miles, 3,198 employes; same report.

CHIEF CAUSES OF ACCIDENTS.

About one-half of the casualties to employes occur while coupling or handling cars, or are due to falling from trains, usually freight, while in motion. This is the story everywhere. In New Jersey, out of 863 casualties in 1887, 363, or 43 per cent., were due to coupling, uncoupling or handling cars; and for the ten years the number was 1,572, or .45 per cent. of the total employes killed and injured during that time.

Somerset County Democratic Convention.

The Somerset County Democratic Convention will meet at the Court House, in Somerville, on Monday the 14th day of October, at 10 o'clock, for the purpose of nominating candidates for Member of Assembly and Sheriff, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

Each township is entitled to five delegates, and they will be selected by the voters in the several townships on Saturday, October 12, except in North Plainfield, where the primary will be held on Friday, October 11.

DESERTED FARMS.

New Hampshire Will Offer Inducements to Settlers.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 3.—State Commissioner of Immigration Batcheller has received returns from the selectmen of 160 towns, in reply to his circular requesting information in relation to deserted farms containing buildings in a fair state of repair or that can be easily fitted for occupancy.

The returns show an aggregate of 887 deserted farms. The Commissioner yesterday issued to the owners of abandoned farms in the State a circular directing that a report be made to him, under a law passed at the recent session of the Legislature, giving information in regard to the farms, with the purpose of securing their reoccupancy and cultivation. The owners are requested to state whether or not they desire to sell and to give a description of the farm.

As soon as the necessary information can be secured, an edition of 10,000 pamphlets will be issued, setting forth the advantages offered by New Hampshire for settlers and homeseekers and giving a terse description of each abandoned farm for sale with price and terms of payment. This list will include only those farms on which there are comfortable buildings, or those that can be made so at little expense.

The Commissioner states that he is receiving many inquiries about these farms from people in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York and other states.

THE THREE GENERALS.

George W. Child's Presentation to the West Point Military Academy.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The formal presentation of the portraits of Generals Grant, Sherman and Sheridan to the United States Military Academy, was made to-day by Mr. George W. Childs, to whose liberality and public-spiritedness alone the creation of the pictures is due.

Mr. Childs had a number of prominent men of Philadelphia and New York, as his guests at the presentation, and the delegates to the Three Americas' Congress were also present.

The portraits were all painted by Mrs. Darragh, of Philadelphia. That of General Grant was completed some time ago, and was hung in May, 1887.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The barn of Robert Stewart, a suburban resident of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was burned yesterday. Six horses perished in the flames.

The third annual convention of the French Candian Doctors, of New England, is in session at Holyoke, Mass. About thirty doctors are in attendance.

The outbuilding of John P. Hutchinson, near Recklesstown, N. J., together with a quantity of hay, was destroyed by fire last night. Cause, spontaneous combustion.

Rourke's planing mill at Albany, N. Y., together with a large quantity of lumber, was destroyed by fire last night. Loss, about $25,000; fully insured.

It is reported that Jacob Odenwalder, Recorder of Deeds in Easton, Pa., is short in his accounts to the amount of nearly $8,000, and that the shortage will be made good by his bondsmen.

Andrew J. Borden, a meat market man, at Globe Village, Mass., in a fit of melancholy hanged himself in his barn. He was 53 years of age, unmarried and worth considerable money.

The President has appointed James McCauley postmaster at Mifflintown, Pa., vice Chas. B. Crawford, resigned; Chas. Brooks, at Waverly, N. Y., vice A. A. Slawson, resigned.

Jefferson Hunt, of Jersey City, N. J., who was in the employ of Dodge & Bliss, box manufacturers, has been arrested for appropriating $1,000 of the company's money to his own use.

The Comptroller of the Currency has appointed Frederick Bostwick, of Pine Plains, N. Y., an Examiner of National Banks, vice C. H. Davis, Jr., resigned. He will be assigned to New York State business.

Queen Victoria has a remarkably fine head of hair, for a lady of her age; but her son, the Prince of Wales, is quite bald. Had he used Ayer's Hair Vigor earlier in life, his head might, today, have been as well covered as that of his royal mother. It's not too late yet.

—The North Plainfield Council will meet in regular session, to-morrow evening.

Rapid Beating of the Heart.

Whenever you feel uneasiness in the region of the heart, a slight pain in the shoulder, arm, or under the shoulder-blade, or when you find yourself short of breath when exercising, or your heart has periods of beating fast, you have heart disease, and should take DR. FLINT'S REMEDY. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or address Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

NEW YORKS UP AGAIN

The Giants Now Lead the Bostons Two Points.

THREE MORE GAMES TO FINISH.

Captain Kelly of the Bostons Creates a Disgraceful Scene.

The Chicagos Still Winning—Philadelphia Scores an Easy Victory Over the Knickers—St. Louis Playing Wonderful Ball—All the League and Association Clubs to Play To-Day.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—The Giants played their last game in the Alleghenies yesterday, and left this town last night in better humor than they have been for several days past.

The champions started for Cleveland, where they will wind up the season. They are confident that, if the Pittsburgs play as good ball against the Beaneaters as they did against New York, Boston's chances for getting the pennant are not good.

About 2,000 people faced the cold north wind yesterday to witness the game, and a prettier contest has not been seen on these grounds this year. The fielding work was marvellous, neiter side making an error.

Captain Kelly Creates a Scene.

CLEVELAND, Oct, 3.—The most disgraceful scene that was ever witnessed on the local ball grounds happened yesterday afternoon when Kelly, captain of the Boston club, was ejected from the premises for threatening the umpire.

Kelly did not play. In the sixth inning Richardson was thrown out at the plate by Radford, and when three hands were retired Kelly approached Umpire McQuaid and began abusing him. McQuaid ordered him back to the bench, and the Boston players attempted to take him there. He broke away, however, and approaching McQuaid became more abusive than ever.

It looked as though he intended to strike McQuaid, who beckoned to a policeman. The latter jumped to the ground and requested Kelly to leave. He paid no attention, but started for McQuaid. At that juncture the policeman seized him and started for the gate.

Kelly struggled violently and another policeman jumped to the officer's aid, and the great Michael was led struggling and kicking out of the grounds.

Cleveland won the game by hitting Clarkson hard and at times when the hits counted for runs.

BASEBALL RECORD.

The scores of yesterday's games were as follows:

Playing Postponed Games.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—The directors of the local League club have fully decided not to play any postponed games with New York unless they can be assured by so doing that they are not coming into conflict with any rules. They have telegraphed for advice from the various League presidents and will abide by their information. They are not desirous of becoming involved in any serious argument over the championship, and particularly so as the interests of their own club are at stake in securing a good position in the race.

The Rotterdam Strike Ended.

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 3.—The strike of dock employes is ended. The result is a compromise by which the men agree to accept 5 pence per hour on week days and 7½ pence per hour for Sunday work. The minimum of a day's work is to be four hours. All the men resumed work to-day. A dock employes' union is to be formed.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

Discussion Commenced on the Proposed Change in the Book of Prayer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The Triennial General Protestant Episcopal Convention was called to order by the Rev. Charles L. Hutchins, D. D., of Medford, Mass., who is the secretary of the convention. Dr. Morgan Dix was declared presiding officer of the convention by a unanimous vote. Taking the chair Dr. Dix expressed himself as highly gratified at the honor in a neat speech. Rev. Charles L. Hutchins, of Massachusetts, was elected secretary of the conference.

The motion of Dr. Huntington that the discussion relating to the proposed change in the Book of Prayer take place to-day and that the question be kept before the house on each succeeding day of the conference until it is settled, was adopted.

The assistant secretaries were then announced as follows: Rev. Dr. Anslie, Western New York; Rev. E. W. Worthington, Ohio; Rev. C. Davis, Minnesota, and W. C. Prout, Albany. The convention adjourns Oct. 5.

HUNTING FOR A TREASURER.

He is Supposed to Have Lost $100,000 Belonging to His Relatives.

BIRMINGHAM, Conn., Oct. 3.—William Powe, late treasurer of the Ansonia Brass and Copper Company, but at present secretary of the Bridgeport Aluminum, has been missing for the past three weeks.

His wife and four children reside in Ansonia and are frantic with grief. It is said that he has spent about $100,000 belonging to his wife and relatives, in what manner there are various rumors.

His brother-in-law, Dana Bartholomew, thinks he has fallen into the hands of sharpers and the money has been gambled away, and that Powe has become temporarily insane over the loss. Two detectives are now scouring the country.

Powe's accounts with the Bridgeport concern are pronounced all right. He carries an insurance of $35,000.

SOLT THE TICKET.

The Young Men's Democratic Club of Baltimore Fuse With the Republicans.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 3.—The Young Men's Democratic Club, otherwise the Slater faction, took a decided stand last night against the ticket nominated by the Democratic City Convention last week. They claim that the management of the Democratic party has ceased to represent the will of the party and by years of misuse has brought it into disfavor with the people, and resolved that they will by all means defeat the ticket. The Slater men, the Crescentite and the Jeffersonian Democratic Associations will fuse with the Republicans.

SCHOOL ARBOR DAY.

A Proclamation from the Pennsylvania Department of Instruction.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—A proclamation has been issued from the Department of Public Instruction designating Friday, October 18, as the school arbor day.

Superintendent Higbee fixes that day because many of the schools were deprived of the privilege of celebrating the spring arbor day and many more are desirous of having a regular fall arbor day to give greater emphasis to the good cause.

Washington's Forfeited Game.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 3.—Umpire Lynch was interviewed to-day regarding the game forfeited to Cleveland by Washington last Thursday. He said both clubs decided to play off the forfeited game Saturday and in consequence two games were played on that day. In ignorance of this the standing of the clubs was made up with the forfeited game credited to Cleveland. President Young has telegraphed confirming Umpire Lynch's interview.

Massachusetts Democrats.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 3.—W. E. Russell, ex-Mayor of Cambridge, was unanimously nominated for Governor by the Democratic convention. Other nominations were as follows: Lieut.-Gov., John W. Corcoran, of Clinton; Secretary of State, William N. Osgood, of Boston; Treasurer and Receiver, General Edwin B. Munn, of Holyoke; Auditor, William D. T. Trefry, of Marblehead; Attorney-General, Elisha B. Maynard, of Springfield.

Will Apply for a Divorce from Eva.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The attorneys of Robert Ray Hamilton state that divorce proceedings against Mrs Hamilton will be instituted at once. The ground upon which the application for a divorce will be based is that the marriage was brought about by fraud on the part of Mrs. Hamilton.

Anxiety for a Schooner.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—Considerable anxiety is felt by the owners of schooner Martha N. Hart, Captain Levi Tyler, of West Chatham, which left Baltimore September 2, with coal for Boston, and has not been heard from. She was out in the heavy gale of September 10, and it is feared that she is lost with all on board.

Sarah's Whereabouts Unknown.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A bench warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of Sarah Cherry alias Sarah T. Raymond against whom indictments were found in the Flack case, but up to late this afternoon Detective Von Gerichten was unable to serve it and her whereabouts are unknown.

Carries a Letter from the Pope.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 3.—The Rev. Dr. O'Connell, president of the American College at Rome, sailed from Liverpool to-day for New York. He is the bearer of a letter from the Pope to Cardinal Gibbons, congratulating the Catholics of America on the centennial of the establishment of this See.

New Oil Strike.

OLEAN, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The people of Allegany are excited over the finding of oil at a depth of 800 feet on a farm a short distance south of that village. The oil was struck in the second sand. Other wells will be drilled in the territory at once.

The First Accident.

NEW LONDON, Ct., Oct. 2.—The first accident on the New London Bridge occurred yesterday. A loaded freight car broke loose, ran down the grade at a mile a minute, ran into the open draw and sunk in sixty feet of water.

A POET AND EDITOR ADRIFT.

What Sir Edwin Arnold Thinks of Yankees and Hindoos.

The Bard Calls on the President—Their Conversation—Sir Edwin Sees the Sights. He Also Talks, and Then Proceeds Around the World.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

AM generally, my wife often says, a good-natured man; but when you ask me for news of Washington in the month of September, why, then—well, I seek relief at the fountain of Helicon, which, if it fails to cheer, does not often inebriate.

The news? There's never news in this,
Our Summer holiday.
O! don't your correspondent miss
The Winter blithe and gay?
For Fashion drains her hemlock cup
In splendid disarray,
And stocks are down and blinds are up
When Congress is away!

Anon our people eat and drink:
Anon the Leaguers play;
And in adjacent towns, I think,
The farmers ted their hay;
So call us fly and lively if
You don't care what you say,
But it does make a mighty diff.,
When Congress is away.

We miss the scrimmage on the floor;
We miss the Senate fray;
We miss O'Neill's and Jones's oratorical display;
We miss—sometimes—without a doubt,
The wherewithal to pay,
For bills are in and cash is out
When Congress is away.

'Tis often foolish, but we would
It might forever stay,
And in a rather sombre mood
We count the months from May;
In pleasure weak and patience strong
Dispirited we stray,
With purses short and faces long
When Congress is away

That's about the size of it.

But if there is not in Washington much of that ephemeral stuff which the gabbling telegraph delights to call "news," there is something better in the transient presence of a famous editor who is also the world's greatest productive poet—Sir Edwin Arnold, of India and England, conductor of the London "Telegraph" and author of the "Light of Asia," whom a consensus of literary judgment has already selected as Tennyson's successor, the next poet laureate of Great Britain. He has started with an attractive daughter of twenty-three on a tour around the world; has touched at New York, Boston and Chicago, and will leave San Francisco in October, sailing westward to "the East."

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD.

Last year Sir Edwin lost his second wife, an American lady whom he married in 1868 while she was sojourning with her mother, Mrs. Channing, in England.

It is an odd little story. During war times, '61 to '64, I attended the Unitarian church of Washington of which William Henry Channing, nephew of the great William Elbery, was pastor. He was also the Chaplain to Congress. It was known that his wife was a rigid Episcopalian, and it was understood among his friends that she had never heard him preach, and that she had gone to England to reside in order to have the children beyond the influence of his radical mysticism. At any rate she and the children remained in England, where he afterward joined them and where he died, and one of his sons became a member of Parliament, where he now sits, and the daughter fled from Episcopalian tenets and became the wife of Edwin Arnold, the Oriental "skeptic and Pagan."

Arnold's suggestions sent Smith to delve in Assyria and Stanley to fight and explore in Africa, and his fertile brain, in the intervals of exasting newspaper work, has turned out ten volumes of poems which have made an enduring mark upon the literature of this generation.

I gave myself the pleasure of a call upon Sir Edwin. He is a man of medium height and swarthy complexion, full black beard and hair neatly trimmed, face strongly marked and eye alert and genial. His manner is cordiality itself. He is a rapid talker, and in his accents, especially in what an American may call the wheedling inflection, he is emphatically English. The daughter shows her mother's training, and, like a high-bred American girl, is self-poised and self-reliant without audacity and modest without constraint and diffidence. Like her father she is a good talker and a good listener. Of the call upon the President, Mr. Arnold said:

"It was a delightful thing to meet the potentate of this great people. He was charming. He was so good to my daughter. He took us to the room where Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation, and where his great Cabinet meetings were held, and to that window where for years he sat loooking down upon hostile Virginia. He did not remind me of that bold, bad Britisher who burnt the White House, once, but when I recalled to him the fact that the Boston Post Bill that caused the Revolution was passed in Parliament by only one majority, and that only that small accident divided us, the President said, 'No. We should have separated anyhow. There was too much feeling. And if we had stayed together America would have grown to be the bigger half, you see.' I thought it not polite under his own roof to remind him that Great Britain and her colonies now counted 360,000,000. They told me of a talk of a new Executive Mansion to be built back of the present structure. That is all well, but I earnestly hope the present White House will never be razed nor much altered. It is a part of the world's history."

"Did the President ask about the order you wore on your breast?"

"No. He looked at it inquiringly, but said nothing. It was the order of the Empress of India, which Her Majesty bestowed on me with her own hand, and I wore it to the White House as a token of high regard, much as a brave of your plains would deck himself in wampum and much red feathers. He is quite the equal of sovereigns while he sits there. In official communications they always address him as 'My Good Friend,' and he addresses them similarly, sometimes making it 'great and good.' They address each other as cousins and brothers."

"You have had many interviews with Monarchs and Princes. How do they differ from this with President Harrison?"

"A bit more stately and ceremonious; not otherwise different. I was at a reception in London in June, where the Prince of Wales was. He kept his seat most of the time, and when he wished to talk with anybody in particular beckoned him to his side. He signaled to me, and I had a very delightful talk, he, of course, leading up to the topics of conversation. But I assure you that the Prince is the most beloved of Englishmen. The talk of dissatisfaction is all nonsense."

"Is England never to outgrow a Monarchy?" I asked.

"Why should it? It is well and securely and cheaply governed. Our Sovereign has less power than your President and her Cabinet is dissoluble at any time which yours isn't. No, I don't know as a Republican form of Government is necessarily the fate of Kingdoms. Rome was an Empire after it was a Republic; so was Venice; so was France, and will be again, by the way."

"But your people seem to find a Monarchy rather expensive."

"No; only a few extremists. As a matter of fact the entire expense of supporting all the royal family amounts only to seven and sixpence a head per year—less than $3 apiece for the people of Great Britain and Ireland. But after all,

'For forms of government let fools contest—
That which is best administered is best.
Of all the ills that human hearts endure,
How small the part that law can cause or cure!'"

"Has any Yankee had the cheek yet to ask you if you were a descendant of Benedict Arnold?" I ventured to inquire.

"No," he laughed, "but several have asked if I were a relative of Matthew Arnold."

"They ought to know better if they saw the unfriendly slash that he gave you about Paganizing England. Yet you wrote a eulogistic poem of him at his death."

"What he said of me was spoken in a moment of inadvertence. No matter. I mourn him sincerely and deeply. He had a brilliant and delicate genius. What an admirable picture is that of his in the Macedonian invasion:

'The East bowed low before the blast
In patient, deep disdain;
She let the legions thunder past,
Then plunged in thought again.'

So true of Asia! I could quote you his poems all night. I have never met anybody, not even himself, who knew so much of his poetry as I do."

"You have a remarkable memory?"

"Only in certain lines. It retains poetry very tenaciously. If I could get $1 apiece for the poems I know I could pretty nearly buy Washington. Yet my own verses sift through my brain as through a sieve. I cannot remember them at all."

"By the way," he presently resumed, "that interesting man, General Greely, has had the kindness to call and carry us about town and show us the sights. His own signal service is far ahead of ours—far ahead of any other nation—especially in the matter of delivery and distribution. Think of the half-past ten o'clock indications being in Chicago, New York and Boston in half an hour, and thousands of printed maps of them distributed before noon! Gen. Greely took me to the Capitol, a noble building with an elegant dome. He was inclined to apologize for the crudeness of some of the pictures in the rotunda. 'But that feature of them is not what chiefly struck me. The surrender of Cornwallis I contemplated thoughtfully, and I told my escort a story: A man showed a lion his paintings, and among them was a wounded lion evidently in great pain and nearby was the exulting hunter who had shot him. 'Very good,' remarked the lion, 'but if I had painted the picture I would have painted it otherwise.'"

Remembering that Sir Edwin was long president of the college in Poona, India, I asked him if Sanscrit was entirely a dead language.

"Yes, quite," he said. "Hindustani may perhaps be said to be the vernacular, now, but there are 140 different dialects spoken in India. Nobody has ever learned them all and they are as different as English and Spanish. I could name a score of languages that our English people there have to talk."

"What is the state of native Hindoo literature?"

"There is hardly any, except that high education which the English have carried there. There are many natives who attain this, but they use English books, and become acquainted with Scott and Dickens and Buckle and Tennyson and Macaulay. But there is no creative native literature. Scholars live in the past. The Mohammedan is satisfied with the Koran, the Sikh with the Granth, his holy book, the Hindoo with his Vedas and Upanishad. If they want reading they get these read to them. Out of 1,000, not half a dozen can read and write. Natives produce in the vernacular nothing but little short stories."

"Is there a mine in old Hindoo literature which it will pay modern scholars to work?—in that great poem of mythology and cosmogany, the Mahabarata, for instance?"

"Yes, he said," if the mine is approached with love and sympathy. That vast book you have mentioned needs interpreting and sifting. It is as if somebody were to dump in front of your house a cartload of diamonds, and ten cartloads of gold, and four hundred cartloads of rubbish and dirt."

I ventured to ask the distinguished visitor if he would show me the jeweled decorations bestowed upon him by his Queen, and by the Oriental sovereigns. He graciously consented and asked Miss Arnold to set them out. "I have to cart them about, he added, "for they will help me onward. They will all be required during the journey."

The table sparkled royally when the orders were all spread out—gold and jewels wrought in artistic forms and hung from gorgeous ribbons.

Here was the great star of India, as big as the palm of one's hand, of solid silver and gold set in diamonds and bearing the motto "Heaven's Light Our Guide." This was given by the Queen in recognition of his poem "The Light of Asia."

Here was the order of the Medjideeh presented to him by the Sultan in grateful recognition of his poem "Pearls of the Faith." On a boss of gold in the centre is the Sultan's cipher—a kind of monogram in Turkish letters. Around the edge is a repetition of the Mohammedan emblem, the star within the crescent.

Here was the order of the Osmanieh, received from the Khedive of Egypt. It contains a verse from the Koran in Turkish, set in beautiful enamel of red and green. Next and very unique comes the order of the White Elephant of Siam of which the Queen and himself are the only two English possessors. It bears the sacred White Elephant on the lotos flower, looking like a magnificent clover leaf. Around it is the inscription in Siamese "Om muni padme om!" ("O, the jewel on the lotos, O!") This came with a personal letter from the King.

Last and most rare is the order of the Lion and the Sun, from that "King of Kings," the Shah of Persia, as a token of approbation for the poem "Sa'di in the Garden."

I asked Sir Edwin how he liked American newspapers. "I tremendously admire their enterprise, vivacity, push and dash," he said, "and if they were more serious and dignified they would seem to me about perfect. But, like the lion, it all depends on the point of view. To say which is best, the audience must be considered."

Shot at a Prayer Meeting.

MOSS POINT, Miss., Oct. 3.—During a prayer meeting in the Presbyterian Church last night, a shot was fired from the outside through the open front door, instantly killing Dan K. McInnis, mortally wounding his little daughter, and seriously wounding Henry Blumer. Great excitement prevails. There is no clue to the assassin.

Shot His Wife and Himself.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Daniel W. Robbins, a ship-rigger, aged 64, of No. 187 Java street, shot and killed his wife and then shot himself dead last night. The couple had frequently quarreled over property, and though the tragedy was not witnessed, it is supposed that one of these quarrels led to it.

Big Crowd at Trenton's Fair.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 3.—There was an attendance of 20,000 at the Interstate Fair yesterday. Baptiste Peynaud, the man who jumps from a height of 150 feet, was so badly injured the day previous that he did not attempt the feat again. Small hopes are entertained of his recovery.

FORTY LIVES LOST

Appalling Disaster on the Mississippi River.

A STEAMER'S BOILER BURSTS.

Some of the Passengers and Crew are Saved by a Passing Vessel.

The Steamer Rent in Two By the Explosion and Instantly Sunk—The First Trip After an Overhauling that was Supposed to be Thorough—List of the Dead and Accounts By Those Who Were Saved.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 4.—The steamer Corona, of the Onachita Consolidated Line, exploded her boilers at False Bottom, nearly opposite Port Hudson, yesterday, causing the loss of the steamer and about forty lives.

The Corona reached Baton Rouge at about 10:30 yesterday morning, taking on a number of passengers at that place, among them L. T. Mason, Secretary of State, and his wife, and Mrs. E. W. Robertson, wife of Congressman Robertson.

While opposite False River Settlement one of the boilers exploded suddenly and in a most unaccountable manner. No one who witnessed the explosion directly survives to tell how the accident did occur. The explosion knocked down the roof of the cabin and sent splinters flying in every direction, wounding a number of persons and splitting the vessel so that she sank almost like lead.

Although it was in the middle of the day, and every one was on the alert, both passengers and crew found it difficult to escape. It is probable that the explosion killed immediately the firemen, roustabouts and a number of the other deck hands. Others were seriously hurt by the splinters and escaping steam. There was no time to get out the boats and some of the passengers with difficulty secured life preservers. Within a few seconds the Corona had sunk in deep water, and nothing was left of her but portions of the wreck drifting down stream. The passengers and crew were struggling in the middle of the river and clinging to life preservers, planks and pieces of the wreckage.

Fortunately the City of St. Louis was coming down the river when the explosion occurred. She came to the relief of the people struggling in the water, and, landing, took on board those who had already been rescued by the people of the neighborhood, bringing them all to Baton Rouge. Here those who wished to remain were landed, and the others were taken to New Orleans.

The City of St Louis remained at Baton Rouge for some time, so as to allow the wounded passengers to receive the medical treatment they needed. Some of them were badly burned by the steam, but it is not thought any are mortally wounded.

The following persons were lost:

PASSENGERS.

I. D. Scott, Smithfield, La.; Dr. Atwell, William Davis, a stockman from Texas; Mrs. L. Koench, Opelousa, La.; Mrs. Thos. Hough, Opelousa, La., sister of the captain; Mrs. Kaufmans, nurse, and eldest child, Mrs. Nelson, of Red River Landing.

OFFICERS AND CREW.

J. W. Blanks, captain; J. V. Jordan, clerk; Charles Cellas, clerk; Swimp Hanna, clerk; Fred Dunkel, barkeeper; Fred O. Berman, barkeeper; Pat Ryan, steward; Dick Curtis, fireman; Tom Shook, engineer; Henry Doyle, porter; Jim Swipe, porter; —— Tate, barber, (colored); Henry Davis, deckhand, (colored); Tom Cook, sailor; Billy Young, second mate; Sam Steel (colored); Tom Burns, deckhand; Dick Carter, fireman, (colored); two captains of the watch, both colored; eight roustabouts, all colored.

The Hon. L, T. Mason, Secretary of State, said that he was in the ladies' cabin at the time of the explosion. There was no time for any preparation as the boat went down in a few minutes He managed with difficulty to get life preservers for himself and two ladies, and the next moment they were all struggling in the water.

None of the bodies have been recovered except that of one of the barkeepers. The body shows that he was killed by the explosion and not drowned, and the probabilities are that most of the other members of the crew met their death in a similar way.

An Iron Works Furnace Explodes.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Oct. 4.—A furnace in the Scottdale Iron and Steel Company's Works exploded last evening. George Rudder was killed by the molten metal, and Jacob Deck and Henry Ramsey very badly burned. Mrs. Rudder, on hearing the news, fainted, and falling received probably fatal injuries.

Leconey Attempts to Take His Life.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 4.—Chalkley Leconey attempted to commit suicide in the jail on Monday night last. The officials refuse to give any information as to whether Leconey did make such an attempt, but he is now being closely watched, day and night.

Balloting for a Judge.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The Republican Eighth Judicial District convention met here yesterday. A number of ballots were taken without result and the convention adjourned until to-day. Hon. George Barker, of Chatauqua, is the leading candidate.

40,000 People at Trenton.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 4.—Over 40,000 people visited the Inter State Fair yesterday. Both General E. Burd Grubb and ex-Governor Leon Abbott, the Republican and Democratic candidates for Governor, Gov. Green and many other prominent persons were on the grounds.

HE HOLDS ON TO THE OFFICE.

The Recorder of Williamsport is Not Frightened by Legal Proceedings.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 4.—An application was made to Attorney-General Kirkpatrick yesterday by the citizens of this city, through their attorney, Hon. Henry W. Watson, for a writ of quo warranto citing Recorder James Denworth into court to show by what authority he held the office of Recorder and performed the duties of the said office.

Mr. Denworth was elected Recorder, but it is alleged that the act of the Assembly providing for the election of such officer is unconstitutional, Judge Simonton having so decided in the cases of the recorders of Titusville, Bradford and other cities. Col. Henry C. Parsons appeared for Mr. Denworth.

After the argument the Attorney-General said it was undoubtedly the fact that there was no authority for the office, and that he would issue the writ next week unless it was understood that Denworth would not exercise any of the duties of the office. It is understood that Denworth has refused to consent to this and the writ will be issued as indicated by the Attorney-General.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

Lively Tilt Over the Report of the Ministers for Collections.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The M. E. conference heard the reports of the presiding elders and passed on the characters of the ministers. The case of Rev. T. R. Stratton, of Lockport, was referred.

Quite a tilt occurred between Rev. H. P. Jervis of Coudersport, Pa., and Rev. J. Copeland of Charlotte, N. Y., over the report of the ministers for collections the latter characterizing it as an imposition. Copeland's motion was tabled.

The Committee on Hospital Beds are Rev. O. S. Chamberlain, Tioga, Pa.; Rev. T. E. Clayton, Manasquan, N. J.; and Rev. Thomas Cardus, Albion, N. Y. Rev. G. C. Jones, of Bradford, Pa., addressed the missionary part of the conference and Dr. Jay Benson Hamilton, of Brooklyn, made the address on the veterans' anniversary.

Maine's Monuments Christened.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 4.—The sixteen monuments erected by the State of Maine on the battlefield were christened last night. The court house was crowded with the veterans of the Pine Tree State to witness the formal exercises of dedication. Ex-Governor Chamberlain, of Maine, made the opening address and then took the chair as presiding officer. The memorial address was made by ex-Governor Conner, and Rev. G. R. Palmer, of the 19th Maine regiment, closed the exercises with the benediction. The monuments are of granite and are appropriately inscribed.

Miners Crushed.

HAZELTON, Pa., Oct. 4.—Yesterday, while Martin Jaskovitz, miner, John Hinskey and and Thomas Guardo, laborers, were prying down top rock in their "breast" in No. 11 colliery of the L. & W. B. C. Co. at Audenried, a mass of clod fell upon them, completely crushing the two former and it is thought fatally injuring the latter. It took four hours' hard work to rescue the bodies of the two men from under the mass of rock and debris.

Fifteen Lashes for a Wife Beater.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—John Eisenberger, aged 35 years, a man of slender build, was convicted yesterday of brutal wife beating. Judge Phelps sentenced him to fifteen lashes and thirty days in jail. The sentence took the prisoner's breath, for it is most unusual to inflict punishment by the lash, but his treatment of a frail woman was more than inhuman. Eisenberger is the fourth man sentenced to the lash since the enactment of the law in 1883

DISASTER AT SEA.

The Steamship Earnmoor Went Down and 19 of the Crew Probably Lost.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—The steamship Earnmoor, Capt. Richard J. Gray, which sailed from here for Rio de Janeiro August 29 with a cargo of wheat, foundered at sea in a gale on September 5, and it is feared that nineteen of her crew were lost. A small boat belonging to the Earnmoor, with seven men in it survived the gale. The men made their way to Nassau.

The Earnmoor cleared from Baltimore on August 29, and on August 30 she left Hampton roads and put to sea. The storm which prevailed early in September struck her when she was off the West Indies. She labored several days in the heavy seas and then began to fill. The men gave up hope, and on September 5 determined to abandon the ship.

Two boats were launched. In one of them were the first officer, Mr. Painter, Second Engineer Meldrum and five seamen. In the long boat were Captain Gray, the first engineer, second officer and sixteen others of the crew of twenty-six men. The long boat, containing the nineteen men, has not been heard from. So far as learned, the crew were all Englishmen.

Joseph R. Foard & Co., the Earnmoor Company's agents here, received a cablegram dated yesterday, from St. Jago, saying that First Officer Painter and Second Engineer Meldrum have arrived at Nassau in a boat with five of the crew. A later cable says that the five sailors are dying.

Captain Gray and the others in the long boat may have been picked up by another vessel. Among the missing are second Mate Stone and First Engineer Soudar.

Miraculous Escape from Death.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 4.—In a freight wreck on the Ashtabula, Youngstown and Pittsburg road near Hazleton, Ohio, yesterday, John Fitzgerald, a brakeman, was killed and Conductor Miller badly injured. The engine turned a complete somersault over a high embankment, but neither the engineer or fireman was hurt.

IN A SWISS PRISON

Outrages Inflicted Upon a Party of American Tourists.

DRAGGED TO JAIL AND ABUSED.

The Case to be Laid Before Secretary of State Blaine.

Five Days in a Filthy Cell Swarming with Vermin—Nothing to Eat but Gruel and Black Bread—Finally Released by a Judge Who Said that the Arrest Was a Mistake.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—Mr. Charles E. Coates, Jr., of this city, a graduate of the Johns Hopkins University, will go to Washington in a day or two to lay before Secretary Blaine a complaint of outrages inflicted upon him while traveling in Switzerland last summer.

Mr. Coates has been completing his studies in Germany, and last August, in company with Mr. Geo. D. Mumford, of New York, was making a tour of Switzerland. They journeyed to Berne, and on the train they met a couple of Americans who did not speak German. When Berne was reached all four took a carriage drive about the city and returned to the depot, took dinner in the restaurant and went out on the platform to wait for the train for Interlaken.

While standing quietly there Mr. Coates heard his name called, and, looking up, saw his acquaintances of the morning being escorted down the platform by an officer. As they passed him one of them said: "Mr. Coates, what is the matter with the fellow? He must be drunk."

Knowing they spoke no German, he asked the officer what he wanted, but was simply told to "come along too."

Mr. Mumford was arrested at the same time, and the four were taken into a small room, with a glass door opening upon the platform. There they were kept for two hours for the traveling public to look at.

The detective who made the arrest would not give any reason for his action. Then they were taken to police headquarters and separated. Mr. Coates was taken before the Justice, searched, questioned and sent to prison. No charges were made against him; he had been given no opportunity to defend himself and they would not let him make a statement. He had with him a letter of credit, a passport, a student's card from Heidelberg, private letters and bills of lading on goods shipped to London and considerable money. The cell he was given was very filthy and dark and swarming with vermin. He was kept three days on prison fare, gruel and black bread, in solitary confinement, all the while ignorant of the charges against him or when he would be examined.

At the end of the fifth day he was released with an apology and was told it was all a mistake. Mr. Coates and Mr. Mumford then went to see the Judge who was to have tried them. He agreed that it was an outrage, and that they were entitled to damages, which, however, would have to be awarded by the Federal Court.

THE BUCKEYE STYLE.

Wordy War Between Murat Halstead and the Democratic Candidate for Governor.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.—The following open letter is printed here addressed to Hon. James E. Campbell, Democratic Candidate for Governor of Ohio.

"Dear Sir—You were pleased last night to use language becoming the representative of gangsters, who are the masters of your party, toward me, and to introduce a crazy man's letter, hoping to reflect upon the integrity of the board of public affairs of Cincinnati, but you neglected to say anything about the ballot box which was introduced in the House of Representatives and that was accompanied by a contract, 'No. 1,000' printed in the 'Commercial Gazette' yesterday.

"It may interest you to know that I have proof that you had secured a money interest in that ballot box contract before you introduced the bill, namely, that you 'subscribed' to secure an interest July 3, 1888.

M. HALSTEAD."

"A Liar and a Double Liar."

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 4.—Mr. Campbell was interviewed this morning on the subject of Mr. Halstead's letter and said: "Halstead is a liar and a double liar. There is not a word of truth in it."

"Then there was no contract of the kind as published?"

"If there was I didn't see it. If he can prove that I have anything to do with such a contract I will withdraw from the race. That will demonstrate whether he is a liar or not."

Scholars on a Strike.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 4.—The scholars of the public schools in Glasgow, Aberdeen, and other towns, have quit attendance and declare they will not return unles the number and length of home lessons are reduced and the use of the cane is abolished.

Very Close in Montana.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 4.—The election in this State will not give much of a majority either way, and an official count may be necessary to determine who the victors are. The Republicans are now claiming not only the Legislature but the election of their State ticket.

Senatorial Deadlock.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The Republican Senatorial Convention for the 26th District adjourned at 8 o'clock last night until this afternoon, and they are still in a deadlock, 73 ballots having been taken without result. It is reported that the Cayuga and Tompkins delegation have made up a slate to nominate W. P. Robinson of Cayuga for Senator.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The Borough Council meet in regular session this evening.

—The Warren Mission Industrial School will reopen Saturday, at 2:30 P. M.

—Officer McCue is again transferred to do day duty at the railroad station.

—Preparatory services will be held in Trinity Reformed church this evening.

—A meeting of the Republican Association of this city, will be held early next week.

—"Oyster color" gowns will probably be scalloped and trimmed with blue points.

—According to the almanac, the moon changed on Tuesday at 2 o'clock, and clear weather will follow.

—The Park Avenue and Oriental Social Clubs will hold a joint ball at The Crescent, Thanksgiving Eve.

—The hop of the North Avenue Social Club at Dunlap's Hall on Wednesday evening, was a grand success.

—Rev. Doctor Rodman of Grace Episcopal church, will be the speaker at Reform Hall, Sunday evening.

—Rev. Mr. Taylor will discourse on "The Poetry of the Bible," at the Unitarian service on Sunday morning.

—The State Board of Assessors will make a complete return on railroad property to Comptroller Anderson on November 1.

—The comptroller of the currency has called for a report of the condition of all National banks at the close of business, Monday, Sept. 30.

—Although the bad weather greatly interfered with the attendance at the State Fair, the receipts from admission to the grounds and grand stand was $11,000.

—The pressed brick for the new Miller building at Park avenue and Fourth street, have arrived, and will be delivered on the spot by truckman Wm. Wright.

—A meeting of the Grocers' Protective Union was held in the Republican Association rooms, last evening, but only business of importance to the members was transacted.

—The Democratic Clubs of New Jersey will meet in convention at Newark on October 10, and the State League of Republican clubs will assemble at Elizabeth on October 15.

—There will be an adjourned regular meeting of Gazelle Engine company, in their parlors, this evening, at 7:30 o'clock, at which a full attendance is desired. After the meeting the members will take their apparatus to the "Five Points" for a wash.

—Messrs J. W. and H. Coddington, the ice men, do not expect to rebuild their dams and ice houses this Fall as it is impossible to rebuild them the way they intend to, in time for the Winter crop of ice. They expect to get their supply from Lake Hopatcong.

—It is said that in several of the New Jersey coast towns, ranging from Red Bank to Asbury Park, efforts will be made to secure indictments against the drug stores that illegally sold whiskey and the bars that were opened on Sunday during the Summer which has just gone.

—A number of the Plainfield guests at the "Kernwood," Asbury Park, during the Summer, tendered an agreeable surprise to Mrs. R. J. Truell, one of the proprietors, at her home on Central avenue, this city, on Wednesday evening. The guests spent a few hours pleasantly together.

—Local knights of the rod and reel may as well put away their fishing tackle for the balance of the season, since Messrs Rudolph Laurens and F. D. Fuller went to Bound Brook on Wednesday and got all the fish there were in the Raritan river, namely: two bass and an orphan eel.

—The legal fight which for thirty-eight years the city of Elizabeth has urged against the Central Railroad Company for the recovery of the town's only public wharf, which was seized in 1846 by the Elizabethport and New York Ferry Company, now merged into the Central, has been renewed.

—Night watchman Benj. Wright late on Saturday night found a bicycle leaning up against a building on Somerset street. Early on Sunday morning he saw that the machine was still there, so he took charge of it and placed it in the hallway leading to Chief Carey's office. On Tuesday the bicycle was returned to its owner.

FALSE AND INFAMOUS.

Another Victim of the "news."

Scarcely a day passes that THE PRESS is not requested to deny certain false statements published in the news. Here is another sample of deliberate fabrication published in that paper yesterday, which is intended not only to injure the young man's reputation but also to disgrace his parents:

"The parents of John Devlin, who reside in Bound Brook, received word yesterday that their son had been mortally wounded in a drunken brawl at Jersey City. They immediately proceeded to Jersey City, but when they arrived the young man had breathed his last. It appears that Devlin was implicated in a street flight and when an officer attempted to arrest him he resisted and was clubbed into submission."

Miss Mary Devlin, a sister of the young man referred to, called at THE PRESS office the morning, and denounced the above item as a base fabrication of the facts. She says that her brother, who is employed in a laundry and boards at No. 56 Raymond street, Brooklyn, was admitted to the Hospital on Tuesday evening, suffering from pneumonia and bronchial troubles. The patient has been ill for about two weeks, and although his condition is dangerous, he is yet alive and his chances for recovery are good.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Misses McGee have returned from their far Western tour.

Mr. E. V. Lorton and wife of West Fifth street, are anticipating a trip to Washington, D. C., next week.

The wife of Mr. J. H. Carney of Craig place and Duer street, North Plainfield, is again confined to the house by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Struthers have returned from their carriage trip to Princeton, Trenton and other attractive parts of the State.

Mr. George E. Hoadley's illness is developing symptoms that are the cause of much anxiety to his family and which appeal to the sincerest sympathy of his scores of friends.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Cornelia Sliter, who died on Wednesday, took place from the residence of the deceased on the Rahway road, this morning. The remains were taken to Greenwood for interment.

Gov. Green, and candidates Grubb and Abbett, will attend the Fair next week at Somerville. Secretary W. S. Potter of the Somerset county association, met them all at Trenton, yesterday, and received their personal assurance of being present.

Mrs. M. B. Brandon of Troy, N. Y., left for her home yesterday, having been summoned here about two weeks ago by the dangerous illness of her mother, Mrs. Thorn, who is also the mother of Mr. G. Thorn of East Second street. Mrs. Thorn's condition is yet very uncertain.

A Talented Woman.

There is on exhibition at THE PRESS office, some beautiful work in oil and water colors from the brush of Miss C. S. Hellwig, of 34 East Fifth street. Miss Hellwig is the young woman who, upon her graduation from the Moscow University, was presented by the Russian Empress with the gold medal awarded each year to the best scholar. She is a gifted artist and talented linguist. Those who desire lessons in the French or German language, or in art painting, may call at her residence.

A Plainfield Clergyman Officiates.

Miss Emma C. Hagstoz was united in marrige to Mr. Henry Askins, Wednesday evening, at the home of the bride's parents, No. 62 Columbia street, Newark, the Rev. J. P. Taylor, of this city, performing the ceremony. Miss Hagstoz is the daughter of Thomas Hagtoz, the President of the Essex Watch Case Company, and Mr. Askins is the business manager of one of Aronson's comic opera companies.

Stealing Still.

Among the items in last night's news copied from THE PRESS of the day before, were:

The announcement of Miss Jackson's wedding, Oct. 17;

The newly elected officers of Warren Mission Y. P. S. C. E.;

The departure of Mrs. G. L. VanEmburgh for Greenwood Lake;

The death of Mrs. Cornelia Sliter;

And the return of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. MacIntyre from their wedding tour.

Relief Association's Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Relief Association will be held at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, on Monday morning next at 10 o'clock. All who are interested in the work of the Association are cordially invited to attend the meeting. A full attendance of the officers and members is particularly desired.

FLORENCE TWEEDY,
Secretary.

Mr. Burdick's Coming.

Music Hall has been engaged by the ladies of the W. C. T. U., for Gospel temperance meetings, led by Mr. Burdick, during the evenings of November, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 20, 22 and 23, commencing Sunday afternoon at four o'clock of Nov. 10.

—The firemen from this city who participated in the firemen's parade at Elizabeth, yesterday, arrived home about half-past nine o'clock last evening, well pleased with their day's sport.

THE YOUNG ONES BEAT.

Base Ball Among the Public School Classes.

The base ball team of the Third and Fourth classes of the Public School, defeated the team of Seniors and Juniors, yesterday, by one run. The winning nine did the heaviest hitting—Sutphen, Angleman and Laing each getting a two-bagger. The game was called on account of darkness at the end of the fourth inning.

The score was:

Jr. O. U. A. M. Officers Installed.

At the regular weekly meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. Order of United American Mechanics, held in the S. of T. rooms, last evening, after the regular routine business was transacted the quarterly reports were read which showed the Council to be in a better condition than ever before since the Council was instituted. The reports also showed that eleven members had been initiated during the quarter. The following officers were installed by District Deputy Peter H. Bennett, for the ensuing term:

C.—David S. Dunavan.
V. C.—James D. Anderson.
R. S.—Walter N. Martin.
Asst. R. S.—John C. VanDyke.
F. S.—Charles F. Stephens.
Con.—Gilbert S. Martin.
W.—Horace G. Adams.
I. S.—William A. Wilson.
O. S—Raynor Tunison.

After the installation refreshments were served and brotherly love prevailed throughout the entire evening.

To Inspect the Pond Tool Works.

Chief Engineer Loring has been ordered by the Naval Department at Washington, to inspect the Pond Machine Works at Plainfield and report on the capacity of the works and the character of the work, so far as ship construction is concerned. We venture to state that the Pond Tool Works is equipped for and capable of building anything in the line above referred to.

President Harper.

At a regular and well attended business meeting of the Plainfield Reform Club, held last evening, ex-Judge Nathan Harper was unanimously elected President for the three months unexpired term of President French resigned. The annual election for President of the Club occurs, December 5.

—To-morrow will be observed by the Hebrews as the Jewish New Year.

—Several of the secret societies held regular meetings in their lodge rooms last evening.

—Divorce lawyers are looking for a boom in business. The season of cold feet approaches.

—A quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. has been declared by the directors of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company. The same is payable on Oct. 15.

—The season is at hand when the inexperienced fool goes hunting and looks down the barrel of his gun to see if it is loaded. No flowers. Boston papers please copy.

—Those who complain about local advertising rates may be interested in learning that the New York World charges, for one issue, $300 per column, or $1,800 for a whole page.

—A regular meeting of Plainfield Engine Co., No. 2, was held in the company's parlor, last evening, with Foreman Wright in the chair. Only routine business was transacted.

—A brakeman on the noon freight bound East was caught between the bumpers of two freight cars at Somerville, at 12:40 o'clock yesterday, and horribly mangled. The man lived but fifteen minutes.

—The Board of Freeholders of Somerset county will meet in the Court House at Somerville, on Tuesday next, when it is thought that the committee will report favorable on the erection of an iron girder bridge on Somerset street, this city.

—A new law passed at the last session of the Legislature requires that hereafter all school trustees shall be elected by ballot, and that "the legal voters shall vote by ballot, and not otherwise, to raise any money for any school purpose whatever."

The proprietors of Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain, will pay a large reward if any certificate published by them is not found genuine.

Tom, Dick and Harry appear again with their Grandmother's recipes for coughs, etc., but the people know Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup too well.

—Ex-Congressman Augustus A. Hardenbergh, President of tha Hudson County National Bank, is dangerously ill at his home in Jersey City, and his death is daily expected.

Many young children become positively repulsive with sore eyes, sore ears, and scald head. Such afflictions may be speedily removed by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old alike experience the wonderful benefits of this medicine.

BOWLS.

The Dunellen Club Win the Handren Challenge Cup Forever.

The Middlesex County and the Dunellen Bowling Green Clubs, competed yesterday at Schepflin's Green, Dunellen, for the Handren Challenge Cup. The match terminated in favor of the latter, by a score of 75 to 68. This makes the Dunellen Club permanent holders of the trophy, having been victors for three seasons in succession.

The contest was a spirited one, and although the Middlesex Club is the younger, it was admitted by all that had they had a half-hour more the result would have been changed. Among the members of the Middlesex Club are County Superintendent of Public Instruction, Willis, Powelson Bros., Dr. S. Long and others of New Brunswick; F. P. Haffner, F. J. Richters, C. Schepflin and others of Dunellen. The latter is also a member of the victorious Club, and consequently did not roll on either side.

The Schepflin Cup will be competed for on Thursday next by the members of the Dunellen Club, and on the same day of the following week, both Clubs will come together in contests for the Stevens Medal, which will end the games for the season.

The scores of the rinks yesterday were as follows:

Rink 1—Dunellen—T. Wooley, Major J. E. Haynes, Henry McKnight, Jas. Stevens, skip; score, 37. Middlesex—R. C. Johnson, W. E. Lindstedt, H. B. Willis, J. B. Betts, skip; score, 29.

Rink 2—Dunellen—Jas. H. Smith, Wm. Elliott, D. B. S. Corkburn, Thos. Stone, skip; score, 38. Middlesex—L. A. Powelson, R. M. Pettit, C. S. Hoffman, Fred Weigel, skip; score, 39.

Sunday School Statistics.

The last report of the Middlesex County Sunday School Association shows that there are in the county 105 schools with 10,110 scholars, and 1,615 officers and teachers. The average attendance is 7,508; the amount raised for benevolence during the year ending July 1, 1888, was $3,073.62; amount raised for County and State work, $188.99. The report shows that since that for 1887 there has been an increase of two schools, a falling off in teachers and scholars of 43, a falling off in the collections for benevolence of $851.58; and a falling off in collections for State and county work of $38.80, and an increase in average attendance of 482.—Ex.

Half Rates to Washington via Pennsylvania Railroad.

The great Knights Templar Conclave in Washington will be one of the most attractive events in the history of the National Capital. The grand parade of Tuesday, the 8th inst., will be a sight worth seeing, with its twenty-five thousand Knights in line.

For the convenience of visitors the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell xcursion tickets to Washington, October 5, 6, 7 and 8, valid for return until October 31, 1889, at half rates.

No one should fail to take advantage of this unparalleled opportunity of visiting the seat of government.

Young Crescents Still at It.

The Young Crescents of this city, will again play the Young Americans of Dunellen, on the Evona grounds, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A good game is promised. The following players will compose each club:

Young Crescents—J. Sutphen, lf; Force, p; C. Sutphen, 2b; Wyckoff, 1b; Chase, 3b; Rafferty, cf; M. Sutphen, rf; Thiers, c; VanDyke, ss.

Young Americans—Shaffer, lf; Carpenter, 3b; Richters, p; Apgar, 1b; Burke, c; Richardson, 2b; Holland, ss; Hill, rf.

W. Littell will umpire the game.

The Tramp Nuisance.

As the cold weather approaches, tramps are flocking into the city from the surrounding country. This city at the present time has its share of tramps, and many of them are of the most dangerous character. Scarcely a day passes but what some wandering brute will apply at a house, particularly in the suburbs, and demand something to eat, and if it is not given to him, he will become insolent and abusive. The tramp nuisance should be abated.

A Handsome Wagon.

A very handsome milk wagon for the Holly Grove dairy farm at Plainfield, has just been turned out by carriage builder W. C. Brown, of 287 Burnet street, New Brunswick. It is reliably built, substantially ironed, and painted in tastefully disposed colors in which carmine, drab, corn color, black and gold predominate. It will present an attractive appearance on the street.

Fall Sports.

The Middlesex Gun Club will hold its annual tournament at Dunellen, on Oct. 8, 9, 10 and 11. About $2,500 will be guaranteed. The principal event will be a sweepstakes, open to the world, at 50 live pigeons, under Hurlingham rules, for a purse of $1,000. The entry to this event will be $112.50, including the birds. This will be the largest purse ever guaranteed in this State.

Will He Succeed?

The contractor who has the laying of the track at the Linden Race Course must complete his work by October 23 or forfeit $100,000.

—Apropos of the season, it is well to know that a solution of salt and vinegar will clean the blackened isinglass of the stove.

High-holders and Robins.

The following article appeared in a recent issue of a Dover paper, and is worthy of the careful consideration of all who favor the protection of song and insectiverous birds:

"The question has frequently been asked of late whether there is any law protecting robins and the birds generally known in this section of the country as high-holders. There is no doubt that the law of this State prohibits the killing of these birds at all times of the year. It is argued by some that there ought to be an open season for these birds, as they make fine pies and other dishes. The cry for permission to kill the birds is especially strong at present, as they are unusually numerous in some sections just now. The Legislature of this State passed a law some years ago prohibiting the killing of these birds and it is due to this that they are numerous. It is true that both breed here and in the cold season go South and undoubtedly get to places where there is no law to protect them. But if they were allowed to be shot here they would soon become scarce, for they know where they are annoyed and where not. To nothing but indiscriminate shooting can be attributed the disappearance of the wild pigeon and other birds which formerly visited these parts. It is only because the robin and the woodpecker—for the high-holder is a yellow-winged woodpecker—are protected in New Jersey that these birds come here every year. Both are very pretty birds and the song of the robin has delighted many a person who wondered how men could be wicked enough to shoot them. The woodpecker is an insectiverous bird, who spends most of his time destroying worms and insects and accomplishes a great deal of good in this direction. The English sparrow is making such inroads into the ranks of American birds that all lovers of home birds ought to assist in enforcing the laws protecting American birds."

A Very Old Farm.

The Charles Bailey farm, on the road leading to Basking Ridge, consisting of about 120 acres, was sold at public sale, under partition proceedings, a few days since, to Theodore J. Bailey, one of the heirs, for $5,585. It has been in the Bailey family many years, having been devised to Charles Bailey by his father, Benjamin Bailey, whose will, it was alleged, had been destroyed. Proceedings in Chancery were commenced by the heirs, and the best legal talent employed. The will was never found, but the Court decreed that the provisions should be carried out as ascertained from the original draft, which was produced in court by the executor of the lawyer who drew the will.

Blamed if He Does, and Blamed if He Doesn't.

(From The World.)

Not a word for the soldiers in Leon Abbett's long letter of acceptance.—Trenton State Gazette.

Are "the soldiers" an issue in this campaign? Isn't this "a canvass of local and State policy only?" Suppose Gov. Abbett had gone out of his way to say a good word for the veterans, would you have been any better pleased? Would you not, on the other hand, have denounced him for "playing the old soldier racket?" Listen to your Republican neighbor, the Burlington Enterprise:

Leon Abbett is now trying to curry favor with the old soldiers of New Jersey.

He is "damn'd if he do and damn'd if he don't," Spell s-t-a-r backwards.

Fish and Game Notes.

The law is again off woodcock in the State of New Jersey, and sportsmen are having fair shooting in Bergen and Passaic counties.

Paul Woodward, of Spring Valley, N. J., killed a gray fox in his hennery early on Tuesday morning, that turns the scales to thirty-one pounds.

The Fish Warden reports that during the past season over a half a million of shad were caught off the shores of Salem county, New Jersey, that were valued at $50,000, giving employment to over 400 men.

Did Amos Grow Up on Three Cent Shad?

In the trial of the suit of the City of Elizabeth to regain possession of the public dock property, foot of Elizabeth avenue, still in progress before Judge Van Syckel, Amos Moffett of this city, yesterday testified that in his boyhood he frequently drove with his father from Plainfield to Elizabethtown point and bought shad there. Shad were sold at $3 per one hundred. It was a public road to the water's edge.

That Same Old Chestnut.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

"There are several Democrats in Plainfield," says the Times of that city, "who think their party has had all it can stand of Leon Abbett. They want a new deal with Leon left out." There are some in Elizabeth too. When they all "get together" next November there will be enough of them to elect Gen. Grubb, if the Republicans get out their vote.

Hurt His Foot.

Constable Soper, of Metuchen, while driving a 700 pound boiler at that place on Wednesday, slipped out the block from under it and it fell and injured his ankle badly. Medical attendance was necessary to dress the wounds.

Queen Victoria has a remarkably fine head of hair, for a lady of her age; but her son, the Prince of Wales, is quite bald. Had he used Ayer's Hair Vigor earlier in life, his head might, today, have been as well covered as that of his royal mother. It's not too late yet.

SEVEN YEARS FOR FAULKNER.

That is the Penalty for Wrecking the Danville Bank.

BUFFALO, Oct. 4.—The Lester Faulkner trial, which occupied fifteen days of the time of the United States Circuit Court, come to an end yesterday, and, contrary to all expectations, General Faulkner was found guilty. Judge Cox sentenced him to seven years' imprisonment.

The counsel for the defense will apply to Judge Wallace for a certificate of appeal. They are confident of reversing the verdict.

The jury is said to have stood 11 to 1 for conviction from the start, the foreman being the last to yield.

The crime for which Gen. Faulkner was tried was the wrecking of the First National Bank at Dansville, N. Y., of which he was a director and his brother James the president. The bank failed in May, 1887, with liabilities of over $400,000 and practically no assets. The bank had been in a bad condition for four years or more, but by making false reports, fixing the books and negotiating loans on notes of the bank the institution was floated until things got so bad that nothing could be done but close the doors. James Faulkner fled to Europe, but Lester Faulkner remained at home, claiming that he was ignorant of the bank's condition and had no hand in its wreck, but was subsequently indicted.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Locomotive building is getting brisk in Paterson.

The work on the new depot at Allentown, Pa., on the Lehigh Valley has been begun.

An advance of 10 per cent. has been given to the employes of the New Jersey Steel Works.

State Senator Sloan, of Oswego, N. Y., was renominated yesterday by acclamation by the Republicans.

Factory Inspector Fell of New Jersey has begun an action against two Newark manufacturers who violated the factory laws.

James Nichols was killed by a derrick falling upon him yesterday in Johnston and Shapes's stone quarry at Canajoharie, N. Y.

John J. Zeiger, of Mifflin Township, Pa., a prominent farmer and Democratic candidate for Director of the Poor, died yesterday, aged 60.

The New Jersey Sons of the Revolution will commemorate the battle of Red Bank by a banquet in Newark on October 22.

Indigestion

IS not only a distressing complaint, of itself, but, by causing the blood to become depraved and the system enfeebled, is the parent of innumerable maladies. That Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best cure for Indigestion, even when complicated with Liver Complaint, is proved by the following testimony from Mrs. Joseph Lake, of Brockway Centre, Mich.:—

"Liver complaint and indigestion made my life a burden and came near ending my existence. For more than four years I suffered untold agony, was reduced almost to a skeleton, and hardly had strength to drag myself about. All kinds of food distressed me, and only the most delicate could be digested at all. Within the time mentioned several physicians treated me without giving relief. Nothing that I took seemed to do any permanent good until I commenced the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which has produced wonderful results. Soon after commencing to take the Sarsaparilla I could see an improvement in my condition. My appetite began to return and with it came the ability to digest all the food taken, my strength improved each day, and after a few months of faithful attention to your directions, I found myself a well woman, able to attend to all household duties. The medicine has given me a new lease of life."

A GAIN OF ONE POINT

New York and Boston Both Capture a Game.

GIANTS SHUT OUT THE BABIES.

Clarkson Pitches for Boston and Captain Kelly Joins in the Game.

Chicago and Philadelphia Play a Tie. Washington Presented With Goose Eggs By Indianapolis—Brooklyn Plays a Fine Game With the Athletics—St. Louis Wins Another from Kansas City.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4.—The Giants arrived at Cleveland yesterday to begin the final series of games for the pennant. The New Yorkers are great favorites with the Ohioans, and over 2,000 people turned out to give them welcome.

The real feature of the game was the good batting of the Giants. Gore and Ewing did some terrific work, while Tiernan, Ward and O'Rourke also hit the ball hard.

The New Yorkers are in high feather, and say that they now hope to hold the lead to the end.

Kelly's wild performance here is generally regretted by the players. After the scene Kelly asked Manager Hart for a ticket to New York, saying he had disgraced himself and that he did not care to play any more this season.

Boston Wins Easily.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 4.—Pittsburg was "off" yesterday and permitted Boston to win easily on a series of ridiculous errors. Galvin was very effective up to the fifth inning, when he seemed to lose heart and was batted freely. With the exception of Kelly, who made two very bad errors in right field, the Boston team played a good game.

New York Republican State Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The corridors of the Fifth Avenue Hotel swarmed with the great and small Republicans. The occasion was the meeting of the Republican State Committee for the purpose of preparing for the coming canvass. General Knapp was elected chairman in place of C. N. Bliss. Charles A. Chickering, of Copenhagen, Lewis county, succeeds F. S. Smith, of Allegheny, as secretary, and ex-Congressman S. V. White, of Brooklyn, was selected as treasurer of the committee.

Arrest of the Bogus Diploma Doctor.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—"Dr." Henry Freeland Bradbury, alias Ripley, alias Freeland, whose seven bogus medical colleges in Vermont, New Hampshire, and other States were exposed last week, has been arrested in South Paris, Me., by Marshal Baker, of Portsmouth, N. H. Bradbury got wind of the discovery of his "fake" colleges and left Nashua last Friday, but the officers had little difficulty in tracing him. He will be taken to Portsmouth for trial.

Ex-Queen Natalie Must Leave Servia.

BELGRADE, Oct. 4.—At the approaching session of the Skuptschina the government will introduce a bill to prohibit ex-Queen Natalie from residing in Servia.

DIVORCE FROM EVA.

Robert Ray Hamilton Tells the Story of His Marriage in Court.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Robert Ray Hamilton has begun an action for divorce from his wife Eva Hamilton, who is now at May's Landing awaiting transportation for the crime of assaulting Mary Donnelly. The complaint in the suit was handed to Judge Patterson upon an application for an order for the service of the summons for publication. The order was granted.

Mr Hamilton, in referring to his marriage, says that his wife's maiden name was Evangeline L. Steele, and that they were married on January 7, 1889. His consent to the marriage was obtained through the defendant's representations in March, 1888, that she was about to become a mother. In the same year, between December 17 and January 16, he received letters from Elmira representing that she had been delivered of a child. On January 6, the day before the marriage, a female child was presented to him as his own. The relation between plaintiff and the woman prior to the marriage were such that her representations might have been true. But for these representations plaintiff would not have married her.

Hamilton says he now has good reasons to believe that the woman's representations were false, and that the child was foisted upon him. It was in August of this year that he first became convinced of the deception practised upon him, and since that time he has not waived any of his rights by cohabiting with her.

By way of complaint the plaintiff says that at the time of his marriage and prior thereto, the defendant had a husband living.

Judge Patterson ordered that the summons be published in three papers in this city, and that a copy be mailed to defendant at May's Landing, and another addressed to her at the State prison at Trenton, N. J.

"I AM A THIEF."

An Embezzling Bookkeeper Confesses His Guilt to His Employers.

MERIDEN, Conn., Oct. 4.—Charles S. Pratt, confidential bookkeeper, secretary and cashier of the H. Lines Company, has been arrested for embezzlement and yesterday the preliminary hearing was continued for two weeks, under $4,000 bonds, which he did not secure.

Pratt's embezzlement amounts to over $10,000 covering various periods since 1883 and was accomplished by false entries on the pay rolls. Pratt confessed his guilt to his employers saying: "It is the same old story of living beyond one's means. I am a thief."

Pratt was an officer in several local organizations, treasurer of the First Congregational Society and a city Alderman.

Killed While Shooting at a Mark.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Yesterday afternoon at Warrensburg, this county, Harry Thomas and Thompson Tubbs, a brother of Arthur L. Tubbs, of the Glens Falls "Republican," and another youth were shooting at a mark with a Winchester rifle. By some means or other the rifle, while in the hands of young Thomas was discharged, the ball entering the brain of Tubbs, who fell dead.

Serious Damage by Lightning.

BANGOR, Me., Oct 4.—During a heavy thunder storm yesterday lightning destroyed Armenus Harriman's stable, damaged William French's stable and killed a valuable cow at Orland, and did considerable damage at Cross and Stillwater. At Oldtown the Union church was struck, the steeple shattered and the entire front of the church bulged four feet out of position. The organ was ruined. The damage to the edifice will exceed $5,000.

A Slim Convention.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The Woman's Suffrage Party of New York held a "convention" here yesterday afternoon and the roll call was answered to by less than a dozen delegates. At a private session of the convention a platform consisting of over 2,000 words was adopted by Hamilton Wilcox, of New York, and two others.

A Washington Belle Elopes.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4.—Richard J. Drew, of Richmond, and Miss Alice M. Ward, a belle of Washington, were married here yesterday by the Rev. Mr. Dixon of the Baptist Church. It was a runaway match. The girl told Mr. Dixon that her mother wanted to force her to marry a certain wealthy resident of Washington, hence the elopement.

Died in the Flames.

LEWISTON, Me., Oct. 4.—The barn of Josiah Ricker at Webster was burned yesterday. Mr. Ricker, while attempting to save the horses, was caught in the flames and burned to death. He was 48 years of age. The barn cost $3,300 and contained sixty tons of hay; insurance, $1,500.

A LAWYER'S FORTUNE.

The Most Valuable Barrel of Whisky Ever Distilled.

A Young Attorney's Tramp Client and How the Latter Kept His Promise—A Small Fee That Developed Into a Million Dollars Cash.

"Undoubtedly the most valuable barrel of whisky ever distilled," said a well-known Steuben County lawyer to a New York Sun reporter, "was owned some years ago in Steuben County. If there was ever a barrel of whisky more valuable I would like to hear of it, for two gallons of this particular barrel brought its owner over $500,000 a gallon. There is a story connected with that whisky that is worth telling, and worth placing on the record, too.

"Some years before the war a young man named Henry M. Sherwood was admitted to the bar of Steuben County. He was a bright young fellow and belonged in the town of Woodhull. Soon after he was admitted to the bar, and before he had had his first client, a tramp was arrested and put in jail at Corning. He had been guilty of some serious breach of the peace, and his general appearance was that of a genuine tough. He tried to engage a lawyer to defend him when his case came up for a hearing, but as he had no money no one cared to take his case in hand. At last he inquired whether there wasn't some young lawyer in the place who hadn't had much of an opportunity to distinguish himself as yet, and who would likely be willing to undertake the management of the prisoner's case for the chance of getting some glory out of it. He was told that young Hank Sherwood might consent to appear under these conditions, and the stranger sent for the briefless lawyer. Sherwood went to the jail and saw the prisoner.

"'It looks as if I was in a pretty bad scrape,' said the tramp to Hank, 'but I believe that a lawyer can get me through all right. Now, I'm from Kentucky, and I haven't got a cent. I'm going back to Kentucky if I get out of this scrape, but I'll have to beg or beat my way till I get there. My father is a big distiller, but I've been a trifle wild, and he and I are not on the best of terms. He wouldn't send me a cent, even if I should send word to him of the fix I am in here. But I'll tell you what I'll do. If you will take charge of my case and work it for all it's worth and get me clear I'll sneak out of the old man's stock when I get home a barrel of the best old Kentucky whisky there is in the Bourbon country and have it shipped to you. I can do it easy. What do you say?'

"Young Sherwood didn't take a bit of stock in the man's story, but he made up his mind to see what he could do in the management of the case, just to begin getting his hand in, and he accepted the tramp as his client. I don't remember the details of the case, but Hank succeeded in clearing the tramp, and the latter went away, feeling good. Time passed along, and Sherwood had forgotten all about his tramp client and the proposed fee, when one day the station agent at Addison, where the young lawyer lived, met him and said:

"'Say, Hank, there's a barrel in the freight house for you. It's been there a day or two, and came from Kentucky. More than that, its markings declare that it contains fine old Kentucky bourbon.'

"The tramp had paid his lawyer's fee, sure enough. Sherwood had the barrel taken home and placed in his cellar. He wasn't much of a tamperer with whisky, and the barrel lay in the cellar five years without being disturbed. The late Constant Cook was then Judge of Steuben County. He was holding court at Corning one term, and, as was the custom in those days, a number of lawyers and others gathered in the judge's room at the hotel in the evening and passed an hour or so in a social game of euchre. The judge enjoyed an occasional glass of good whisky, and he was a thorough judge of good whisky, too. On the occasion I speak of Hank Sherwood was one of the judge's euchre party. The judge was very bitter in his denunciation of the whisky they sold in Corning, and said he would be grateful for a glass of whisky that was fit to drink. That reminded Sherwood of his barrel of old Kentucky bourbon that had been lying so long in his cellar. He told Judge Cook that he had some whisky at home that he believed was good, and that he would fetch some down next day. He had his barrel tapped that night, and filling a two-gallon jug from it brought it to Corning and presented it to Judge Cook. The judge tasted the whisky, and in all his experience had never met with its equal.

"'Young man,' said he to Sherwood, 'I won't forget you for fetching me this rare stuff. If ever I see a chance to give you a lift I'll do it.'

"Time passed. Sherwood skinned along after the manner of the average country lawyer. The war broke out. Judge Cook was one of the solid men of Western New York. He, in company with late John Arnot, J. S. T. Stranahan, of Buffalo; Charles Cook, of Havana, and John H. Chedell, of Auburn, had built the New York and Erie railroad from Binghamton to Corning and was largely interested in other great improvements in this part of the State of Pennsylvania. Soon after the war began he obtained a big Government contract, and at once sent for Hank Sherwood.

"'I'm going to give you that lift now, Henry,' said he.

"He let Sherwood in on the contract, and the country lawyer's share of the proceeds was $150,000—cold, cash dollars. After this was done Judge Cook said to Sherwood:

"'There's some land for sale in Tioga County, Pa. It is coal land, and is bound to be very valuable. You can buy some of it cheap. Put all the money you've got in that land.'

"Sherwood did so. Every dollar he made in the big contract he put into Tioga County land. He hadn't a great while to wait before the prophesy of Judge Cook came true. Henry M. Sherwood's first fee resulted in being the biggest fee ever received by any lawyer on earth, for he cleared over $1,000,000 from his investment in the Tioga County lands, and the barrel of Kentucky whisky his tramp client had paid for his services was the basis of it all. Was there ever a more valuable barrel of whisky distilled, do you think?"

A Mighty Sociable Snake.

All the people of Jackson, Mich., are not liars, and one of the most truthful writes in the Saturday Star about a snake which he caught in Whitmore lake while fishing through the ice last winter. The reptile was very large and beautifully colored, and when the hook was removed from its mouth coiled itself and sprang fifty feet into the air several times. It then sat down on a chunk of ice and took lunch with the Jackson man, and after smoking a mild cigar slipped back into the water. This summer it came to the Jackson man's house as a star boarder, and it saves his little girl from drowning every time she falls into the water, lifts pickles out of the barrel with its forked tongue and keeps the lawn sprinkled by filling up on water and spouting it over the yard, although it acted a little dimdent about the last job until the Jackson man removed his keep-off-the-grass sign.

HIS GLITTERING EYE.

The Snake Certainly Uses It to Charm Its Prey.

The bright, diabolical glitter of a snake's small, round optics does indeed possess a most inexplicable power over living objects upon which it is concentrated with mischievous intent, but, writes Dollie Henry in the St. Louis Republic, I am inclined to the opinion that it is never exerted except on things that serve to gratify the snake's appetite, such as small birds, frogs and insects. Birds are certainly victimized by this strange magnetism that seems to fill them with a desire to flee from danger, while it draws them right into the venomous jaws that terminate their little lives.

Years ago, when my brother and I were bare-foot children, we were pursuing a narrow path through a wheat field in our daily quest of pleasure and watermelons. The path lay quite near the fence, and under the shade of a large tree that stood just outside of the field we noticed a cat-bird in a perfect agony of effort to rise and fly, but with its utmost exertions it could only get a foot or two up and fall back to the ground to flutter excitedly up again, and all the time it seemed to be irresistibly drawn to a spot that held a deadly terror. We watched it a few seconds, and the idea of assisting it seemed to spring simultaneously into our minds.

"Poor little bird, I'll give you a toss up, and then you can fly," said I, darting forward, for I thought its trouble was caused by a lack of strength.

"I'll free you, little bird," said my brother, as he jerked me back with a force that tore my dress and nearly upset me, but he held me till I was balanced again, and then he said the bird was charmed by a snake, and he would break the charm by going between them, which he did, and then found the snake—a rattler—and killed it.

One of nature's sweetest songsters, a mocking-bird, is a frequenter of a little oak tree that stands out obliquely a few yards from the corner of my room, but its visits at this time of year are short, seldom more than half an hour's duration. One afternoon in the early part of June I noticed he stayed an unusually long time, and that he warbled in a wild, excited manner. An unbroken stream of melody issued from his little throat, and sounded for all the world as if he were afraid to stop; but I thought he was so delighted with his own music that he was carried away with it. I soon discovered the charm proceeded from a different source; for on going out into the yard and turning the corner of the house I saw a great black snake with its head reared fully ten inches and its keen gaze riveted on the mocking-bird. So intent was it in its diabolical design that it did not see me while I hunted a murderous weapon, and took deliberate aim and missed it—then it made great haste to crawl away and the bird flew off in a twinkling.

BECOMING A JEWESS.

How a Young English Bride Renounced the Christian Faith.

The West London Synagogue, in Upper Berkeley street, has been the scene of an unusual event—the marriage of a member of the Hebrew body with a young lady who, until two or three months ago a professing Christian, is now a professing Jewess. Secessions from Protestantism to Roman Catholicism, says the London Standard, are sufficiently numerous to have lost most of the interest which attached to them previously to the great Tractarian or Puseyite movement, which is now, indeed, almost lost sight of in the history of modern ritualism. But there is a decided novelty about a conversion from Christianity to Judaism, and it will be interesting to explain how such an extraordinary change of faith is accomplished. Here is the modus operandi, taken from the lips of a Hebrew gentleman "learned in the law," and well versed in the mysteries of Judaism.

The lady qualifies for admission into the oldest religion in the world by first of all learning Hebrew, coupled with the study of the ethics and creeds of the Jewish cult. The "ethics" are very easily acquired, since they are practically those of the Protestant religion, minus the teachings of the New Testament. The "creeds" are the teachings of the Old Testament, plus those of the Talmud. Having learned these and having acquired a sufficient knowledge of Hebrew to be able to read (a matter of very much greater ease than is generally supposed), the postulant applies to the ministers of the particular synagogue whereof she desires to become a member to examine her in the articles of her new faith. The ministers having duly questioned her on the points above indicated, give her a certificate to the effect that she is qualified for admission to Hebraism. Her next step is to write to the wardens of the synagogue, informing them of what she has done, and requesting to be admitted into the community. In her letter of application she incloses the ministers' certificate of her fitness for membership, and, as a matter of course, the warden's secretary at once replies in writing that she can be and is accordingly admitted into the community. The transformation is complete, and she is one of Judah's fair daughters. The next step is to "engage a seat" at the synagogue, which, until the consent of the wardens has been obtained, would not be allotted to her. Henceforth she enjoys all the rights and privileges of a Jewess to the fullest extent.

AT EXPRESS SPEED.

How It Feels to Ride at a Record Pace on the Homestretch.

William Hayward is the oldest jockey on the turf. His experiences would fill a book. "How does it feel to ride at a record pace?" repeated he to a question asked him by a reporter of the Denver (Col.) Horse. "Well, if you know how to ride, it's very exhilarating; but if you don't know how, it is anything but pleasant. If you ride with your head down, that is to say, bent slightly, so that the wind does not beat right on your face, you can breathe easily, but you hold your mouth wide open and let the air beat right in your face, and then you will have great difficulty in breathing, and if the race is a long one you will become exhausted by the end of the ride. A mile race on a good horse is run in about one minute and forty seconds—that is the record made in a race. It has been made in 1:39¾, but that was on a prepared track. A mile in 1:40 is at the rate of 36 miles an hour; so, you see, a race horse travels at express speed. If you want to see how it feels to go through the air at race-horse speed, just hang your head out of a railroad carriage window, turning your face toward the way the train is traveling. At the same time imagine that you are sitting in a saddle and have to hold on to your horse and guide him on to victory, if possible, keeping him from being run down or interfered with. It is no easy task to ride a horse in a race. The jockey must have his wits about him. He does not have much time to think how he feels. When riding in a neck-and-neck race down the homestretch I forget every thing except that I must strain every nerve to pass the other horses: no thought is then given to the plaudits from the grand stand."

NEVER FEELS COLD.

Silas Litchfield, the Strange Frost-Proof Man and Samson.

Humanity's manifold freaks are dwarfed by the appearance of a man insensible to the difference of heat and cold. His name is Silas C. Litchfield, and for thirty-five years he has lived in a temperature averaging thirty-six degrees above zero. In all these years Mr. Litchfield has had seven days' vacation. The rest of the time has been spent in a subterranean refrigerator.

This frost-proof being, says the New York Graphic, lives in Boston, Mass., and is employed by Mr. S. S. Learnard, of Quincy market, stall No. 50. Mr. Litchfield, the frost-proof man, has the reputation of being one of the strongest men physically that was ever known around the market. In discussing himself Mr. Litchfield said:

"My name is Silas C. Litchfield. I am sixty years old. For thirty-five years I have worked in this cellar, during which time I have had only seven days' vacation, and during the last twenty-six years only one day off, when I attended the firemen's muster last year. In my early days I was supposed to be the strongest man physically hereabouts, and carried the largest ox and hog that ever came into the market. I am the only man who has been seen to take a barrel of beef weighing four hundred pounds, walk upstairs and deliver it across the street. I have coopered ten barrels in less than eleven minutes right in here. I come to work every morning at 3:30, and continue to cut beef, with about two hours out of the refrigerator for meals, until five o'clock in the afternoon.

"How do I like it? Why, I would rather be in there on a hot day than outside sweltering. I'm acclimated, and think no more of coming in here to work than you do of going into your office. Ain't I ever sick? Why, bless you, I've never been sick a day in my life, and never have a pain or ache. I can either go in or come out with impunity, and never feel the slightest difference in the two extremes.

"I can go from an atmosphere of one hundred degrees into my thirty-six degree ice-box and don't feel any different from what you do going from one room to another. In fact, I've got no feelin' as far as hot and cold is concerned."

Mr. Litchfield's employer speaks in the highest terms of his employe, and said that at one time Silas Litchfield was considered the strongest man in Boston. His insensibility to cold is due entirely to his long life in the refrigerator.

POISON SENT BY MAIL

An Attempt to Kill Ministers and Their Wives.

ONE WOMAN DIES SUDDENLY.

Candy Containing Strychnine Sent in Little White Boxes.

Protestant Clergymen of Johnstown, N. B., Excited—They are Warned Against Receiving Confectionery Sent by Mail—An Analysis of the Dead Woman's Stomach Shows Strychnine Enough to Cause Death.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 5.—This city was horror-stricken yesterday over an attempt to poison the families of three Protestant clergymen, and which in the case of one lady was successful.

On Wednesday the wife of Rev. Donald MacRae died suddenly, having been poisoned, it is believed, by confectionery coming in a little white box through the mails, addressed to her husband and delivered by the postman that morning. An analysis of the candy shows that each piece contains enough strychnine to kill a man. An autopsy held yesterday disclosed sufficient strychnine in the stomach of the deceased to have caused death.

It has subsequently become known that similar packages were delivered at the residences of the Rev. J. Desoyres and the Rev. T. J. Deinstadt. The boxes were addressed in a copper plate hand which is thought by some to be a woman's. Mr. Desoyres tasted the confectionery, but detecting a bitter taste did not swallow it. The Deinstadt package was delivered to a little girl who handed it to the clergyman's wife.

Mr. Deinstadt suspected that the sender might be seeking to dose him with some sickening mixture and took the box to a chemist. The confectionery in all three boxes contains strychnine. No satisfactory reason for the attempted assassination can be assigned although the city is full of rumors. It is understood that the Protestant clergymen here had been warned against packages of confectionery sent them through the post.

CONYBEARE DEFIANT.

The Well-Known Member of Parliament Sent Back to His Prison Cell.

Dublin, Oct. 5.—While the authorities of the Londonderry jail were going through the formality of releasing Mr. Charles A. V. Conybeare, Member of Parliament for the Camborne division of Cornwall, from confinement, to-day, that gentleman deliberately violated one of the rules of the prison and was immediately taken back to his cell. As Mr. Conybeare has served but little more than two months of a six months' term for offenses against the crimes act in participating in the plan of campaign, it is possible that his defiant conduct will subject him to the necessity of serving out the remainder of his term, notwithstanding the bad condition of his health, which was the reason of his intended release.

MEMBERSHIP OF 15,000.

One Death Every Sixty Hours in the Reading Relief Association.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—The Reading Railroad Relief Association is in a flourishing condition, and both President Corbin and Vice-President McLeod are satisfied with the progress it has made.

Mr. McLeod stated yesterday that the association was organized about a year ago and that it has taken a firm hold upon the men. There are now 15,000 members, or 96 per cent. of the employes of the road. The superintendent states that there is on an average one death every sixty hours, a disablement through accident every eight hours, and a case of sickness every five hours.

LIBERAL ENTHUSIASM.

Sir Vernon Harcourt Predicts a Crash for the Tories.

London, Oct. 5.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Liberal Member of the House of Commons for Derby, addressed a large and enthusiastic gathering of Liberals at Salisbury last night. In the course of his speech he predicted that the next general elections would bring down the present government with a crash, and that the Liberals would come out with a clear majority in the House of Commons of no less than 170.

Sir William assured his hearers that this estimate was the result of a careful and thorough canvass of all the constituencies and that his own confidence in its correctness was absolute.

General Faulkner's Case.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Mr. Davenport, of counsel for Gen. Lester B. Faulkner, who was found guilty at Buffalo of making a false report of the condition of the Dansville Bank, appeared before Judge Wallace here yesterday to apply for a writ of error. Judge Wallace declined to hear the motion for the reason that notice had not been given to the United States District Attorney. The application will probably be renewed next week.

An Epidemic of Diphtheria.

Carbondale, Pa., Oct. 5.—An epidemic of diphtheria has prevailed in this city for the past two weeks and causes much alarm. About seventy-five cases have been reported, many of them proving fatal. In some cases entire families are stricken with the disease. The matter has been reported to the State Board of Health.

Hartranft Declines.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—Ex-Governor Hartranft has written a letter denying the report that he is a candidate for the vacant Pension Commissionership.

SINGLE TAX MEN.

Independent Voters Flock Under One Banner in Boston.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 5.—About fifty persons responded to the call for a public meeting of Single Tax men, Nationalists, Knights of Labor, Trades Unionists, Socialists, Greenbackers and independent voters generally at the Workingmen's Institute last night, to consider what course to pursue in the coming campaign. This subject was freely discussed and both the old parties were severely censured. The conduct of James H. Miller of Worcester in the recent Democratic Convention was applauded. Resolutions were adopted endorsing him as a labor advocate and he was then nominated as a candidate of the various interests represented for Governor. The matter of other nominations on the labor ticket was deferred until next Monday.

PHYSICIANS BAFFLED.

A Young Man Lives Four Months After the Doctors Pronounced His Case Hopeless.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—Maurice Adler, the young man who was shot on June 20th last by Frank K. Ward, the well-known dairyman, is dead. Adler was shot through the neck and the vertebræ cracked. The physicians pronounced the wound fatal and predicted Adler's death in forty-eight hours, but he lived until last night. During this time he has been completely paralyzed below the neck, and his case has been notable for the fact that no similar case is on record.

Ward was released on bail a few days ago, but will be re-arrested and held for murder.

Going from New England to Texas.

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 5.—A largely attended meeting of local and out of town capitalists was held in the Merrimac House last night and the Denison Cotton Manufacturing Company was organized with a capital of $500,000. The company will issue 5,000 shares of stock at $100 per share. They intend to build a mill with 25,000 spindles in Denison. It is claimed that cotton of the best spinning quality can be had down in Texas for $6 per bale less than in New England. The operatives will be selected from the white native population of Texas.

No Break in the Deadlock.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 5.—After a deadlock of three days the Republican Senatorial Convention called to name Senator W. L. Sweet's successor has adjourned to meet here again next Wednesday. Eighty-three ballots have been taken but there are no indications of a break. The last ballot stood: Sweet, 11, Noyes, 10, Priest, 6, Tioga and Seneca voting for Sweet. General William H. Seward who has been talked of as a compromise candidate positively declines to allow his name to be mentioned.

Sleight of Hand Trick.

Boston, Oct. 5.—G. H. Wright, a clerk employed by W. P. B Brooks & Co., furniture dealers, took $500 in a wallet to the Bank of the Republic for deposit yesterday. He laid the wallet on the counter, keeping his hand on it. A stranger asked him where the postoffice was. "Over there," said Wright, turning to point to the building. When he resumed his former position the wallet was gone. The stranger and his confederate had also disappeared.

Poor Jim Committed Suicide.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 5.—James Kelley, a hatter, committed suicide last night by taking prussic acid. He left a message written on his collar saying: "Carrie, you are to blame for what I have done. Please forgive poor Jim." A similar message was found written on the margin of a newspaper. The supposed cause of the suicide was a Miss Greer's refusal to marry him.

A Prominent Rhode Islander Dead.

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct 5.—Hon. Christopher Robinson, for many years prominent in public office and as a lawyer, died at his home in this city last night of heart failure, in his 84th year. He was Attorney-General of Rhode Island in 1854-55, Representative to Congress in 1858-61 and Minister to Paris in 1861-64. For some years he has not practised law but has spent part of his time in travel in Europe.

Will Ask for National Recognition.

New York, Oct. 5.—The Executive Committee of the Legislation Committee of the World's Fair have decided to apply to Congress for incorporation of the organization which is to carry out the enterprise, or for the appointment of a Federal Commission to co-operate with a corporation to be created under the State laws. The object is to obtain national recognition of the project.

Released from Jail.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 5.—Henry G. Hotchkiss, late treasurer of the G. M. Hotchkiss Company of West Haven, who has been in jail over a year awaiting trial on a charge of forgery has been released without trial by order of State Attorney Doolittle. Hotchkiss was charged with forging $8,000 worth of checks on the Yale National Bank.

Money for Johnstown's Sufferers.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—The Citizens Permanent Relief Committee, which has charge of the flood relief fund, voted yesterday to appropriate $10,000 to the Philadelphia Red Cross Society, to be used for the camp hospital at Johnstown, and $100,000 to the State Flood Relief Committee.

Weir Will Fight.

Boston, Oct. 5.—Secretary Fulda, of the California Athletic Club, wired Capt. A. W. Cooke of the "Police News" that the club had decided to offer a purse of $2,250 for a battle in December or January between Ike Weir and Billy Murphy, the Australian, $2,000 to go to the winner and $250 to the loser. Weir expressed his willingness to accept the offer and will soon start for the Pacific coast.

A PRIEST'S DEFIANCE

He Has Only Pitiless Contempt for Intimidaters.

FATHER CRONIN'S INDIGNATION.

He Believes that the Assassins of His Namesake Have Injured Home Rule.

He Demands that the Living Beings Who Killed Dr. Cronin be Hunted from the Face of the Earth—No Faith in the Chicago Police—His Reply to a Threatening Letter.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Since the murder of Dr. Cronin at Chicago in May last friends of Rev. Patrick Cronin of this city, who, as editor of the "Catholic Union," has been particularly severe in his denunciation of the conspirators, have known that he was a marked man.

In the "Catholic Union," issued to-day, Father Cronin editorially announces that he has been in receipt of threatening, letters some anonymous, others signed, though labeled "not for publication." Continuing he says:

"We have not been reared in the cowardly atmosphere of Irish secret society mummery and so are not accustomed to tremble at the threats of "the High-Muck-a-Mucks" of such an orginazation. For over a score of years in good report and evil report we have upheld the stainless banner of Ireland. Does any miserable creature of a murderous conspiracy imagine that we will flinch from or abate one iota of just indignation against those whose fiendish assasinations have almost compassed the ruin of home rule's triumphant agitation?

There are indications that the network of murderous ingenuity which strangled Dr. Cronin has also wound its paralyzing toils about the police department of Chicago. The development of the trials are such as to make one wonder whether this is America and this is the nineteenth century. Men are condemned to death in a secret conclave of irresponsible and thievish scoundrels and the Government of the greatest republic of history is able neither to protect the victims or avenge their slaughter. Are the people of America dreaming, or is this in truth a ghastly raw-head-and-bloody-bones reality? Do the conspirators or their sympathizers, defenders, creatures, tools or relatives imagine that any decent journal will be diplomatic in dealing with such infernalism? We know not what other papers may do, but for our part, in season and out of season, we will raise our voice in demanding that the living villains who wrought Cronin's foul assassination shall be hunted off the face of the earth on which they are a carrion and a pollution. And for those who would endeavor to intimidate us we have only pitiless contempt. This is our reply to the threatening and insulting letter which we have just received. Is it explicit enough? If not we will have something to say still more pointed in answer to future menaces."

KNIGHTS AT WAR.

Detective Furlong Writes a Long Letter to Mr. Powderly.

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—The Knights of Labor war is very bitter, and those engaged in it have allowed themselves to indulge in personalities to a degree that must surely be a cause of future regret for all. The fight was looked upon as a local one so long as the names of Mortimer D. Shaw, William H. Blake and their associates only were used, but the real generals in the war on Powderly are greater and smarter men. Thomas W. Furlong, Jay Gould's chief of detectives during the great Southwestern strike, and who has aspired to be Chief of the United States Secret Service, is, it is said, the real commander of Powderly's enemies, and he has for his adviser Marshall P. McDonald, an attorney who has won a national reputation for his shrewdness and vigor in certain lines of legal practice.

They have come to the front sooner than their original intention, and their warfare is an open one. The opposition of Powderly and the Knights to Furlong's appointment is based on Mr. Furlong's action during the big strike, it being charged that he persecuted members of the order beyond the lines of his official duty. Furlong has written a long letter to Powderly in which he reviews the history of the strike, and asserts that he kept strictly within the confines of his official duty; that instead of 600 arrests less than 200 were made; that of these more than two-thirds resulted in convictions, showing that he did not arrest innocent men. He pays special attention to the arrest of six men for wrecking a train at Wyandotte, Kan. Concerning these he shows that two of them who have sued the railroad company for damages have withdrawn their suits.

CRUSHED BY PIG IRON.

Passengers in a "Jigger" Car Meet With a Terrible Accident.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 5.—As a Caledonia avenue bobtail street car was crossing the West avenue bridge yesterday evening a mass of pig-iron that formed the counterbalance to the bridge and was suspended by a twisted-wire cable fell upon the car. The iron crashed through the roof and seriously wounded four of the fifteen occupants. These two will probably die: Mary Birmingham, aged ten years; John Metzler, aged forty-six years.

The accident was caused by the wire cable breaking, and the canal authorities are denounced for carelessness.

Death of a Wesleyan University Trustee.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 5.—John Lyon Smith, the last of the twenty-one original trustees of Wesleyan Ministry, is dead, aged 93. Born in Edinburgh he came to America at an early age and was engaged in the jewelry business here until a few years ago, when he retired.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The Young Men's Christian Association of Toronto, Canada, receives $10,000 from the will of the late Wm. Gooderham.

—The members of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club will play a match game among themselves at Dunellen on Saturday, Oct. 12.

—The Westfield Baptist Sunday School will celebrate its anniversary to-morrow. An address will be made by Rev. J. Madison Hare of Elizabeth.

—The Y. M. C. A have been able to secure even better terms than last year for mechanical drawing instruments for members of their classes.

—Mr. Alex. Frazee has established an oyster counter in front of Mr. I. Lewis' butcher shop on Park avenue, where bivalves can be had on the half shell.

—Hon. Peter S. Bergen of Somerville will lecture on "The People of Somerset County," in Spencer's Hall, North Plainfield, on Monday evening at half-past seven o'clock.

—A meeting of the Union County Prohibition League will be held in the rooms of the Willard Union in Arcanum Hall, Westfield, on Tuesday evening, October 8, at 8 o'clock.

—Mr. S. B. Joseph will conduct the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., rooms, Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The subject will be based upon 1 Samuel, XII; 24. All men welcome.

—The postponed excursion of the Reform Club to Mauch Chunk will take place on Wednesday next. This will be the last opportunity given this season to visit this favorite resort.

—About the coldest place last night was the North Plainfield Council chamber. And again many of the residents who were present to watch the proceedings, were obliged to stand up.

—Free to all is the vocal training class in the Y. M. C. A., rooms, under the tuition of Mr. E. O. Embury. Men with voices are heartily invited to join next Monday evening at eight o'clock in the rooms.

—The Central Railroad Company of New Jersey has declared its second quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent., payable Nov. 1. A few years ago one dollar of Central Railroad stock could be bought for six cents. It is not so today.

—The Kitchen-Garden School will open on Monday, Oct. 7, in W. C. T. U., rooms, 73 West Front street. Classes will be held as usual on Monday and Tuesday of each week at 4 o'clock. All last year's scholars are requested to be present. The Cooking class will open on Saturday, Oct. 12, at 9 A. M.

—A full line of horses for business or family use, has just been received from the West by Mr. J. H. Fosher, and are on sale at Seguine's stables, next to Miller's Hotel. The stock includes horses for all kinds of carriage, wagon and hack driving. They are offered at very low prices and each horse is guaranteed as represented. Mr. Fosher is an upright and fair dealing man.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. "Doc" Bilyeu this morning performed the difficult feat of painting the flag staff on the Roberts' building on North avenue.

The Rev. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck have leased the furnished house at No. 21 Duer street, North Plainfield, and will begin housekeeping life there early next week.

Mr. George W. F. Randolph with his family, formerly of Peace street, has taken up his residence in the new home he has just completed on West Front street, near Grant avenue.

Miss Annie Flaig, a daughter of Mr. Solomon Flaig of East Front street, returned home Thursday from a four month's trip through Belgium, Germany, Switzerland and France.

Mr. Henry Connett who left Plainfield about nine years ago and located in Illinois, is visiting, with his wife and children, among his old friends here. Mr. Connett is a prosperous farmer in Illinois, having about 240 acres of land under cultivation.

Revealed Truth.

The pheasant beats his woodland drum
In feathery sobriety.
The drummer "beats" his customers
With conscienceless propriety.
While Collier's stock all others beats
In value and variety.

Colonel Thomas for Quartermaster General.

There seems to be quite a contest over the vacant Quartermaster Generalship of the State, and amongst the prominent candidates named are Gen. Stockton; Col. Moore, late Postmaster at Trenton; Col. Donnelly of the 7th Regt., and Colonel Thomas, of the Governor's staff.

Colonels Donnelly and Thomas are both veterans of the late War, and members of the Grand Army. Col. Thomas, it is understood, is supported by many of the leading officers of the New Jersey National Guard, among whom he has many warm friends. Gen. Plume, the Major General of the Guard, and Gen. Steele, commanding the 1st Brigade, are strong associates of his, and it is to be hoped that the Governor will give him the vacant position, as he is a courteous, refined officer, and a gentleman.

He has large business experience, and is in every way fitted for the position. His appointment would be sure to give satisfaction to the National Guard, whose wants he understands better than any of the candidates so far named, and would be a credit to the State. Col. Thomas is a life-long Democrat, and an ardent supporter of Leon Abbett for Governor.

Roselle Wins the Pennant.

Although two matches still remain to be played, the championship tourney of the Central Lawn Tennis League has virtually been decided, and the pennant will float from the quarters of the Roselle Lawn Tennis Club. The unplayed matches are between the Roselle Club's team and that of the West End Lawn Tennis Club of Elizabeth on the latter's courts, and the El Mora Tennis Club's team and that of the Westfield Lawn Tennis Club on the former's courts. The record of this season's matches is as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
Roselle L. T. C.	5	0
El Mora L. T. C.	3	2
West End L. T. C.	2	3
Westfield L. T. C.	0	5

The results of the unplayed matches may tie the West Ends, who won the championship last season, and the El Mora's for second place.

The Spread of Woman's Influence.

The Dunellen W. C. T. U., with their friends, enjoyed a Parlor Meeting at the hospitable home of Mrs. Runyon, one of their members, recently, to which some of the Plainfield ladies had also received a cordial invitation.

The story of the organization of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union—to many so well known—proved to some new, and very interesting, and the results will no doubt be both helpful and encouraging to those who are already at work in Dunellen.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting, and many wishes were expressed that more opportunities might be given to hear and know about the different branches of the work.

Planets for October.

Venus is morning star. She stands first on the October record, not only from her charming appearance in the morning dawn as the sun's bright harbinger, but also from her close conjunction with Mars on the 1st, at 8h. 2m. A. M., when she was 22' South of him. The planets rose on the 1st about 3h. A. M., nearly three hours before the sun, and are seen near each other, though the conjunction takes place in daylight. They must be looked for in the Northeast soon after they are above the horizon. Venus will need no guide to point out her position, but an opera glass will probably be required to bring Mars into the field.

We Do! We Do!

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS: I hope you will advocate in our coming city election a "Citizens' Ticket," and you will find a number of Republicans that will vote it, providing said ticket is composed of practical business men of the city, who will legislate at least abreast of the demands of our city. We need sewerage and water, and need them badly; and need our commonwealth to be run on a more economical basis.

A REPUBLICAN.

Levied on His Household Effects.

Augustus Kinch, a colored man, recently left this city and found employment at Red Bank, storing his household goods here. Thursday Mr. Kinch intended to remove the goods to Red Bank, but Justice Nash hearing of this, intercepted the goods at the freight house, where he read the riot act and placed a levy on the furniture to satisfy a $12 tax bill. The goods are still at the freight house awaiting a settlement.

More Room for the Y's.

The Y's are at work again. A business meeting was held at the close of the parlor devotional meeting of Tuesday last.

The Union needs rooms to carry on its work. The matter was discussed by those present and a committee appointed to complete arrangements. It is expected that the Union will soon be settled in new apartments.

BOROUGH COUNCIL MEETING.

At 8:20 o'clock last evening, Mayor Cooley rapped the Borough Councilmen in order, in regular session. Besides him there were present Messrs Buckle, Bettman, Emmons and Smalley. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, and the usual routine of business was taken up, by the presentation of petitions and communications as follows:

From property owners on Summit avenue, asking for an enforcement of the sidewalk ordinance on that thoroughfare. Referred to the Street Committee.

From Warren Engine Co., No. 1, stating that H. A. Voehl had been duly elected a member of said company. Referred to the Fire, Water and Lamps Committee.

From Chief H. J. Martin, relating instance of recent fire at Peter Strong's residence in "Bull Frog City;" also calling attention to the inadequate supply of water and hose. The chief also reported the necessity for procuring lanterns, and stated that at a regular meeting of the company, the Mayor had sworn in twelve members. The report was filed.

Sundry applications for peddlers' and cartmen's licenses were sent in, referred and granted.

Claims were presented as follows: S. G. Taynor, $6; Thos. MacDonald, 5; S. G. Taynor, 3.25; L. Conrad, 9.30; N. Y., and N. J., Globe Gas Light Co., 269.36; Times Printing and Publishing Co., 5.50; Julius Stahl, 1; H. J. Martin, 50; M. Estil, 2.36; J. H. VanFleet, 2; Wm. N. Pangborn, 13; Jas. K. Arnold, 75; Thos. Mac Donald, 37.50.

The above bills were referred for certification, and subsequently ordered paid.

Mr. Bettman, from the Laws and Ordinance Committee, submitted an amendment to the peace and good morals ordinance, relative to obstructing the streets and sidewalks. It was read by its title, and at a later stage in the proceedings the ordinance was put on its second reading, and laid over for thirty days under the rules.

The Street Committee, through its chairman, Mr. Smalley, reported finishing the scraping of the streets, West of Grove street; he also reported a balance of $86 in the road account. Needed work, he said, was on Green Brook road, Somerset street, Grove street and Clinton avenue. Several crosswalks are yet to be laid.

Mr. Bettman took occasion to say that the street commissioner, acting under instructions from the chairman of the Street Committee, had dug out dirt from in front of his premises on Willow avenue, and had used the dirt for personal gain. He said that a part of the grading there, the expense of which he bore himself, had been dug out, so as to leave a receptacle for water in the gutter.

Street Commissioner Conover replied to Councilman Bettman in terms not altogether complimentary, after which the acceptance of the Street Committee's report was put to a vote. It was received and filed, Mr. Bettman voting "No."

Mr. Buckle, from the Fire, Water and Lamps Committee, stated that the committee had met the night before and looked over the by-laws of Warren Engine Co., No. 1. The committee, he said, recommended their adoption, with a few exceptions. Progress was reported from another member of the same committee.

Mr. Bettman offered a resolution to the effect that the Street Committee relay a certain crosswalk on Orchard place. After another spirited discussion the resolution was lost.

A resolution by Mr. Smalley authorizing the Street Committee to make repairs on Clinton avenue, Somerset street, and in other localities named in the Committee's report, was adopted, the cost not to exceed $100.

At this juncture Mr. Bettman raised a good point, but he was voted down. He said that it was unwise to appropriate more money than the Street Committee had at its disposal, which is about $86.

Mr. Buckle made a motion to the effect that Mr. J. VanDeventer be given the privilege to macadamize Clinton avenue, and that the cost for the same be deducted from Mr. VanDeventer's taxes. Corporation Counsel Reed, who was present, said the proceedings would not be legal, and the matter was dropped.

Mr. Buckel offered a resolution which prevailed, authorizing the street commissioner to notify the property owners along Summit avenue to lay walks in front of their residences.

A resolution, offered by Mr. Smalley, instructing the street commissioner to notify those who are unnecessarily obstructing the streets to desist, was adopted.

The Council then adjourned, and the reporters, whose tables had been in use down stairs, sought the station stove, to thaw out.

A MYSTERY IN FANWOOD.

How Much Did the Rainbow Bazaar Make? Dr. Oliver's Creditable Effort Unsupported.

There is a mystery hanging over Fanwood. It has been hanging over it for two or three weeks, and now, as the days pass and new matters are constantly coming to the front, this mystery is gradually becoming more and more transparent, and is being softly wafted out of sight—as the light Summer cloud that for a time hangs in midair until a few sunbeams dispel it and cause it to utterly fade and vanish away forever. The mystery in question is;

"How much did they make at the Rainbow Bazaar?"

Now that's one thing nobody knows. And of course it is the province of a newspaper to find out the true state of affairs in all difficult and obscure cases. For that reason I made many careful inquries among those persons who were likely to know, to see if I couldn't for the benefit of the public, find the solution of the burning question of the hour, and ascertain "how much they really did make, anyway."

The fair was under the management of Dr. Oliver, and the intention was that it should surpass in splendor of all previous fairs, fetes, festivals and entertainments of every kind. Dr. Oliver has had charge of other large fairs both in this country and in Europe, and they have always been great successes. But the Plainfield Episcopalians who promised to help this fair did not keep their promises.

Right here it may be well to say a word about the unusual interest displayed in the result of the fair, because some have appeared as if they were offended at the numerous inquiries which have been made on the subject, one gentleman going so far as to say that such questions were impertinent, and that it was nobody's business how much they made anyway. Now this is a dreadful mistake. That fair was advertised far and wide as a project for the benefit of the organ fund of the Episcopal church. Therefore when the generous public, or such portion thereof as attended the fair, went to the building and laid out divers sums of money, they did so upon the express understanding that they were helping along the organ, and now they naturally want to know if they spent enough to be of any use; because if they didn't they would probably be very glad to contribute enough more to make up for it. And how in the world are they going to know whether or not they have contributed enough unless they can tell "how much they really did make, anyway?"

For my own part, I have an additional reason for desiring accurate information on this head. When the new organ comes (accent on the when) they are going to have a paid organist, and I happen to know of a very deserving young lady—an Italian—who is a person of rank but has been obliged by political troubles to earn her own living, and she might be induced to take the position.

All of which goes to show that our inquiry is a very natural and proper one.

But with one exception every single person of whom I enquired said "I don't know." And as long as people don't know, the organ and the organist and the soprano singer will have to wait.

A red headed man told me that they hadn't made anything at all, but on the contrary had lost something. For three reasons, however, I doubt the truth of this report.

First, the man didn't know, he only thought.

Second, he may have been prejudiced, because he had said a few weeks ago that he thought it was not only foolish but wrong to spend money on a new organ while the church was struggling under a heavy debt, and to divert the people's efforts from the actual pressing needs of the church to something that, to say the least, could wait.

Third, he must have been prejudiced, because he said at the time that it was a piece of preposterous folly to have the fair at Plainfield. "Haven't Plainfield people got enough enterprises to look after already," he used to say, "what do they care about a Scotch Plains organ fund," etc., etc.

So for these reasons I think he may have been mistaken, or have judged hastily.

Still he was the only one that seemed to know anything definite.

Under these circumstances, I am afraid that we will never know "how much they really did make, anyway."

Grapes for Weakly and Sickly Persons.

Many persons who are weak and sickly are at a loss to know what will restore their health. Speer's Port Wine and Unfermented Grape Juice are the best restoratives known. It is especially recommended for its purity, exquisite flavor and healthy properties. Medical men certify to its valuable medical powers and blood-making property. Mr. Speer has been for years engaged in preparing and perfecting this wine, and it requires a four years' process before it is fit for market.—N. Y. Baptist.

PRISONERS SENTENCED.

Cases Disposed of by the United States Court at Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 5.—In the U. S. District Court the following cases have been disposed of since yesterday.

Michael Craft, of Schenectady, for robbing mails was sentenced to the Erie county penitentiary for three years.

Geo. W. Marks, postmaster at Blood's charged with embezzlement and held in $1,500.

Joseph Gainer, of Cohoes, for illegal voting, got two months in Albany jail.

Herbert Lawrence, of Schaghticoke, for illegal voting got three months in Rensselaer county jail.

Edward Joyce, of Addison, for violation of internal revenue law got four months in Steuben county jail.

John Green, of Ballston Spa, for burglary got three years in Elmira reformatory.

John Phillips, of Gloversville, for depositing an obscene letter in the mails was fined $100.

TO TRENTON PRISON.

Eva Hamilton and Baby Beatrice Disposed of for the Present.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 5.—Baby Beatrice, the alleged daughter of Robert Ray and Eva Hamilton, has been finally disposed of. Mrs. Rupp will become the custodian for an indefinite period, or until Mrs. Hamilton is released from the Trenton Penitentiary. These were the arrangements made by Mrs. Hamilton and her attorney, Captain Perry, last evening. The child was taken to Philadelphia to-day.

Mrs. Hamilton was taken to Trenton this afternoon by Sheriff Johnson. She is pale and very weak, owing to the fact that she has now ceased the use of morphine and quinine entirely, and is nervous and hysterical.

Montana's Legislature in Doubt.

HELENA, Oct. 5.—There has been no material change in the situation in Montana to-day. The Republicans still claim the Legislature on joint ballot by three, while the Democrats claim it by seven. The election of Toole is admitted by the Republicans, so far as returns show, but they claim that full returns will give the office to Power. The contest for the control of the Legislature promises to be very bitter.

THE FINAL STRUGGLE

To-Day's Game Decides the Contest for the Pennant.

THE GIANTS FEEL CONFIDENT.

Boston's Great Club Will Make a Terrible Fight for the Flag.

Indianapolis Plays Another Fine Game with Washington—The Chicagos Take Third Position by Defeating the Philadelphias—Cincinnati and Columbus Win the Association Games.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The last games of the National League season will be played to-day. Never before has the race been so interesting. New York is two points ahead of Boston for the pennant, Chicago four points ahead of Philadelphia for third place and Cleveland is four points ahead of Pittsburg for fifth place. If the weather is fair to-day's games will settle the position of the clubs named. If both New York and Boston win the flag will come to New York.

Only one game will be played in Pittsburg and in Cleveland to-day, as neither club has anything to gain by playing two. Clarkson will pitch for Boston and Keefe, for New York.

Into Third Position.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The Chicago team without Anson stepped into third place yesterday. It was a great game from start to finish. Hutchison twirled a superb game and so did Buffington till the sixth inning, when he grew erratic and gave two men bases on balls, which, with two hits, won Chicago the game. Gleason went into the box in the seventh inning. In the eighth a base on balls and a hit gave the Colts another tally. Only two men got as far as third in the contest for the Phillies.

Anson and Schriver Injured.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Capt. Anson and Schriver went after a ball high over the home plate just before the game yesterday. They met with great force and both fell. Schriver got up and clapped his hand over a two-inch gash over his right eye made by Anson'schin, but Anson lay in a dazed condition while the blood flowed from a gapping wound extending from his mouth down on his neck. He recovered slowly, and was examined by a surgeon, who said no bones were broken. Then Burns and Williamson led him to the clubhouse, and later a doctor closed the wound with twelve stitches. The gash over Schriver's eye was also sewed up, and he harm except a very black eye will come to him. The accident delayed the game fifteen minutes.

Pleased With Blaine's Speech.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 5.—Secretary Blaine's address, at the opening of the International Congress of American Nations, has been well received here. Comments heard on the streets to-day place it as the strongest utterance of its class ever enunciated by any American. The address was read to President Diaz about midnight last night, and it is said to have impressed him very favorably.

A Vindication for McQuade.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The friends and neighbors of ex-Alderman Arthur J. McQuade have a movement under way to run him for another term in the Common Council as the representative of the Fourteenth Assembly district. They regard a campaign of vindication as his due, and propose to give it to him, though Mr. McQuade is not anxious to run.

Natalie to Establish a Court.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—It is understood that ex-Queen Natalie intends to build a mansion in Belgrade and establish a court there

THE TRIENNIAL CONVENTION.

Episcopal Missionaries Give Glowing Accounts of their Work.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The question of making the reading of the Nicene Creed obligatory on the fourth great Christain festival days is still an open question for the members of the Episcopal Convention to act upon. The exercises of yesterday were interesting because of the reports which were given of their stewardship by the leading missionaries, both in this and foreign countries.

They were allowed but twenty minutes each, and as a consequence each minute was studded with a fact that made the stories graphic. In the Western States the growth of the Church was phenomenal, while in the benighted East the progress had been marked and the effects lasting. With scarcely an exception the missionaries expressed their preferences for unmarried men for mission work, as being less encumbered and most fitted for roughing it than their more impeded though possibly happier married brethren. Rev. Dr. Dix presided at the session. The Canadian delegation was accorded seats in the chancel.

MINISTERIAL SYMPATHY.

Methodist Clergymen Believe that Corp. Tanner is the Victim of Politicians.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 5.—The Veterans' Association of Ministers of the Genesee Methodist Conference in session here adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That we have heard with sincere regret of the resignation of the Commissioner of Pensions, Corporal James Tanner, forced from him by the influence of politicians, and that we deprecate the subornation of the Pension Department to political wire-pullers so that it cannot be administered by a man who, like Corporal Tanner, has the true interests of the soldiers at heart, and we call upon the President of the United States to place the granting of pensions in the hands of those who will administer it in the interest of the whole country, and to bestow upon Corporal Tanner such recognition as befits a man who, in every position, has shown himself the true friend of the soldier.

Archbishop Corrigan to Visit Rome.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Archbishop Corrigan, it is said, will soon sail for Rome to confer with the Pope in regard to the Ecclesiastical Tribunal recently appointed by the Pope to try local ecclesiastical cases. Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Ryan and Archbishop Corrigan compose this tribunal. It is reported that the latter, for personal reasons, does not care to serve on the tribunal, and that he is going to Rome in response to a request from the Vatican.

A Tramp With a Bank Account.

BATH, N. Y., Oct. 5.—David Brown, a miserly tramp, was found dead yesterday in the yard of a residence here. Coroner Sutton impaneled a jury which adjourned until Monday. They found in the dead man's pockets certificates of deposit in different banks to the amount of $4,000. Banker Halleck says Brown had about $600 deposited with him and that he called on Monday and wanted 75 cents but did not want it deducted from his account. Brown died from exposure and starvation, being too penurious to buy food. It is said he has relatives in Warsaw.

An Insane Convict's Murderous Work.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 5.—At the Maryland penitentiary yesterday Richard Wells, a negro convict, suddenly became violently insane while at work in the stone yard, and seizing a heavy scantling commenced to pound everybody around him. He struck Isaac Wheeler, another negro, two frightful blows on the head, inflicting injuries from which he will die. He then ran upon the fifth tier of the prison and dashed himself down to the flags. His skull was fractured and he sustained other severe injuries. Wells, like his victim, can not recover.

Cabinet Meetings Resumed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The regular meetings of the Cabinet were resumed yesterday afternoon, all the members being present with the exception of Secretary Proctor. It is understood that the vacancy in the pension office was one of the topics discussed. Prior to the meeting, the President was closeted for a long time with Senator Hiscock, of New York. His only other visitors were ex-Representative Weber, of New York, and Representatives Burrows, of Michigan, and Sherman, of New York.

Boston's Fine Play.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 5.—Boston and Pittsburg played yesterday the most exciting game seen on these grounds for many a day. Both teams played like demons up to the last minute, and then it required three singles and an error to get a man across the plate. Both pitchers did magnificent work, but the grand fielding of both clubs, especially that of Nash and Johnson, was the feature of the game.

President Gilman's Leave of Absence.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 5.—The trustees of Johns Hopkins University last night granted leave of absence for the winter to President Gilman. Mr. Gilman will spend the winter in Europe, and when he returns will again take charge of Johns Hopkins University. This denies all rumors that Mr. Gilman intends severing his connection with the university.

Miss Conklin Acquitted.

BORDENTOWN, N. J., Oct. 5.—Miss Henrietta Conklin, who was accused of concealing the birth of a child and hiding the dead body in a chest in the garret of a relative at Florence, a few miles from here, in February last, was acquitted of the charge in the Burlington County Court yesterday.

A Lord Presides at an Early Meeting.

LONDON, Oct. 5. — Lord Roseberry presided at a meeting of 2,000 London tramway and omnibus employes at two o'clock this morning. A union was formed with the object of forcing from their employers a concession of shorter hours and more equitable regulations.

James Faulkner Arrested.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 5.—James Faulkner, president of the wrecked Danville Bank, was brought here last evening from Buffalo and turned over to the custody of Sheriff Hodgson.

Bishop Grace Made an Archbishop.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 5.—Right Rev Thomas L. Grace, of this city, who was the second Bishop of St. Paul, has been appointed Archbishop. So says a cablegram from Rome received to-day.

DECEIVING THE ENEMY.

How a Pair of Red Foxes Kept a Dog Away from Their Young.

In the spring of 1888 a pair of red foxes took up their home on a Dakota farm. They dug several holes on a knoll in a wheat field, and soon after four "kits," or young foxes, arrived. Every day, while harrowing and sowing wheat in the field, says the farmer, I saw the two old foxes lying on the little mound in front of their home. The kits rolled about in the sun, played with the bushy tails of their parents, and enjoyed themselves apparently as much as a group of kittens.

One morning a neighbor came to work in a field adjoining, bringing with him a dog, and the dog, with all the curiosity of his kind, soon began the investigation of both farms.

He was still a long distance from the fox-den when I heard a sharp, warning bark and saw the kits disappear. As I looked the mother-fox lay on the mound, her ears erect, her nose on the ground, all attention. The father of the family, with his tail swinging in the wind trotted toward the dog.

Can he intend to attack him, I wondered. I had never heard of such a thing, and the dog, though not a large one, was still larger than the fox. But reynard knew his business better than I. He approached the intruder until the dog saw him, when both stopped for an instant, and then the dog gave chase. The fox, with a bark of defiance, turned and ran in a direction away from his home.

At first the dog seemed to gain rapidly upon the fox, but I watched them for nearly a mile before they disappeared in the long prarie-grass and concluded that the fox was able to keep out of the other's way.

In about an hour the dog returned from a fruitless chase, and for a time he contentedly followed his master. Then he began prowling around again.

All this time the mother-fox had remained on the mound, a picture of quiet vigilance; but now, as the dog ventured near, she rose and trotted toward him, and the dog was soon chasing her over the prairie. Hardly had they disappeared when the mate trotted back from some hiding place and took the position vacated by his mate. The dog returned after a time unsuccessful as before.

During the day he was again and again tempted to a chase, first by the male and then by the female, and while the one kept him busy, the other watched over the young, who did not show themselves after the first sight of the dog.

It is hard to say which we admire most; the bravery of the pair in challenging the dog to a race that would have proved fatal had he caught them, their ingenuity in taking turns so that each might be fresh when chased, their skill in leading him away from their young, or their cleverness in throwing him off their track when far enough away.

"MUGGY"

Not a Slang Word as Many People Now Suppose.

People who imagine that they are talking slang when they call such a day as this a "muggy" day, and put the words as they often do, in a sort of vocal quotation marks, as if they felt philologically a little wicked in using it, may be reassured when they are told what the history of the word really is. The listener asked several people this morning what the word came from. One thought that it had its origin in the fact that, on such a day as this, drops of perspiration always stood on the outside of mugs that are full of water. The listener himself, having noted that on such a day the air always smells of root-beer as one passes through the street, had come to the conclusion that the word had been communicated to the language from the mugs of root-beer that have from time immemorial pervaded human life on such days. But how long people will sometimes speculate over the meaning or derivation of a word before they look it up in the dictionary? "Muggy," as Webster straightway informs us, is not a slang word at all, but a very old English word indeed—older even than the English language itself. It comes from the provincial English mug, meaning fog, which is the same as the Welsh mwg, smoke (think how much worse a mwggy day must be than even a muggy one!) and the Icelandic mugga, a mist. It is allied with the word moky, which means about the same thing, and also with the word murky. Looking up this etymology, one is confronted with the circumstance that the wretched slang word "moke," applied to a black man, may be good English after all, and mean simply a foggy, smoky person.

SINGING IN FEAR.

Unusual Manifestation of Terror Given By a Famous Woman.

The vision of sudden death is often accompanied by a view of the past life, not as a procession of events, but rather as an instantaneous picture, or as a reflection in a mirrow. During a severe storm at sea Mrs. Frances Kemble passed through an experience of this kind, which she describes in her "Records of Later Days."

The terrific gale lasted nearly four days, during which time she and her nurse, the only women on board the ship, were prisoners in the dark cabin, the skylights of which had been closely covered to protect the passengers from the seas that broke over the deck.

At the height of the storm the nurse passed the night in prayers, without once rising from her knees. Mrs. Kemble sat on the cabin floor and saw plainly the whole of her past life. With the vision came an almost despairing sense of loss and waste. Then followed a keen survey of her religious belief, and that seemed to her her only important concern.

This spiritual mood, during which there was the utmost tension of mind and body, gave way to an exhaustion, which she could only relieve by singing every song she could recollect—English, Scotch, Irish, Welsh, French, German, Italian and Spanish. She sang them loudly, one after another, in rapid succession. Not till the day broke and the sense of danger passed away with the going down of the gale did she cease her singing.

When the subsiding of the storm allowed the captain to leave the deck, he came into the cabin and congratulated Mrs. Kemble upon her courage.

"At the very height of the storm, I am told, you were heard singing away like a bird."

Mrs. Kemble had some difficulty in making the captain see that he had drawn a mistaken inference from her action, and that fear instead of courage had provoked her to sing.

It is always a sign of poverty of mind where men are ever aiming to appear great, for they who are really great never seem to know it.

"FASHIONS" IN FUNERALS.

Mourners Who Are Bound Like Slaves to Tyrannical Customs.

A fashionable undertaker in Philadelphia is responsible for the following: "As a rule, at least one funeral results from every large one."

He was speaking of the growing tendency toward more simple and common sense methods of burying the dead. It really begins to look as if advice, persuasion and ridicule on this point had finally had its effect and that the swell funeral was coming to be a thing of the past. In what goes by the name of society, there are but few recognized leaders, and until these authorities speak or act, the great, uncertain, timorous mass will throw away its money in needless expenses, make itself uncomfortable and stamp out its own best judgment. When fashion orders a costly casket and banks the house and the church with flowers, the people who dare not choose for themselves must provide as best they may. When fashion decrees voluminous mourning, delicate women shorten their lives under the folds of poisonous crape.

The degrees of fashion, regardless of convenience, comfort and cost, are nowhere more tyrannical than in the matter of a funeral, and the slavish acceptance of dismal and unhealthful mourning garments has been carried to the last degree of absurdity and extravagance. A fashionable wedding, a magnificent and costly feast have something of a consistency of themselvts to recommend them. These are legitimate occasions for display, but the getting even with one's neighbors over the dead body of a relative is a sorry spectacle. We get furtherest away from savagery when we do not need to proclaim our merits with war paint or a scalp-belt. The wife of a Sioux chief would feel humiliated beyond expression were she to find her best deerskin gown had but half the elk teeth, porcupine quills and head ornaments of a common camp squaw.

The pride which animates the leader of fashionable Sioux society is precisely of the quality that has converted what should be in civilized life a quiet, modest, sacred ceremony into a gorgeous and stupid show. The civilized idea is of barbarous origin. Death is still the occasion of great display among savage tribes, but the ostentatious funeral of a Sioux is accorded in honor of the dead. It is not an advertisement for the living. Now that fashionable people are reaching a plane of good taste and common sense in such matters, plainer people may feel free to lay their beloved away without warring with their head and heart and purse over the details.

A DISTINGUISHING MARK.

A Black Stripe Down the Back When Negro Blood Exists.

"In several instances I saw slave children sold whose veins contained so much of their master's blood that their skins were without a tinge of the African color except in the invariable stripe down the spinal column. Such things as that were so plainly and horribly wrong that I needed no teaching in order to know it. Between selling human beings who were partly white and those entirely black I some way couldn't find any line where the wrong ended and the right began.

"What do I mean by the stripe down the spinal column? Why, I supposed you knew the presence of African blood in any person, no matter how slight the proportion, can be instantly detected by a dark line along the spine. Even an octoroon, with complexion and features pure Caucasion, invariably has this line of dark. It is a never-failing proof of mixed blood. The mark is not always black, but is always considerably darker than the rest of the surface of the body.

"Since you didn't know that, perahps you don't know that a negro child at its birth is as light-colored as a white one. You wouldn't notice any difference in the color at all. In three or four hours after birth the skin begins to turn dark, and in a short time becomes as black as the child is destined to be during its life."

FOR SHORT PEOPLE.

An Ingenious Device That Adds Several Inches to Their Height.

Hollow cheeks and wrinkles are awkward things, writes Miss Mantalini in the Pall Mall Budget. Ladies do their best to prevent their appearance. The clever ones seem to be able to ward off the wrinkles, but hollow cheeks completely baffle their skill. A gentleman who lives at Islington is providing ladies whose cheeks are hollow with small pads. These pads are attached to natural or artificial teeth by means of tiny gold springs. The price of a face pad is a trifle heavy, like every thing else guaranteed to improve the personal appearance. A pair of pads costs something like £5. The maker of the face pad said that gentlemen as well as ladies are wearing them. One gentleman had never looked any thing but cadaverous until he took to the pad. Now his cheeks are rounded like a cherub's, and he looks ten years younger. The curious thing about the face pad is its inflexibility. It is made of the same material as the case of a set of artificial teeth.

There is no need for the small person to be overlooked on account of want of stature. It is possible to add as much as four inches on to your stature by the Cremerian boot, designed for the elevation of the lowly. The invention is an odd and ingenious one. Instead of tacking six inches on to a person's heels, a pair of entirely false feet made of cork are put into the shoes. When the wearer gets into them he or she is raised according to the inches of cork. Of course, in this invention the original foot is made to combine with the cork one under the leather in such a manner that the line of demarkation is not perceptible. The size of the foot is sacrificed, it is true, and a larger boot is necessary with the cork "elevator" than would be the case naturally; but fancy having four inches added to your height!

Of course, even with those who are most ambitious to increase their height, it is impossible that they should add several inches in a day. So they are advised by Mr. Cremer to grow half an inch at a time. Even this would be sure to occasion a little surprise, for some of your acquaintances are bound to notice such untoward growth. But the invention offers a large field for speculation. You can take off your shoes with these "elevators" and no one be any the wiser, for the cork additions to the feet are hidden in the stockings. The principle is applied to the clubfooted with great ingenuity, for instead of a huge, ugly cork sole a cork foot is made, on the top of which the deformed foot rests. So when the trouser or the skirt falls over the concealed foot the cork one, clothed in the same size as the perfect foot and the toes imitated with pads and springs, does not betray itself. People with flat feet may have their instep raised, and those who only desire a slight elevation can have it put in the heels of their shoes, only, instead of being put outside, the cork is put inside the boot.

INQUISITIVE SELECTMEN.

They Pry Into a Gentleman's Business and Have Their Town Slandered.

A New York astronomer sometime since visited North Adams, Mass., for a vacation and to study the stars. He slept day times and prospected nights. Some of the citizens became alarmed, thinking he might be a New York burglar. At length the Selectmen of the town determined to interview the stranger. The landlord of the hotel objected, saying that he seemed a perfect gentleman, but the Selectmen insisted, and at length he went to the gentleman's room, waked him up, and told him the Selectmen insisted on seeing him. "Show them up," said the gentleman. The Selectmen came up and the Chairman said they would like to know what he was about and why he had come to North Adams. "I have not the slightest objection to tell you," said the gentleman. "The fact is that I committed an offense in New York city and was sentenced by the Court to six months in Sing Sing Prison or two weeks in North Adams. I thought I would rather take North Adams, but having been here a week, have changed my mind and concluded to go back to New York to-morrow and tell them I will take six months in Sing Sing."

AN ARMY OF KNIGHTS

Washington Crowded for the Triennial Conclave.

TO-MORROW'S GRAND PARADE.

To be Reviewed by President Harrison and His Cabinet.

Over 30,000 Knights Templar Now at the National Capital—The Streets in Gala Attire and the Decorations the Richest Ever Seen in Washington—Programme for the Week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Knights Templar from all sections of the Union are here to-day to attend the twenty-fourth triennial conclave of the Grand Encampment of the order in the United States. The encampment will continue from to-day until the 12th inst., and promises to be one of the most successful ever held.

Although Washington people are accustomed to seeing brilliant assemblages, they will probably never forget this week, for the Sir Knights, with their grand parade, drills, festivals and merrymaking, will undoubtedly keep the city in a tremor of pleasurable excitement until they depart. According to all estimates nearly 30,000 members of the order are expected to be present. They will be under the supreme command of Most Eminent Grand Master General Charles Roome of New York.

The general aspect of the city indicates an occasion of unusual importance. Many streets are in gala attire and the decorations used are probably the richest ever seen here. Banners of welcome are stretched across the streets, while everywhere is seen the "Maltese Cross."

For the past twenty-four hours every arriving train came laden with plumed Knights to attend the great conclave, while the sound of music and the marching of hosts in beautiful uniforms has enlivened the air and presented pleasing sights in the principal streets all through the day and late last night. Scores of commanderies, many of the members accompanied by their wives; families and invited guests, have already arrived, and are safely and comfortably quartered at various hotels and boarding houses.

The programme prepared for the Sir Knights during their stay in Washington is very elaborate. The arriving Knights to-day were received by the local commanderies already here and escorted to their hotels. This evening the local commanderies, consisting of Washington, Columbia, Potomac and DeMoloy, will treat the visitors to receptions in their respective headquarters. These meeting places will be open day and night for the accommodation of visitors during the week.

To-morrow the entire encampment will parade. This will undoubtedly be the greatest event of the week. The parade will take place in the forenoon and will be reviewed by President Harrison and his Cabinet from a stand in front of the Executive Mansion upon Pennsylvania avenue. The procession will be divided into twelve divisions under the supervision of Eminent Sir Myron M. Parker, chief marshal. He will be assisted by Sir Knight Harrison Dingman, chief of staff, and 72 aids.

The first division will be composed of the Washington commanderies, which will act as an escort to Most Eminent Grand Master General Charles Roome and his personal staff. The second division will be composed of Rhode Island and Massachusetts commanderies, and then will follow the third division, in which all the commanderies of this State will march. The different commanderies will parade in the order of their numbers. This will make Palestine Commandery the fifth in its division.

Following these divisions will march the commanderies of the different states in their own sections. There will be over two hundred and fifty commanderies in line and as many more representatives of different lodges which were not able to attend in a body.

Immediately after the dismissal of the parade, which will occur after it has passed the reviewing stand, the Knights and their ladies will go on an excursion down the Potomac. In the evening nearly one thousand wheelmen will parade with lanterns through the principal streets for the edification of the Knights.

Wednesday's festivities will commence at 10 o'clock at the baseball grounds, where there will be an exhibition drill by visiting commanderies and a drill corps composed of twenty-seven boys in full Templars' uniform. These boys are the children of deceased Knights, who are being cared for by the order at the Masonic Home in Louisville. There will be several excursions in the afternoon, and in the evening the Sir Knights and their ladies will pay their respects to President Harrison.

Excursions out of the city and visits to its principal sights will keep the visitors busy Thursday morning. In the afternoon many of them will attend the barbecue at the Washington Schuetzen Verein Park. In the evening a reception will be given the visitors by Mrs. John a Logan at Calumet Place, Washington Heights. General Logan was a member of the Chevalier Bayard Commandery of Chicago.

Friday will be another visiting day and will be wound up in the evening by a banquet to the Grand Encampment of the United States at Willard's. This will be the only event of the week in which the ladies who accompany the visitors cannot participate. A good many of the visitors will return home on Saturday and Monday.

Molders Demand More Pay.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—The molders in all of the shops in this city and Allegheny made a formal demand this morning for an increase in wages of from 75 cents to $1 a day. Three weeks will be given the firms to consider and sign the scale. About nine hundred molders are affected by the movement.

EVA'S PRISON LIFE.

She is Constantly Moaning and is Already Regarded as an Object of Pity.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Eva Hamilton, who arrived at the State Prison Saturday to begin her two years' sentence, spent her first Sunday in a penal institution. She was locked up in the female department with the other women convicts at the usual hour Saturday night, and was not allowed out of her cell until 6 o'clock yesterday morning, when she took breakfast.

Mrs. Hamilton, whose eyes were swollen from weeping, had evidently passed a sleepless night. Attired in her prison garb, she looked anything but the gay woman she was at Atlantic City during the summer. Her nerves appeared to be unstrung. One of the night matrons said she heard her moaning during the night.

Although the interesting convict is already regarded as an object of pity, she will be treated like other female convicts. She ate sparingly of the prison fare and seemed to regard it as the great hardship of her convict life.

The usual Sunday services were held in the chapel, but Mrs. Hamilton manifested little or no interest in them, and kept aloof from the other female convicts even during the devotional exercises. It is believed that she will be assigned to the laundry department.

A DELICATE QUESTION.

The Race Problem to Come Before the Congregational National Council.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Next Wednesday the National Council of the Congregational Churches of the country will begin its triennial session in Worcester, Mass.

One of the most important questions to come before it involves the race issue. The Georgia Congregational Association, which has been reorganized as the Congregational Body of Georgia, is composed of fifteen small colored churches. The Congregational Methodist Conference of Georgia, an older body than the former, and composed of white churches, has applied for recognition, and its delegates will seek admission to the Council.

The delicate question for the Council to decide is whether it shall recognize two bodies of Congregational churches in one State, when the only reason for doing so is that they are composed of people of different races.

Struck by a Blind Boy.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 7.—Frank Gross and Julius Duerr, brothers-in-law, living at 140 Throop avenue, came to blows yesterday during a family quarrel. Frank Gross, Jr., aged 16, a blind boy, who was home on a visit from a New York asylum, became excited, and picking up a plate, hurled it in the direction of the noise. The plate struck Duerr, fracturing his skull. Death will probably result. The blind boy was taken by his father back to the Institute and Duerr was sent to a hospital.

The White Mountain Season Closed.

FABYAN HOUSE, N. H., Oct. 7.—The last of the White Mountain hotels has closed and all express trains are discontinued. The season, financially speaking, has been more successful than that of last year, and it is estimated that fully $2,000,000 has been paid to hotel keepers in the White Mountains this year. The high mountains are covered with snow, which will probably remain until next July. There was a heavy frost all through this region yesterday morning.

A Lawyer Tries to Hang Himself.

BATH, N. Y., Oct. 7.—A. Hadden, a prominent lawyer of Corning, went to his cottage on Lake Kenka yesterday and tried to hang himself in his boat house. He was discovered before life was extinct and cut down. He has been for years in poor health. Lately he has been in a depressed state of mind on account of business cares. Dr. Nichols has no hope of his recovery.

A Leader of the Maryland Bar Dead.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Oct. 7.—Daniel M. Henry, Jr., died yesterday, aged 42 years. Mr. Henry was the leader of the bar of Dorchester County and was State's attorney a few years ago. He was the grandson of the first United States Senator from Maryland.

Democratic Majority in Montana.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 7.—Returns received to-day give a Democratic majority of seven on joint ballot in the Legislature. In several counties the vote is very close, but it is not believed the official canvass will make any material change. Carter, (Rep.) for Congress, has a majority of about 1,200.

The Swiss Government Apologizes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The Swiss Government, it is understood, has made an apology to Minister Washburn for an indignity offered to Mr. Coates, of Baltimore, while travelling in Switzerland this summer. The indignity consisted of the arrest of Mr. Coates by mistake.

Racing To-Day at Ivy City.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—The National Jockey Club opens their gates this afternoon at Ivy City track when the fall meeting begins. The outlook is for as successful a fall meeting as the club ever had.

Bad Charge Against a Drummer.

MALDEN, Mass., Oct. 7.—James C. Gage, a drummer of Woburn, was arrested here yesterday, charged with committing rape upon a young woman of this city. The victim of the crime is seriously ill.

Joint Political Discussions.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—The Democratic State Committee has invited the Republican State Committee to unite in holding one or more public meetings at which the respective condidates for Governor shall jointly discuss the questions of the campaign.

LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

The Emblem of Victory Secured by the New Yorks.

A GRAND AND EXCITING FINISH.

The Struggle Was Unprecedented in the Annals of the National Game.

Boston Defeated But Not Disgraced—The Club Made a Noble Fight—Triumphal Return of the Giants to the Metropolis. Hot Contest for the Association Pennant. St. Louis Still Has a Chance.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The National League championship season of 1889 is a thing of the past, and to the joy of New Yorkers their favorites came in at the front. The scores of the games played in the wind-up were: New York 6, Cleveland 3; Pittsburg 6, Boston 1; Chicago 3, Philadelphia 2; Indianapolis 15, Washington 6.

Never before has the last game had to be played before victory was assured, and it will probably be years before such a spectacle is witnessed again. The Bostons are beaten, but not disgraced; their determined play during the last month has astonished every one. If Clarkson had had another good pitcher to relieve him, the result would have been different perhaps.

Balm for the Bostons.

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—In consideration of the good work done by the Boston players, the Boston "Globe" has decided to give them the $1,000 which the "Globe" offered as an inducement to the Boston players to win the pennant.

Return of the Giants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—All the players of the New York Baseball Club, with the exception of Richardson, arrived from Cleveland last evening on the 5:30 train over the Erie road. Richardson failed to catch the train and will arrive to-day. A large crowd was at the station to greet the club, and the reception was so enthusiastic that the players were roughly handled. On their arrival in New York the players separated and went each to his home or hotel.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

The Positions of the League Teams in the Race Just Finished.

Below is given a record of the League teams for the season of 1889:

	Won.	Lost.	Per Cent.
New York	83	43	.659
Boston	83	45	.648
Chicago	67	65	.508
Philadelphia	63	64	.496
Cleveland	61	71	.462
Pittsburg	61	72	.459
Indianapolis	59	75	.432
Washington	41	83	.331

A glance at the above figures will show that the close race for leadership between Boston and New York was not any more interesting than that between Chicago and Philadelphia for third place, and not as close as the contest between Pittsburg and Cleveland for fifth position. Taken all in all, the season just closed was quite remarkable for its exciting finishes.

THE ASSOCIATION RACE.

St. Louis Still Has a Chance to Win the Pennant.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 7.—The Association race is now in a very interesting stage. The Brooklyns are by no means sure of it. They now have a lead of 18 points over the St. Louis team—a clear lead of three games. The Brooklyns have seven scheduled games to play, four with Baltimore and three with Columbus, and all of them must be played away from home. St. Louis has six scheduled games to play, three each with Louisville and Cincinnati. Brooklyn has three postponed and tie games. One of these with St. Louis cannot be played. One with the Athletics and one with Columbus may be played. St. Louis has five postponed and tie games. Four of these can be played off. Three are with the Athletics and one with Cincinnati. Therefore Brooklyn can play ten games and St. Louis eleven games. To win the pennant Brooklyn need win only when St. Louis does. The Grooms can afford to lose about two games out of their ten and yet win. The record to date follows:

Brooklyn	88	42	.677
St. Louis	85	44	.659
Athletic	71	55	.563
Baltimore	69	58	.543
Cincinnati	71	61	.538
Columbus	56	76	.424
Kansas City	53	78	.405
Louisville	26	105	.198

He Was Attacked by a Wildcat.

LEBANON, Pa., Oct. 7.—Robert Friend, a farmer living on the Union canal near Meyerstown, six miles east of this place was attacked on Saturday by a wildcat, and nearly lost his life in the encounter. He was on his way from the field, when, passing under a tree which projected over the road, he spied a big wildcat seated on one of the lower boughs. Before he could get out of the way the animal dropped on him, uttering as it sprang forward a succession of dreadful yells. The beast weighed perhaps 40 pounds.

Preparing for the Big Dock Strike.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 7.—The dock laborers have formed a union for mutual protection. When the organization is on a strong financial basis and in good working order a strike will be inaugurated.

—The Y's have taken the two front offices in Mr. Edward Love's new building on North avenue, corner of Peace street.

—Manager Runyon of the Telephone Company, states that hereafter the main office will call up its subscribers with three short rings.

—Don't forget the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-night at 8 o'clock. There will be good singing and an interesting service throughout.

—Hon. Peter S. Bergen of Somerville will lecture on "The People of Somerset County," in Spencer's Hall, North Plainfield, this evening at half-past seven o'clock.

—The fourth series of the Home Building and Loan Association will be opened at the W. C. T. U. rooms, on Monday evening, Oct. 21. See advertisement in another column.

—Officer Giesse on Friday begun the erection of a Queen Anne dwelling for himself on Orange street. Mr. Israel Bayard received the contract for the carpenter work. Mr. Giesse will also erect a barn.

—A Prohibition meeting is called to be held at the W. C. T. U. rooms, 73 West Front street, on Tuesday the 8th inst., at 7:30 o'clock, P. M., for reorganization and for the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

—The Kitchen-Garden School will open, today, Oct. 7, in W. C. T. U., rooms, 73 West Front street. Classes will be held as usual on Monday and Tuesday of each week at 4 o'clock. All last year's scholars are requested to be present. The Cooking class will open on Saturday, Oct. 12, at 9 A. M.

—This year again our lovers of music will have the benefit of Mr. Clement Tetedoux's instruction. His advertisement in another column announces that he will soon resume his lessons in singing. His services of the last four years have certainly contributed to the elevation of the divine art in our musical community.

—The White Caps went to Westfield Saturday, determined to beat the Diamonds of that city. The game was well contested, and both sides were playing good ball until the Westfielders got rattled and let the White Caps pile up 13 runs in the 5th and 6th innings. The features of the game was the running catch of Harrison and the one-handed catch of Serrell.

—A full line of horses for business or family use, has just been received from the West by Mr. J. H. Fosher, and are on sale at Seguine's stables, next to Miller's Hotel. The stock includes horses for all kinds of carriage, wagon and hack driving. They are offered at very low prices and each horse is guaranteed as represented. Mr. Fosher is an upright and fair dealing man.

Saturday's Trotting.

There was an unusually large attendance at the race track on Saturday afternoon to witness the usual trial contests of speed between local horses. The first race was between John Chandler's "Rambo," John Hayes' "Andy" and Mr. Brower's "Lady Bennett." "Rambo" won the first and third heats in 2.41 and 2.40. "Lady Bennett" took second heat in 2.38½.

The concluding race was between John Osborn's "Marcaneer," Nate Bobbin's "Doctor" and Mr. Churchill's "Selim." The first named won two straight heats in 2.52½ and 2.50.

The racing will be continued until cold weather sets in.

To Restore Its Course.

The recent freshets in this city have changed the course of Green Brook so that the water washes against the parapet of one of the bridges, and Freeholder Vanderbeek offered a resolution at the Board meeting on Thursday, giving the Plainfield bridge committee power to restore the course of the brook. The resolution was amended by directing the committee to confer with the Somerset county freeholders.

KILLED HIMSELF.

LOUIE DE CASTRO'S TERRIBLE FATE.

An Eighteen Year Old Lad Dies by His Own Hand—Accidentally Shot Before—A Missing Letter to His Mother.

On Saturday night Scotch Plains was startled by the report that Louis de Castro, the young West Indian, had shot himself. It was found to be true, and the facts in the case are these:

About nine o'clock Bennet Brittin, with whom Louis lived, and his grandfather, was going through the front hall of his house, when he heard the muffled report of a pistol. Feeling alarmed, he went up stair and into Louis' room, where an awful sight met his eyes. In a chair between the bureau and the bed, Louis was swaying back and forth and groaning From a hole in his right temple blood was flowing profusely, and in his right hand which was half concealed beneath him, he held a discharged revolver. Horrified at the sight Mr. Brittin ran down stairs and told the men who were there to come up with him. Mr. Joseph Clark immediately went for Dr. Westcott. He was not at home, and Dr. Oliver was then called upon. Dr. Oliver saw at once that nothing could be done. The news spread abroad and a crowd soon collected. Louis seemed to be unconscious and continued to sway back and forth in his chair; he lived until 10:45 P. M.

Mr. Joseph Clark gave a PRESS reporter the following account: "It was about nine o'clock, and Judge Nicholl and I were sitting in Mr. Brittin's back room. We have a casino club there and were about to play; Mr. Brittin had gone out to get the table. Suddenly we heard a pistol shot; it seemed to come from a distance. We heard Mr. Brittin turn and go upstairs and in another minute he rushed into the room where we were, his face like a death's-head, and told us to come up stairs quick. He took us to Louis' room, and there sat the boy dressed to go out. His eyes were glazing, and we heard the death rattle in his throat. There was no lamp in his room, but the moonlight poured in through the window and illumined the ghastly features of the dying boy. I went after Dr. Westcott, but he was at Fanwood. Then I obtained a horse and rode to Dr. Oliver's who came up on his tricycle. Dr. Westcott afterwards arrived, but of course nothing could be done."

It appears that Louis had been given to playing with firearms and was careless in using them. Only a few weeks ago he had shot himself in the hand, and Mr. Brittin had taken the pistol away from him. The weapon used on Saturday was obtained surreptitiously.

It is impossible to believe without further evidence that the killing was the deliberate result of a sane mind. He had always seemed perfectly happy, having a jolly disposition, and he had nothing to want here. He had a good home with his grandfather, and was earning four dollars a week while learning his trade. He worked for Robert Jahn, the plumber and tinsmith. He was about eighteen years old. He lived at Scotch Plains ten or twelve years ago and then returned to the West Indies to stay with his parents. About three years ago he came back to this country, where he has since remained.

The only clue to the boy's motive for the deed is in a letter which he is supposed to have written to his mother. He had asked the hostler if he would mail a letter for him which he was then about to write. He was seen entering the front door with a letter or envelope in his hand and this is as far as the letter can be traced. There is no sign of it in the room or about the house, and the hostler informed the PRESS reporter that the letter had not been given him to mail. It was not in the postoffice. It is thought that if the shooting was permeditated he may have announced his intention to his mother, but if the letter remains unfound the circumstances of Louis' death must for ever remain a secret inpenetrable and profound.

Mr. and Mrs. Brittin are completely prostrated, and have the sincere sympathy of all their townsmen in this awful event.

The German Fair.

The ladies of the Aid Society of the German Reformed church are hard at work arranging for a grand fair, which will take place during the first week in November. The proceeds will go to the church fund. The church has a debt which is due to the building fund of the Board of Missions of the Reformed church of America. It is true that this debt is not exactly pressing at the present time, but the congregation have a desire to be prepared to meet their liabilities, and it is on this account that the fair is held.

To Institute a New Lodge.

The officers of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey, assisted by a number of members of the Orders from Jersey City and Newark, will institute a Lodge of the Improved Order of Red Men, at the K. of P. Hall, on Wednesday evening at 7:30 sharp. All members are requested to be present.

Free Singing Class.

The young men's singing class will be taught by Mr. E. O. Embury at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, this evening at 9 o'clock. The instruction is free and it is believed that the lessons will give much pleasure and satisfaction as every effort will be made to make them thorough and useful.

GOOD ENOUGH!

A Long Felt Want to be Again Supplied—An Admirable Scheme in Proper Hands.

It is proposed to organize another Plainfield Vocal Society under a competent Conductor—probably not Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh—that will be composed of the best vocalists in the city. Enough encouragement has already been given at a meeting reported exclusively in these columns, to warrant the belief that the Society will be eminently successful in all its parts.

A number of the city's best vocalists have been invited to attend a meeting for organization, to beheld Thursday evening, October 10, at 8 o'clock, in "Vincent Chapel." Those present at this meeting will be considered constituent members without examination, upon enrolling their names, otherwise, should they wish to join the Society at some future time, the customary examinations will be required.

THE PRESS pledges in advance its modest support. The scheme will meet the endorsement of the people also. That it will be a success is assured because it is in the hands of Messrs C. W. McCutchen, W. W. Howland, D. E. Titsworth, H. O. Newman, S. I. Mitchell, D. E. Davis, H. A. McGee, W. R. Cock.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Lottie Powers is on a two weeks' vacation to Poughkeepsie, and Troy.

Mr. George Wharton Edwards, the artist, has taken a studio in Mr. Edward Love's new building on Peace street.

At a meeting of the Union County Republican League, held at Elizabeth on Friday evening, Mr. C. M. Goddard of this city, was elected a member of the Executive Committee.

Mr. William A. Baldwin, a retired merchant, of Chicago, is the guest of his brother, Mr. A. C. Baldwin, of Park and Crescent avenues. Mr. Baldwin will probably remain in Plainfield until the 1st of Nov.

Mrs. Emma Sigourney and two children arrived in Plainfield from Broken Bone, Nebraska, on Saturday and are stopping with Mrs. S.'s father, Mr. I. D. TenEyck, of No. 15 Liberty street. Mrs. Sigourney was at one time a pupil in the Plainfield high school.

Death of Mrs. Robert Walker.

Mrs. Agnes A. Walker, wife of Mr. Robert Walker, and only sister of the late Mrs. Randolph Marsh, of this city, died at "The Retreat," Hartford, Conn., last Friday night. She was born in Greenock, Scotland, and came to Hartford, when a young woman. There she married Mr. Walker, and had since resided in that city. Five years ago their only son, William J., aged 19, fell from the roof of the house of Mr. Andrew T. Smith, on Prospect avenue, and was killed.

Mrs. Walker was nearly crazed at the time, and her grief affected her mind so much that she was never wholly rational afterward, and was troubled with insomnia. She was cared for at her home, however, until last March, when her condition became such that she was removed to the Retreat. She leaves besides her husband, one daughter. The funeral took place from Mr. Walker's home, No. 70 William street, Hartford, at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

At Trinity Reformed Church.

The disagreeable weather of yesterday did not prevent a very gratifying attendance at the communion services of the Trinity Reformed church, and the hearts of pastor and people were made glad by an accession of eight new members, three on confession of their faith and need of a Saviour, and five from other churches. When it is remembered that this church has been without a regular pastor the past three months (the Rev. Mr. Schenck having been absent in Europe), it certainly denotes a healthy spiritual condition.

At the evening service the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, preached from the fourteenth chapter of St. John; the twelfth verse. His discourse was an able, comprehensive exposition of the text, and was delivered in his usual earnest style, leaving a lasting impression on the hearts of his hearers.

Base Ball.

The Young Crescents of this city defeated the Young Americans of Dunellen, on the Evona grounds, Saturday afternoon, by a score of 21 to 15. The game was full of errors. Richards was hit so hard in 5th and 6th innings that he gave way to Burke who fared no better. The pitching of Angleman for the Young Crescents was the feature of the game. The umpiring of Craig was not satisfactory as he made wrong decisions. Score by innings:

Young Americans	0	7	6	0	1	1	—15
Young Crescents	4	0	2	4	6	5	—21

Umpire—Craig; Scorer—W. Littell.

Killed an Eagle at Feltville.

Charles Brown, a sixteen-year-old youth, killed an eagle near Feltville, on Sunday last. The boy saw the bird sitting on a tree and brought it to the ground with a stone. After a severe struggle he succeeded in killing the bird, which measured six feet four inches from tip to tip.

Oh! ye who teach the ingenious youth of our great nation, let them learn the noble art of self-defense, as Salvation Oil is the specific for hurts.

Little Annie yesterday told us in her way what a good medicine Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is; it had cured her of a very severe cold.

THE TRAMP'S STORY.

IX me a drink, bartender; I've been in the hospital long,
An' I want an old-time welcome, so mix it hot an' strong;
An' while you mix an' stir it—oh, yes, I've got the pay—
I'll tell you a little story, it will pass the time away.

There was once a girl named Katy, she sung in a village choir,
An' above the other voices her'n sweetest rose an' higher;
Her spirit was the brightest, her soul the purest there,
An' she sung to God as birds do who crave their native air.

Sugar in mine? Why, certain, an' lemon for a "tang."
Where was I? Oh! bartender, I married the girl who sang—
We had always loved each other an', blest as the angels are,
We came to live in the city, an' I learned to drink at a bar.

I was young an' straight as a sapling, my hand didn't tremble then;
I held my head with the highest, an' had the respect of men;
I stood in the flush of manhood an' drank at this same bar,
'Tis true as there is a Heaven, where my wife an' children are!

I drank up a thrifty business, an' then in the empty bowl
I squandered the dear old homestead, an' stifled my wretched soul,
An' I broke the heart of my darling; God! can such things be true?
I left her homeless and dying, and came to carouse with you.

Sweet! Yes! it's sweet an' its bitter, an' here's to your health, my friend!
No! my story isn't finished, but it's getting on to the end;
The children went with their mother, as children mostly do,
An' I buried them, or the city did—here's luck an' long life to you.

Who's that?—don't you see her?—there! my wife!—and the children, too!
Why, Katy, my girl, go home, go home; this isn't the place for you!
It isn't Katy!—I'm raving!—see here! I have money yet;
Give me another—stronger—I must forget—forget!

Shay! isn't it awfully jolly, this drinking yourself to ruin?
An' getting the worth of your money, just as I have been doing?
Shay! is there any thing the matter? Don't put me into the street!
If I stay a little longer then my story'll be complete.

Shay! I'm your friend, bartender; what's the mazzer with me?
It's getting dark of a sudden—s'dark I can not see.
Listen! there's some one singing! 'Tis Katy's voice I hear:
"W-a-i-t-i-n-g a-n-d w-a-i-t-i-n-g f-o-r t-h-e-e, a-t H-e-a-v-e-n-'s p-o-r-t-a-l-s, d-e-a-r."
—MRS. M. L. RAYNE.

Reform Hall.

Reform Hall last evening contained a moderate-sized but very appreciative audience. President Harper occupied the chair, and Rev. E. M. Rodman of Grace Episcopal church, conducted the devotional services. Mr. Vanderbeek, the musical leader, was unavoidably absent, but sent for the evening an efficient substitute.

Doctor Rodman was the first speaker, and founding his remarks upon that graphic scene of Bible record, Paul before Felix, wherein the latter was made to tremble at the words of the illustrious Apostle touching Righteousness, Temperance and the Judgment to come, he proceeded to point out in an instructive and convincing manner the evils of wrong doing and the blessed results of right living. The reverend gentleman's remarks were thoroughly sound and practical and commanded unbroken attention.

Capt. Ostrom followed in a short address, replete with striking illustrations and Christian truths and charity. He, too, received the profound attention of every person present.

With the benediction pronounced by Doctor Rodman the highly interesting meeting closed.

Two Celebrated Will Contests.

The Latimer contested will case, which has dragged along for several months in the Union County Orphans' Court, will come up for a hearing on Wednesday before Judge McCormick. Sarah M. Latimer of this city, died last Winter, leaving a part of her fortune, about $800,000, to charitable institutions of Plainfield. The will is contested by would be executors. It is said that a compromise will probably be effected, and the objections to the will withdrawn.

The Frazee Lee contested will case, it is expected, will occupy the greater part of the present session of the Union County courts.

Part of the Mystery Solved.

The corpse found on the Dessey farm, near Liberty Corner, last week, has been partially identified by the clothing as that of Hugh Higgins, a blacksmith, who lived in this city. He had been missing since July 15. He was thirty-five years old and leaves a widow and two children. How he met his death so far away from home remains a mystery. Higgins was seen at White House a few days after he left home.

At Music Hall To-night.

Mr. Louis James, an old New York favorite, came to the Windsor Theatre Monday night and opened in "Virginius." Last night he changed his bill and played "Hamlet." On both nights there was a large and attentive audience in the house. Mr. James' performance of Hamlet was marked by a fine pictorial sense, a free, unconventional and romantic breadth and a generally excellent reading. He has taken no liberties with the text, but he has imparted to the action a personal charm and a grace that are unique.

The Ophelia of this performance was Miss Mabel Amber, who won her audience at the start by uncommon beauty and secured their hearty commendation afterwards by a notably fresh, ingenuous, sweet and intelligent impersonation of the part. The entire cast was good, but special mention should be made of Mr. F. C. Mosley as Laertes and H. A. Langdon as Polonius.

Mr. James gave a most creditable performance of "Hamlet," and it is pleasant to be able to record that a large and intelligent audience followed it with discriminating attention and applause to the end.—N. Y. World, Sept. 25, 1889.

One Hundred and Fifteen Years Old.

"The Man About Town" in today's New York Star says:

"Many people in Union and Middlesex counties, N. J., remember Noah Rabey, who periodically made his appearance in Plainfield and towns near by and asked for work. The last time I saw him he was a resident at the Piscataway poor house, and was 115 years old. He cannot remember the exact date of his birth, but says it was 1774 or 1775. Fifty years ago he worked for John Kean, near Elizabeth, N. J., whose son, John Kean, Jr., represented his district at Washington not very long ago. Noah was over 50 years of age when he dwelt on the Kean farm, so his claim to the honor of being a centenarian, at least, is well established. The old man was well when I saw him, and enjoyed his pipe and todacco regularly three times a day."

The Ladies Contribute.

On Sept. 28, Miss Frances E. Willard, National President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, celebrated her fiftieth birthday. The wearers of the white ribbon, scattered throughout the whole United States, devised a happy plan by which to commemorate the event. Each local union was requested to contribute one dollar toward creating a fund to be permanently invested in good securities, the interest of which will be at Miss Willard's disposal.

Miss Willard has spared neither strength nor money in her efforts to further the interests of the cause, and in her earlier days gave to it many years of labor without remuneration. This birthday offering is intended as an expression of appreciation and affection from her sisters in the work.

The Central's Oyster Traffic.

A noticeable feature of traffic on the Central Railroad of New Jersey at this season of the year is the oyster trains. Heavy trains from Port Norris and Long Beach, on the Southern Division, Cumberland and Maurice River branch, run into Jersey City every day, sometimes in two or three sections. In the early hours of the morning the wharves along West street, New York, are a busy sight. All the cars are floated over and the dealers and hucksters soon empty them. The company also sends a train every day to Scranton and Wilkesbarre.

Finances of the Fair.

At the meeting of the State Agricultural Society, which was held on Thursday afternoon, it was estimated that the proceeds of the late fair did not come within $2,000 of paying the expenses. More than that amount, however, was expended in improvements, and the society congratulates itself on escaping as well as it did, considering the bad weather. The regular quarterly meeting of the society will be held on the 16th inst., at which more full reports of the affair will be made.

Twenty-third Annual Session.

The twenty-third annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars of New Jersey, will be held at Bridgeton, commencing Wednesday, Oct. 16, at 10 A. M., continuing two days. This session will undoubtedly be the grandest ever held by the Order in this State. The Mayor of Bridgeton will deliver an address of welcome and extend to the visitors the freedom of the city.

Somerset County Fair.

The fair which opens at Somerville, tomorrow, promises to be the most successful in the history of the organization. In addition to a more than usually fine display of products, machinery and ladies' contributions, there is this year an especially large and very fine field of trotters, the best ever entered for this fair.

Those who attend the fair and races will be sure of an interesting and pleasant time.

Very Badly Injured.

William H. Parlaman, a brakeman employed upon the Central Railroad, and living at Mauch Chunck, was taken to St. Michael's Hospital in Newark, on Saturday, suffering from severe injuries received by being struck by a coal car at Bound Brook, at 4 o'clock that morning. He was still unconscious when received at the Hospital, and his recovery is regarded as doubtful.

GLASSWORKERS SETTLE.

The Big Strike Ended and Work to Be Resumed Next Week.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 7.—The strike of the Window Light Glassblowers, affecting 5,000 men in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland, has been settled in this city.

Delegates representing both sides met at the office of Baker Bros. and after a full interchange of opinion an agreement was reached and a scale to continue for one year was signed.

The demand of the blowers was for an increase of 10 per cent., but a compromise of 5½ per cent. was agreed upon to go into effect immediately.

Work in all the factories will begin about next Monday week.

There is no indication that the Green Bottle Blowers' Strike will soon be settled.

An Oil Fever Over Natural Gas.

ANDOVER, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Natural gas was struck yesterday at the well being drilled near the village of Angelica, Allegany county. Present indications are that the pressure will be very heavy. Drilling will be continued in the hope of finding oil. Other wells will be started at once. Much excitement prevails and "oil and gas leases" are enjoying a boom.

Buffalo's First Snow Storm.

BUFFALO, Oct. 7.—The first snow storm of the season prevailed here yesterday. At one time the ground was covered.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

REV. BOYLE TO HANG

Found Guilty of Rape and Sentenced to Die.

DRAMATIC SCENE IN COURT.

The Ex-Priest Creates a Sensation by an Impassioned and Eloquent Address.

Feeling Runs High Over His Death Sentence—Religious Prejudice Against Him Charged—His Counsel Will Try to Get a New Trial—Bitter Words for the Opposing Counsel.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 7.—The jury in the Boyle case retired at 8:30 Saturday night and at midnight returned a verdict in the presence of a crowded court room. Their verdict was that Boyle was guilty of rape. The attention of the great crowd was breathless when the verdict was announced.

The counsel for Boyle made an earnest appeal for a new trial, which Judge Armfield promptly refused. He also overruled a motion in arrest of judgment.

When Boyle was asked if he had anything to say in his own behalf, he made a remarkably dramatic speech in which he charged that there was religious prejudice against him. He denounced two of the opposing counsel in the most bitter language. His manner was so spirited at times that he was once applauded. He concluded by saying that he was ready to receive the sentence.

Judge Armfield then sentenced him to be hanged on November 29th. Boyle's counsel then made an appeal to carry the case to the Supreme Court of the State, and this was granted.

There is great diversity of opinion here about the verdict in the Boyle rape case, and feeling runs high over his death sentence.

Boyle is in good spirits and said last night and to-day that he would not be hanged. He has thirty days in which to prepare his case for the Supreme Court. His counsel will try to get a new trial and will argue that side issues and Boyle's appearance were used to affect the jury. It is thought that Boyle's own evidence, which was certainly in many respects unreal and improbable, did more than anything else to convict him. Boyle's speech to the Court certainly caused an unbounded sensation. It was the sole topic of conversation here to-day. Boyle spoke rapidly, eloquently, and in an impassioned manner. He said he was aware that able lawyers had conducted the prosecution; but there was a strong prejudice against Roman Catholics, which had worked against him powerfully, and that counsel had unfairly aroused this prejudice by making statements respecting the power of priests which were not properly put in argument. He said that one of the State's counsel reminded him of the prohibition orators he had heard in Illinois; men who believed and said that all men who differ from them in habits or belief, are eternally damned. He said that it had been urged against him that he was a drunkard, whereas he was not addicted to liquor, and had merely on one occasion become somewhat lively at a private champagne supper in a hotel here. He paid for the wine himself, and any argument, he added, against drunkenness came with poor grace from the State's Solicitor. Another of opposing counsel he said had condemned him for a violation of his vows of chastity and for playing cards with negro prisoners in the jail; and yet one these very women, he declared, was the discarded mistress of this attorney. He said he had all his life played cards and would continue to play them so long as God spared his life. He paid the State's Solicitor a high compliment for his powerful argument and general conduct of the prosecution, and after thanking Judge Armfield, turned and said: "I am now ready to receive my sentence."

MYSTERIOUS CASE.

Much Talk Created Over the Death of Henry Andrews.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Oct. 7.—Henry Andrews, a prominent business man died at his home here of heart disease, aged 50. He was a large coal dealer and owner of the cotton mills at Farnumsville, Mass.

The supposed cause of his death constitutes a sensation which has shocked the community here. On Friday September 27 he was involved in a quarrel over a business matter with Wm. Blanchard to whom he had recently sold his retail coal business. So heated became the altercation that Blanchard struck Andrews with a piece of wood, knocked him down and inflicting a wound from which, it is supposed, blood poisoning and death ensued.

Andrews and his family have during his illness exonerated Blanchard, but the authorities are secretly investigating the case.

CONNECTICUT'S ELECTION.

Voting To-Day on Prohibition and the Sale of Intoxicating Liquors.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 7.—The voters of Connecticut are called upon to-day to decide whether the State Constitution shall be amended so that the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors shall be prohibited. There is no doubt about the answer. It is only a question of majority. The anti-Prohibitionists claim that the proposition will be defeated by a vote of three to one. Sanguine Prohibitionists expect to be beaten two to one. The leaders of the movement in this city make that forecast. Besides voting on the prohibitory amendment the towns in the State will chose their municipal officers. The exceptions are New Haven and Bridgeport, in which places the election will be confined to the prohibitory amendment. The town elections will consequently serve to bring out a good-sized vote.

A St. Louis Sensation.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—Capt. Dennis P. Slattery, the millionaire grain elevator man, who represented the British syndicate in recent negotiations here, was thrown down stairs yesterday morning at the residence of Edward Klosterman, a saloon keeper, and fatally injured. He was picked up on the sidewalk insensible. Klosterman was arrested. It is said that he found his wife with Slattery in a compromising position.

BOULANGISTS BEATEN.

The Second Balloting for Deputies Results in a Loss for the General.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The second ballots progressed very quietly everywhere yesterday. The followers of Boulanger appear to have deserted his standard quite generally, and it is estimated that quite two-thirds of the 186 seats contested for the second time have gone to the Republicans. Even the hitherto staunch Boulangist, Laguerre, no longer uses the name of his former chief in describing his political faith, but calls himself a Revisionist. In this course he is followed by many of the General's former supporters.

In the First Seine District M. Guyot, Minister of Public Works, is elected, and in the Eleventh M. Floquet, the ex-Premier. M. Laisant, the Boulangist, is elected in the Eighteenth. In Bordeaux two Boulangists have been returned.

The totals for Paris give the Republicans 22 and the Boulangists 14 Deputies elected. Among the Republicans returned are MM. Lockroy, Millerand, Dreyfus, Raspail, Lanessan and Marmattan. Among the Boulangists elected are Dr. Mery, who defeated M. Basly, and M. Senne, who defeated Heredia.

In the Eighth Seine District, M. Marim, Conservative Boulangist, defeated the well known Deputy, Passy, and in the Ninth, Emile Ferry defeated M. Berry, Conservative. In the Belleville District, the Socialist, Dumay, defeated M. Rochefort. Lyons returns three Republicans.

The latest returns received this morning give the results in 158 districts. Of these the Republicans have been successful in 108 and the Boulangists or other opponents of the Republicans in 45.

A GREAT RAILROAD SCHEME.

Canadian Charters and Subsidies to Go to England and America.

OTTAWA, Oct. 7.—A gigantic scheme is about to be consummated which places the big railroad deal with the Northwest Central completely in the shade. It looks as if all the Canadian charters and Canadian subsidies were going to be gobbled up by American and English syndicates. The St. Paul and Manitoba roads are trying to acquire the franchise of the Northwestern railway, which is to run through Edmonton, Calgary and Fort Macleod in the Northwest territories, to the boundary, where it will connect with the road built by the St. Paul and Fort Benton. The Northwestern runs through a most fertile belt of the great northwest. Near Calgary it will touch upon the coal fields of Canmore, where an unlimited wealth of the finest anthracite coal in the world lies, waiting for development by capitalists. Some of these coal lands are owned by St. Paul capitalists, and the proposal is, after securing the charter of the railway and constructing it, to commence mine operations with the purpose of supplying the vast extent of country on both sides of the line west of Manitoba with fuel, and by competition shutting up the Galt mines at Lethbridge and the Stewart mines at Bauff.

A DANGEROUS DAM.

Cuba Reservoir Ready to Repeat the Johnstown Horror.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 7.—The Cuba Reservoir, a vast artificial lake built by the State of New York, and used as a canal-feeder, is again reported to be in a dangerous condition.

There are floods in that region now, and dams have broken which have contained much smaller quantities of water.

The smaller floods have caused loss of life, and this could not fail to be great if the Cuba dam gave way. The lake holds about 50,000,000 tons of water, and Engineer George T. Keith, of Olean, who has made an inspection of it, says the dam is a "ramshackle old mud bank that would disgrace the builder if it were constructed now."

He says that it is unsafe and ought to be removed. When the Johnstown floods occurred the State authorities investigated the dam and pronounced it all right, but this has not allayed the apprehensions of people who would suffer by the flood. The feeder is no longer used, it is stated, for public purposes.

THE NAVASSA MATTER.

Warrants Granted and the Matter to Be Laid Before the President.

BALTIMORE, October 7.—A warrant was issued by Judge Bond of the United States Circuit Court for the arrest of the negroes concerned in the Navassa Island murder. United States Marshal George B. Cairnes made return to the warrant that he was powerless to make the arrest; whereupon Judge Bond certified to President Harrison the facts in the case, and they will be laid before the President by counsel for the Receivers for his action.

The island comes under the jurisdiction of the United States in consequence of its discovery in 1856 by Capt. Peter Duncan, who took the proper action whereby the United States extended its protective power over the island, by proclamation, etc. Capt. Duncan sold the island to Capt. E. K. Cooper, and by various transfers it afterwards became the property of the Navassa Phosphate Company. The revised statutes of the United States hold a murder committed on the island the same as if committed on a vessel on the high seas.

POINTS ABOUT POWDERLY.

The Well-Known Labor Chief to Speak in Hamilton To-Night.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Mr. Powderly left here last evening for Hamilton, Ont., where he will speak to-night. The original programme included a series of speeches in the West, but these have been abandoned, and after his address in Hamilton the Knights of Labor chief will go to Scranton for a few days to work upon his report for the General Assembly, which meets in Atlanta in four weeks.

On the 14th Mr. Powderly will go to Philadelphia to hold a conference with the chiefs and secretaries of the Federation of Labor Unions on the eight hour questions.

The remainder of the Executive Board is yet in session in St. Louis.

Myer Will Fight Carroll.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 7.—Billy Myer, the Streator pugilist, who is visiting here, said last night that he had just received a telegram from San Francisco stating that the proposed match between himself and Carroll for $10,000 aside had been made and would certainly come off. It will be fought in Mexico under London rules.

HUMAN FLESH EATERS.

Horrible Practices of Certain British Columbia Indians.

Emotional Cannibalism Practiced by the Kwagutl Tribe—An Aristocratic Tribe Whose Members Can Bite Whoever Displeases Them.

The British Columbia Indians have been suspected of eating human flesh, but they have hitherto concealed their practices so carefully that no reliable white man is able to give personal testimony of the fact, writes a Victoria (B. C.) correspondent of the New York Herald. Mr. H. R. A. Pocock has been spending a great deal of time among them, and although he is not able to give personal testimony of their cannibalistic rites, yet he has collected a great deal of evidence from natives of the prevalence of the practice.

The Kwagutls, a tribe dwelling in the central part of the province, have a belief that if a man meets a certain spirit on the mountains he has a right thereafter during the winter dances, lasting two months of the year, to bite whoever displeases him. The spirit is called Ha-mad-tsi, and the cannibals who earn their horrible distinction by seeing him are known as Ha-mad-tsis. They belong to what may be called an exclusive and aristocratic caste. Only members of certain families may become Ha-mad-tsis, and these when they come to the years of discretion go up into the mountains, where they may meet the spirit. Having encountered this unlovely sprite, they come back to the villages snapping and biting at every body and making themselves generally very undesirable neighbors. Their sole purpose is to show the tribe that they are different from ordinary men, and do not care what they eat or what they suffer. In olden times a captive or a slave was killed and presented to the initiated, who ate the corpse in the presence of a general assemblage of the people. More recently, although slavery is not wholly extinct, the Indians have become afraid to kill, so they are reduced to the stealing of corpses. Usually these have been drying for a long time, being "buried" among the branches of a tree, and are quite flavorless, the brains alone being considered a luxury.

Up to the time of eating a corpse in public the acolyte, whenever he appears from the woods, bites indiscriminately, women being, however, generally exempt, whether from native gallantry or not does not appear. Formerly the faces were bitten, noses and ears especially, but now the cannibal merely lifts the flesh of a man's arm with his teeth, which is sliced off with a knife by a bystander while the half insane savage retains his grip of it and finally swallows it. The father of the biter pays every body who has suffered from his progeny's enthusiasm from two to ten blankets. There are few men in the Kwagutl tribes who do not bear the scars of this extraordinary mania. The Ha-mad-tsi, during the progress of the winter dances, is stark naked, a heavy plaited rope of cedar bark adorned with tassels being carried, however, on the shoulders. There are from three to twenty Ha-mad-tsis, and each of them will perhaps eat of four or five corpses in a life-time. Mr. Pocock has not actually witnessed the ceremony, but he collected a considerable amount of testimony from what he considers reliable native witnesses. He says:

"My interpreter said that when he was a lad he remembers his mother saving two slaves from being killed and eaten. The winter or Ha-mad-tsi dance was performed at Alert bay eighteen months ago, goats' flesh being eaten from human bones at midnight and the tribe deceived. Deer or goat flesh is often tied to the human bones and devoured in the dusk so that the onlookers are all deceived. Apparently two bodies were devoured at Klawatis that same season. Three and a half years ago a white man was taken by his Indian woman to the winter dance, and turned out of doors, because, as the woman told him, a corpse was to be eaten. He saw a woman's body taken into the house by three naked men, and went round to the back, where, through a hole, he saw the Ha-mad-tsis holding the body in their arms and biting pieces out. From the long black hair, hanging from what seemed to be the head, he supposed this was the body of a woman. If this was not human flesh both he and the whole audience were deceived.

"A Fort Rupert half-breed woman of excellent character told me she was fully convinced that in many cases no deception was practiced. No half-breeds or Indians, except my interpreter, expressed any doubt. A Kanaka, a man of very good report, indeed, told me that at the head of Knight inlet he was admitted to a winter dance, and saw three Ha-mad-tsis eat a corpse in presence of the tribe. This evidence appears to me to be very strong on account of the witness' character and the clearness and reasonable manner of his statements. He told me his story briefly, and as one surprised at the existence of a doubt, but tired of the subject. His wife, a member of a Ha-mad-tsi family, furnished the evidence that convinced my interpreter that the Ha-mad-tsi is not a sham.

"After describing the origin of the rite in her family she said that some years ago, on Knight inlet, at the winter feasts, she was invited to a feast of berries for women. They were interrupted by the Ha-mad-tsis bringing a human corpse into the house. They were six in number and all naked, and her brother was one of them. Attendants cut off strips of flesh from the corpse, which were devoured by the Ha-mad-tsis. This witness, although given to potlaching, another heathen and semi-religious orgy, bore otherwise a good character. I was told a number of most horrible stories of self-torture practiced out of bravado during these ceremonies."

Mr. Pocock's revelations have produced a powerful feeling among Christian people throughout Canada, and the Government is being called upon to take efficient means of suppressing these unspeakably disgusting practices.

Artificially-Made Silk.

A French chemist has produced an artificial silk by the chemical treatment of cellulose. He obtains a thread which resembles silk very closely, and is equally strong and elastic. It is not attacked by water, cold or warm, nor by the acids and alkalies moderately concentrated. A great drawback to this silk is that it is extremely inflammable, but it is possible that by a change of treatment it may be rendered less combustible. If this is done the new textile fabric will be of the greatest value.

Smallest Book in the World.

The library of a Manchester (Eng.) collector contains a copy of what is probably the smallest volume ever engraved, printed and bound. It measures 1.1 inch in height by .75 inch in width, contains thirty-two leaves of sixty-four plates, is covered in crimson and gilt roan, and has gilt edges. It was published in "Paris, at the Black Cat, 82 St. Denis street." The contents of the book are entirely in French and consist of eight chansonettes, each illustrated by a vignette.

A SPORT-LOVING FAMILY.

Ex-Secretary Bayard's Daughters Fond of Base-Ball and Tennis.

Probably the most ardent patrons of outdoor sports in Wilmington are the daughters of ex-Secretary of State Thomas F. Bayard, writes a Chicago Inter Ocean correspondent. The Misses Bayard are four in number—Nannie, Florence, Louisa and Nellie—each of whom can be justly classed as an accomplished equestrienne. The masterly way in which the daughters of Delaware's statesman handle the prancing steeds is envied by their legions of friends. So adept are they that generally the family coachman is compelled to literally take a back seat and surrender the reins to one of the young ladies. The ex-Secretary rarely thinks of holding the reins when out for a drive with his girls. To say that the Bayard family could easily dispense with the services of the old family coachman and not be seriously inconvenienced is not putting it too strongly. The family is essentially a collective lover of horse-flesh, and as a proof of the discriminating paternal eye in this respect a glance at any one of the thoroughbreds will suffice. Mr. Bayard's stable is within fifty yards of the mansion, and it is a pleasure to him to see that it is kept in attractive shape by the groomsmen.

While the Misses Bayard are devout admirers of the most useful of quadrupeds, they are regular patrons of nearly all outdoor sports, especially base-ball and lawn tennis. The Wilmington Base-ball Club's grounds are within four hundred yards of the Bayard mansion, and it is unusual to start a game without first seeing that the fair daughters of ex-President Cleveland's premier have arrived. They are generally on hand long before the time for the game to begin, and the hearty manner in which they appreciate and unstintingly applaud the good plays on both sides is worthy of emulation. Their presence always serves to stimulate the players.

Miss Florence Bayard is the champion lady lawn tennis player of Delaware, she being an active member of the Delaware Field Club and a regular participant at all of the club's tennis tournaments. Miss Florence is also the champion lady tennis player of the District of Columbia, a distinction which she won during the Cabinet incumbency of her father. The members of the Delaware Field Club would not hesitate to have Miss Florence Bayard represent their organization at almost any of the National tournaments. Her sisters are also tennis players, but they can not wield the racquet with the proficiency that has been acquired by the lady champion.

Ex-Secretary Bayard has three sons—James, Thomas F., Jr., and Philip. They are also athletically inclined, especially the namesake, who is an all-round athlete of no mean ability. Thomas F., Jr., is a Yale student, and he and his father often engage in pleasurable but active bouts with the gloves. The ex-Secretary is accomplished in the art of self-defense and he considers it excellent exercise.

Altogether, the Bayard family can be named as a sport-loving people, and they are literally the leaders of legitimate sport in Wilmington.

SALTED SILVER MINES.

How Jay Hubbell Was Sold by a Clever Bunco Miner.

Ex-Congressman J. A. Hubbell, of Michigan, a millionaire mine owner, has a keen perception of the humorous. Recently a New York Mail and Express reporter had a conversation with him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel about salt and the attempt to form a salt trust not long ago.

"I have never dabbled in a salt mine, but I have in a mine salted," he said with rather strong vehemence.

"Do you mean to say that the old trick was played on you?"

"Yes, I do. It was a silver mine. The specimens were the finest I ever saw. I became interested and went to work with an expert to examine the mine. We found rich specimens, and it appeared to be the beginning of another Comstock lode. I was satisfied, and never once suspected that a trick was being played. A number of us bought the shrewd proprietor out, each of us giving him $600. I induced James G. Blaine to put in $600 on the strength of my report. Very soon after work began we discovered that the mine had been salted most skillfully. I went to Mr. Blaine and told him the mine had been salted and that our money was lost. He took it very philosophically."

"Have you been taken in since?"

"No; that experience taught me a lesson. I found out that salting mines and preparing specimens is a fine art. Why, these scoundrels that manipulate salted mines can put fine quartz specimens in so cleverly that it looks like the work of nature. To make upon a solid rock a gold or silver surface they shoot the metal from a pistol. I never go into any mining venture unless I do some careful investigation beforehand."

"Is there as much mine salting now as in times past?"

"No, and not so much made in mines as formerly. Men who buy mines now are conservative and do not go in with their eyes shut. Naturally so many have been tricked with salted mines that it is difficult to repeat it over and over again. Instead of doing the salting trick the wild-cat speculators have new methods and form large companies that deceive the unwary. It is getting more and more difficult to swindle even by the wild-cat method because the newspapers have so thoroughly exposed it. In fact mining is beginning to assume a normal, business-like character and the avenues for bunco miners are growing rapidly less."

Not Necessary to Be a Crank.

Many seem to be possessed with the idea that a man can not take care of his health without worrying about it and making himself constantly unhappy for fear that he will do something he ought not to do. Never was there a more erroneous opinion. A person who takes rational care of his body does not necessarily become a crank or so notional that it makes every one uncomfortable to live with him, but just the reverse. He should become more interesting, more intelligent and inspired by higher ideas and be a more delightful companion.

A Careful German Official.

A new road was about to be made in a certain parish in the Bohmerwald. The surveyor came, took his observation, and with considerable care and exertion staked out the road. When this part of the work was done he went to the mayor of the parish and said: "I must ask you to see that the poles are not stolen over Sunday." Monday morning the surveyor came back. Sure enough the stakes had gone. The mayor had locked them up for safety in the town hall.

What She Wanted.

Undertaker—"And what will you have on the headstone, Mrs. Blifkins. I suppose something regarding the true qualities of Mr. Blifkins as a husband and father!" Widow—"Yes; but nothing compromising. I expect to be led to the altar again shortly."

Two Souls That Beat as One.

The man who shoots his girl to make her love him, and the girl who throws vitriol in her lover's face for the same purpose, should marry and have it out with one another.

CARNEGIE HOLDS THE KEY.

The Western Coke Trusts Said to Have Passed Into His Control.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—It was at first supposed that the McKeesport & Bellevernon road, which is to be opened next Thursday with a great celebration, was an independent organization. Later developments show conclusively that, in addition to making a connecting branch between the big factories in the vicinity of McKeesport, its charter admits of an extension to the coke regions. In fact, surveys are already under way as far as the network of railways owned by the H. C. Frick Coke Company, and they will be continued further down the Monongahela River. At McKeesport some valuable lots of land have been acquired from Third to Second avenues for the purpose of erecting a large depot and commodious switch yard.

This is all construed to mean by shrewd railway men here that Andrew Carnegie has secured another foothold to enable him to dictate terms to the Pennsylvania and have a line of his own from the coke regions to the lakes. Mr. Carnegie is said to own 35,000 shares of Pittsburg & Western, and has an option on an additional amount to give him control. This option cannot become operative for voting puopoges until 1892, as the stock is held by trustees for advances made when the Pittsburg & Western was in difficulties two years ago.

The importance of such a combination of lines falling into Mr. Carnegie's control is apparent from the fact that it will enable that gentleman to dictate his own terms on the rates on coke and ore. He can forward his coke to the lake at Fairport and thence to Chicago at a much lower tariff than is charged at present. The Pennsylvania has not been accustomed to make any concessions to Mr. Carnegie, for he receives the same treatment as other shippers, but it is understood that this does not satisfy him. His grievances have been presented, but have not received any satisfactory consideration, so that if he elects to take advantage of his recent railroad investments he is believed to hold the key to the situation.

Terrible Hurricane.

ROME, Oct. 7.—A terrible hurricane swept the entire length of the island of Sardinia yesterday leveling many villages and doing incalculable damage to property. Hundreds of people were buried in the ruins of their own homes and thirty are known to have lost their lives.

THE SECRET BALLOT

Connecticut Pleased With the New Law.

RESULT OF THE ELECTIONS.

A Majority of Nearly 30,000 Against the Prohibition Amendment.

All of the Large Towns Voted Heavily for License Both Parties Pleased With the Workings of the New Ballot Law—Heelers Absent from the Polls—A Very Light Vote Cast.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 8.—The conditions for testing the new secret ballot law yesterday were not favorable. The day was damp and cold, and there was little interest in the town elections aside from the prohibition amendment. In Hartford there was one arrest. Early in the morning John B. McCarthy was arrested for offering tickets within the 100-foot limit. His case was adjourned under $100 bonds.

Reports from thirty towns in this vicinity agree in saying that the new law worked rapidly and simply.

Indications from the returns so far received are that the majority in the State against the prohibition amendment will reach 30,000. The total vote will not exceed 60,000. As far as reported ten towns in the State voted for the amendment. The prohibition vote is larger than anticipated. Below is the vote on the amendment in some of the largest towns in the State:

	Yes.	Nay.
New London	342	893
Norwich	679	1,894
Groton	248	340
Hartford	1,010	3,263
Bristol	399	649
Enfield	220	539
Manchester	310	597
New Britain	831	1,347
Southington	281	656
Litchfield	109	245
Winchester	380	567
Greenwich	261	338
Norwalk	696	1,370
Stamford	418	1,197
Putnam	288	369
Windham	336	361
Middletown	355	826
New Haven	1,613	5,068
Ansonia	214	807
Derby	145	512
Meriden	1,021	1,949
Naugatuck	164	424
Vernon	321	875
Bridgeport	620	2,383

The secret ballot worked admirably in the Naugatuck Valley. The working people from the factories seemed to have no difficulty in understanding the law. Some ignorant heelers were seen "pasting" tickets near the booths in Birmingham, but desisted when cautioned. The fine for this offense is $1,000. The entire Democratic ticket was elected in Birmingham by a small majority.

The vote in Ansonia was close, but was cast against prohibition. The new Ballot law caused no trouble there, and the workingmen are satisfied with it. Seymour, Sheldon and Naugatuck also report that the new law worked well. Southington last year voted 235 against license, and yesterday went against prohibition by 175 majority. But two town in New Haven County are known to have voted for prohibition. They are Milford and Huntington and the majorities less than 100.

Middletown's Test.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 8.—The Secret Ballot law has been tested and, with a a few exceptions, it is generally approved. Its requirements were not understood by all the voters, as was shown by the count last night. A number of ballots were thrown out because the envelopes containing them were not sealed, as the law positively requires they shall be. Other votes were thrown aside because the parties depositing them had placed upon the envelopes marks by which they could be identified, and still others because pasters of a different type than the law requires were used. The election was a very quiet one and a light vote was polled. The crowds which usually hang around the polling places peddling tickets were missing as the new law prohibits anything of that kind within 100 feet of the polls. The absense of these heelers was so marked that many were unable to locate the polling places. The Democrats have elected their entire ticket, minority representation excepted. The prohibitory amendment was defeated in this city by 486 majority, while in several of the surrounding towns the vote was in favor of its adoption by small majorities.

Stonington Satisfied.

STONINGTON, Conn., Oct. 8.—The annual election of town officers to vote on the question of accepting or rejecting the proposed Constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor in the State was really a double-headed election, and conducted according to the form laid out in the new Secret Ballot law, enacted at the recent session of the General Assembly. As it was the first trial the law has had it was naturally to be expected that the voters, some of them at least, might be dissatisfied with the workings, but, contrary to all anticipations, the machinery worked smoothly and every one seemed pleased with this new method of conducting affairs. Many a man deposited his first "free ballot" in the box. Heretofore a certain class of voters have been hounded by candidates and party heelers and closely watched until their votes were laid upon the Moderators' table. Only words of praise are heard for this new law. The vote on the proposed Constitutional amendment was largely against its adoption, while at the same time the town once more goes for licensing the sale of intoxicants by a larger majority than ever before. This change from the no-license policy of last year was principally caused by the increase of the town's debt of over $15,000, which is to a considerable extent due to the loss of license fees.

Stamford Pleased.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 8.—The Democrats have elected their entire ticket. A Prohibition ticket for town officers received about thirty-five votes. About 2,300 votes were polled—two-thirds of the total registration. The prohibitory amendment was defeated by 779 majority. Prominent men in both parties are loud in praise of the system of secret ballotting.

New Haven's Vote on Prohibition.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 8.—The vote on the Constitutional Amendment (prohibition) yesterday was as follows: Total vote, 8,681; No, 5,068; Yes, 1,613; majority against amendment, 3,455. Of the 15 wards the Prohibitionists secured a majority in only one, the 13th, where they obtained a majority of 48.

New York Boodle Trials Up Again.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—An extraordinary term of the Court of Oyer and Terminer opened yesterday, Judge Daniels presiding. He rendered a decison refusing to dismiss the indictments which are still pending against Thomas B. Kerr and James Richmond, former officials of the Broadway surface railroad, who were indicted for bribery in connection with the passage of the franchise of that road by the Board of Aldermen.

THE COMING CONGRESS.

Democrats Claim They Are Strong Enough to Regulate Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Hon. Roger Q. Mills of Texas is in this city. In conversation last night with a correspondent Mr. Mills said that though in the minority the Democrats were fully conscious of their power, and would use it. "We do not propose," said he, "that the Republican majority will pass a single measure without our consent. For instance, you may depend upon it that the rules of the House will not be changed by the Republican majority in any essential features. We do not propose to permit them to be changed, as is desired by Mr. Reed and others, in any particular feature. Nor will we permit any of the proposed legislation looking to a control by Congress of the elections, for we see very plainly what the purpose of that is. The same can be said of the contest cases that will come up before Congress. We do not propose to let the Republican majority to be further increased at libertum, by throwing out Democratic members, as seems to be the purpose. In other words, we propose to exercise control of the House just as much as though we were still in the majority, because we know our minority is strong enough to make us the virtual rulers."

Severe Rain Storm in Vermont.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Oct. 8.—The most severe rain storm of the season prevailed here for 48 hours, continuing till yesterday afternoon, pouring steadily. The streams in this vicinity rose rapidly and a large portion of the abutment of the Vermont end of the toll bridge here gave way, sliding into the river and severing communication between here and New Hampshire. A few small bridges on other streams are reported carried away and other damage done by high water.

Mike McDonald's Wife Heard from.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Mike McDonald, the well-known Chicago politician and gambler, whose wife left home suddenly some time ago and was supposed to have eloped with a French priest, is said to have received a letter from Mrs. McDonald, who is now in Paris. She states that she is about to return home, and expresses surprise at the reports that have been in circulation concerning her departure.

A Fever Patient Cuts His Throat.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 8.—Last evening Mark McFadden, residing near Clintonville, this county, while suffering from typhoid fever, secured a pen-knife during the absence of his attendants, and cut his throat and severed the arteries of his arm. He then returned to his bed and bled to death. When discovered by the nurse he was past medical aid. McFadden was a farmer and well off.

The Kendals Well Received.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal made their appearance for the first time in America last night at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, in "A Scrap of Paper." The famous English couple were greeted by a large and select audience. Mr. Kendal, in response to prolonged calls upon the fall of the curtain, made a brief speech of thanks for the kind reception.

A Theatrical Manager Disappears.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Andrew W. Aborn, manager of the Gaiety Theatre in this city, is missing and the theatre is closed. Employes say the manager owed them back pay, and that he is in debt to other parties. Frank I. Frayne was to have played at the theatre this week.

Admiral Porter Not Seriously Ill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Admiral Porter's son said to-day that his father was ill, but his illness was not serious. Commodore Skerrett had been ordered to command the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H.

IN THE LABOR FIELD

Baltimore Knights Desire Important Changes.

SALARIES MUST BE REDUCED.

No More Charters to be Issued to National Trade Districts.

A Vigorous Eight-Hour Agitation Started by Massachusetts Carpenters—A General Fight to be Made Throughout New England—Successful Strike in Edison's Electric Light Factory.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 8.—District Assembly No. 41 of Maryland last night adopted a resolution, which is to be presented to the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor at Atlanta in December, demanding that the body amend the general Constitution of the order as follows:

"To revoke the charters of National Trades Districts now outstanding and to issue no more charters to that class of districts. [This means that the order shall go back to the modus operandi which obtained prior to two years ago, before provision was made for the existence of trades districts by the Convention at Minneapolis.]

"To reduce the number of members of the General Executive Board to three members, the General Master Workman, the General Worthy Foreman and the General Investigator. To reduce the salaries of all the general officers. That twenty-five per cent. of the per capita tax that goes into the general treasury shall be devoted to educational purposes, such as printing tracts, defraying the expenses of lectures, etc." It is also demanded that the general assembly clearly define the fourth section of the platform of the order in reference to the question of taxation upon land.

EIGHT-HOUR AGITATION.

Union Carpenters to Make an Active Fight Throughout New England.

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—The Union Carpenters of Massachusetts decided at a meeting held here last night to enter into a vigorous eight-hour agitation throughout New England. The meeting was under the auspices of the Carpenters' District Council and 27 of the principal manufacturing and commercial centres of the State were represented by 55 delegates. A communication from the Executive Board of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of North America was read, stating that the Carpenters' Unions in all other parts of America were arranging for the eight-hour agitation and the possible establishment of the eight-hour day on May 1, 1890.

The meeting issued an appeal to Knights of Labor and members of all trade unions to co-operate in the eight-hour agitation.

Strike in Edison's Factory.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 8.—Two hundred employes in the Edison electric light factory in Harrison, a suburb of Newark, went on strike yesterday as a result of the 20 per cent. reduction of the $13 and $16 weekly salaries. The excuse given for the reduction is that business is poor. The works will close down to-day.

General Manager Upton has just sent for the men and agreed to resume work at the old prices.

Providence Printers' Strike Settled.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 8.—The difficulty between the "Evening Telegram" and the union printers was amicably adjusted yesterday under the new management. A number of the compositors who have been working during the protracted trouble are retained by mutual agreement.

Lancaster Cigarmakers on Strike.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 8.—One hundred Cigarmakers in the employment of Oblinger Bros. & Co., of this city, struck this morning against a proposed reduction in wages.

JOHNSTOWN'S NEW PLAGUE.

Typhoid Fever on the Increase and Much Suffering from Cold Weather.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 8.—Typhoid fever is on the increase here. Twenty-one persons are sick with the disease and two died yesterday.

The cold weather is causing great suffering. The distribution of $1,600,000 relief money is delayed and but few of the persons have their winter clothing, while the homes many live in are but shanties.

Two more bodies were found in the debris yesterday.

The Libel Suit Against Bishop Ryan.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Judge Lyman has denied another motion for a bill of particulars in the libel suit of Rev. Father Francis Dent against Bishop Ryan, of Buffalo. The Bishop wants the names of Father Dent's witnesses. Father Dent, who conducts his own case, argued that this would give an opportunity to put the witnesses out of the jurisdiction, or to corrupt or intimidate them. He stated the places where the alleged libel was uttered, namely, at the Bishop's palace, Buffalo, St. Anthony's Church, New York, and the Cathedral, New York. The court thought this was sufficient, and declined to order the witnesses' names to be revealed.

The Delegates in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—The delegates to the American Congress visited Lawrence and Lowell yesterday. They were received by the Mayors and municipal officials of these cities, and made an inspection of a number of the mills and factories. Last night the visitors attended the Hollis Street Theater, and afterward left the city to continue their journey. On Friday the delegates will be the guests of Governor Hill and the Fort Orange Club at Albany, N. Y.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—Mr. W. W. Martin will be at the Y. M. C. A. rooms Friday evening from 8:30 to 9 o'clock to enroll names of young men and boys who may desire to join classes in Mechanical drawing.

—Louis James is a grand reader and his interpretation of Hamlet, at Music Hall, last evening, was entirely satisfactory and in thorough good taste. Miss Amber was a beautiful and artistic Ophelia personally, but Ophelia never wore an accordean-plaited skirt.

—The idea of publishing marriage notices and death notices in a local paper is to give an authorized statement of the events for the use of friends who cut out such notices for future reference. It is important, therefore, that the date include the day of the week, and date of the month and year in which the event occurred.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. D. O. Tiffany of Crescent avenue, has arrived home from Europe.

The aged mother of Mr. S. C. Peck of this city, has arrived from her home in Milford, Conn., for a visit to her son on West Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. R. Clarkson, and Miss Clarkson, returned from Europe, Saturday, and are at home for the Winter at 351 Fifth avenue, New York.

At her home at Scotch Plains yesterday occurred the death of Mrs. Eliza Sykes, the estimable mother of Rev. C. L. Sykes. The deceased was 83 years of age, and her death resulted from old age.

Mrs. Malinda Henry, an aged lady, died at her home in Washington Valley, on Saturday night from old age. The deceased was 77 years of age. The funeral took place from the house today.

The latest additions to the ranks of bicycle riders, are the Rev. W. R. Richards of the Crescent Avenue church, and President W. D. Murray of the Y. M. C. A. They are practising diligently before appearing in public.

The funeral of the late Louie de Castro, whose tragic death occurred at Scotch Plains on Saturday night, as told in THE PRESS of yesterday, took place from Brittin's Hotel, this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Parks officiated.

At a meeting of the Presbytery, held in Elizabeth Tuesday of last week, a committee was appointed on the revision of the Presbyterian Confession of Faith The Rev. W. B. Richards, and Mr. I. C. Pierson, of this city, are members of the committee.

Miss Julia E. Bulkley, Principal of the Public Schools, now absent in Europe, is not enjoying good health during her tour of rest and recreation. Now that she is freed from the great burden of school cares which she unnecessarily increased, reaction has set in and weariness follows a release from the strain.

Cut Off His Father's Finger.

Thomas Worth, the harness maker of Somerset street, bought a new safe that arrived yesterday. His son told him it was not big enough for the business and that the door would not shut with the books inside.

Young Worth gave the door a shove to show his father it would not shut. But it did, and so quick that Mr. Worth could not get all his fingers out of the way in time. The end of one finger was cut completely off.

Mechanical Drawing To-night.

The Y. M. C. A. classes in Mechanical Drawing will resume their work this evening. A new class will be organized at once and will commence work on the 15th inst. By this instruction a carpenter can become his own architect, and a machinist his own draughtsman. The best positions in mechanical trades are open only to men who unedrstand mechanical drawing.

The membership fee, $2, includes all privileges in the Association. Further information at the rooms.

The Coming Convention.

The convention of Republican clubs, to be held at Elizabeth, Oct. 15, will be likely to give the general cause a great boom. This is to be, in fact, a grand assemblage of the membership of the State Republican league, the representation of each individual club, though fixed by the terms of their constitution, being ample enough to secure a large convention.

Opening the Tournament.

The fifth annual tournament of the Middlesex Gun Gun Club opened at Dunellen today, and will continue up to and including Friday. Many of the crack shots of the country have arrived and others will be in attendance during one or more days of the tournament. The first two days will be devoted to clay bird shooting, and the last two days to live bird shooting.

American Shooting Association rules and classification will govern inanimate target shooting.

The same rules will govern live birds, with the exception of the boundary, which will be 80 yards from the traps, or field enclosure.

The Tournament Committee reserve the right to make any changes in programme that will better suit shooters present, with their consent.

Birds are included in all sweepstakes, except guaranteed events. Tie birds are extra.

The officers of the Middlesex Gun Club are: S. G. Smith, President; Chas. Smith, Vice President; W. L. Force, Secretary; Andrew Lutkins, Treasurer.

Tournament Committee—W. Fred Quimby, M. W. Mulford, T. H. Keller, Wm. Sigler, Nevius Apgar.

Press Committee—Frank Mason, of Forest and Stream; Jacob Pentz, of American Field.

Classification by Maj. J. M. Taylor.

Do! Do!

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In your issue of Saturday there is a sound and sensible proposition from "A Republican" and a promise from you that "We do! We do!"

The best thing the people of Plainfield can possibly do is to nominate a Citizens' Ticket, to be voted for and elected, (as it surely would be), at the next municipal election in December, from Mayor to the last office on the ticket. What we want, as your correspondent so truthfully says, is a Common Council of practical, energetic, business men, who know how to run our city government economically; which now seems not to be considered at all; and men who know what the wants and necessities of the people at large, are. Men who will not think that spending the people's money rashly is public enterprise, and who will not consider that the rum question is the paramount one in our town.

We want neither tools of the saloon, nor dupes of designing men to rule over us. We have had enough of that sort of government. Throw politics to the wind in our city affairs and elect the right kind of men to serve us, is the motto of

ANOTHER REPUBLICAN.

Fated With Ill Luck.

Yesterday Miss Burt, one of the Public School teachers, fell and wrenched her hip badly, but she was still able to walk. This morning, as she was leaving her home, she fell again and broke the same hip. Drs. Endicott and Berg treated the fracture in their usual skillful way, but the patient will be confined to her bed for some time.

Last Winter Miss Burt was thrown out of a sleigh and severely bruised in the side. This developed in dangerous symptoms that necessitated her undergoing professional treatment and a surgical operation at Muhlenberg Hospital. But she had entirely recovered from all that and was again attending to her school duties, when today's misfortune came.

Against Taxing the Necessaries of Life.

"The Tariff Reform Club" of Plainfield, N. J., was organized last evening at a meeting of citizens at the office of Wm. K. McClure, Esq. The object of this club is effective agitation in favor of Tariff Reform by a reduction of Tariff taxes, especially upon raw materials of our manufactures, and upon the necessaries of life.

The following were elected officers:

President—Charles P. Bull.
1st Vice President—Seymour Marsh.
2d " " —James T. Scott.
3d " " —J. O. Stevens.
4th " " —Tell A. Beguelin.
Treasurer—A. Swalm.
Secretary—John Mortimer.

Gone to Washington.

The following members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., of this city, have gone on to Washington, D. C., to attend the meeting of the Grand Lodge, Knights Templar, which convenes there today: Messrs John E. Beerbower, D. C. Adams, W. H. Sebring, J. G. Miller, Dr. J. T. Fritts, John Chandler, J. T. Odam, I. D. TenEyck, B. F. Coriell, A. Collier, J. J. H. Poillion, and Henry Woodland. Messrs TenEyck, Coriell and Woodland left for Washington on the 1 A. M. train today, and the rest of the delegation started yesterday. Many took their wives also.

Ho! For the Mountains.

There is nothing more beautiful than the Autumnal change of foliage from green to golden and crimson hues. To gaze upon the mountains so arrayed is to view nature in her grandest state. That enjoyment can be fully realized by joining the Reform Club excursion to Mauch Chunk, Glen Onoko and the renowned Switchback to-morrow, Wednesday. The train leaves Plainfield at 9:25 A. M., and tickets for the trip cost only $1.75, which will be largely refunded in healthful pleasure. Let all go who possibly can.

—At the Council meeting last evening, Councilman Marsh, Chairman of the Street Committee, stated that out of the $10,000 appropriated for street work, about $6,000 has already been spent. The committee will expend a total of about $9,500 for the year.

Y. P. S. C. E.

The annual meeting of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Trinity Reformed church, was held last evening. The audience was very large, over one hundred and fifty being in attendance and Christian unity prevailed. Only one nomination was made for each office, the secretary casting the ballot. The following were elected:

President Mr. P. S. Dunn.
1st Vice Pres.—Mr. Chas. P. Gelhaar.
2d Vice Pres.—Mrs. C. Schenck.
Rec. Secretary—Mr. J. R. Dunn.
Cor. Secretary—Miss E. C. Benedict.
Treasurer—Miss J. Johnson.

This society is the largest in Union county and is steadily growing in number and spiritual interest. One of its members has recently been admitted into Rutgers Theological Seminary as a candidate for the ministery. The society will hold its fourth anniversary exercises in the church on Friday evening of this week, to which all are invited.

Three Governors to Speak.

It is now certain that the convention of New Jersey Democratic clubs to be held at Newark next Thursday, will be a marked success. It will be held in the Academy of Music, on Thursday, Oct. 10, beginning at 12 o'clock noon. At night, after the adjournment of the convention a grand mass meeting will be held under the joint auspices of the association, the State Democratic committee and the Essex County Democratic committee, to suitably ratify the nomination of Leon Abbett. Gov. Robert S. Green will preside, and Governor David B. Hill of New York, will positively be present. So will Leon Abbett.

Mr. Daft is One of Those Devisers.

Advocates of the electric motor for railways cannot extract much comfort from the report made by a Baltimore company which has tried the electric system for three years, and has now abandoned it because it proves far more expensive to operate than a horse railroad. The fault, however, must be in the method of application, not in the agent employed. Electricity seems destined to be more and more used, and it is fair to assume that more economical methods of applying it to the various purposes to which it is adapted will be devised. It has active competitors now, but some day it will lead them all.—N. Y. Tribune.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING.

The City Council met in regular session last evening, with all the members present excepting Messrs Dunham, Jenkins and Watson. Mr. Jenkins came in later. The minutes of the meeting of September 16 were read and approved, and sundry applications for hack and peddlers' licenses were received, referred and subsequently granted.

PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS.

Under this heading the following were sent in: From J. D. Runyon, asking for permission to repair the roof on a shed in the lumber yard of the D. J. Boice estate. Referred with power.

From C. A. Hunter, with reference to certain property on Eighth street, which has been advertised for sale for taxes, and stating that the taxes on said property have been paid, and receipts can be produced for the same. Referred to the Finance Committee.

From Frank Campbell, of Liberty street, a petition in the form of a claim for $4, for damages by water during the late flood. Tabled. Likewise a communication from Angelo, Albino & Co; offering to furnish contract labor for the introduction of water works.

From E. H. Burlingame, of Providence and another water works firm requesting the return of their proposals. The matter was referred to the Water Committee, and the committee was authorized to return the proposals together with the propositions of the other companies if similar requests were made.

From W. P. Banks and others, asking for three electric lights on Netherwood avenue. To the Committee on Public Lights.

From P. Lynch, to erect a frame shed on Sycamore street. To Building Committee with power.

From W. S. Benton and others, for a crosswalk over Park avenue at Second street. Referred with power.

From Geo. M. Angleman, stating that warrant No. 6368 for $20 25 had been lost, and that the petitioner had paid that amount himself. He was re-imbursed.

T. W. Morrison sent in a communication calling attention to a "chestnut" claim of his for $83 20 for illegal advertising. The bill has been presented several times before and payment has been refused, yet Morrison has the audacity to again request its payment. The matter was referred to the Printing Committee, together with all the papers referring to the claim, and it now remains to be seen whether the committee will misuse the people's money to pay the false claim.

Claims were presented and referred as follows:

Streets—G. M. Angleman, $203 25; J. P. Laire & Co., 50 72; R. W. Mabaffee, 69; G. M. Angleman, 16 50; Jno. Kelly, 15; Thos. Dowd, 40 12; Howard H. Wilson, 9; James Brenan, 18 75; Jno. Flynn, 25 50; T. Melville, 18; Jno. Barry, 6; P. Moran, 9; T. Burke, 56; M. Sweeney, 4 50; Robt. Randolph, 11 25; Jno. Wierenga, 17 50; A. J McClain, 30; F. A. Dunham, $35 75; J. C. Pope & Co., 130 25; J. H. Wilson, 588 81.

Fire Department—T. O. Doane, 41 66; H. M. Sherwin, 26; C. F. Glaentzer, 10; J. A. Rogers, 68 25; Ellis Handville, 5; J. P. Laire & Co., 2 35; E. B. Preston & Co., 11; J. J. Sharp, 4 50; J. P. Emmons, 8 48; Plainfield Gas Co., 6 98; J. H. Albert, 4; H. K. Voorhees, 5; Geo. Conover, 83 32.

Miscellaneous—J. Johnson, 1 25; O. B. Leonard, 62 50; V W. Nash, 124 03; W. V. Mundy, 31 70; Geo. M. Angleman, 90; J. R. Naylor, 6 50; Electric Light Co., 672 37; Jas. Clark, 105

Police—T. J. Carey, $92 50; C. Giesse, 60; T. McCue, 60; P. Lynch, 60; P. J. Flanagan, 60; Geo. W. Grant, 60; W. R. Mattox, 23 75; A. Muir, 11; J. Kriney, 4 50; Hetfield Bros., 5 50; R. H. Radford, 18; District Telephone Co., 7; J. H. Albert, 1 50; M. C. Bird, 62 50.

The treasurer reported that three notes would fall due on October 12, one for $2,000 on the general fund, one for $2,000 on the fire department fund, and one for $500 on the poor fund.

The monthly reports of the treasurer and collector were referred to the Finance Committee.

The following persons were declared duly elected members of the Fire Department: Engine Co., No. 2, Wm. F. Townley, Chas. H. Farlee; Zephyr Hook and Ladder Co., Chas. Peterson, John F. Ammon, Jacob Blimm, Jr.

The Finance Committee reported that it would be inexpedient to accept Mr. Chas. Hand's proposition. Report received and recommendation adopted.

The Fire and Building Commitee through Mr. Erickson, reported unfavorably upon the petition of Mr. Asa Collier, for permission to erect a frame building in the rear of the Olympia alley. He also stated that two bids had been received for furnishing a heater for No. 2, engine house, viz: Carney Bros., $450; A. M. Griffin, $395. A resolution was adopted accepting the latter bid, and the Corporation Counsel was instructed to draw up a contract for the fulfillment of the work.

Mr. Marsh offered a resolution which prevailed, providing for the proper dispensation of the discounts on notes.

Mayor Hugh O. Grant, of New York city, communicated with the Council, asking the hearty co-operation of the city in the matter of holding the International Fair in New York in 1892. The paper was filed.

The following resolutions offered by Mr. Marsh, were all adopted: One authorizing the mayor and treasurer to execute a three month's note on the First National Bank for $4,600 in anticipation of taxes for 1889; another that the treasurer pay off the $500 note on the poor fund, and execute another note for $700 on the same fund; also providing for the payment of the fire department note, and the executing of another note for the same amount.

The street improvement ordinance was called to its third reading and adopted.

Mr. Marsh offered a resolution to the effect that the work done under the above ordinance be confined to Madison avenue, East and West Fourth streets. The resolution was adopted.

The same Councilman introduced an ordinance for the repair and permanent improvement of Elm place. Its was adopted on its second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised.

An appropriation of $3,250 was made for street work, the Auditing Committee reported on the claims sent in during the evening, and

The Council then adjourned.

To Locate in New York.

The following extracts from Albany papers will be read with interest:

"We are sorry to learn of the contemplated removal of the Cleveland baking powder business from this city. We understand that its rapidly increasing business will shortly render enlarged facilities desirable, so that the proprietors have determined to remove to New York, where their export trade can be more conveniently handled.

"Albanians, who have watched the growth of this business from small beginnings to its present mammoth proportions, will regret to see it go, but will rejoice with its owners in its new prosperity. It is but just to say that Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder as a food product has the enviable reputation of being a thoroughly wholesome, effective, and honestly made article. The people of Albany and vicinity have known this fact for about a score of years and have shown their appreciation by their steadily increasing consumption of this excellent baking powder. This, and the fact that all recent investigations, including those made by the Food Commissioners of the States of Ohio and New Jersey and of the Canadian Government, show that Cleveland's is superior to any baking powder on the market, have so increased the business that more extensive accommodations are necessary.

"A new label is being prepared, but the old name "Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder" and the heretofore high quality of goods will be maintained.

"Dr. Hoagland, the first, and for many years, President, and Wm. Zeigler, former Treasurer, of the Royal company, two of its main props, have now left it. The former will be President of the new company, and his known integrity, liberality, and experience promises great success for the new organization, and lively times for all competitors."

Death of a John Brown Juror.

John C. McClure, aged 85, uncle of Counsellor W. K. McClure of this city, died at his farm home, near Summit Point, West Virginia, yesterday morning. Mr. McClure was the last survivor of the John Brown jury save one. At the time of the verdict in the "Ossawatomie" Brown case, in 1859, it was predicted that violent death would come to the jury which returned the death sentence, but out of the eleven who have died only one death, that of Walter Shirley, was violent. Shirley was thrown from his horse a few years ago, and so badly injured that he died shortly afterward.

Mr. McClure was a communicant of the Lutheran church, and universally esteemed. His end was peaceful and his death is greatly deplored.

At Music Hall, Oct. 16.

The ten great episodes of the famous Battle of Gettysburg, which will be presented in oil at Music Hall, on Wednesday of next week, will be a sight well worth many times the price of admission asked.

Who is there among the patriotic sons and daughters of this great Republic to whom the history of the late War has not been more than of passing interest? At this entertainment may be witnessed scenes of one of the greatest fights the World ever knew, brought out by the artist's brush in such a realistic manner as to cause the beholder to imagine that the scenes of those dark days when the welfare of this nation was trembling in the balance are again being enacted before them.

Professor Gauthier, of Paris, states that certain vital processes of the body develop putrifying substances in the tissues, which, if not speedily eliminated, produce disease. Ayer's Sarsaparilla effects the removal of these substances, and thereby preserves health.

—The Music Hall's new orchestra is "getting there." It has tackled some rather pretentious music, but it knows what it's after and struggles bravely to reach it.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup takes the lead of all cough preparations on our shelves. Carpenter & Palmeter, Jamestown, N. Y.

I heartily recommend Salvation Oil for neuralgia, for it acts like a charm. J. S. McCAULLEY, (policeman.) Residence 205 N. Bond st., Balto., Md.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

George Wilson and Reese Eavenson, drovers of Christiana, Pa., made firm and individual assignments yesterday.

Ex-President Hayes is visiting relatives at Bratteboro, Vt., at the old Hayes mansion once occupied by his grandparents.

Martin Detrick was arrested at Shamokin Dam, Pa., yesterday charged with the murder of Charles Hain, the boy who was recently robbed and killed in that vicinity. Detrick is now in jail at Middleburg, Pa.

The interesting suit of Wm. Stewart against the city of Easton, Pa., and the county of Northampton, to recover 80 feet square of the public square, is to be tried in the United States Circuit Court at Philadelphia within a day or two.

Joseph Hillman, the sentenced murderer at Woodbury, N. J., has not yet given up hope, though the time of the fulfillment of his sentence is fast approaching. He says his counsel has certain facts which will bring about a reprieve.

The fall season at Tuxedo, N. J., has opened in a lively manner. The autumnal foliage which has made the glorious old mountains surrounding Tuxedo Lake one mass of gold, and brow and red have drawn a gay throng to the cottages.

Much to the relief of many witnesses, the Lutkins-Ochs breach of promise case in Hackensack, N. J., has finally been settled by the agreement of the defendant Ochs to marry Miss Jennie Lutkins. The case has been in Jersey courts for over two years.

Three weddings are to take place in Bergen Point, N. J., to-morrow. The couples are Miss Abbie Story, youngest daughter of Rufus Story, and Chas. W. Marshall, a New York lawyer; Miss H. Southard and S. Livingston Davis, and Miss Emily Fuller and Mr. Sidney W. Fisher.

The Sheriff of Hunterdon county commenced a five-days' sale of real estate and personal property of the West End Iron Company at West Portal, N. J., today. The company have mined and sold over 1,000,000 tons of ore during the past ten years. Their liabilities reach $300,000, against an appraisement of $30,000 assets.

Ship Building on the Lakes.

BUFFALO, Oct. 8.—The ship yards of the great lakes will be busy the coming winter. Thirty-five boats of an aggregate tonnage of 67,330 and cost of $4,653,800 are now under contract to be built, and the list will probably be increased by a half dozen other craft before snow flies. Bay City is in the lead both in numbers and tonnage, although Cleveland is a good second. Detroit drops materially as a ship building point, while Buffalo has but a single boat to her credit.

Wants to Be Admitted on Bail.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 8.—The application for a writ of error in the Lester B. Faulkner case came up before Judge Wallace in the United States Circuit Court yesterday afternoon. George Raines made the argument on behalf of Faulkner. The opinion seems to be that the court will grant the application, which will place the prisoner in a position to get out of jail on bail, if he can find sureties in about $40,000.

Survivors Reach Port.

ST. PIERRE, Miquelon, Oct. 8.—The schooner Ray has arrived here with Second Officer Danquet and 18 of the crew and 7 cattlemen from the wrecked steamer Geographique. The men had been 36 hours afloat in a boat without food or water in a rough sea before being picked up. Chief Fireman Langlais, Fireman Queslet, Coaltrimmer Guena, and one cattleman was missing and are supposed to have been drowned when the steamer went down.

Mrs. Hamilton Broken Down.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 8.—Mrs. Robert Ray Hamilton spent another sleepless night in her cell in the prison here, and is completely broken down. She was not put to work this morning as was at first intended. Her pitiable pleas for her husband to come to her relief are so frequently made that even the stern prison officials are greatly moved and express deep sympathy for the unfortunate woman.

Coughing

IS Nature's effort to expel foreign substances from the bronchial passages. Frequently, this causes inflammation and the need of an anodyne. No other expectorant or anodyne is equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It assists Nature in ejecting the mucus, allays irritation, induces repose, and is the most popular of all cough cures.

"Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of colds, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there is none, within the range of my experience, so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For years I was subject to colds, followed by terrible coughs. About four years ago, when so afflicted, I was advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and to lay all other remedies aside. I did so, and within a week was well of my cold and cough. Since then I have always kept this preparation in the house, and feel comparatively secure."—Mrs. L. L. Brown, Denmark, Miss.

"A few years ago I took a severe cold which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continual use of the Pectoral, a permanent cure was effected."—Horace Fairbrother, Rockingham, Vt.

LONDON'S NEW RAID

An Attempt to Close a Variety Hall Creates Censure.

THE SOCIAL EVIL HAS FRIENDS.

They Cannot See the Good of Driving Abandoned Women Into the Streets.

London Divided Into Two Hostile Camps on the Question—Cardinal Manning and the Bishop of London to Discuss the Matter at a Public Meeting—Opposition Meeting Also Called.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Much feeling is manifested over the refusal of the County Council to grant a license to the Aquarium, and the action of the Licensing Committee in undertaking to close up this establishment because it is patronized by women of the unfortunate class, is severely censured.

The recommendation of the committee is still to be acted upon by the Councils and in the meantime the whole subject of the duty of society to these unfortunates is being ventilated in the newspapers and at the clubs.

The action of the committee is mildly praised by the world of fashion, and enthusiastically endorsed by the clergy and the church people, but others are loudly asking, "What good is accomplished by driving these poor women into the street?" Certainly the evil which this highly moral committee undertake to correct has never been touched by former attempts of this sort, and it is pointed out that until the authorities are prepared to deal with the whole question in some intelligent and comprehensive spirit, such crude and ill-digested measures as the closing of well-conducted and otherwise respectable and orderly resorts simply because they are frequented by women of the objectionable class are worse than useless.

A meeting has been arranged for next Friday, to be presided over by Cardinal Manning and the Bishop of London at which the action of the Licensing Committee of the Councils is to be sustained. Other meetings have been called to condemn their action and many prominent men have promised to attend and speak. For the moment London is divided into two hostile camps on this question and its final settlement by the Councils is awaited with no little interest. Very few people expect however that the Councils will reverse the action of their Committee, who, it is known, are on this question in perfect accord with the parent body.

THE CANDY POISONING CASE.

A Clerk Arrested Who Was Once in an Insane Asylum.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 8.—Never in the history of this city was there more excitement than prevailed yesterday afternoon when it became known that William McDonald, a clerk in the wholesale drug establishment of T. B. Barker & Sons, had been arrested, charged with being the person who sent the poisoned candy through the mail which caused the death of Mrs. McRae. The people flocked to the police station and stood in crowds about the streets discussing the matter.

McDonald is a brother of Mrs. Barker, widow of the late Mayor of St. John, and, therefore, his connection with the leading families of the city made the arrest a genuine surprise. The information which led to the arrest was placed in the hands of the Coroner by a woman, who sent for the Solicitor-General, and on her sworn testimony the Crown officer ordered the arrest. After the arrest a detective visited Barker's wholesale establishment and found boxes corresponding exactly to the ones in which the candy was sent. McDonald was for some time in an asylum, but was discharged as cured in May last. He was in some part of Quebec or Ontario during the Galt poisoned candy cases.

WAITING FOR THE RUSH.

A Toronto Paper Tells How the Cutter Might Easily be Captured.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 8.—The Toronto "Globe" says: The Rush is an insignificant little concern. Half a dozen armed sealers acting in combination against her might easily capture her, bring her crew into port and demand their trial for piracy.

As has already been stated the crews of the seized British Columbia sealers contemplate some sort of retaliation if the Rush puts into Victoria to dry dock as reported she will soon do.

The Government has ordered that a detachment of the militia force be detailed for duty to prevent any trouble if the Rush is docked at either Victoria or Esquimalt.

Queen Natalie's Final Answer.

BELGRADE, Oct. 8.—Queen Natalie has given her final answer to the Regents and the Cabinet and is determined to remain in Belgrade. She has resolved, she says, not only to face all the consequences of a defiance of Servia's rulers, but will decline to accept any decision of the Skupshtina restricting her stay in Servia. She stoutly maintains that it is beyond the power of the ordinary Skupshtina to interfere in the matter.

Composition of the New French Chamber.

PARIS, Oct. 8.—It is officially announced that the next Chamber of Deputies will be composed of 360 Republicans and 205 oppositionists. The Republicans will be divided into groups comprising 236 Moderates and 126 Radicals, and the oppositionists will be represented by 100 Royalists, 58 Bonapartists and 47 Boulangists.

Boulanger Leaves London.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Gen. Boulanger left London secretly last night accompanied by his secretary and mistress. The party go to Jersey, where rooms have already been provided for them at a hotel. The General's horses and carriages were shipped in advance.

Big Vote for a Gladstonian.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—At the election in Petersborough yesterday to fill a vacancy in the House of Commons, Morton, the Gladstonian candidate, was elected, receiving 1,893 votes. Burns, the Unionist candidate, received 1,642.

France-American Billiard Tournament.

PARIS, Oct. 8.—The French billiard champions, Vignaux, Piol and Gay, are to be pitted against the Americans, Schaefer, Slosson and Daly, for a championship contest, early in December.

KIDNAPPED OR KILLED.

Strange Disappearance of a Little Girl in Oxford, N. J.

BELVIDERE, N. J., Oct. 8.—Great excitement has been caused in Oxford over the strange disappearance of the nine-year-old daughter of John Strockbin.

The child was last seen Sunday afternoon while returning from Sunday-school. She had to walk along a lonely road and pass through a thicket to reach her father's house. After leaving the Sunday-school she started down the road with several of her companions, who left her when they reached the thicket.

She has not been seen since and it is feared that she has been kidnapped or met with a violent death.

Her parents waited long after the time she usually arrived home from Sunday-school, when they started out to search for her. A number of citizens volunteered to assist Mr. Strockbin in the search, and they spent the night scouring the woods and the surrounding country, but found no trace of the missing child.

Some of the residents of this place say they heard screams late at night and the rumbling of carriage wheels on one of the lonely roads on the outskirts of the town.

The ponds and streams in Oxford and the vicinity are to be dragged, as it is thought that the little girl might have lost her way and fell into one of the streams and was drowned.

HIS RASH ACT.

A Young Man Commits Suicide on the Eve of His Marriage.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—Joseph E. Middleton, aged twenty-six, a clerk in the employ of the Keen Sutterle Company, leather importers, No. 427 North Third street, shot and killed himself yesterday in a room in the Merchants Hotel. Middleton was to have been married next Thursday, to Miss Lillie Spahns, the daughter of the proprietor of the hotel.

No cause can be assigned for the act as his accounts were all correct, and the young lady is a lovely girl to whom Middleton seemed devotedly attached. He left two letters in his room but gives no reason for a desire to end his life.

BIG BLAZE IN PITTSBURG.

Oliver Brothers' Machine Shops and General Offices Burned.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 8.—The three-story brick building, comprising the machine shops, car shops, blacksmith shops and general offices of Oliver Brothers' Tenth street mill, was totally burned last night.

The fire started alongside the engine and catching some old waste and stuff spread rapidly. The blaze caught the belt rope controlling the governor of the engine and burned it away. With its controlling power thus gone the engine started to run at a terrific speed, and three large air fans used to drive air through the works revolved at a rapid rate and the dense smoke and flames were driven all through the building compelling the firemen to get out. Their attention was then turned to saving the puddling mill and other buildings.

The firemen had several narrow escapes from falling walls but none were seriously injured. The firm will rebuild the works at once. The loss is $300,000, fully covered by insurance, most of which is placed in Eastern and foreign companies.

HOTEL FIRE.

A Panic Among the Guests of the Bates House at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8.—Fire from a gas jet in a basement room in the Bates House yesterday soon caused a big blaze in the well-known hotel. It took the firemen two hours to get the flames under control.

The smoke penetrated every room. There was a panic among the second-story guests, but all were rescued by ladders. The wife of State's Attorney Mitchell, an invalid, was carried down a ladder.

The building was a four-story brick structure of 300 rooms, palatially furnished throughout.

RELIGIOUS OBJECTIONS.

A Young Lady Would Not Disown Her Lover and She is Sent to a Convent.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 8.—Attorney W. S. Bird of this city is preparing the preliminary papers in an interesting abduction suit. Stella Weir is a pretty and intelligent young lady of 18 years, who lived with her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Wier, in the Twenty-seventh ward. Miss Wier formed a strong attachment for a young man named Engle.

Mrs. Weir opposed a marriage because she is a Catholic while Eugle is a Protestant and a member of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics. Being unable to induce her daughter to break off her relations with Engle, Mrs. Weir, acting on the advice of Father Bernard of St. Michael's German Catholic Church, entered a charge of incorrigibility against her daughter before Alderman Hartman, also a Catholic.

Miss Weir was arrested and taken to Alderman Hartman's office, where the Alderman, Mrs. Weir and the priest promised to release her if she would dismiss Engle. This the girl refused to do. She was then taken to a convent at Columbus, O., where she is now confined. The Junior Mechanics have taken up the matter, and will prosecute the parties concerned.

Accident in a Shooting Gallery.

PITTSFIELD, Me., Oct. 8.—George Andrews and Edward Smith, two boys, who opened a shooting gallery here a few days ago, were arrested for the shooting, accidental it is supposed, of a seven-year old boy named Willie Trumbull. The Smith boy escaped from the lock-up and left with a stolen team.

Killed by a Runaway Team.

STOUGHTON, Mass., Oct. 8.—Samuel J. Hodges, aged 68, was instantly killed here yesterday by being run over by a team owned by B. F. Washburn, of Brockton. The deceased was a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow.

"Liverpool Jack" Sentenced.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—John Fitzgerald, better known as "Liverpool Jack," has been sentenced to nine years in State's prison by Judge Cowing, in Part I, General Sessions Court, for abducting men to work in Yucatan.

Appointed Director of the Mint.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 8.—The President has appointed Edward O. Leech, of the District of Columbia, Director of the Mint.

EAT AND BE MERRY.

Views of Doctors on When to Eat and What to Eat.

The Evils of Hasty Eating — "Bolting" Rather Than the Kind of Food Responsible for Indigestion — A Liberal Diet the Proper Thing.

What to eat is a question that troubles every one more or less. Several doctors who have been talked to on the subject of eating lately agree that a man ought to be able to eat any thing that he fancies. One doctor said that a man's digestive organs ought to be in such a condition that he could eat shingle nails. They attribute dyspepsia not so much to eating wrong kinds of food as from eating too hurriedly and paying too little attention to their meals when they are eating, and letting their mind wander away to business and other subjects of the day.

Dr. Alexander Lambert, house surgeon at Bellevue Hospital, of New York, has given some attention to the subject of eating. He said to a Philadelphia Press reporter:

"I think the trouble with people in this country is that they overeat. They don't eat so often as the Frenchman or the Englishman, but when they do eat they usually partake of a large variety of food, and eat it as hurriedly as they possibly can, in order that they may be kept from their business as little a while as possible. In this way they overeat. If they haven't time to sit down and eat an elaborate dinner slowly and carefully, then the best thing they can do is to eat a small, plain meal, which they could easily do in the time that they devote to their elaborate dinner, and from which they would derive a great deal more benefit.

"I think that the best time for one to take breakfast is between seven and eight o'clock in the morning. Dinner should be had at about one o'clock, if possible; that is, if time can be spared at one o'clock to eat the meal properly. If not, a light luncheon should be had at one o'clock and the meal of the day at about six o'clock. Another light meal might be had at about nine or ten o'clock at night if one is hungry. I usually find that an orange or a cracker is all that I want to eat at that time. I think as a rule families of the better class eat very sensibly. They usually eat plain, substantial food, which is prepared in a simple way, and not spoiled by being made up into fancy dishes and highly seasoned. I think, though, that they make a mistake in not drinking enough water with their meals. A man who leads a literary life and one who is occupied at his desk and in his office all day should be careful what kind of a breakfast he eats. It should not be too heavy.

"Such a man should eat very little oatmeal, as oatmeal is heating. He might eat lightly of steak, chops, weak coffee, milk and fruit. A laborer, or one who is engaged in physical and manual labor, can eat heartily of oatmeal, bread and butter, meat, eggs, coffee and almost any thing that is strengthening. In the middle of the day the laboring man should have his dinner. The busy man who is down town must take time to have a light lunch. The habit of rushing out and getting something to eat perhaps while standing at the buffet, may not seem to do any harm just now; but by and by the effect will be very serious. When this man has got through with his day's work and his mind is at rest, he should eat his heaviest meal of the day, his dinner. He should eat it carefully and slowly, and pay attention to what he is eating and to his meal generally. It is a mistake for men to attempt to eat any meal and to read at the same time.

"Don't go to bed hungry. If you have been to the theater or out late, eat a light meal before you retire. Highly seasoned foods ought to be generally avoided. Sweets should not be eaten as much as they are. They hurt the digestion and spoil the appetite. Fruits and salads should not be taken too frequently. Eat more vegetables and less meats."

A lady physician thinks that every thing that is eatable ought to be eaten. She said recently:

"I am in favor of a liberal diet, and believe that one should eat just what his stomach is strong enough to digest, and that should be in such a condition that he could take shingle nails without much trouble. I think Americans eat the right kind of food. Americans are great fruit eaters. In this they are highly commended. Good ripe fruit is always beneficial; and a particularly good time to eat fruit is before breakfast in the morning."

Dr. John T. Nagle, of the Bureau of Vital Statistics, New York, is in favor of a pretty liberal diet. He attributes a great deal of the dyspepsia and nervousness, though, to Americans eating too highly seasoned food. Another physican agrees with the view that the American people habitually eat too quickly. He says:

"Indigestible foods are hard to be specified, because what some people digest easily others can not. An indigestible article of food is boiled cabbage. This takes four hours to digest, while kohl-slaw only takes one hour. Tripe is hard to digest. Fried meats are always indigestible. Always have the meat broiled. Bread fresh and hot should be avoided. Bread one day old is best. Highly seasoned foods are not generally good, although some people must have them seasoned. What agrees with one will not agree with another. I think Americans eat too many sweets; but they are a sweet-eating people."

ISAACS DID NOBLY.

Duty Performed in Spite of the Most Pugnacious Opposition.

The Chicago Mail's club man tells the following amusing jury story: A German had got into a row with a quarrelsome Irishman, who had long been a terror in his neighborhood, and the Irishman had been left stone dead on the field. A young and inexperienced lawyer undertook the defense of the German, and just before the case was to be tried he found, to his dismay, that the jury was composed of eleven combative-looking countrymen of the murdered man, the twelfth man being a German Jew. This, of course, would never do. A "defense fund" was immediately raised and the Jew was approached with all due caution and the promise that if he managed to get the accused off with a verdict of manslaughter it would be worth a thousand dollars to him; all he had to do was to stick to that one word "manslaughter." Well, the verdict came in "manslaughter" in great shape and the joyful attorney for the defense couldn't get the thousand dollars into the Jew's hands too quick. Shaking hands with him after the money was placed he slapped him on the back and said:

"You did nobly; you must have had an awful time making those Irishmen agree to simple manslaughter."

"Vell, I should say so," replied his Isaacs, "dey was all for acquittal!"

The Whirligig of Time.

THE DREAM WOMAN.

How She Saved a Dying Traveler from Certain Death.

A Romantic Story Full of Love and Mystery—How a Virginia Woman Rescued the Man Whom Destiny Had Set Apart for Her.

I was the victim of the Brazilian fever and every one had given me up, writes an imaginative story-teller in the Chicago Mail. I heard the priest say at my bedside that I would not live till morning. I was sinking into a heavy stupor when the door opened and a golden-haired woman in a white gown glided in. She carried in her hand a curious porcelain bowl of water.

"Drink," she said in a sweet voice, holding it to my lips.

"The doctor forbids it," I murmured.

"Drink and fear nothing," she said.

I obeyed and drained the vessel she held toward me. "Good night and sweet dreams," she added, and glided away as mysteriously as she had entered.

The next morning I awoke refreshed and invigorated. I asked to see the lady who had waited upon me in the night, but they smiled and said it was a delirious dream. In time I recovered my health and returned to Virginia. It was ten years after this illness that, in riding past a fine old country house, I saw a lady walk down the path who paused to pick a rose. Her figure was tall, her hair golden, her eyes black. Her motions were graceful. With a little exclamation of astonishment I recognized the lady of my dream, if dream it were. She looked a little older—nay, a good ten years older—but otherwise was unaltered.

I know not in what words I communicated this fact to my friend, but I know I ended by saying:

"I must speak to her. She will remember."

My friend uttered an imperative negative.

"She would think you a madman," he said. "Come on. You may get yourself shot for staring at another man's wife. They do such things prompt at the South. I will find out who she is if you like."

I assented eagerly. We rode on.

"Talk to me as much as you like," he said, "but never expose yourself to strangers. It is possible this lady was in Brazil in 18—, and brought you something to drink when you were left alone. In that case a doubt that troubles you will be satisfied. You can with all propriety call on her and thank her."

But, though he spoke in this way, I knew he did not imagine it could be so. That evening we smoked our cigars in Colonel L——'s company, and my friend diplomatically introduced the subject.

"That beautiful house with the large garden," he said, "is quite a feature of the place. Who owns it?"

"A lone woman, widow of Mr. V——," said the Colonel. "She was a belle in her girlhood. She might still be one if she chose."

"Perhaps we saw her in the garden," said my friend, beginning a minute description.

"Exactly. It was no one else," said the Colonel.

My friend paused a moment and then said:

"She reminded B. of someone he met in Brazil. In fact, he almost believed her the same person."

"No, no," said the old Colonel. "Mrs. V. has never left Virginia. We have known the family since she was two years old. It is only the other day that we spoke of that, and she lamented that she had not traveled more."

I felt a pang of disappointment, but found courage to say: "I should greatly like to be introduced to her."

The old Colonel instantly offered to introduce me.

"But remember," said my friend, as we parted, "never tell her of your fancy. It would spoil your chances with her, and I see it is a case of love at first sight."

He was right, and I was very fortunate—very happy. I won this beautiful woman's heart.

Her fortune I did not want, but it was large. I had sufficient means and could not be suspected of mercenary motives. We were married, after a long and ardent wooing on my part.

She loved me, but a second marriage seemed wrong to her, and it was not until she realized that she had irretrievably given me her heart that she would give me her hand.

Neither of us had ever visited Europe. We decided to cross the ocean during our honeymoon. Before we went she showed me her beautiful home and all her possessions. Among them was a store of old china.

Suddenly she turned to the shelves of her cabinet and took down a china bowl—transparent, covered with flowers and butterflies of quaint conventional form.

As she held it toward me I saw again the long, low-hung, whitewashed Brazilian room, the crowd of men playing cards at an improvised table, the figure of the woman advancing toward me. It was her attitude that my wife had assumed. I uttered a cry.

"Are you thirsty?" she asked.

"It is true, then," I cried. "You are the woman who saved my life when I lay perishing of fever in Brazil."

She began to tremble. Setting the bowl aside she threw herself into my arms.

"Long ago," she panted—"ten years ago—I thought I held that bowl in my hand and asked you that. It was night. I do not know whether I dreamt or thought that I was mad. In the dead of night I thought a voice called to me: 'Save the man whom destiny has set apart for you.' Then I arose and asked: 'How?'

"There is on our plantation a spring, the water of which is magical in its power to cure fevers. I dreamt or thought that some unseen thing led me to this spring. I carried this bowl in my hand. I filled it. Then I stood in a strange room, long, low, white; and you—you—you lay on a pallet, hot with fever. And I said: 'Are you thirsty?' and gave you to drink.

"The next morning I could have thought it was all a dream but that the bowl, still wet, stood at my bedside. Now I have told you this, do you think me mad or superstitious? I have longed so often to tell you, but I dared not."

But I also had my tale to tell—the one I have told you.

We ask each other often: "What was it? What did it mean? How is it to be explained?" But no answer comes to us.

Whatever it may have been, it brought us together, and I bless it from my soul, for we are happy as few lovers are, my darling wife and I. And whatever it was, it came from Heaven. Nothing unholy had any hand in it.

Accidents Will Happen.

A French soldier on active service was informed by the mayor of his village that his father had recently died. In acknowledgement he wrote as follows: "Monsieur le maire, I heartily thank you for my father's death. It is a little accident that often happens in families. As for myself, I am in the hospital minus one leg, with which I have the honor to salute you."

HEAVY GALE IN ENGLAND.

The Coasts Strewn with Wreckage—Many Vessels Ashore.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—A terrific gale prevailed yesterday throughout Great Britain and Ireland. It was particularly severe along the river Mersey. Much damage has been done at Blackpool and in Lancashire and Ireland. The gale blew with tremendous force in the Irish Channel. A large number of shipwrecks have been reported. The telegraph wires in many places have been blown down by the gale.

The British ship Prince Louis, Capt. Page, from Quebec, Aug. 24, has been driven ashore in the Mersey.

The storm has destroyed 100 yards of the Holyhead breakwater and isolated the lighthouse. The coasts are strewn with wreckage.

A large steamer is ashore off Aberfraw, Wales.

The Knights Templar Parade.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Over 20,000 Sir Knights marched in line through the broad streets and avenues of this city to-day and passed in review before President Harrison at the Executive Mansion. The departments and public schools were closed and business was generally suspended.

No Americans Need Apply.

Some months ago, at Buenos Ayres, a rich Spanish banker gave a dinner to some friends, and United States Minister Hanna was seated on the right of the hostess. She inquired as to the health of Mrs. Hanna, who was not present, and asked how many children they had. Hanna, not understanding Spanish very well, thought she wanted to know the age of Mrs. Hanna, and said: "Forty-eight, madam." To his surprise the lady threw up her hands and exclaimed: "Gracias a Dios, que no tengo esposo Americano!" which being translated is: "Thank God, I have not an American husband!"

One for His Honor.

A sarcastic lawyer, during the trial of a case, made use of the expression "Cast not your pearls before swine." Subsequently, as he rose to make the argument, the judge facetiously remarked: "Be careful, Mr. S., not to cast your pearls before swine." "Don't be alarmed, your honor, I am about to address the jury, not the court."

An connection with Irish landlords—of Daniel Clark, Mrs. Gaines' father, hailing from Sligo—a pleasing Hibernianism is related. An Englishman, on a visit to Ireland during shooting season, asked his host if there were many of the neighboring land-holders then at home. "Divil a one, faith!" was the answer, "the country is schwarming with absentees."

SEEING THE WORLD

Tramping Adventures of a Twelve-Year-Old Girl.

A LONG TRIP FROM CALIFORNIA.

She Arrives in North Branch, N. J., After Spending Two Years on the Road.

Picked Up in New Brunswick By the Overseer of the Poor in a Terrible Condition—She Endured Hardships that Would Do Credit to a Professional Tramp.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 9.—The Overseer of the Poor of this place has in his charge a young girl with a history that would do credit to a professional tramp, consisting, as it does, of all sorts of hardships in her life on the road.

The girl, who says her name is Mary Reper, is barely twelve years old. She was found crying on the street yesterday, and she presented a very pitiful appearance. At the police station Mary said that her father, John Reper, had died five years ago in California. Her mother, who was a consumptive, did not long survive the shock, and she, too, died, leaving Mary in the care of an aunt. Within a year the aunt also died, and for the following two years Mary was cared for by the neighbors. She had just passed her tenth birthday, when it occurred to her to run away and come East with no definite object in view.

One fine day she hopped on a freight train and began her long journey. She said the brakemen, as a rule, were very kind to her and gave her food and a place to sleep in the cars, but there were some who chased her from the cars, and many a weary mile she was forced to tramp until another train would happen along. During these tramps she begged food, sometimes sleeping at night in a haystack or barn, and at other times in a good warm bed when some hospitable farmer would take her into his house.

At many places she stopped for weeks at a time, helping the farmer's wife in the housework and receiving some instructions in cooking, so that now she is quite a housekeeper, and boasts her skill in making buiscuits. After several weeks of quiet farm life the old desire for travel would come upon her, and she would quietly depart and resume her journey. It was nearly two years after leaving her California friends that she entered that quiet Jersey town of North Branch. Here she remained a few days subsisting on charity. On Saturday she boarded a coal train at Elizabeth and from that place to New Brunswick she rode and walked, arriving here in the condition described.

MR. RANDALL'S HEALTH.

Conflicting Reports About the Ex-Speaker's Present Condition.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 9.—It is feared by the friends of ex-Speaker Randall that his condition is growing serious. For the past few days he has suffered great pain. A violent attack of diarrhœa has greatly weakened him. He suffered so severely yesterday that opiates had to be administered to induce sleep.

Mr. Randall's case has been a matter of anxiety among his friends ever since his return from Washington to Wallingford, and from time to time visitors to the latter place have shaken their heads and said that they feared the great man would never take his place in the House again. At other and recent times Mr. Randall has been invisible to his closest friends.

A later report says that Congressman Randall is not in as precarious condition at present as was reported. His physician, Dr. Martin, said this morning: "It is true that the statesman had an attack of diarrhœa, but it is not serious, and otherwise his health is good. I have just arranged with him to go to Washington on Thursday, and everything is in readiness for the trip."

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

A Buffalo Young Man Shoots His Mother and Then Commits Suicide.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Another frightful murder and suicide, equaling in bloody atrocity and sickening scenes the Domingues tragedy on Seneca street a few months ago, occurred last night at No. 39 Main street. Charles Orris, a young man about 33 years of age, shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Charles King, and then cut his own throat. Both were dead and cold when the police broke into the apartments.

The woman was found lying on the bed with a big hole in her temple. The man lay by the sofa with his throat cut and his head lying in a pool of blood. In his vest pocket was found a paper on which was written: "I hope my friends will not think the worse of me for this. I am tired of living and that is enough. Mother could not get along without me, so I ended her suffering also."

Both Engines Were Smashed.

SMETHPORT, Pa., Oct. 9.—Another collision occurred on the Western New York and Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday, this time between two heavy freight trains on the Clermont division at Hamlin, about ten miles from here. One train had gone by the station without orders, and going up the hill met another train. A terrible wreck ensued, both engines were smashed, and eight freight cars demolished. The crews saw the danger in time to jump and they all escaped.

Guns Fired for the Mackerel Fishermen.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Oct 9.—The schooner Alice, Captain Chase, sailed yesterday on a pioneer mackerel fishing trip to the Cape of Good Hope. The vessel was given a fine send off, the fishing fleet in the harbor being gaily decorated; guns were fired and three rousing cheers given as the schooner sailed out.

THE EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

Trustees of the General Theological Seminary and Miscellaneous Business.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The result of the Episcopal Convention's Executive session of the House of Delegates yesterday was the immediate confirmation of the Rev. Drs. W. A. Leonard, of Washington, and Thomas F. Davies, of Philadelphia, as Bishops of the Southern Ohio and Michigan dioceses, respectively. The house then listened to a further discussion of judicial systems relating to the institution of an appellate court by the committee.

The committee appointed to nominate the Trustees of the General Theological Seminary have named the following: Rev. Drs. Dawes, of Pennsylvania; Coit, of New Hampshire; Astwild, of Ohio; King, of Long Island; Mills, of New Jersey, and W. H. Burgwin, of North Carolina.

The appointment of a joint committee to examine the condition of the colored people in the South is as follows: Rev. Drs. Philip Brooks, of Boston; Bud, of Florida; Springfellow, of Alabama; Gray, of Tennessee; Vibbert, of Chicago; McConnell, of Louisiana; Wilbur, of Maryland; Stotsenburg, of Indiana; Morgan, of New York, and Wilder, of Minnesota.

AN ELECTRIC SHOCK.

An Employe While Repairing Wires Falls to the Pavement and is Killed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Charles Edmond, an employe of the Manhattan Electric Light Company, while repairing wires in front of 155 Grand street, fell to the pavement, crushing his skull and breaking his neck. It is supposed that he received a shock, causing him to relax his hold and fall, but the exact cause of the accident is not yet determined.

Two men who were working with Edmond refuse to say a word about the matter. Edmond was about 40 years old and leaves a widow and child. He had the reputation of being a careful workman.

Mayor Grant to-day called the attention of the Board of Electrical Control to the numerous deaths recently caused by electric light wires, and urged the adoption of preventive measures. The companies are invited to make any suggestions they see fit.

TIRED OF OFFICE.

The United States District Attorney of Massachusetts Resigns.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—United States District Attorney Owen A. Galvin, who has sent in his resignation to President Harrison, said to-day that he is going back to private practice. Mr. Galvin was appointed District Attorney in September, 1887. He has served in the Massachusetts Senate three and in the House of Representatives two years. He is a Democrat in politics and has been on the Democratic State Committee as well as the Democratic City Committee.

Consolidated to Reduce Expenses.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 9.—The window glass manufacturers of Pittsburg have applied for a charter for the "Pittsburg Consolidated Window Glass Company." One of the applicants to-day said the object of consolidation was economy. The individual men in the business cannot compete with the proprietors of factories who receive free gas. The business of all the offices will be done in one office and there will be but one manager for three or four factories.

Hawaiins Favor Annexation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 9.—Private letters from Honolulu received in this city indicate increased discontent with the manner in which the affairs of the kingdom are being conducted, and a growing feeling in favor of the annexation of Hawaii to the United States. Since the revolution of June 30, 1887, everything on the islands, and principally its public and private policy, has been shaped to strengthen British influences.

FIRE IN MID-OCEAN

Thrilling Experience on Board a British Steamer.

A LONG BATTLE WITH FLAMES.

The Sailors Conquered After Seven Days' Hard Work.

The Coal Supply of a Steamer Discovered on Fire by a Terrible Explosion—Several Men Knocked Senseless—The Sailors Labored Like Heroes Until the Fire was Extinguished.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—A terrible seven-day fight with flames at sea was the thrilling experience of the crew of the British steamer Unionist, which arrived in port yesterday.

The vessel left Liverpool on September 21, and until September 28 nothing occurred to cause any uneasiness to Captain Neate or his men. The Unionist is not a racer, and was expected to make the trip in from twelve to sixteen days.

On the morning of September 28 the steamer was very near mid-ocean. A strong swell was coming from the northeast, accompanied by a stiff breeze. Suddenly a terrific explosion shook the steamer from stem to stern. Sailors were tumbled out of their bunks and with the thoroughly-frightened officers rushed on deck. Through the hatches over the coal bunkers came a vast cloud of smoke, which poured up from below and indicated the location of the explosion.

It was some time before the sailors could get below, where they expected to find the stokers and firemen either mangled or suffocated by the smoke.

Several were found lying senseless, having been knocked down by the force of the explosion. None of them was seriously injured and all soon revived when they had been brought into the open air on deck, a feat which was accomplished only with the greatest difficulty and at the peril of the rescuer's lives.

Captain Neate speaks in the highest praise of the seamen under him, who worked like beavers and bravely imperilled their lives in the effort to save the lives of the unfortunate stokers and firemen below.

But they were soon compelled to fight for their own lives, and with a sailor's most terrible enemy, fire. The smoke continued to pour up in a black mass through the hatches, and sailors wrapped in wet blankets went below to investigate. They slowly fought their way through and brought back the startling information that all the steamer's coal supply was on fire.

When the explosion occurred the steamer was running at full speed. Her engines were slowed down and all hands were set at work to extinguish the fire.

The coal banks were flooded, but with no appreciable results. All day and night the men worked, but the fire seemed to burn as fiercely as ever. Then the men, utterly exhausted, were divided into gangs, some working while the others caught a few hours' rest and then being relieved for a short rest themselves. The engines were again working at full speed in order that if the worst came the vessel might be as near shore as possible.

On September 29 one of the firemen, Jack Horne, was overcome while working and fell into the hold. He was in great danger of suffocation and Peter Finness and other firemen went to his assistance. Both were overcome by the gases from the burning coal, and when they were finally extricated from their perilous position were unconscious. They revived, however.

In the meantime the battle with the flames went on, but although the sailors worked hard and flooded the lower part of the steamer the flames held their own.

For seven days the fight went on, the fire being extinguished in one place only to break out in another. Finally on last Friday morning water conquered and the fire was put out.

An Actor's Sudden Death.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Chas. B. Bishop, the actor who played a prominent role in the comedy "Lord Chumley," at the Lyceum Theatre, died while changing his costume in the dressing room after the first act last evening. E. H. Southern, the leading actor in the play, appeared before the curtain and announced Mr. Bishop's sudden death, and dismissed the audience. Mrs. Bishop, who was with her husband when he died, was prostrated by the shock.

Private Secretary Halford Sick.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Private Secretary Halford has been sick for some weeks with an intestinal trouble. About two weeks ago he had sufficiently recovered to be at his desk, but a few days ago he had a relapse and a painful operation became necessary. He is now confined to his bed and will not be able to resume his duties for some time.

The Scottish Clans Injunction.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Judge Devens of the Supreme court decided that the injunction issued in June against the Order of Scottish Clans should be continued, restraining it from doing an assessment business in the State. The injunction is issued upon the application of the American Order of Scottish Clans by whom it was alleged that the name was similar to that of the company making the application and therefore illegal under the State.

Fell Out of a Second Story Window.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Louis Lutz, of Lutz & Movins, the wealthy importers, who lives with his wife and children in 58th street, fell out of a second story window in the rear of his house yesterday and was instantly killed.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—There was frost on the low lands this morning.

—A new platform is being laid along the railroad track at the Evona station.

—This is the season that much vexation of spirit is caused by the failure of last year's stove pipe to fit.

—The regular weekly meeting of the Reform Club will be held in Reform Hall, to-morrow evening, at 7:30 o'clock.

—The Prohibitionists of this city met for organization in the W. C. T. U. rooms, on West Front street, last evening.

—Today is known as Governor's day at the Somerville fair, and a large number of persons are in attendance from this city.

—Mr. James H. Force is having a new boiler and heating apparatus placed in the basement of Force's Hotel on North avenue.

—Justice V. W. Nash reports that he has collected $6,930 of the back taxes since he was appointed delinquent tax collector.

—The members of the Middlesex Bowling Green Club will play a match game among themselves at Dunellen, on Saturday, Oct. 12.

—Now is the time when Winter clothing is being resuscitated from camphor trunks, for missing articles to turn up in forgotten pockets.

—Mr. I. H. Boehm announces a great ten days' special sale, at his store, No. 7 West Front street, of jackets, cloaks, wraps, newmarkets, jerseys, etc.

—Contractor Hardy has begun the work of remodeling the building on East Second street, which is to hereafter be the home of the Plainfield Crescent League.

—Last evening was perfect so far as the weather was concerned. The atmosphere was rather cool, but this did not interfere materially with pedestrians.

—Mr. Thomas McFadden a brother-in-law of Mr. Michael F. Watson called at THE PRESS office today and requested us to state that Mr. Watson and his wife have not left the city, as was falsely reported in the news of Monday evening.

—Hon. Peter S. Bergen, the "Silver Tongued Orator," of Somerset County, lectured in Spencer's Hall, on Somerset street, on the "People of Somerset County," Monday evening. The attendance was not so large as was anticipated, but Peter's enthusiasm was just as great.

—A shepherd dog belonging to Mr. Fred Williams of Jackson avenue, North Plainfield, accidentally hung himself a few days ago. The animal attempted to jump over a fence when a strap attached to a collar which encircled the dog's neck, caught on the pickets, and held the animal dangling in the air.

Railway's Water Bonds.

The Railway Savings Bank held $190,000 of Railway water bonds when the city became bankrupt. The failure of the city brought ruin to the bank, and its affairs have been winding up under the supervision of the Chancellor. The city authorities made a proposition to replace the dishonored bonds with new 4 per cent. bonds for the principal and 35 per cent. of the unpaid interest in cash. The Chancellor was willing to make the compromise, provided the old bonds which were a lien on the city's water works, were left as security for the new. The city would not agree to that. Recently the City Attorney notified the Court that he had found capitalists to take the new bonds at eighty cents on the dollar, and if the Chancellor would authorize the reissue the city would pay the eighty per cent. and thirty-five per cent. in cash. The Chancellor told the Attorney that he would think about that when the capitalists are produced.

Knights of Honor in 12th Annual Convention.

The Grand Lodge of the Knights of Honor of the State of New Jersey, is in session here today. The session is being held in Reform Hall, and only the members are admitted.

The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock by the Grand Dictator of New Jersey, Lewis I. Burk, of Paterson. Among those present were Grand Supreme Dictator Savage, of Maine, and Vice Supreme Dictator Klotz, of Newark.

The reports show that the Lodges of the United States have paid $27,000,000 to widows and orphans of members. There are 4,200 Knights in New Jersey.

Gun Club Tournament.

Yesterday was the opening day of the the Middlesex Gun Club tournament, now in progress on the club's grounds at Dunellen. The attendance on the opening day was large, and additional shooters will arrive when the live bird shooting begins to-morrow. Some of the well-known sportsmen are accompanied by their wives, who are interested spectators. Yesterday's programme included nine regular events, besides a number of extra sweepstakes. The regular events were as follows:

Event No. 1—Ten singles, open to classes A, B and C; entrance fee, $1; 11 entries. Wolstencraft and Penn broke 10 straight, and divided first money; Bowdish broke 9, and took second money; Budd, Apgar and Penrose each tied on 8, and divided third purse.

Event No. 2—Ten singles, bluerocks; $1 entrance; 12 entries. Apgar and Courtney tied on 10, and divided first money, while Penn and Ruby tied on 9, and took second money; Bowdish broke 8, and captured third purse.

Event No. 3—Ten singles for Class C only; $1 entrance fee; 16 entries. Penn, Wood, French and Hall tied on 9, and divided first money; J. Cooper, Taylor, Conover and Clark each broke 7, and divided second money; Apgar, E. M. Cooper, Lawrence, Chetwood and Forest divided the third stake, each breaking 7.

Event No. 4—Fifteen singles, $75 guaranteed sweepstakes; $3 entrance; 18 entries. Ruby, Wolstencraft and Sigler broke 15 straight, and divided first purse; Yerrington and Penn tied on 14, and divided second money; Budd, Hicks, Smith, Penrose and Bowdish dividing the third purse.

Event No. 5—Fifteen singles, sweepstakes; $75, guaranteed purse; open to classes B and C; $3 entrance; 27 entries. Houghton, Quad, Penn and Collins each broke 14, and divided first purse; Bowdish, Cooper, Thurman, Apgar and Ruby tying on 13, capturing second money; Teeple, Courtney and Taylor tied on 12, and divided third purse.

Seventh regular event, $50 guaranteed; 6 singles; 3 pairs; $2 entrance; 21 entries. Ruby and Manitz won first and divided; Collins, Lindsley, Quimby and Quad did the same with second. Third went to Wood, Houghton, Manning, Brightman, Post, C. Smith and Force. Fourth to Bowdish, E. W. Cooper, Apgar, and S. G. Smith.

Today's programme includes eight regular events, at artificial targets.

Justice Nash Retaliates.

At the Council meeting on Monday evening a communication was received from Mr. C. A. Hunter, with reference to certain property on Eighth street, which Mr. Hunter said had been advertised for sale for taxes, and stating that the taxes had been paid, and receipts could be produced for the same.

In answer to the communication Justice V. W. Nash, the delinquent tax collector, puplishes the following

OPEN LETTER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The tax upon the property on Eighth street, advertised among the delinquent taxes of 1889, was not paid until ten days after the date of Mr. Hunter's communication to the Common Council. It was then paid to Mr. Johnson by Mr. Hunter.

V. W. NASH,
Delinquent Coll'r.

New Officers for the Relief Association.

The annual meeting of the Relief Association for the election of officers, was held in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Monday morning.

The following were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. E. L. Goddard; Vice-President, Mrs. G. W. Ferry; Secretary, Miss Edith R. Leonard; Treasurer, Mrs. Wm. W. Myers.

Board of Managers—Mrs. Wm. C. Burt, Mrs. Edward St. John, Mrs. Charles McCutchen, Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, Mrs Rowland Cox, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, Mrs. VanNest Talmage, Mrs. M. C. Edgerton, Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Mrs. C. E. Boss, and Mrs. A. M. Rhees.

Calculating a Ton of Coal.

No doubt some people have often wondered how it is that drivers of coal carts can calculate to such a nicety the amount of coal that will weigh a ton. They reckon it by the shovel, 100 full shovels making the 2,000 pounds.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. F. E. Marsh, wife of Councilman Marsh, is at the home of Dr. C. W. Enos, corner of 16th and Curtis streets, Denver, Col.

Mr. George Benson is lying dangerously ill at his home, corner of Grove street and Green Brook road, North Plainfield.

Walter Champlin, a former resident of this city, but now of Newark, was a delegate to the K. of H., meeting in this city today. Walter and the writer roamed the streets of Plainfield together barefooted, many years ago.

The following persons were appointed as members of the Executive Committee of the Tariff Reform Club, at the meeting held on Monday evening: Messrs James Clark, W. K. McClure, Fred Martin, R. Merritt and F. M. Bacon.

Mr. Samuel J. Moore, formerly of this city, where he was connected with the establishment of Mr. A. Love for many months, has succeeded with his brother to the old established shoe business of their father in Poughkeepsie. The elder Moore, according to the papers of that city, has retired with a "handsome competency."

Who Is to Blame?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—At a meeting of the Legal Voters of School District No. 14, of Scotch Plains, N. J., held on June 3d, 1889, the School Trustees were authorized to expend $18,000 in the erection of a brick school building for the District. After many delays the Board of Trustees decided to accept the plans furnished by McKim, Mead & White, of New York City, and about the 10th of September the contract was awarded. All that there is to show toward the "Elaborated Edifice" is a celler partly excavated, and a pile of trap rock rubbish for the foundation walls.

At the time that the voters voted to raise the appropriation for the new school building, it was presumed that the building would be commenced in time to have it up and completed before the arrival of "Jack Frost," and ready for school purpose by the 1st of January, 1890. But the prospects now are that the Scotch Plains people will have to send their children during the coming Winter to the death trap of a school house. (So acknowledged in the report of the Trustees at the annual school meeting, held March last, and was their principal plea for a new school building.) These people are now becoming justly indignant and incensed at the slow progress of the men in whom they placed the utmost confidence by voting for everything they asked for at the school meeting, by over 100 majority.

DICTA.

For Damaging the "Villa Sans Souci."

The New York Tribune today published the following article:

"G. Warren Watson, a member of the Common Council of Plainfield, N. J., is being sued by Mrs. George Lissignolo, the wife of the New York broker, for damages done to the Villa Sans Souci, a pretty cottage adjoining the home of John Taylor Johnston, the ex-president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. Coudert Brothers, the New York lawyers, are pushing the claims of Mrs. Lissignolo, who says that Councilman Watson and his family destroyed a great deal of property while living in the villa, which Mr. Watson rented furnished. Councilman Watson is a Democrat, and used this house, Mrs. Lissignolo says, as a sort of headquarters for political purposes. He or his boon companions maliciously slashed valuable oil paintings, destroyed fine furniture, and ill-used the horses and live stock, it is charged. Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh will defend Mr. Watson. The case will be brought into the Union County Court at Elizabeth next week."

Mr. Watson denies the charges and is considering whether to bring an action for libel for the alleged malicious publication of the article.

A Home for the Unitarians.

Mayor Male has given the free use of a dwelling of his at No. 4 Second place to the First Unitarian Church, where that growing body will in the future hold its Sunday services.

A convenient room has been arranged as the result of a little remodelling by Mr. Male, and the church officers are planning to carpet the room and put in the necessary furniture. The first service in this new place of worship will be held next Sunday morning. The Sunday school, which was organized last Sunday with H. B. Wells as Superintendent, will meet there at the close of the service.

Runaway on Front Street.

A horse belonging to Mr. A. H. Bowman of Evona ran away on Front street, this morning, but was captured by Mr. John Becker before any serious damage was done. A bolt which holds the shafts in position dropped out, allowing the shafts to fall on the animals heels, and thus resulting in a runaway.

Y. P. S. C. E.

The anniversary exercises of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, will be held in the church on Thursday evening. The programme will include vocal and instrumental music, recitations, and an address by a Mr. Everitt, a student at Princeton College.

—A fair representation of the citizens accompanied the Reform Club excursion to Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko today. The excursionists will arrive home about 8:45 o'clock this evening.

Above is a detailed resume of Plainfield's ball team for the season just past, and the individual standing of each player. There is much to learn from the figures, and a study of them will surprise many and shatter the good opinion that has been possessed by some of the players.

Few of the hired men have earned their pay, and probably only Bowes is entitled to much credit. The Plainfield residents have done better than the strangers. Gately pitched five of the seven games lost, yet Condon, who was not considered a pitcher at all, pitched five games including one against the West Ends, and won them all.

The individual work of the men at the bat and in the field is set forth in the above table, which gives in respective columns the times of each At Bat during the season. Runs, Base Hits, Stolen Bases, Sacrifice Hits, Struck Outs, Put Out, Assisted, Errors, Bases on Balls, Left on Bases and the Batting and Fielding Averages.

The record of the season just passed was as follows—the last column of figures representing runs made by the Crescent's opponents:

May	4—New Brunswick Y. M. C. A.	16—5
"	11—Rutgers College	5—19
"	18—Brooklyn Y. M. C. A.	18—1
"	25—10th Ward of Newark	3—11
"	30—Putnams of Brooklyn	6—1
"	30—Alerts of Elizabeth	10—8
June	8—West Ends of Somerville	7—6
"	22—Dauntless of Elizabeth	8—2
"	29—Miller Athletics of Newark	15—6
July	4—Alerts of Elizabeth	7—1
"	6—Dauntless of Elizabeth	6—5
"	13—O. N. T's of Newark	7—2
"	20—Tempests of New York	27—7
Aug.	3—Mercers of Trenton	6—0
"	10—West Ends of Somerville	2—8
"	17—Buttermilks of New York	16—8
"	24—Winthrops of New York	8—0
"	31—West Ends of Somerville	10—9
Sept.	2—Hackett-Carharts of New York	8—11
"	3—Mercers of Trenton	5—4
"	7—West Ends of Somerville	5—7
"	21—Acmes of New York	2—10
"	28—Winthrops of New York	2—5

The above record shows a total of 23 games played, of which the Crescents lost only 7. The Plainfield team made a total of 199 runs to their opponents 134.

Plainfield Architects and Builders in Patchogue.

The Argus of Patchogue, L. I., publishes a picture of a new Methodist church in that village, which is almost an exact reproduction of Dr. Ketcham's new church on East Front street. Plainfield's good taste and ability is further shown to be appreciated in Patchogue, by the facts that the building is from the plans of a Plainfield architect and Plainfield mechanics are constructing it.

The Argus says: "A contract was soon made with Isaac W. Pangborn, of Plainfield, N. J., to erect the edifice according to plans and specifications prepared and drawn by Oscar S. Teale, architect of 247 Broadway, New York. Mr. Teale has shown himself master of his profession in the perfections of the plans, which are now being strictly followed by the builders. S. W. Milligan, of Plainfield, N. J., is superintendent of the mason work, and M. L. Connolly, of the same city, is foreman of the carpenter work."

Improvements at Dunellen.

The Central Railroad Company is making extensive improvements about the Dunellen station. Among other repairs the company is making arrangements to lay several new tracks, just West of the station, so as to make provision for the drilling of passenger cars. The "yard" will extend as far West as Taylor's Hotel. Local trains will then run direct to the station, and the cars will be drilled in the "yard."

The fourth track for coal and freight trains, between Grant avenue and the "Hill," just beyond the Green Brook tanks, will be open for traffic within the course of a few weeks. Four tracks will then be open between Bound Brook and Elizabeth.

The Famous Battle.

The superb spectacle of Briscoe's "Battle of Gettysburg" is to be produced at Music Hall on Wednesday, October 16. The scenes show the whole battle from the first shot to the end. The exhibition is given under the management of Gen. St. Clair Mulholland for the benefit of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., of this city. Every citizen should see the grand and thrilling incidents of this famous battle.

A Railroad Branch.

Surveyors have been prospecting for a branch of the Central Railroad at Woodbridge, to run parallel with the Woodbridge and Perth Amboy road, and to have its terminus in Woodbridge. The road will be used to carry freight direct to Woodbridge factories without change, and the work of construction will be begun very soon.

A Step in the Right Direction.

The managers of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad fully realize the fact, that in order to secure the patronage of the traveling public, it is essential to provide proper accommodations. This Company has, for the past few years, been constantly improving its property. It has practically relaid miles and miles of track with the heaviest steel rails on a good substantial roadway. Many new cars have been built and added to the service, and the Reading Company can now be justly proud of the comfortable and even luxurious accommodations which it furnishes its patrons. Another important feature that deserves mention is the shortening of the time of many trains. Minutes have been lopped off here and there, thus quickening the time very considerably.

New and handsome stations have been constructed at many points along the line and contracts for others have been awarded. The bridges on its system have been strengthened, and the service improved generally.

The Reading Railroad cannot now be surpassed for smoothness of roadway, magnificence of equipment, and speediness of train service.

The Weather Crop Bulletin.

The official weather bulletin for the last week states that the weather conditions of the past seven days have been most favorable to all late crops. The cutting of corn is about completed and husking is now quite general. The bright sunshine of the week has most favorably affected this crop. Late potatoes are all dug, and excepting those in low fields, are turning out well; sweet varieties of fair size and quality are now being marketed. The cabbage and celery crops continue to be in a most favorable condition and promise well. Cranberry growers report that the season has been a most unfavorable one, the yield light, and the berries badly affected by scald. Great progress has been made in Fall ploughing and considerable Winter wheat and rye have been sown. The pasture in all sections of the State is excellent. The temperature has been about the normal with more than the average amount of sunshine.

This bulletin completes the series for the season of 1889, and the officers of the service extend thanks to the observers and crop correspondents for their valuable aid and highly appreciated services.

—A stone crosswalk is being laid across Park avenue, at the intersection of Second street in compliance with a request for the same sent in at the Council meeting on Monday evening. The work is being done under the supervision of the Street Commissioner.

AN IDIOT'S RARE DISEASE.

The Calf of His Right Leg Measured Thirty Inches in Circumference.

READING, Pa., Oct. 9.—Albert Werner, an idiotic inmate of the Berks County Almshouse, has died of elephantiasis, a very rare disease in this country. The favorite seat of this singular disease is in the leg, which acquires an enormous volume and a most grotesque appearance, causing a striking resemblance to the leg of an elephant, whence its name. Werner's right leg at its thickest part below the knee measured thirty inches in circumference, and the left leg at the same place nineteen and one-half inches.

He was admitted to the almshouse about one year ago, and previous to that he resided at Wintersville, this county. About two weeks ago symptoms of gangrene began to develop in both of his legs, resulting in his death. Up to a short time ago Werner's suffering was chiefly of a mechanical character, his general health continuing good to the time gangrene made its appearance. The disease produced the most hideous deformity in Werner's limbs, both of which were photographed some time ago in the interest of medical science.

Notwithstanding its name the disease is not always confined to the leg, but may attack almost any part of the body. The disease ordinarily commences by the appearance of dusky, shining spots upon the skin, slightly swollen, and more or less insensible. In this wretched condition Werner continued to exist for some time before he was admitted to the Almshouse, and he would in all probability have continued to live for a long time had he not been cut off by the inter-current disease, gangrene. The deceased was a farmer about 33 years of age.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Rev. Abner P. Brush, rector of St. Thomas Church, Bath, N. Y., died yesterday, aged 58 years.

The Mayer Manufacturing Company's tannery, No. 9 Somerset street, Newark, N. J., was burned yesterday.

George L. Thompson, of Ballston, N. Y., has been nominated by the Democrats of the 18th Senatorial district for Senator.

Secretary Tracy issued an order yesterday to the contractors of the Petrel to deliver the vessel at Norfolk for acceptance.

Five dead bodies were taken out of the Stony Creek River at Johnstown yesterday by the workmen removing the filth and rubbish.

Edmund O'Connor, of Binghamton, N. Y., was unanimously nominated for State Senator by the Republicans of the 24th district at Sidney.

John Wright, aged 58, driver of the canal boat Seth Anthony and consort, was accidentally killed on the tow-path at Rome, N. Y., last night.

Gov. Hill has appointed Edward D. Cutter, of Schenectady, N. Y., to fill the unexpired term of the Schenectady County Judge, David C. Beattie, deceased.

The New York Court of Appeals has granted a new trial to Richard Barber, convicted of causing the death of an old woman near Ithaca by beating her into insensibility and setting fire to her house. It is said that Barber is insane.

Killed Himself to Escape Marriage.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 9.—Nathaniel Millhouse, a prominent young man of this city, mysteriously disappeared from his place of business on Wednesday morning last. Yesterday his body was found in an abandoned ore pit near Egypt, a suburb. It is ascertained that he committed suicide in order to escape marriage with an estimable young lady of Fullerton to whom he had been engaged for the past year. The wedding day had been fixed for Oct. 20, but as the time drew near Millhouse's love grew cold and his courage failed him.

His Arm Amputated.

NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 9.—Frank L. Olmstead, a young man of South Norwalk, while coon hunting in a wood near New Canaan, was hurrying through a lot of underbrush when his foot caught in a root and he fell. At the same time the gun was discharged and a heavy charge of shot took effect in his left arm. He was found by a farmer some time later in an unconscious condition and removed to his home, where his arm was amputated.

Buried Under Tons of Coal.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 9.—In the Hanover mine yesterday a cave-in buried Charles Sineh under 100 tons of coal. His body has not yet been recovered.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—For New England: Fair until Thursday night, followed by warmer weather; southerly winds.

For Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Fair; warmer; southerly winds.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Fair; warmer; winds becoming southerly.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish a the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA.

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the breath material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

IN SECRET CONCLAVE

The Sir Knights Commence the Work of the Encampment.

THE IOWA TROUBLE TAKEN UP.

The Rebellious Members from that State Excluded from the Session.

The Iowa Knights Indignantly Withdrew. Grand Master Roome Recommends Selecting Ascension Day as a Day of Commemoration and Religious Services by the Order Throughout the Country.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The Grand Encampment of Knights Templar began its session immediately upon arriving at the Masonic Temple at the close of the parade yesterday afternoon. Mr. Myerson M. Parker delivered an address of welcome on the part of the local committee, and introduced District Commissioner Douglas, who welcomed them in behalf of the city. To both addresses Grand Master Roome responded and this closed the public exercises.

The encampment then began its business in secret conclave. The Iowa trouble immediately loomed up and a resolution was offered excluding the members from that State from the session. This resolution was carried, and the Iowa members somewhat indignantly withdrew.

General Roome, who, as Grand Master of the Order, had declared the Iowa Commandery and its members in rebellion, had nothing to do with offering this resolution, but simply placed it before the convention. It is authoritatively stated to-day that he took no side in the matter during the discussion of the resolution.

The annual address of Grand Master Roome, who presided over the session, was then read. His address opened with a reference to the Knightly dead during the past three years. He recommended selecting Ascension Day as a day of especial commemoration and religious services by the Order throughout the country. He then devoted a great deal of space to the Iowa troubles, reviewing the whole matter from beginning to end. He said the Grand Commandery of that State had attempted to nullify the deliberate will of the Grand Encampment, and, though still professing loyalty to the Grand Encampment and the Constitution, its deeds had belied its empty words.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

No Definite Plans Yet Formed by New York's Finance Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Executive Committee of the World's Fair reported to the Finance Committee that after a careful examination of the whole subject the committee was of the opinion that no complete financial scheme could be determined upon until it was approximately known what was the aggregate amount of money proposed to be raised. There were three sources from which the necessary funds for the exposition could be derived when the sum required was ascertained, viz.:

1st. Government and city aid.

2nd. Sale of bonds or other evidences of pecuniary interest in the enterprise.

3rd. A preliminary fund with which to secure inauguration of the work and to provide against the possibility of ultimate loss, and which would be represented by stock. The amount to be obtained through the last two channels would of course depend upon the financial aid and other assistance to be derived from the General Government.

The first step of importance, in the opinion of the Committee, is that Congress give the exhibition a national and international character by appropriate legal enactment which should at the same time determine its location in this the principal port of entry and metropolis of the country. It is also deemed essential by the Committee that the city and state of New York should encourage the Exposition by every means possible.

MUST GO TO JAIL.

Judge Pugh Gives Editor Allen O. Myers Another Term in the Cooler.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 9.—Allen O. Myers, of the Cincinnati "Enquirer," was sentenced yesterday by Judge David F. Pugh of the Common Pleas Court to 15 days in jail and a fine of $250 for contempt of court.

The contempt was in Myers' publishing in the "Enquirer" a year ago last spring a caustic article on Judge Pugh during the trial of Montgomery, one of the Franklin county persons indicted for the tally-sheet election forgeries, of whom Mr. Myers was one. Myers was subsequently tried before Judge Pugh on a change of venue to Madison county and there acquitted by a jury.

Judge Pugh once before sentenced Myers for this contempt to jail for 90 days and a fine of $250, but the Supreme Court, on some error it the proceedings, remanded the case back for a new hearing.

Death of Judge Bunce, Aged 102.

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 9.—Judge Bunce, as he was familiarly called, died at his home in this township yesterday. Had he lived until November 14 next he would have been 102 years old. His full name was Zephania Webster Bunce. He was born at Hartford, Conn., November 14, 1787. The famous Charter Oak stood on what was the original Bunce farm. Judge Bunce occupied many public offices, being on the bench of the County Court in 1834, and for 15 years thereafter, and was a member of the Territorial Legislature from 1831 to 1824.

A Victory for Irish Tenants.

DUBLIN, Oct. 9.—There is great rejoicing among the tenants on the Knockagnee estates of Sir James Mackay, where the Plan of Campaign, which was vigorously enforced for some months, has finally resulted in a complete victory for the tenants. The landlord has given notice that all their demands would be conceded.

The Swedish Songstress Married.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—A fashionable audience witnessed the marriage of Miss Aline Nilsson, the Swedish songstress, to Edward Achorn, a young Boston lawyer, at Trinity church last evening. Rev. Phillips Brooks performed the ceremony.

Ex-Speaker Cole Defeated.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 9.—At the 26th Senatorial District Convention at Geneva yesterday Fremont Cole was defeated, Saxton getting the nomination after a long contest.

DEMPSEY'S QUICK WORK.

Tommy Warren Tackles the Nonpareil at the Wrong Time.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—Tommy Warren met Jack Dempsey in a saloon yesterday and asked in an insolent way if Dempsey had called him a coward and a fakir. Dempsey said yes. Thereupon Warren led with his right for the Nonpareil's face, but fell short. Dempsey sprang up and in half a dozen blows stretched Warren on the floor in a demoralized condition, so that his backer had to carry him out of the saloon.

The Supervisors at their next annual meeting will adopt an ordinance requiring all clubs which give boxing matches to pay a $3,000 yearly license. This practically wipes out all the organizations except the California Athletic Club, which alone is able to pay this heavy tax and bids fair to have a monopoly of slugging matches. Five-ounce gloves are the lightest which will be permitted.

The unknown who has been matched against the "Marine" is said to be Toff Wall, the English middleweight champion.

Lawn Tennis Officers.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 9.—The Lawn Tennis Association elected officers as follows: President, Campbell, of Columbia; vice-president, Shaw, of Harvard; secretary, Huntington, of Yale. The Wright & Ditson ball was adopted, and it was voted to hold next year's tournament in this city. The association has decided to offer a $500 cup to be held each year by the college winning first place, and to become the property of the college first winning seven first prizes.

No Break in the Senatorial Deadlock.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 9.—This was the third day of the 53d District Republican Senatorial Convention and 250 ballots have been taken. The three candidates—Mr. Sheardy, of Herkimer; Mr. Arnold, of Otsego, and Mr. Wilson, of Madison, are still in the field with six votes each. Congressmen Delano and Wilber and other leading Republicans are here endeavoring to break the deadlock. It may be several days before a conclusion is reached.

"Doc." Applebee Arrested.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—"Doc." Applebee, a notorious gambler, the keeper of a house called the Cosmos Club in Boylston street which is largely frequented by Harvard students, was arrested yesterday on complaint of Thomas Pendergast, of Franklin Falls, who says he was enticed into the place and robbed of $35. Applebee was arraigned in the Municipal Court, and the case was continued until Friday.

Carried Into Niagara's Whirlpool.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 9.—Joseph Percy, of this place, while duck shooting yesterday on the Niagara River, a short distance below the Maid of the Mist Landing, broke one of his oars, and losing control of his boat was carried down into the rapids and thence into the whirlpool where he was rescued by Frank Powell. Percy was taken to the Whirlpool Hotel in a dying condition.

An Erie Fisherman's Body Found.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 9.—The body of Timothy Kreider, an Erie fisherman, who disappeared from this place last Saturday night, and whose whereabouts were unknown, was recovered from the water yesterday by a member of the Erie Fishing Club while trying to recover a fire shovel lost overboard from their boat. How the accident occurred is a mystery, as no boat has been found.

Schooners Sunk.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Oct. 9.—A two-masted schooner is sunk, bearing north, one-half west from Great Point, well over to the cape shore. Another schooner, three-masted, is ranging a little north of Pollock River with headgear all gone, blue flag from main-top mast head, and the American ensign in her rigging.

A Mother's Horrible Use of Carbolic Acid.

CHICAGO, Oct, 9.—Mrs. Fritz Katz, of 443 Belden avenue, poured a quantity of carbolic acid down the throat of her six-weeks-old babe and took a big dose herself. Both died in a few moments. Mrs. Katz was in poor health and was probably insane when she committed the crime.

Lottery Sharks Arrested.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 9.—A. C. Johnson and J. H. Boyd, who have been sending out lottery circulars under the style of A. C. Ross & Co. and the Denver State Lottery Company, alleging that the various large and small prizes would be drawn October 15, have been arrested for illegal use of the mails.

Still Hunting for a Jury.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Proceedings in the Cronin case were resumed this morning by the examination of veniremen. The first man called was disqualified because he had expressed an opinion. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Special Bailiff Shubert has not yet been filled.

Missionaries Off for Bombay.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—A farewell reception was tendered yesterday by prominent New York Presbyterians to twelve Presbyterian missionaries who sail today for Bombay in charge of Rev. C. B. Newton, D. D.

Divorce Cases in Court.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The Supreme Court Judges of this district have amended the court rules so that hereafter divorce suits where no defence is interposed must be tried in court and not sent to a referee.

Newark's City Election.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 9.—Joseph E. Haynes was re-elected Mayor of Newark for the fourth time yesterday by a Democratic majority of about 1,200. The Republicans retain control of the Council by a majority of two.

An Engineer Instantly Killed.

MALDEN, Mass., Oct. 9.—Everett Chaney, aged 37, employed as engineer at Adams Bros.' mill here, was caught in the shafting yesterday and instantly killed. He leaves a widow and one child.

A Conductor Run Over and Killed.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—H. J. Weaver, aged 24, of Trenton, a conductor, was run over and killed last night by a Pennsylvania Railroad engine at Nicetown, a suburb of this city.

AT THE FALL OPENINGS

Of Loves of Toques and Dear Delights of Turbans.

Piquant Shapes in Felt and Velvet Which Attract Fashionable Dames—Jet Coronets and Greek Bands for the Heads of the Four Hundred.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

"The army of American women which invaded the Paris Exposition this summer must have bought its autumn millinery abroad and hurt trade."

This remark was ventured in the presence of a man milliner, one of the designers and importers of hats and bonnets most favored by fashionable New Yorkers.

"Not so much," returned the magnate of toques and turbans, "not so much as you would suppose."

"A majority of well-to-do women who go abroad do less shopping there in proportion than was the case some years ago. A woman buys a hat in Paris and finds when she returns to New York that she simply can't wear it here. That which was charmingly odd and pretty in the French capital appears at once in our more restrained and conventional atmosphere outre and impossible. Of course the importing houses chose from among the Paris styles such as they think will chime in with American ideas and even these they often essentially modify. Many of the hat shapes for instance are re-blocked before we think of offering them to our customers. The woman who shops for herself in Paris is as likely as not to hit on something which utterly fails to take and is not seen on this side of the big pond. Of course if she has twenty or thirty hats a season these extreme styles are just what she most desires, but the great majority of well-dressed women, whose band-boxes are fewer in number, find unmodified French headgear suitable for few occasions.

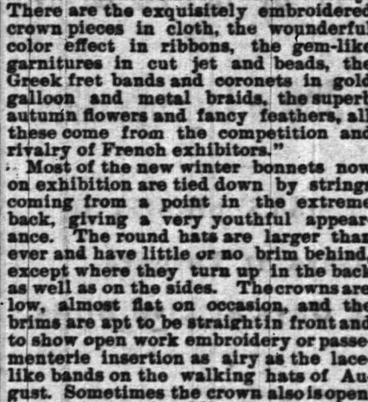
"There are the double-crowned bonnets, for example, which are the novelty of the hour abroad. We Americans show a few simply as curiosities. There are not three women in all New York who would seriously think of wearing them. There is an independent American taste, a certain graceful and picturesque yet refined note demanded by our own women. And yet the centennial of the French revolution has meant much for us in the way of artistic achievement and luxury. There are the exquisitely embroidered crown pieces in cloth, the wounderful color effect in ribbons, the gem-like garnitures in cut jet and beads, the Greek fret bands and coronets in gold galloon and metal braids, the superb autumn flowers and fancy feathers, all these come from the competition and rivalry of French exhibitors."

Most of the new winter bonnets now on exhibition are tied down by strings coming from a point in the extreme back, giving a very youthful appearance. The round hats are larger than ever and have little or no brim behind, except where they turn up in the back as well as on the sides. The crowns are low, almost flat on occasion, and the brims are apt to be straight in front and to show open work embroidery or passementerie insertion as airy as the lace-like bands on the walking hats of August. Sometimes the crown also is open-work—the wind goblins 'll git yer hair if yer don't watch out—only the side crown being of any substantial material.

Bonnets are very small and velvet rosettes placed directly in front are a favorite trimming. Flat Alsatian bows are seen, but oftener a little height is given to the low crown. Theatre bonnets have open crowns edged sometimes by velvet rosebuds. The new French turban, flat and oval of crown or slightly arched toward the front, is one of the leading models in dress hats, which are half bonnet in appearance. Some of the theatre turbans are made entirely of foliage in exquisite velvet leaves, and others are of green, heliotrope or rose velvet trimmed with jeweled ornaments. For the street these turbans come in sealskin or mink trimmed with jet and colored ribbons. The piquant Scotch cap in black velvet and jet makes becoming headgear to be worn with the Scotch plaids now shown.



ENGLISH WALKING HAT.

Heliotrope will be the color of the winter in all the beautiful old tints and many new ones from lilac and dahlia through violet and reddish purple and Persian mauve. Next it in favor came yellow and pale yellowish flame. Red dyes from rose to damask and crimson, green and pink run through high class millinery. A favorite mode of adornment is the coronet-like band of cut jet laid about the brim of an English walking hat, and interlaced with ribbons. Velvet butterflies are new garnitures.

The Shah is the name of a theatre bonnet in yellow velvet with a huge diamond rosette of black velvet over the eyes and an aigrette in peacock tints rising above. There are cut jet ornaments on the sides and yellow velvet strings coming from behind.

A small toque of sealskin is imported by Mrs. Morton for her daughter. It has a coronet of cut jet about the side crown laid on gray-green ribbon. With it belongs a small flat sealskin muff with bow of gray-green ribbon fastened by jet pins. A toque of mink fur shown in Brooklyn has two tails depending in the back and is lavishly trimmed with bows and ends of narrow figured blue ribbon.

A turban bonnet for evening wear which is one the fruits of Mrs. Morton's shopping for Mrs. McKee, is covered with loose folds of white cloth sprayed with gold and silver metal embroidery. There are bands of gray-green velvet above the face with a cluster of white velvet roses, from the midst of which nods a white aigrette.

A conspicuously well dressed blonde who applauded vigorously from a box all the way through Victoria Vokes' presentation of "Hubby" the other evening, wore a big round hat in a pronounced poke shape which was a study in the new heliotrope shades. The leading color tone bordered on a soft old red. The side crown was of puffed velvet, the crown and the wide brim of a heavy open work embroidery stiffened on a wire frame. The trimming of ostrich plumes was almost wholly inside, and was fastened by a jet ornament at the left of the face, the curling ends resting on the shoulder and on the fluffy yellow hair.

A dressy theatre bonnet brought home by Mrs. Frank Leslie is of pale pink corded silk which is laid about the face in soft folds lined with green velvet. Upon the silk runs a delicate creeping vine with small round leaves of a paler green velvet and a stem of silver beads. The crown is open to show the hair, and the garnitures are a green velvet rosette, and an aigrette of pink and green.

Perhaps the leading importer of the city shows as one of his chief d' oeuvres a hat of green velvet with an absolutely flat round crown not bigger than the bottom of a cup meant for after dinner coffee. The brim is composed of side plaitings of velvet, very fine and even, flaring equally all the way round. An earl's coronet in jet—a favorite ornament by the way since the marriage of the Princess Louise—is set upon the crown.

The same milliner keeps in a box protected by soft tissue papers, so that the grand dame whose fancy it captures may think that her eyes are the first to which it has been displayed, a piquant model of inch-wide scarlet velvet ribbon run into the meshes of an open work jet frame, making a lacelike and coquettish structure finished by jet aigrettes and flat bows of scarlet ribbon.

For the beautiful and picturesque Mrs. Ladenburg is a large hat of black velvet with a full puffed velvet brim and a full Tam O'Shanter crown confined about the side crown by a band in Greek fret of wide gold braid. The garnitures are black ribbon bows, over which hover two large black velvet butterflies finished in gold.

NEW FRENCH TURBAN.

A hat chosen some days since by Mrs. Fred Vanderbilt for a young brunette relative consists of a coronet or crown of cut jets encircling the head and rising in a point on the left side. Into this foundation is fulled a soft, puffy turban crown of pale flame-tinted velvet, the only ornaments being two or three long shaft-like pins of tortoise shell with jet beads thrust through the folds behind.

Mrs. Cleveland has been too busy with housefurnishing to do much fall shopping, but she crossed Madison square yesterday in a small close capote of black velvet thickly shirred and with lines of jet beads marking the rows. The crown was covered with jet embroidery, there was a jet coronet to the face and the black lace which made the trimming was jetted heavily.

At a performance of "Shenandoah" the other evening she wore a small black velvet turban with a pale green ribbon bow lying along the front surmounted by black velvet butterflies. The crown was open and partially filled in by a wreath of small pink rosebuds.

We are now at the flood tide of the fall openings and the big dry goods houses are thronged with women. It is wonderful the amount of jet there is to see. The fashionable woman this season will herald her coming with a rattle of beads as merry as set the echoes ringing in the jet craze of two or three years ago. Jet bands, jet coronets, jetted ribbon and jetted lace abound in the millinery. A capote of rose velvet has a double coronet of jet about the face, each coronet surmounted by a butterfly.

Large felt hats in bright colors promise to lend brilliancy to the promenade. An opening day model is a round hat in sulphur yellow felt turned up behind and on the sides. The brim is lined with black velvet edged with a row of large diamond-shaped jet ornaments. The crown is covered with a profusion of black ostrich tips and black ribbons.

In spite of the efforts of the Audubon Society hats and bonnets continue to be perching places for birds. The large blackbirds used in the early autumn reappear in winter millinery. A flat turban of old royal purple velvet has a coronet of jet next the face and a black paroquet on top, with tail projecting forward. A large hat of brown felt has the roll of the brim filled in with small brown and cream birds half the way round. Brown ribbon and ostrich plumes furnish the remaining garniture.

Flowers refuse to give up the fight as against feathers. They are often placed as during the summer inside the hat on the hair. A striking French model is a flaring Directory hat of black felt, the brim of which is cut out in an open work leaf pattern and then embroidered in velvet and silk on the material. The trimming is a black and green double faced satin ribbon—most ribbons which are not brocaded are double faced, by the way—with strings of the same from behind. On one side is a huge bunch of black ostrich feathers. Inside the brim is a large spray of pink roses and foliage.

The variety and elaborate construction of mourning bonnets excites astonishment in the breast of the most hardened. This winter the long widows' veil is to be less used, the nuns' veil acting as its deputy. As a natural consequence fewer crape bonnets are shown, uncut velvet and heavy corded silks holding prominent positions. These bonnets copy every shape and every whim of their gayer sisters, duplicating in dull jet, in dull silk cord embroidery, in black rosettes and aigrettes every millinery effect known.

Young girls' hats are even lower of crown than those of their elders. A hat for Fifine Potter, Mr. James Brown Potter's daughter, is of old rose felt, with shaded old rose and white ostrich feathers laid flat about the brim.

The Genesee Conference.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 9.—The Genesee Conference yesterday adopted a strong prohibition document without discussion. J. F. Gracey, of Buffalo, was appointed tract agent of the conference. F. H. Root, of Buffalo, was elected trustee for Syracuse University and trustee of Genesee Wesleyan Seminary. The next conference will be held at Bradford, Pa.

Killed by an Express Train.

BOSTON, Oct. 9.—Yesterday a carriage in which Thomas F. Burbank, aged 56, Superintendent of the Bay State Brick Company, was driving over a Fitchburg Railroad crossing in North Cambridge, was struck and shattered by the inward bound express. Mr. Burbank was instantly killed. He leaves a widow and two sons. The horse was also killed.

Connecticut's Official Vote.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 9.—The official returns, with a dozen towns to hear from, give 26,884 majority against the prohibitory amendment.

POISON FOR A PRIEST

Arsenic Discovered in the Communion Wine.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Father Kelly Takes the Deadly Drug While Celebrating Mass.

All the Circumstances Point to a Crime of Murderous Intent—The Priest May Die. Arsenic Found Scattered on the Tables About the Altar—No Clue to the Would-be Murderers.

ONEIDA, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Rev. Father James Kelly of this place is seriously ill and the circumstances connected with his illness point to a crime of murderous intent.

He celebrated mass in the Rink yesterday morning and partook of about two teaspoonfuls of the wine, when he was at once seized with great pain and a burning sensation at the stomach, which he regarded as symptoms of poisoning. He quickly retired from the altar, and making known his situation sent immediately to a drug store for an antidote. The emetic had the desired effect of relieving his stomach, but none too soon. A physician was summoned and applied the best-known remedies for poison. Father Kelly was deathly sick when conveyed to his home.

One of the parishioners yesterday went to Syracuse to have the wine in the bottle analyzed. Several tests were made, each disclosing the presence of arsenic in large quantities. The theory is that some one entered the rink by means of a false key on Sunday or Monday night and put the deadly drug in the small bottle of wine left there, as arsenic was found scattered on the table on the altar.

KEMMLER MUST DIE.

Judge Day Decides that Electrical Execution is Constitutional.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Judge Day of the Cayuga County Court has filed his decision in the Kemmler case.

The case was a habeas corpus proceeding to test the constitutionality of the Electrical Execution law.

As Kemmler is confined in the State prison in this city, the application for a writ was made before Judge Day.

The Judge decides that the law is constitutional, and remands the prisoner to the custody of Warden Durnston of Auburn Prison for execution.

The decision is long, over 5,000 words in all, and covers the case and points minutely.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—Kemmler's counsel, Mr. W. Bourke Cockran, when asked what he thought of the decision, said: "Well, I can't say that I am very much surprised. You see it is very seldom that one judge will upset a law, and I did not expect Judge Day to shoulder the responsibility of doing so. I did not want to appear before him for that reason. If he has decided that the law is constitutional, why we come down then to the real battle and to our only chances of having the law set aside, the General Term and Court of Appeals. We shall at once appeal to the General Term and then to the Court of Appeals, if the lower court affirms the decision of Judge Day. Of course, I cannot talk about it to any great extent, as I have not read his opinion, but I am not at all surprised that he has decided as he has done."

IN THE BLOODY ANGLE.

Veterans Want to Place a Monument at Gettysburg Where They Fought.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—The question at issue between the Seventy-second Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and the Gettysburg Battle-Field Memorial Association reached an advanced stage yesterday by the taking of testimony regarding the position held by that regiment and the part taken by it in the bloody fight of July 3, 1863. A bill in equity was filed by the Association some time ago requiring the Gettysburg Commissioners to locate the monument of the regiment at a point on Hancock avenue on the battle-field. The Commissioners demurred from the bill, and the County Court took the same view and sustained the demurrer. The Supreme Court, however, held the lower court to be in error, sustained the bill, and required the defendants to make answer. The Commissioners did answer that the proper site for the Seventy-second's monument should be in the Bloody Angle, where the regiment so distinguished itself.

Testimony was taken on this point in Captain W. W. Ker's office yesterday, William McClain, of Gettysburg, was the examiner appointed by the Court. J. C. Neely, of Gettysburg, and W. W. Ker and Wm. W. Wiltbank, of this city, attended on behalf of the regiment, and the Memorial Association and the Commissioners were represented by Messrs. Wills and Swope respectively. A large number of witnesses were examined, and the weight of the testimony was in favor of the claim of the regiment to have occupied the ground in the Bloody Angle during the memorable conflict. Among the witnesses were Captain Bob McBride, Seventy-second; Captain Fred. Feoger, Fourth United States Artillery, who was First Sergeant of Cushing's Battery at Gettysburg; Patrick Mullen, Fourth United States Artillery; F. T. McMahon, Seventy-first; E. Cundy, Seventy-first, and John Buckley, Sixty-ninth.

A Tanner Order Rescinded.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Assistant Secretary Bussey has rendered a decision in the pension appeal case of Lundeville, late a private in the Vermont volunteer service, in which he reviews and rescinds the "order" issued by Commissioner Tanner on the 25th of last April, abolishing the rating of $2 per month and establishing instead the sum of $4 per month in all cases dating from March 27, 1888.

ANOTHER CLOSE FINISH.

The Race for the Association Pennant Creates Excitement.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 10.—The Baltimores put up a miserable fielding game yesterday, while Brooklyn batted heavily and played a good all round game. Baltimore started off with Kilroy in the box, but the latter was touched up so lively in the third inning that Cunningham was substituted, and in the fourth inning Foreman was brought into requisition. The twirling for Brooklyn was done by Caruthers' who had officiated the day before. Caruthers had received a telegram in the morning to the effect that he was the father of a son and this so tickled him that he wanted to go in again, and his desire was gratified.

The game was not interesting to the few hundred spectators present, owing to the many blunders of the home players.

Von der Ahe Enthusiastic.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 10.—Milligan won the game for St. Louis yesterday. His hitting was the most terrific ever seen in this city. Von der Ahe was enthusiastic last night and says he can yet win the championship.

A Workingman's Rich Find.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—A day laborer named Devault found $20,000 in bank notes while digging in Lincoln Park, near Red Bank, New Jersey. The notes were issued by the Bank of Concord, N. H., many years ago. Sixteen engraved plates were found with them. It is conjectured that the notes and plates were buried by a bank robber named Sherman, who once lived in that vicinity, and was drowned twenty-five years ago.

McCarthy and Breslin Fight One Round.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Mike Breslin of this city and Charley McCarthy, the Philadelphia lightweight, fought a brief but decisive battle on Iona Island, the favorite resort for Sunday School picnics on the Hudson river, near Peekskill, yesterday. Breslin forced the fighting in the first round which ended with McCarthy almost knocked out in his own corner. When the second round was called McCarthy refused to fight, and the stakes, $500, were given to Breslin.

Will Become Teachers.

ALBANY, Oct. 10.—Among those to whom the State Superintendent of Public Instruction announces that he will issue teachers' certificates as a result of the examination of 1889 are the following: William Daniel Hyer, New York; Emma L. McAllister and Francis Ward, City Island; John C. Sturges, Dobbs Ferry; Harriet E. Abbott and Mary S. Clowes, Hempstead.

His Reason Believed to be Restored.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 10.—About a month ago Wm. J. Armstrong, a wealthy coal dealer of this city, escaped from a private insane asylum at Merchantville, N. J. To-day he returned from Canada in company with his brother Frank, who found him working on a public building in Montreal. Mr. Armstrong was a victim of melancolia, but his reason is now believed to be restored.

Fire at Bath, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 10.—A Bath despatch says: "The shops of the Cooley Manufacturing Company were burned yesterday. The loss is $18,000 to $20,000; insurance $9,000. The Bath wagon shop was damaged to the extent of $4,000; partially insured.

Oil Dealers Make an Assignment.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 10.—W. A. Robinson & Co. oil dealers have assigned to Josiah Swift of New Bedford. The firm was established in 1829 and has an oil refinery in New Bedford and an office here. No figures yet available.

Murder in the Second Degree.

ALFRED, Me., Oct. 10.—In the case of Rice K. Smith, for the murder of William Whitten, the jury has returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. Exceptions will be filed.

CRASH IN MID-OCEAN

A Collision that Sunk a Ship and a Steamer.

SEVERAL LIVES WERE LOST.

The Meeting of the Minnie Swift and Geographique Described.

The Captain of the Ship Says that He was Run Down by the Steamer Intentionally—He Saved His Life by Jumping Into the Sea—A Boat Full of Survivors and a Long Journey to Land.

HALIFAX, Oct. 10.—Captain J. W. Liswell of the ship Minnie Swift, which was lost in collision with the French steamer Geographique, of St. Perre, has arrived here. He says nothing of importance occurred until the 11th ult., when the barque Zuletta was fallen in with, dismasted and water-logged. With considerable difficulty twelve of her crew were taken from the rigging. Her Captain (Thompson), and two sailors had already been drowned.

At 2:30 on the morning of the 2d inst. a steamer's lights were observed about six miles distant. The steamer was steering a course which would have enabled her to avoid the ship, but when a mile distant she changed her course and rendered a collision inevitable. Seeing this, those on board the ship rang a bell and hailed her to keep off, but she continued until she struck the Swift on the starboard bow, just forward of the rigging, cutting through to the foremast. She then fell alongside, crushing in the starboard side.

The steamer's quarter having fallen to the ship's quarter, all hands tried to get on board the steamer. Mate J. W. Morris, of Spencer Island, Geo. Gerster and one seaman missed their hold and were drowned. The cook, the stewardess and Miss Minnie Marsters, a passenger, went down with the Minnie Swift.

Shortly after getting on board the steamer it was found that she was sinking, and Capt. Liswell and eleven men of the Minnie Swift's crew, nine of the Zulett's crew, and six cattle drivers, twenty-seven in all, got into one boat, and lay off for an hour from the steamer. Finding she was settling over fast and having all the people the boat could carry, the Captain decided to row for land. Six hours afterward they were seen by the bark Petit Codiac, which hove to, took them on board, and landed them at Dalhousie, four days later. Capt Liswell says he fully believes that the Captain and those in charge of the steamer ran him down intentionally.

The statement of Capt. Pausset of the steamer Geographique was received here yesterday from St. Pierre. He says the weather was bright at 1 a. m. on the 2nd inst., and at 2 o'clock he felt the shock of the collision. First Lieut. Daugner was in charge on deck at the time. Water immediately began to pour in on the port side, which was badly broken, and by 10 o'clock the vessel was half full, and shortly afterwards sank. The Captain saved himself by jumping into the sea and swimming to the boat. A fireman and two English sailors, the only others then on board, he told to jump also. He does not know what became of them. The Captain says the First Lieutenant told him the Minnie Swift was changing her course, and he could not see her lights very well. He avers that the steamer's lights were burning all right.

PENNSYLVANIA SLATE REGIONS.

A New Line Being Surveyed to Tap the Quarries of Lehigh Valley.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.—A large corps of surveyors has been at work in Berks county for the past week laying out the route of the projected South Mountain Railroad. The people of this section are very much interested in the enterprise, since connection is contemplated with the Pennsylvania, Boston and Poughkeepsie, to tap the slate quarries of Lehigh county and establish its chief terminus at Harrisburg.

The promoters are not to allow their ambition to rest here, for they propose to build a line to the West, which they say the traffic over the Pennsylvania, Boston & Poughkeepsie road will warrant. This road is now nearly completed, the big bridge at Portland, Northampton county, which has 250 feet of elevation, having been put in position. A two-mile stretch of road from the Delaware & Hudson crossing to Portland has yet to be finished, but it is expected that by Nov. 10, the entire line will be ballasted and the track laid. It is understood that the first trip will be made over this new route between Boston and Philadelphia about the middle of next month. An advantageous traffic alliance has been secured from Portland over the Lehigh & Lackawanna to Bethlehem, and then by way of the North Penn to Philadelphia.

A Connecticut Baby Farm.

HARTFORD, Oct. 10.—The officers of the Humane Society have unearthed a rank case of "baby farming" at Wapping, in the town of South Windsor. Mrs. George Ayor and her daughter, an imbecile, were found living in a house with eight children. Three others having died during the past month. All the children were under ten years old. The women have taken children and made no returns to the selectmen of birth or parentage. They did not remember the parents of many of the children. A charge of $1.50 per child a week for board was the rule. The three deaths had not been reported. The condition of the women and children was filthy beyond description. State Agent Thrall of the Humane Society said that legal action would be taken to close the place. It was Mrs. Ayer's custom, if the parents of a child failed to remit the $1.50 weekly, to allow the child to starve, or to appeal to the town.

—The encampment of "Troop A," National Guard, of New York, which was to have begun at Mr. John I. Holly's Park avenue farm on the 4th instant, has been indefinitely postponed. The postponement was made necessary on account of the recent wet weather.

—If the members of the amateur minstrel combination who rehearse with banjo, bones and tambourine in the Park avenue store, every night, will lower the rear window in the store and do less stamping on the floor, they will gain the everlasting gratitude of THE PRESS.

A Horse Dies of the Rabies.

A horse belonging to Mr. James E. Totten, of Pruden's alley, was found wedged in between the fence and outhouse in the rear of Henry Liefke's bakery, on West Front street, about midnight, on Tuesday, by Nightwatchman Wright. He notified Officer Giesse and the latter with the assistance of one of Mr. Liefke's bakers got the animal on his pins and walked him up and down Front street for a time. Mr. Totten was aroused and he took charge of the horse. Towards morning the animal snapped and frothed at the mouth, and yesterday morning the horse died in great agony.

A veterinary surgeon, who was called in, pronounced it a genuine case of the rabies. The horse is supposed to have been bitten by a dog, as there was an ugly flesh wound on one of the fore legs.

The Gun Club Tournament.

The attendance at the second day's shoot of the Middlesex Gun Club Tournament, at Dunellen, yesterday, was not so large as on the opening day, but equally as much interest was manifested. The official programme included eight regular events.

There were also nine extra events yesterday. Today the live bird shooting commenced, and many additional crack shooters are present. The tournament will close to-morrow.

Almost a Fire.

About half-past nine o'clock last evening, a lamp suspended from the ceiling of a room in the second story of No. 38 West Front street, melted the chain that held it, dropped on the floor and set fire to the carpet. The tenant threw the blazing lamp into the street and extinguished the incipient conflagration on the floor. No alarm was rung.

PLAINFIELD LODGE OF RED MEN.

They Organize a Tribe Last Evening.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, was instituted last evening, at the K. of P. Hall, by the following named officers of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey: Great Prophet Thos H. Sprague, of Burlington; Great Sachem William J. Stetsen, of Gloucester City; Great Senior Sagamore Edward S. Hance, of Port Oram; Great Junior Sagamore Thomas McDonough, of Trenton; Great Chief of Records Daniel M. Stevens, of Camden; Great Sunnap Fred. Wahl, of Camden; Great Guard of the Forest Thomas M. Kenworthy, of Newark, assisted by visiting members from other Tribes.

That the Tribe has made a successful start on its onward career, is settled beyond a doubt by the fact that there was 64 persons present as charter members. Owing to the popularity of the Order throughout the different States, the Tribe now started in this city, will be within a short time one of the largest in the State. It may be well said that the Orders throughout the State as well as this city, may be proud of so representative a body of men as those who compose the charter members of Miantomono Tribe, No. 118.

The following officers were installed after the Tribe was instituted:

Prophet—N. C. Magus.
Sachem—James B. Clarkson.
Senior Sagamore—Benj I. Allaband.
Junior Sagamamore—Joel Bosterlie.
Chief of Records—John Sylvester.
Keeper of Wampum—Geo. W. McGuiness.
1st Sunnap—Lewis R. Blackford.
2d " —Francis Whitely.
1st Warrior—Charles Fulmer.
2d " —Frank Hale.
3d " —D. A. Shirriff.
4th " —Chas. Quarfort.
1st Brave—Chas. Newman.
2d " —R. York.
3d " —E. Wolrester.
4th " —Chas. Wyhnskey.
Guard of Wigwam—Thos. Osbern.
Guard of Forest—Wm Donoldson.

After the installation of the above, the Tribe adjourned to the rooms of Charles Bock, on Second street, where a fine colation was served, for which he has the thanks of the visiting brothers, as well as the individual members.

The Order was instituted in Newark in 1850, but very little progress was made up to 1870. Since which time it has spread all over New Jersey, and now numbers nearly 11,000 members. Sixty-three Tribes have been instituted in the past six years. In Paterson there are nine Tribes and 1,400 members. In Camden nine Tribes and 2,600 members—one Tribe alone with over 700 members.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. Charles Hyde, Jr., of this city, is to be married during February next, to Miss Godfrey of New York.

Mr. John I. Holly and family who have been Summering on their Park avenue farm, returned to New York, for the Winter, on Tuesday.

Mr. Peter V. Weaver has just completed, very tastefully, the exterior paint decorations of Mr. Chas. Smith's fine residence on Craig place.

Mr. Harry Thorne, Jr., of East Ninth street, has returned from a lengthened visit in the Adirondacks, thoroughly recovered in good health and vigor.

Abraham King was one of the many visitors from this city to the Somerset County Fair, yesterday. While in the crowd on the Somerville platform, his watch was stolen.

Mr. Clarence E. Teel, who was formerly employed in the capacity of shipping clerk at the Pond Tool Works, has accepted a lucrative position as bookkeeper for Messrs A. D. Cook & Bro.

Lewis Schutt, the young son of Mr Wm. Schutt, of Duer street, shot a blue heron on the mountain, yesterday, that was four feet high and measured 6 feet 4 inches from tip to tip of wings.

Mr. and Mrs Bennett Brittin desire THE PRESS to extend their thanks to the host of kind friends who have so heartily in many ways shown their sincere sympathy with them in the sad death of Louie de Castro.

A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. William A. Wilson, at their home, No. 90 Somerset street, last evening. A large number of young people of this city, North Plainfield and vicinity, were present. Dancing and other attractions were indulged in until an early hour this morning.

The boy is very sweet and modest when at home in Plainfield, but a few nights ago he was seen outside the stage door of a New Haven theatre waiting and watching for the exit of the dizzy blondes of the Rentz-Santley combination sans paint, sans yellow wigs and sans all the dazzling beauty that had fired the fickle fancy of this scion of a noble stock now "away from home at college."

Mr. M. M. Dunham has arranged for Mr. Conover's large stage (accommodating thirty persons), to go to Dunellen this evening, affording an opportunity for those who anticipate attending the anniversary of the Christian Endeavor Society there. The stage will leave Warren Mission Chapel at 7 P. M., sharp, and the corner of Front and Somerset streets at 7.05. Fare for the round trip, 15 cts.

—The Central Railroad Company want to lay a branch track from their main line at Elizabeth, to the Dwyer Brothers race course, and protect it by a fence. The Railroad Committee of the City Council yesterday decided to wait until a survey had been made to determine the effect of such a fence upon the public roadway.

A QUIET HOME-WEDDING.

Gen'l Negley's Daughter, Grace, Becomes Mrs. Enoch S. Farson.

Grace Negley, eldest daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Negley, was married to Enoch S. Farson, of Philadelphia, at noon, yesterday. The ceremony was performed in the library of Gen. Negley's new home on West Seventh street, by the Rev. James Y. Ashton, grandfather of the bride. The Reverend gentleman is in the 80th year of his age, and Chaplain of the Moyamensing Prison.

The bride was attired in a beautiful traveling costume of brown cloth, richly trimmed in velvet and passementerie. She entered with her father, and the groom with Mrs. Negley. The ceremony was most impressive.

The wedding breakfast was furnished by the celebrated caterer, Mazetti, of New York, and was very elaborate. The house was decorated with a great variety of choice plants and flowers, and brightly illuminated. The happy couple departed in the afternoon for Washington and the South, and upon their return will go to their home in Philadelphia. Invitations were only to members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Negley was attired in black silk, over petticoat of cream colored satin and black lace. Her ornaments were diamonds.

Mrs. E. S. Farson, mother of the groom, was in black silk.

Miss Edith Negley, sister of the bride, in beautiful grey costume.

Miss Mabel Negley, sister of the bride, in pretty light silk, with velvet trimmings.

Mrs. Davis, sister of the groom, wore black satin and point lace.

Miss Martha Farsen, another sister, was in handsome black lace.

Mrs. Ashton, grandmother of the bride, wore rich black silk and tulle; and Miss Ashton, aunt of the bride, handsome black lace.

The other guests were: Mrs. Geo. Grace, Gen. and Mrs. S. K. Schwenk, Dr. J. L Hatch, Miss Pauline Kneass, Mr. and Mrs. Williamson, Mrs. Elizabeth Roop, Mr. F. A. Bates, Miss May Sackett, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Grace.

There were over one hundred presents, that included sets of silver for all purposes, many rare works of art, bric-a-brac, and useful articles for the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Enoch S Farson.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

Meeting of the New Jersey Grand Lodge in This City.

The twelfth annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Honor met in Plainfield, yesterday, at Reform Hall and the following officers were elected:

L. I. Burk, P. G. D.; S. W. Hartshorn, G. D.; R. C. Jones, G. V. D.; G. W. Small, G. A. D.; J. M. Mayhew, G. R.; J. Marlett, Treas.; J. Winstanley, G. Guide; A. Miller, G. Guardian; W. H. Karr, G. S.; H. W. Leland, Trustee; L. I. Burke, S. R. 2 years; G. G. Hardy, S. R. 1 year; John Otto, S. R. alternate 2 years; J. N. Carpenter, S. R. alternate, 1 year; W. J. Cadmus, State Medical Examiner.

There were present 125 representatives and 27 P. D.'s were created. The present membership of the K. of H. in the State of New Jersey number 4,100, showing an increase since last session of 417. They paid to widows and orphans $101,000, on the death of 54 members, who during their membership only paid in $8,636.35, and in addition to this $3,691.70 was expended for the relief of members and $10,000 by the order in general contributed to the Johnstown sufferers.

The committee of arrangements were: F. P. Haffner, of Dunellen and C. J Feytel of North Plainfield, who secured Reform Hall and made arrangements for dinner at Force's Hotel.

The order is a beneficial one in every respect and is represented in Plainfield by Wetumpka Lodge, 3,401 which at their last regular meeting passed a resolution declaring a sick benefit fund of $5 per week to disabled members. The next annual session of the Grand Lodge will be held at Newark, N. J.

"THAT CITIZENS' TICKET."

How the Democrats Are Fooled Each Year.

(From the Central Times.)

Some persons calling themselves "Republicans" are trying to work up a boom for a "citizens' " ticket in the next city election, through the columns of the Democratic Daily Press. Yes, we recognize the same old chestnut of a rum ticket that is nearly always put in the field as a "citizens' ticket," in the hope of securing a license Council. No one will be fooled by that cry, we take it.

And "we take it" no Democrat will ever be fooled into voting such a ticket again. A "citizens' ticket" in Plainfield has been merely a method of beguiling the Democrats into voting for a lot of striking Republicans who failed in getting a straight nomination by their own party.

A ticket would be made of these soreheads and a sprinkling of silly Democrats, and labeled "Citizens' Ticket." Republican "supporters," however, would scratch every Democrat off before voting it, while the latter party in perfect simplicity would drop it in the box without a mark.

But the Central Times in its ignorance, goes too far. Those who have written THE PRESS on the subject are better Republicans than is the Times; and they are not of the kind who favor a "rum ticket."

Movements in Borough Realty.

The transfers of real estate over the brook, as recorded last week, were:

Oct 3—J H. Jackson, S. M, to Herman Schwed, property in North Plainfield, $500

Parade of the Elizabeth Wheelmen.

The E. W. have decided to give an illuminated bicycle parade, and have selected Saturday evening, Oct., 26, as the date. Invitations have been sent to the different organizations in the surrounding cities, and large delegations of visiting wheelmen are expected to attend. The wheelmen will spare no pains to make the parade a tremendous success.

Register on Tuesday Next.

On Tuesday, October 15, the various election boards will sit in the several polling places, for the purpose of registering the names of all voters who are entitled to the right of suffrage at the coming State election. The Boards will sit again on Thursday, Oct. 31 to revise the lists and add additional names thereto.

New Bridges for Westfield.

At Westfield, Tuesday evening, the Committee of the Board of Freeholders awarded contracts for building three new beam bridges one of which is on Mountain avenue near the Springfield road. The cost of the three will be $1,590.

Courtships average three tons of coal each, and scores of bad coughs and colds; but then every prudent gallant is provided with a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, which costs only 25 cents.

All our city fathers say: "Use Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain." Price 25 cents.

WINGED MESSENGERS.

Plainfield Homers Break the Ocean Record.

The Fanciers' Journal of Philadelphia, contains the following very interesting account of some marvellous flights by Plainfield homing pigeons:

Editor Fanciers' Journal:

Ocean flying is becoming so popular among many of the fancy, so I thought your readers would be interested in an account of one which has resulted in the World's ocean record being broken.

The Scripps League Expedition sailed for Paris on July 24, taking with them six birds, four from my brother's and two from my own loft. The agent (Mr. Ridenour) suggested that four be liberated on the morning of the first day and two on the second morning out.

We objected at first, thinking it too much risk to liberate the two birds on the second morning. Finally, however, we decided to run the risk. If the distance from shore proved too long for the "homers," two weary birds at night must sink beneath the waves. If they reach the land in safety the World's ocean record will have been broken.

At 5:40 A. M., on July 25, four birds were let go from the deck of the City of Rome, 230 miles from home. On Friday, July 26, 9:10 A. M., two birds arrived home, Leander and Hermes, both alighting together. On one of Hermes' tail feathers was lashed a message, written very finely on a piece of thin paper, two and one-half by four inches. It was wired immediately to Mr. Ridenour and was sent by him to several Western papers for which the Scripps League are agents.

A few days later we received word from a gentleman in Riverdale-on-Hudson, telling of a winged stranger coming in upon them while the family was at lunch. One leg was broken and every flight feather was gone from one wing, the result of an encounter with a bird of prey. Had he not met with his enemy he also would have brought a message the same day, as did Hermes.

This bird proved to be the Ancient Mariner, No. 549. He has flown many times from the ocean. His second "toss" was from the steamer Cherokee, 200 miles from Plainfield, "going South." He also has a 500 mile land record. The Mariner is now at home nesting and cooing with his old mate Albatross.

Later my brother received word from a lady in Stamford, Conn., saying that one of his birds, No. 2878, had flown to her house. She had the bird several days before she discovered my brother's name upon its wing and a message upon its tail feather. The bird was let go and came directly home. It will now be seen that all four of the first day birds were heard from, two of them bringing messages.

On July 31 we received from Mr. Ridenour a clipping from the New York World telling of two carrier pigeons being picked up by an incoming English steamer (Othello), with a message from the Scripps League Expedition.

These, of course, were the two birds let go on the second morning out, when about 700 miles from home. We sent a messenger to the ship, but the sailor having the birds in charge would not give them up nor release them unless we paid an exorbitant price. We offered to give him other birds or to pay him liberally. He refused to show but one bird, Ariel, D—80. Before leaving the ship, however, the young man succeeded in securing a copy of the message on D—80. The Captain, when approached, said if we could not pay the price he would "take the birdies 'ome to the wee ones." So I suppose the two birds, after breaking the World's record, have been taken by these unsportsmenlike pigeon thieves to a strange country, instead of being allowed to fly freely to their homes they love so well. If the law in New York was as it is in New Jersey we would have put them "behind the bars."

These birds, you will see, made a wonderful fly; perhaps on the wing all night Friday, or else perched on the topmast of some incoming steamer; in the morning making airline for Plainfield, until exhausted, they dropped on the deck of the Othello.

A new device for carrying messages has been brought about by a Plainfield fancier. When it is patented and put in use no more messages need be lost, as it protects from rain and storm, and even if the bird is out a week the message can be read distinctly.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—General Boulanger will remain in Jersey during the winter. The report that he contemplates a visit to Paris is denied by his friends.

Coughing

IS Nature's effort to expel foreign substances from the bronchial passages. Frequently, this causes inflammation and the need of an anodyne. No other expectorant or anodyne is equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It assists Nature in ejecting the mucus, allays irritation, induces repose, and is the most popular of all cough cures.

"Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of colds, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there is none, within the range of my experience, so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For years I was subject to colds, followed by terrible coughs. About four years ago, when so afflicted, I was advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and to lay all other remedies aside. I did so, and within a week was well of my cold and cough. Since then I have always kept this preparation in the house, and feel comparatively secure."—Mrs. L. L. Brown, Denmark, Miss.

"A few years ago I took a severe cold which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continual use of the Pectoral, a permanent cure was effected."—Horace Fairbrother, Rockingham, Vt.

THE CZAR'S SAFETY

He Will be Well Guarded on His Visit to Berlin.

A GREAT MILITARY DISPLAY.

The Array of Bayonets a Reminder of the Strength of the German Army.

Stringent Precautions Taken to Prevent the Public From Approaching the Czar. His Secret Police Has Warned Him that the Greatest Care Must Be Observed While in Berlin.

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—Generals Werder and Kaltenborn-Stachan will attend the Czar during his stay in the German capital. Arrangements have been made for the most imposing military reception on the arrival of the Czar ever witnessed in Berlin. The entire route from the Lehrter railway station across the Koenigsplatz and as far as the Charlottenberg road will be lined with cavalry, and beyond this by infantry up to the gates of the Russian Embassy.

The vast military preparations for the Czar's welcome and for his diversion during his stay are on a scale of magnificence without a precedent even where foreign potentates have been entertained heretofore, and it is hinted in certain quarters that this extraordinary array of bayonets is intended quite as much as an impressive reminder of the strength of the German armies as for an innocent spectacular entertainment for the benefit of the Czar.

General Werder will meet the Czar at Kiel and accompany him to Berlin. The First regiment of guards together with a company of the Alexander regiment will act as a body guard to the Czar on the route from Kiel to Berlin. After arriving at the capital his escort from the railway station to the Russian Embassy will consist of four squadrons of cavalry, two riding in front of the Imperial carriage and two behind. The most stringent precautions have been taken to prevent the possibility of the approach of the public to his majesty's person. Besides the troops which will be stretched out in solid columns on each side of the route, police officials in citizens clothes will be thickly scattered along the edge of the crowds with instructions to watch for any suspicious movement on the part of individuals or groups of people. These precautions are taken, it is understood, at the express wish of the Czar himself, whose secret police have warned him that the greatest care should be taken during his stay in Berlin to insure his safety. Acting upon their suggestions the German officials are making a thorough canvass of the houses along the proposed route to see that no suspicious persons are lodged there and before to-morrow the police will have the history and pedigree of every dweller along the line from the railway station to the Embassy.

SABBATH SCHOOL WORKERS.

Every Section of Pennsylvania Represented at the State Association Convention.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 10.—Rev. M. L. Gance of this city led the devotional service yesterday for the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association Convention. The formal enrollment of delegates then followed. Every section of the State is well represented. Committees were appointed and reports from officers read.

Dr. W. S. Ross, chairman of the executive committee suggested that a State Secretary should be appointed by the Association, on a salary, to devote his entire time to the work.

Yesterday afternoon the Sunday school scholars of this city paraded and participated in exercises in the Academy of Music and Second Presbyterian church. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. J. A. Worden and Dr. C. R. Blackall, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Dr. James Morrow and Rev. J. M. Reimensnyder. The convention will continue in session until to-night.

EX-SENATOR FAIR RESIGNS.

Young Mr. Flood Succeeds Him at the Head of the Nevada Bank.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—James G. Fair resigned from the Presidency and directory of the Nevada Bank yesterday, bringing to an end the last chapter in the wheat deal of 1887, which cost the bonanza crowd several million dollars.

When the retirement of Mr. Fair became known to the street, speculations as to the reasons for the change soon ran rampant. Several theories were advanced, but without any satisfaction to those who held them. The statement which found most general acceptance was that a settlement had been effected by Mr. Mackay and the Floods, and that the partnership which was again entered into at the time of the collapse of the wheat deal, when Mr. Fair came to the assistance of his old-time mining partner, was at an end. This theory found ready believers, especially when it was known that Mr. Fair had retired from the Board of Directors as well as the Presidency.

Lotous Strikers.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—There was a riot at Bristol last evening on the arrival of a number of laborers to replace 600 gas stokers who are out on strike. The new men were hooted and pelted with stones until they took to their heels and disappeared.

Lived Nearly a Century.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 10.—Miss Ann McColgan, sister of the Right Rev. Monsignor McColgan, Vicar General of the Baltimore diocese, died last night, aged 98 years.

A Greenback Ticket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—A convention of National Greenbackers to nominate a State ticket has been called to meet at the Grand Central Hotel, this city, on October 21.

Carlton Will Hang.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The sentence of death passed on "Handsome Harry" Carlton, who shot the policeman last year, has been affirmed by the Court of Appeals.

A SHIP CANAL.

Pennsylvania's Plan to Connect Lake Erie and the Ohio River.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.—In pursuance of a joint resolution passed by the Legislature, Gov. Beaver has appointed a commission to determine the feasibility of connecting Lake Erie and the Ohio river by a ship canal, as follows: John A. Wood and Reuben Miller, Pittsburg; ex-Congressman W. S. Shallenberger, Rochester, Pa.; Eben Brewer, Erie; John M. Goodwin, Sharpsville, Mercer County.

This commission is empowered to survey and lay out a route for the canal if feasible and to estimate the expense of its construction and make report thereof to the next Legislature. For the expenses of this commission $10,000 has been appropriated. Gov. Beaver is authorized to fix the compensation of the commission. This is a project which has excited great interest in the Western part of the State.

CAUSED BY A STRIKE.

A Grocery Firm Brings Suit Against the Knights of Labor.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 10.—Messrs. West and Rommel, on behalf of Wm. Whitty, have brought suit against Terence V. Powderly and other officers of the General Executive Board of the order of Knights of Labor in America.

When the strike occurred among the knitting goods workers in Eastern New York, the District Assemblies maintained the strikers for some time, and then the strike was endorsed by the General Executive Board, who ordered the plaintiff to furnish any member of the order with such necessaries as they might need. Whitty furnished $4,000 worth of groceries, and has been paid all but a balance of $900, which he claims the Executive Board guaranteed.

Held for Embezzlement.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—J. Wilbur Parrott, formerly an agent for the Agricultural Insurance Company of Watertown, N. Y., was arraigned before Magistrate Smith yesterday afternoon on a charge of embezzlement. It was in evidence that Parrott was discharged from the company on July 31, but continued to collect money from different persons, amounting to $2,000, which he appropriated to his own use. The defendant was committed in default of $2,500 bail.

An Extensive Tin Plate Mill.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.—Arrangements have been perfected for the establishment in this city of an extensive tin plate mill. Four and a half acres of ground have been purchased upon which the plant will be erected within one year. The property selected is known as "Glenwood Park" on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, and near the Monongahela river. The names of the capitalists interested have not yet been made known.

W. W. Astor's Dinner.

NEW YORK, Oct 10.—W. W. Astor gave a dinner at Delmonico's to a number of prominent citizens identified with the World's Fair movement. The object was to exchange views on the subject of the Exposition. The occasion was an informal one, no set speeches being made. Among the invited guests were Mayor Grant, Vice-President Morton, ex-President Cleveland, Senator Hiscock, C. M. Depew, G. W. Childs and W. R. Grace.

The Bogus Diploma Doctor Indicted.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 10.—The Grand Jury of the United States Circuit Court yesterday returned indictments against Dr. H. F. Bradbury, of Nashua, of bogus diploma fame for using the mails for fraudulent purposes and for using a fictitious name for the purpose of procuring, aiding or abetting fraud. Dr. Bradbury pleaded "nolo," and was sentenced to pay $350 fine.

Reformed Church Synod.

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 10.—The synod of the Reformed Church of the United States convened for its second day's session in the Reformed Church yesterday. The following officers were elected: President, Rev. S. S. Miller, Boonsboro, Md.; vice-president, General John A. Steiner, Frederick, Md.; secretary, Rev. B. J. Musser, Huntingdon, Pa.

In Memory of the Green Mountain Boys.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 10.—The monument erected by the State of Vermont in memory of the Green Mountain Boys who fell in the great battle of 1863 was dedicated yesterday. Senator Edmunds delivered the oration, and a poem by Julia C. R. Dorr was read. Other prominent Vermonters took part in the exercises.

Trip of the Delegates.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 10.—A banquet was tendered the Pan-American delegates by the Board of Trade at the Allyn House last evening at which Gov. Bulkeley presided, and from 10 o'clock till midnight a reception was given by the Governor at the Capitol. The party left early in the morning for Collinsville and Meriden.

Four Jurors Wanted.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The struggle to get the last panel of four jurors in the Cronin case was resumed in Judge McConnell's court to-day. The defense has twelve peremptory challenges left and the State thirty-seven.

Print Cloth Market Shaky.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 10.—The print cloth market was shaky yesterday. Prices fell one-sixteenth, and are expected to drop still lower to-day. Mill men talk this morning of reducing the wages in all departments.

The Colored Boy Respited Again.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 10—Simon Walker of Chesterfield county, the negro boy condemned to be hanged on the last of this month for an assault upon a white girl, was last evening respited by Gov. Lee for thirty days.

The Strike at Flensburg.

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—The strike of the dock laborers at Flensburg shows no signs of settlement. Soldiers from the garrison and a number of laborers who were brought from other places are unloading vessels.

The Catskills Covered With Snow.

NEWBURGH, Oct. 10.—Passengers on the south-bound boats and cars say that the Catskill Mountains are white with snow. It was quite frosty here last night

FRENCH-HARP JOHNNIE.

THE SOIL of Hog-Wallow Flats being capable of producing only scraggy post-oaks, was left by the pioneers in its primitive state. The oaks grew acorns, on which wild hogs subsisted. The poor natives subsisted on the hogs. On the edge of the Flats stood a grocery, whose front door looked across a lake at cultivated fields. This view was sometimes marred by episodes of human life, mean, wretched and tragic. The door could count more bullet holes in its bosom than there are weeks in the year; but it was modest and never boasted of its scars.

Moon-Eyed Dave kept the grocery. He was a short, bewhiskered, heavy, solemn-faced man with a slow movement; whether dealing out whisky or quelling a row, he was never in a hurry. He lived on whisky and peanuts; when not eating he was drinking, and when not drinking he was eating "pinders."

"Hurry up, Dave," said Lyt Dyer, a long, lean young man, with large hands and feet, exaggerated joints and a very small head. "I'm thirsty. You're the slowes'-motioned licker-man I ever seed."

"I ailers take my time, whatever I'm er doin'," replied Dave.

"Yes, an' you take er good sheer uv other folkses time, too."

"Waal, ef I take some uv your'n, you won't miss it."

"Why!"

"Bekase you're got so much uv it to spare. In fack, it's erbout all you have got ter spare."

"See here, now, Dave, I hain't the only feller that owes you er licker bill. So don't start er ruckshun by takin' spite outen me."

"All right, Lyt, all right. I hain't in no fix ter fight, nor laugh nuther, ter-day."

"What's the matter?"

"French-harp Johnnie's in thar"—pointing to a back room—"mighty sick."

"Dave, I wouldn't hurt your feelin's fur er barrel uv licker, but I can't see why you take on so over that ediot boy. He can't hardly feed hisself, and hain't fittin fur nuthin' but ter call hogs and play the Frinch-harp."

Dave's moist eyes glared at the speaker, and he was almost in a hurry as he picked up the bottle. But he leisurely lifted it, placed it on the shelf behind him, and wiped off the counter with a dirty rag.

"Ef I didn't know, Lyt," he replied, "that you don't mean no harm by what you're sayin' I'd put ez many holes in you ez that door's got thar. Now, I'll answer you in the same sperret. When ole Loge Smothers wuz drawin' down on me with his Winchester that day when he kilt the two Ransum boys, didn't Johnnie run be twixt his legs an' trip him up? Wuz thar one uv you brave ernuff ter do that, let erlone havin' sense ernuff! But fur that, I'd be whar I put Loge. Whar'd I fin' the boy? I picked him up in the road las' summer, twixt here an' Shreveport. Leas'wise, he clum inter the back end uv my waggin', so tired, an' pale, an' sick, that er meaner man than me couldn't er done more'n fetch 'im erlong. Hear him er moanin'! Come an' look at 'im."

They went into the room. The boy lay on a lounge on his back. The nostrils were tightly drawn in, by that force which the fingers of death alone exerts; over the suffering face ran the threads of a smile that was grotesque and pitiful. He looked at Dave and babbled "water!" When refreshed, he picked his trembling fingers, felt over the coverlet, looked again at Dave and whined.

"He wants his harp," said Dave, giving it to him.

He placed it in his mouth and played "Home, Sweet Home," in quivering strains. Then the palsied hand fell, the harp ceased and dropped from his lips to the pillow. The boy was dead.

Dave tore a long strip from the sheet on which the boy lay and left the room. He went through the bar followed by Lyt. "Pass out, Lyt," he said, "I gwineter close up." He locked the door, put the key in his pocket, tied the cloth to the knob and sat on the porch, his back against a post.

"This winds up the licker bizness, Lyt," he said.

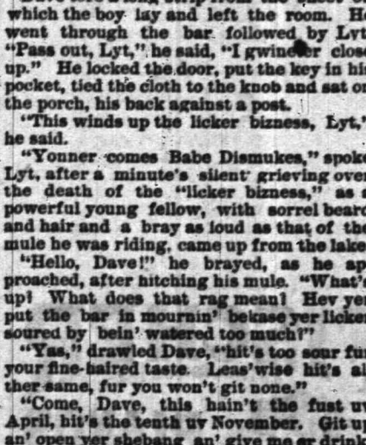
"Yonner comes Babe Dismukes," spoke Lyt, after a minute's silent grieving over the death of the "licker bizness," as a powerful young fellow, with sorrel beard and hair and a bray as loud as that of the mule he was riding, came up from the lake.

"Hello, Dave!" he brayed, as he approached, after hitching his mule. "What's up! What does that rag mean! Hev yer put the bar in mournin' bekase yer licker soured by bein' watered too much?"

"Yas," drawled Dave, "hit's too sour fur your fine-haired taste. Leas'wise hit's all ther same, fur you won't git none."

"Come, Dave, this hain't the fust uv April, hit's the tenth uv November. Git up an' open yer shebang an' give me er drink, fur I'm dry ez er sun-perch on er san'-bar."

"Nary drap do you git, nor nobody else, fur love nor money nor no other reason. Thar's forty gallon uv sperrets in that house, and I'll ship it back to pay er bill I owe. When that's done I'm done with the licker bizness. What's the matter! Nuthin', 'cep'n' I've tuck er fool notion ter quit. An' I haint ershamed ter acknowledge I got it frum Frinch-harp Johnnie, who's layin' in thar on my bed dead. He saved my life, you know. That same night, when he was blowin' his harp, he stopped, looked at me, an' said: "Whut's whisky fur, 'cept ter make men fight an' kill?' Then he went on playin', jes' ez if he hadn't said nothin'. When he got sick I nussed him. One night he riz up, skeered, grabbed me by the neck an' stared at sump'n in the darkness outside. 'O, daddy, doan' kill me! doan' kill me!' he screamed, an' hugged me so tight I mos' choked. Then I said ter myself his daddy wuz er drunkard. I swore that when he got well or died I'd leave the makin' of sich ez him ter other folks.



"THIS WINDS UP THE LICKER BIZNESS."

"He's dead. I'm gwineter bury him in er fine coffin in my garden at my place beyant the lake, an' put er tombstone that twenty foot high, on which shell be cut these words: 'In memiry uv Frinch-harp Johnnie, who made er gentleman uv Moon-Eyed Dave.' No usen axin' me, gentlemen," he went on, addressing others who had assembled and were making clamorous demands for "red licker." "My mind is sot. Nary smell do yer git. An', though I'm changed in this one thing, I'm yet the same old Dave, whut means whut he says an' stan's squar up ter his word; you all know me."

They knew him, for they ceased to importune, and went home "dry."

Dave also stood square up to his word concerning French-harp Johnnie. A monument of white marble glistens in the sunlight on the farther shore of the lake, and travelers wonder what it is. The curious find out by crossing the lake and spending a day and night with Moon-Eyed Dave.

CHARLES S. BLACKBURN.

Fashion's Favors.

Unmitigated flatness at the back is a striking feature of the costumes just received from abroad.

The new carmelite wools have silk-woven borders which closely resemble Kensington embroidery.

French washing cheviot is a new material, which is particularly designed for utility gowns and childrens costumes.

Stylish seaside costumes for the first cool days are made of silver gray faced cloth. The trimmings are shaded gray or magnolia white arabesques, or silver galloons.

Genuine green acorns in their tiny cups, and surrounded by shining dark green oak leaves, appear upon some of the large Directoire hats for early autumn wear.

The newest Directoire capes are very full. They are cut round, the small centre at the top fitting the neck, and falling thence in folds around the shoulders.

Black watered silk skirts and bodices, with draperies of Venetian silk net, will be worn during the autumn, the high bodices of the net over V-shaped ones of moire.

A high, wired collar and small hood are effective additions to seal plush mantles, and similar collars of plush or fur are very stylish upon Directoire capes of cloth.

The newest silk blouses for neglige wear are handsome tucked models of crepe and taffetas silk, which fit the figure as closely as a dress bodice, yet have the easy effect of the blouse.

Costumes of laurel green crepaline for early autumn wear are made up in Directoire style, with garnitures of Persian arabesques which show exquisite intermixtures of brilliant colors.

Orange and copper-colored trimmings are the fancy of the hour in London and Paris for diaphanous black toilets, and a great deal of ribbon, both wide and narrow, is used in many fanciful ways.

The refinement which distinguishes the new woolens is also characteristic of the new colors, which are mostly half-shades of green, gray, blue or terra cotta, and exquisite tints of fawn and brown.

Some of the new silken fabrics for demi-dress uses show designs of four o'clocks, dewberry, eglantine, rosemary, iris and honeysuckle blossoms, and are most effective when made up in Empire styles.

Autumn brides wear traveling dresses of Indiana cloth, glace mohair, Turkish melton, bordered English serge or finely woven French camel's hair. They are mostly made up over silk skirts, and trimmed with ornaments and bands of silk cord.

A decided attempt is being made to lengthen the skirts of street costumes. It is hoped that the modistes will cry it down, as it is an untidy and burdensome fashion, and not at all conducive to the health or good nature of the wearers.

Owing to the continued popularity of the blouse, belts are necessary adjuncts of the toilet. Some of the soft leathern belts are very tasteful, and there are some very pretty ones of silk or fine silk stockinette, with silver clasps, and also of white or pale gray kid, with gold and silver clasps.

Fashion has decreed that ladies in London's best society must appear at afternoon teas, lunches, kettledrums and other afternoon entertainments with arms bare, as well as in the evening. The long gloves will be drawn off, and no bracelets will be worn, but the fingers will glitter with costly rings.

An attempt is being made to introduce three-quarter length coats, and Louis Quinze coats of cloth or velvet are shown. These are fitted to the waist, and the fronts slope away to show an elaborate vest, also with revers and Incroyable cravat. These garments are embroidered all over in elaborate patterns.

Short wraps will be worn the coming Winter with dressy street costumes. The models shown are in cape and mantilla shapes, and cloth, shot velvet and seal plush are the materials employed. Many of these garments are mere shoulder capes at the back, not quite reaching the waistline, the fronts being extended to the foot of the skirt, and formed of a breadth of the material folded into three or four large plaits, no other trimming being required.

Autumn tea gowns are modelled after the style of the Egyptian "abaya," and are made of open-work Hindu cloth, with long, flowing sleeves and embroidered yokes. They open over petticoats of silk, which are figured with Indian devices in rich colors, scattered over pale-hued grounds. They are confined loosely at the waist with girdles of silk cords, and slashings at the side of the skirt show a lining of brilliant Egyptian red.

The princesse gown will be in high favor during the Fall for dressy house wear. The favorite model has the back in smooth-fitting princesse breadths, the fronts being cut off at the waistline, with a full-gathered vest of surah or China silk, and a sash of the same edged with fringe and knotted at the left side. The underskirt is laid in medium-sized plaits, which are briar-stitched with silk to a depth of half a yard.

Sad, But True.

"Men are paradoxes," says an educated shoe-maker in Baltimore. "I have studied human nature considerably, and I find men to be paradoxes. A gentleman will jump overboard in mid-ocean to save a girl. The world will applaud his heroism. I knew of one such man, whose daring and dangerous self-sacrifice to save a young lady from drowning filled the columns of the newspapers of his State. In less than a year that same man had, like a criminal craven, led that same young lady to her ruin, and she committed suicide."

Dismissed for Lack of Evidence.

CONCORD, Mass., Oct. 10.—The cases of Dunham and Orcutt, reformatory officers, and Flagg and Russell, the storekeepers, charged with larceny from the State, came up for trial yesterday. Assistant District Attorney Cooney stated that the evidence was not sufficient to convict, whereupon Judge Keyes ordered the discharge of the defendants.

Quaker City Prohibitionists.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—The Prohibitionists last evening nominated the following city ticket: Judge, ex-Judge Briggs; District Attorney, James E. Clark; Clerk of Quarter Sessions, John D. Middleton; Coroner, Dr. W. Hargraves.

Another Landslide Expected.

QUEBEC, Ont., Oct. 10.—Heavy rains have fallen for the past three days almost without cessation. Another landslide from Cape Diamond, it is feared, may be precipitated. Pieces of the rock have been falling during the past two days.

Fell Under a Moving Train.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 10.—C. F. Wood, a well known clothing dealer of Rockland, in trying to board a moving train on the Maine Central Railroad at Scarborough, fell under the wheels and was instantly killed.

Liberal Offer to World's Fair Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Mary G. Pinkney, who owns the entire Polo Grounds at 110th street, has offered that property, along with several other blocks in the neighborhood, belonging to her, to the Site Committee of the World's Fair, providing the committee will pay the taxes. This is the most liberal offer yet made to the Site Committee.

A Remarkable Contest.

A correspondent of a Phillips (Me.) paper tells of a recent encounter which took place between a skunk and a sitting hen. The contest was brief, but the hen came out into the yard at its close in an expeditious manner that was very noticeable. Both her eyes were closed; she tried to scream fire and murder, but she could not get a gasp of breath with which to scream. She stood on one foot, and scratched her head with the other, while her countenance showed the most surprise ever seen on a hen's face. Next she bolted for the road and lay down to rest herself in the dust, and lastly ran into some alders, where she remained over night. This hen has never uttered a single "cluck" or been to her nest since the event came off; but any one can readily tell when she is around. Her desire to raise a family has passed away.

KASKINE,

(THE NEW QUININE.)

No Bad Effect.

No Headache.

No Nausea.

No Ringing Ears

Cures Quickly.

Pleasant, Pure.

A POWERFUL TONIC.

A Specific for Malaria, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration.

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PURIFIER. Superior to quinine.

Mr. Lode Hoornbeck, of the U. S. Ship Rearsarge, writes that he meets people almost daily who have used or are using Kaskine, and who affirm from experience that it is superior to quinine in tonic and curative properties, and produces no subsequent bad effects.

Mr. John C. Scarborough, Selma, N. C., writes: "I got malaria in the Southern army, and for a dozen years suffered from its debilitating effects. I was terribly run down when I heard of Kaskine, the new quinine. It helped me at once. I gained 35 pounds."

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists or sent by mail on receipt of price.

SEEKING THE FAIR

Three Cities Pushing Forward for the Great Exposition.

NEW YORKERS SUBSCRIBING.

Nearly $300,000 Raised in a Few Minutes By the General Committee.

A Meeting to Be Held in Washington Next Week to Secure the Fair for that City. Delegates Representing All the States to Be Present—Chicago Puts Up $6,000,000 and Has More in Sight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The World's Fair Guaranty Fund got an actual start yesterday for the first time by the action of the General Committee in receiving the report of the Finance Committee, and authorizing that body to receive subscriptions, and by the almost instantaneous appearance of subscriptions for $281,000 on the spot.

It was a sight long to be remembered when a tall, slender gentleman in the rear of the Aldermanic chamber arose and remarked in a modest tone that the firm he represented would give $100,000 to the Exposition. Suddenly all eyes were upon him, every ear was bent to catch his every word, and he was greeted with thunders of applause. The speaker was John Claflin, of the firm of H. B. Claflin & Co. He was the hero of the occasion. By him was started a furore for money raising which was only checked by the appeal for more deliberate action.

This incident served its purpose, however, and all present became imbued with renewed interest and enthusiasm with respect to the Exposition, and at the close of the meeting the members of the General Committee separated with the determination that from now on there should be solid work done to capture the Fair for New York.

The meeting was marked by the utmost harmony and was largely attended by the foremost citizens of the city, and there was more done in the direction of securing the Fair for New York yesterday than in all the weeks that have elapsed since the inception of the enterprise.

Talk of a Fair at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Delegates representing all the States and Territories of the Union will meet here on the 23d inst. to perfect plans for the holding of the World's Fair at Washington. The proceedings will wind up with a banquet. In this connection it is interesting to state that among the most important matters to be treated of in Secretary Blaine's forthcoming letters extending invitations to the rulers of Spain, Italy and all the rulers of this hemisphere to join our Government in the festivities and celebration of 1892.

Chicago Puts Up $6,000,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—At a meeting of the Finance Committee of the World's Exposition yesterday it was reported that $6,000,000 had been actually subscribed, with about $3,000,000 more in sight. The subscription by the wage workers aggregated nearly $350,000, and will probably reach $500,000.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—The newspapers of this city are now urging upon the authorities the advisability of organizing a series of grand fetes to be held during the concluding fortnight of the exhibition. The idea of the plan is that five or ten tickets shall be charged at these special affairs for admission, with a view to disposing of the whole of the remaining tickets, the price of which is now fallen to five sous.

A syndicate has been formed with the object of securing the permanent preservation of the street of Cairo and the adjacent pavillions in the exhibition.

Arrested for Slander.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 11—Hon. Peter G. Carey, of Phœnixville, an agent of Chester County Mutual Fire Insurance Company, has been arrested for slander. The suit has been instituted by Thompson Davis, of Schuylkill Towhship, who had his mill destroyed by fire some time ago. It was insured in the Chester County Mutual and the Etna, of Philadelphia. A difficulty occurred in the adjustment of the insurance and Mr. Davis charges Squire Carey with having circulated a report accusing him of having fired the mill to secure the insurance money. Squire Carey has given bail in the sum of $1,000 to answer the charge in court.

Freshmen Brutally Treated.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Henry Hoar, of Ansonia, Conn., and L. D. Van Arnam, of Gloversville, N. Y., members of the Freshman class of Syracuse University, were bound and taken to a swamp three miles east of the city by a party of Sophomores last night. Hoar's mustache and hair were cut and the two men were compelled to walk back to the city. It is said that the faculty have the names of the following Sophomores as being implicated: G. M. Downs, Troy, N. Y.; D. R. Cobb, Ulysses, Pa.; R. W. Lowry, Green Grove, Pa.; W. C. O'Donnell, Brooklyn; Everett Partridge, Edinburgh, N. Y., and William Kritzer, Lyons, N. Y.

Meeting of Women Mission Workers.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—The seventh annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Presbytery of Carlisle is in session here. Delegates are present from all the towns embraced by the Presbytery. Mrs. George Norcross, of Carlisle, presides. The first day was occupied with routine business. In the evening a popular meeting was held. Rev. Dr. J. K. Demarest of the local church presided, and Rev. A. E. Austin of Sitka, Alaska, delivered the address.

LIQUOR DEALERS IN JAIL.

When Released They Will Find Themselves Without a Livelihood.

READING, Pa., Oct. 11.—The nine liquor dealers imprisoned here for 30 days, charged with violating the Sunday law, have suffered severely. Being convicted of their first offense of selling on Sunday, they had their $500 licenses revoked for one year, they were made to pay a fine of $50 and costs of $400 each, and sentenced to jail for 30 days, so that when they are released they will find themselves deeply in debt and without a source of livelihood. They cannot obtain a new license until next year. Meanwhile their wives have changed the saloons into candy shops or places only where temperance drinks are sold. A few have closed up entirely.

Recently these wives came together and agreed upon a plan to furnish their imprisoned husbands extra food, so that they would not be dependent on prison fare. The wives resolved to furnish their husbands one substantial meal a day, that is, dinner, leaving the prison authorities to furnish supper and breakfast. The wives took the duty turn about. One wife cooks and prepares enough for one dinner for the nine men, and she sees that the food is safely taken to the jail. The next day another wife prepares the dinner, and so on until all have served a meal when they begin anew. Of course each wife does her best, and so in this way the prisoners are well cared for, the jail authorities allowing all food to be received. With a boiled dinner the prisoners generally got bottled lager and cigars. Their cells are not locked, and they have the free use of the jail corridors for exercise.

The court authorities have twenty-five more liquor men to try, many of whom are leading suburban hotel keepers, and it is believed that nothing can save them from going to jail also, as the evidence at hand is clear against them. When there is a second conviction of the same person, the license is not only revoked, but the accused is not allowed to sell liquor in Pennsylvania at any time or place ever afterward.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC.

The Pennsylvania State Board of Health Issues a Proclamation.

CARBONDALE, Pa., Oct. 11.—The State Board of Health has issued a proclamation declaring diphtheria to be epidemic in this city, and Mayor Kelly has issued his edict calling upon the citizens to at once place their properties in a healthy condition.

Some of the undertakers have refused to further endanger the lives of their families by handling the bodies of the dead. Already the cases have proved fearfully fatal and there are to-day over sixty cases under treatment.

The city has always been parsimoni- [illegible] first steps towards a system of sewerage.

The Third Party Candidate Wins.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—In the Womans' Christian Temperance Union Convention Mrs. Mary H. Jones, of Philadelphia was elected president, receiving 215 votes; Mrs. H. C. Campbell, of Allegheny City, 94 votes, and Mrs. H. W. Palmer, of Wilkesbarre, 26 votes. Mrs. Jones is an ardent third-party advocate. Mrs. H. H. Forrest, of Philadelphia was elected Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Olive Pond Ames of Scranton Recording Secretary, and Mrs. W. H. Woods Treasurer. The non-partisan element, though defeated in the election of officers, secured a slight victory in regard to the report of the credentials committee, and honors were about equally divided between them and the third-party element.

Boss Printers Elect Officers.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 11.—The United Typothetæ Convention elected the following officers: President, Col. Horace S. Rockwell, of Boston; Corresponding Secretary, Emmet Wadding, of Richmond; Recording Secretary, G. S. Cushing, Boston; Treasurer, A. O. Russell, Cincinnati. Boston was chosen as the place for holding the next convention and the date fixed for the first Tuesday in September. A resolution favoring the passage of State and National laws making it obligatory upon apprentices to serve a period of five years was adopted.

Shotguns for Tramps.

PEMBERTON, N. J., Oct. 11.—During the cranberry-picking season about 200 tramps, men, women and children, have been living in the vicinity of Magnolia, two miles south of here, where they earned a good living picking berries. Since the berry season closed last week most of the tramps left the place, but about twenty-five men and women remained on the bogs owned by Mr. George Reilly and took possession of "all they could survey," and committed all sorts of depredations. Yesterday, however, a posse of men, armed with shotguns and rifles, drove them away.

Anniversary of the Mud Run Disaster.

SCRANTON, Oct. 11.—Yesterday the first anniversary of the Mud Run disaster, in which so many members of the Father Matthew societies of the Scranton diocese were killed, was commemorated by a parade of the societies of Lackawana County in this city. A mass for the repose of the victims was celebrated at the Cathedral by Rt. Rev. Bishop O'Hara in the early morning. A parade for the upper Luzerne portion of the diocese occurred at Pittston, and for lower Luzerne at White Haven, each being represented by about 4,000 members.

Ex-Speaker Randall in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Hon. Samuel J. Randall left his summer home at Wallingford, yesterday for this city. He was accompanied by Mrs. Randall and his two children, Miss Susie and Master Sam Randall. Just before the departure of the train, the ex-speaker went to the rear platform of his car and bowed his acknowledgment to a number of friends who had gathered there. By one and all earnest and hearty good wishes for his entire recovery were ex- [illegible]

MRS. LOGAN'S GUESTS

She Gives a Brilliant Reception to the Sir Knights.

OVER TEN THOUSAND PRESENT.

It Was One of the Great Events of Conclave Week.

The Encampment Selects a Pennsylvania Soldier for Grand Master—Denver Chosen as the Place for Holding the Next Session. A Statement from Secretary Windom About the Conscience Contribution.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Mrs. Logan's reception last night to the Sir Knights and their ladies at Calumet Place was one of the great events of conclave week and the occasion and gathering in point of numbers and brilliancy exceeded all expectations. Perhaps 10,000 people besieged the mansion from 7 o'clock until near midnight.

The reception was held in Memorial Hall, the annex to the mansion erected by Mrs. Logan in memory of her late husband, and in which are preserved the relics of the dead Senator, soldier and Sir Knight Templar. The decorations of the house and grounds for the occasion were elaborate and beautiful. Potted plants and flowers adorned the interior. Lines of Japanese lanterns and flags extended from the roof of the mansion to the ground and every tree and shrub on the grounds was alive with colored lights. Calcium lights flashed their rays over the roadway approaching the mansion, making it as bright as day. On the lawn a large tent was erected where refreshments were served, and two smaller ones near by served as cloak rooms.

Mrs. Logan was assisted by her son, Mr. John A. Logan, and his wife; the members of Chevalier Bayard Commandery of Chicago, of which Commandery Gen. Logan was a member, and a number of her Masonic friends of Washington. A large platform was erected on the lawn in front of the mansion for the accommodation of the Marine Band, which all through the night supplied enlivening music.

THE NEW OFFICERS.

A Pennsylvania Soldier Elected Grand Master by the Knights Templar.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The Grand Encampment Knights Templar of the United States, in secret session, elected the following officers to serve during the next three years:

[illegible] Grand Master; Very Eminent Sir Warren La Rue Thomas, of Kentucky, Grand Generalissimo; Very Eminent Sir Reuben Hedley Lloyd, of California, Grand Captain-General; Very Eminent Sir Henry B. Stoddard, of Texas, Grand Senior Warden; Very Eminent Sir Nicholas Van Slyck, of Rhode Island, Grand Junior Warden; Very Eminent Sir H. Wales Lines, of Connecticut, Grand Treasurer; Very Eminent Sir Wm. B. Isaacs, of Virginia, Grand Recorder.

Denver, Col., was selected as the place, and the second Tuesday in August, 1892, as the time of the next triennial meeting. There was a contest over location between Cincinnati, Louisville and Denver on the first ballot, after which Cincinnati was withdrawn and Denver, on the second ballot, was selected by a good majority.

IT WAS A MISTAKE.

The Treasury Department Explains the Conscience Contribution.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Secretary Windom has been criticized undeservedly in New York State for making public an anonymous communication accompanying a conscience contribution received at the Treasury Department in which the writer insinuated that an earlier contribution of $5,000 sent to the Department while the late Mr. Manning was Secretary had been appropriated by the ex-Secretary to his own use.

The fact is that when this letter was made public by Assistant Secretary Batcheller a few days ago he prepared a statement to accompany it to the effect that the Department records showed that $4,995 had been received and covered into the treasury on the date referred to by the conscious-stricken contributor. By mistake this statement became temporarily separated from the anonymous letter, and consequently was omitted from the account to some newspapers. Neither Secretary Windom nor Assistant Secretary Batcheller are at all responsible for the omission, and regret it as much as Mr. Manning's most intimate friends do.

Shot by a Horse Thief.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 11.—A fatal shooting affray occurred at La Grange last evening. The man who did the shooting is Eugene Shippey, a notorious horse thief. Shippey was riding from La Grange to Miller & Dewitt's farm, a distance of six or eight miles. Upon arriving at the farm Shippey jumped from the wagon, and taking up a shotgun he had been carrying, deliberately shot and fatally wounded the driver, Charles Tannery. The murderer then went to the house and shot and mortally wounded Mrs. Busy. No cause can be assigned for the murderous act, but it is believed that he was out of his head. It is reported that Tannery died to-day. Shippey was arrested.

ELECTRIC FLASHES.

Doctor Van Steichele, Catholic Archbishop, of Munich, is dead.

The President yesterday appointed Ellwood [illegible], Postmaster at Detroit, Michigan.

Smallpox is raging in the government of Oppeln, in Prussian Silesia, and its victims are already counted by the thousands.

Mike McDonald has relented toward his runaway wife. He left Chicago yesterday for New York to bring her home, if she will come.

SEEKING THE FAIR

Three Cities Pushing Forward for the Great Exposition.

NEW YORKERS SUBSCRIBING.

Nearly $300,000 Raised in a Few Minutes By the General Committee.

A Meeting to Be Held in Washington Next Week to Secure the Fair for that City. Delegates Representing All the States to Be Present—Chicago Puts Up $6,000,000 and Has More in Sight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The World's Fair Guaranty Fund got an actual start yesterday for the first time by the action of the General Committee in receiving the report of the Finance Committee, and authorizing that body to receive subscriptions, and by the almost instantaneous appearance of subscriptions for $281,000 on the spot.

It was a sight long to be remembered when a tall, slender gentleman in the rear of the Aldermanic chamber arose and remarked in a modest tone that the firm he represented would give $100,000 to the Exposition. Suddenly all eyes were upon him, every ear was bent to catch his every word, and he was greeted with thunders of applause. The speaker was John Claflin, of the firm of H. B. Claflin & Co. He was the hero of the occasion. By him was started a furore for money raising which was only checked by the appeal for more deliberate action.

This incident served its purpose, however, and all present became imbued with renewed interest and enthusiasm with respect to the Exposition, and at the close of the meeting the members of the General Committee separated with the determination that from now on there should be solid work done to capture the Fair for New York.

The meeting was marked by the utmost harmony and was largely attended by the foremost citizens of the city, and there was more done in the direction of securing the Fair for New York yesterday than in all the weeks that have elapsed since the inception of the enterprise.

Talk of a Fair at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Delegates representing all the States and Territories of the Union will meet here on the 23d inst. to perfect plans for the holding of the World's Fair at Washington. The proceedings will wind up with a banquet. In this connection it is interesting to state that among the most important matters to be treated of in Secretary Blaine's report will be that of extending invitation to the rulers of Spain, Italy and all the rulers of this hemisphere to join our Government in the festivities and celebration of 1892.

Chicago Puts Up $6,000,000.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—At a meeting of the Finance Committee of the World's Exposition yesterday it was reported that $5,000,000 had been actually subscribed, with about $3,000,000 more in sight. The subscription by the wage workers aggregated nearly $350,000, and will probably reach $500,000.

THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—The newspapers of this city are now urging upon the authorities the advisability of organizing a series of grand fetes to be held during the concluding fortnight of the exhibition. The idea of the plan is that five or ten tickets shall be charged at these special affairs for admission, with a view to disposing of the whole of the remaining tickets, the price of which is now fallen to five sous.

A syndicate has been formed with the object of securing the permanent preservation of the street of Cairo and the adjacent pavillions in the exhibition.

Arrested for Slander.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 11—Hon. Peter G. Carey, of Phœnixville, an agent of Chester County Mutual Fire Insurance Company, has been arrested for slander. The suit has been instituted by Thompson Davis, of Schuylkill Towhship, who had his mill destroyed by fire some time ago. It was insured in the Chester County Mutual and the Etna, of Philadelphia. A difficulty occurred in the adjustment of the insurance and Mr. Davis charges Squire Carey with having circulated a report accusing him of having fired the mill to secure the insurance money. Squire Carey has given bail in the sum of $1,000 to answer the charge in court.

Freshmen Brutally Treated.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Henry Hoar, of Ansonia, Conn., and L. D. Van Arnam, of Gloversville, N. Y., members of the Freshman class of Syracuse University, were bound and taken to a swamp three miles east of the city by a party of Sophomores last night. Hoar's mustache and hair were cut and the two men were compelled to walk back to the city. It is said that the faculty have the names of the following Sophomores as being implicated: G. M. Downs, Troy, N. Y.; D. R. Cobb, Ulysses, Pa.; R. W. Lowry, Green Grove, Pa.; W. C. O'Donnell, Brooklyn; Everett Partridge, Edinburgh, N. Y., and William Kritzer, Lyons, N. Y.

Meeting of Women Mission Workers.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—The seventh annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Presbytery of Carlisle is in session here. Delegates are present from all the towns embraced by the Presbytery. Mrs. George Norcross, of Carlisle presides. The first day was occupied with routine business. In the evening a popular meeting was held. Rev. Dr. J. K. Demarest of the local church presided, and Rev. A. E. Austin of Sitka, Alaska, delivered the address.

LIQUOR DEALERS IN JAIL.

When Released They Will Find Themselves Without a Livelihood.

READING, Pa., Oct. 11.—The nine liquor dealers imprisoned here for 30 days, charged with violating the Sunday law, have suffered severely. Being convicted of their first offense of selling on Sunday, they had their $500 licenses revoked for one year, they were made to pay a fine of $50 and costs of $400 each, and sentenced to jail for 30 days, so that when they are released they will find themselves deeply in debt and without a source of livelihood. They cannot obtain a new license until next year. Meanwhile their wives have changed the saloons into candy shops or places only where temperance drinks are sold. A few have closed up entirely.

Recently these wives came together and agreed upon a plan to furnish their imprisoned husbands extra food, so that they would not be dependent on prison fare. The wives resolved to furnish their husbands one substantial meal a day, that is, dinner, leaving the prison authorities to furnish supper and breakfast. The wives took the duty turn about. One wife cooks and prepares enough for one dinner for the nine men, and she sees that the food is safely taken to the jail. The next day another wife prepares the dinner, and so on until all have served a meal when they begin anew. Of course each wife does her best, and so in this way the prisoners are well cared for, the jail authorities allowing all food to be received. With a boiled dinner the prisoners generally got bottled lager and cigars. Their cells are not locked, and they have the free use of the jail corridors for exercise.

The court authorities have twenty-five more liquor men to try, many of whom are leading suburban hotel keepers, and it is believed that nothing can save them from going to jail also, as the evidence at hand is clear against them. When there is a second conviction of the same person, the license is not only revoked, but the accused is not allowed to sell liquor in Pennsylvania at any time or place ever afterward.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC.

The Pennsylvania State Board of Health Issues a Proclamation.

CARBONDALE, Pa., Oct. 11.—The State Board of Health has issued a proclamation declaring diphtheria to be epidemic in this city, and Mayor Kelly has issued his edict calling upon the citizens to at once place their properties in a healthy condition.

Some of the undertakers have refused to further endanger the lives of their families by handling the bodies of the dead. Already the cases have proved fearfully fatal and there are to-day over sixty cases under treatment.

The city has always been parsimonious in the matter of public improvements and this year have taken the first steps towards a system of sewerage.

The Third Party Candidate Wins.

Ex-Speaker Randall in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Hon. Samuel J. Randall left his summer home at Wallingford, yesterday for this city. He was accompanied by Mrs. Randall and his two children, Miss Susie and Master Sam Randall. Just before the departure of the train, the ex-speaker went to the rear platform of his car and bowed his acknowledgment to a number of friends who had gathered there. By one and all earnest and hearty good wishes for his entire recovery were expressed.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—Voters, remember that Tuesday next is set down for the first day of registration.

—Auction sale to-morrow afternoon on Madison avenue, at 2 o'clock. See advertisement.

—Mr. W. W. Martin will organize a class in Light Gymnastics at the Y. M. C. A. to-night, from 8:30 to 9 P. M.

—A forerunner of the Salvation Army was in Plainfield, this week, trying to lease a meeting place for the Winter.

—Mr. A. Lutkins has had the old board walk in front of his residence on Somerset street, removed, and a new one put in its place.

—Nightwatchman Philip Giesse fell and injured his leg a few days ago, and special officer Joseph Cooney has been detailed to watch in his place.

—Plainfield Cornet Band has been engaged by Osceola Hose Co., of Elizabeth, to lead them in the firemen's parade at Rahway, next Monday.

—A most entertaining sight will be the ball of Cypress Commandery of colored Knights Templar, in The Crescent, Thursday evening of next week.

—Advices from Havana state that another cyclone is coming in this direction, and that the greatest damage done will probably be in the United States.

—All of the evening trains from Somerville, last evening, were obliged to carry extra cars to accommodate the passengers who were returning from the Somerville Fair.

—Mr. Watson C. Emory, has accepted a position with Mr. Geo. W. Rockfellow in his grocery store, corner of Park and North avenues, where he would be pleased to meet his friends.

—Interesting Gospel services were held last Sunday afternoon in Reform Hall, led by Mr. George Morrison. On next Sunday the 4 P. M. service will be led by Mr. Nicholson of the Pond Tool Works.

—Do you want to purchase a canary bird? At Kurzhal's tonsorial rooms on West Second street near Park avenue, you can buy a sweet singer for a small amount. See his card in our advertisement columns.

—Mr. Charles Smith, otherwise known as "Dutchy," is one of the most popular sportsmen in attendance at the Middlesex Gun Club Tournament. "Charley" also runs the refreshment counter and provides dinner for the shooters.

—Some evil-disposed person eloped with the mammoth rubber boot, used as an advertisement in front of Kenney's shoe store, on Front street, corner of Park avenue, yesterday, but it was subsequently returned to the owner.

—There is not room enough as it is for the 50 cars a day consigned to this city that are unloaded with so much delay and inconvenience in the present freight yard. Plainfield has outgrown the freight depot, and is ashamed of its unsightliness, too. Remove it.

—The license fees paid to County Clerk Schomp of Somerset county, at the last two terms of Court were on Tuesday turned over by him to the township Committee. The proceeds from the April term were $300 and from the September term $4,750.

—At the game of foot ball between the Lehigh and Princeton teams on the Crescent grounds, to-morrow, an admission fee of fifteen cents will be charged, but there will be no extra charge for seats on the grand stand. The game will be called at 3 P. M.

An Asphyxiated Prayer Meeting.

The electric lights refused to shine on a church prayer meeting, Wednesday evening, and the gas was lighted instead. In turning it up just before the meeting began, the sexton turned it out and the escaping gas drove the congregation away and adjourned the meeting.

Somerset Street's New Bridge.

The joint committees of the Union and Somerset counties' Boards of Freeholders, today awarded a contract to the New Jersey Steel & Iron Company for a girder bridge over Green Brook at Somerset street, cost to be $2,150.

When you need a good, safe laxative, ask your druggist for a box of Ayer's Pills, and you will find that they give perfect satisfaction. For indigestion, torpid liver, and sick headache, there is nothing superior. Leading physicians recommend them.

BOWLING FOR THE TROPHIES.

Messrs Stevens and Smith Win the Cup and the Medal.

The members of the Dunellen Bowling Green Club met in contest on the lawn of Mr. Christian Schepflin, yesterday afternoon, for the Schepflin Cup and the Stevens Medal. There was a large number of competitors and the games were close and interesting.

The Cup is a handsome silver trophy elaborately engraved with the name of the donor, Mr. C. Schepflin, and the time of its presentation, Sept. 1886. It was won in '86 by James Longwill, in '87 by Julius C. Haynes, and in '88 by James Stevens. Yesterday Stevens won it again for the second year in succession, after an exciting contest in the finals against such expert bowlers as Andrew Love, Christian Shepflin, James Smith, and Henry and Andrew McKnight.

In the contest for the Stevens Medal, Messrs Schepflin, H. and A. McKnight, Love, Stevens and Smith rolled the finals. The result was a victory for Mr. James Smith.

IN THE COUNTY COURT.

The Central Railroad Beaten and the Frazee Lee Case Adjourned.

The great case of the City of Elizabeth against the Central Railroad Company to reclaim a valuable dock property long ago seized and occupied by the latter, closed this morning after many years agitation and three weeks trial. Judge VanSyckle's charge was very plain and impartial. The jury were out ten minutes, and returned a verdict in favor of the city. The latter was held to be the owner of the property and awarded six cents damages. To the Hon. F. C. Marsh is due the credit of winning against the railroad company.

The Frazee Lee will case was again adjourned until Monday.

An Exciting Runaway.

A team of grey horses belonging to Mr Carl Kaerth, the mineral water dealer of East Second street, ran away on Front street at one o'clock today, and created great excitement. The horses were hitched to a heavy delivery wagon, and the latter was filled with bottles containing mineral water of various brands.

Turning into Park avenue the wagon struck the curb, and the horses were thrown on the sidewalk but a few feet from the door leading into Stelle's drug store. Here the runaway team was captured.

At the time of the runaway, a little girl who was on her way to school, had reached the corner of Front street and Park avenue but an instant before the horses fell, and Manager Charles Runyon of the Telephone office, seeing her danger, heroically went to her rescue. He picked up the child and tossed her into the doorway just as the crash came. The girl escaped injury.

One of the horses was seriously cut on the legs, and the wagon was badly wrecked Dozens of mineral water bottles were broken and the contents poured into the gutter. The team stated from the corner of Front street and Washington avenue.

Singers vs. Turners.

A team of five men each from the Singing and Turning Sections of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein bowled a friendly contest on the Club's alley, Wednesday evening, with the following result:

Funeral of Mrs. VanDyke.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. VanDyke, wife of Lewis M. VanDyke, took place yesterday afternoon at her late residence 76 West Second street. There was a large attendance of immediate relatives and friends, and the services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Ketcham.

Mrs. VanDyke was never in robust health, and for the past two years she has been a wearied but patient sufferer from consumption. She was a woman of fervent Christian spirit, kindly disposition, and gentle nature. She was a devoted wife and mother whose loss in her family is irreparable. She leaves a husband and six children, the youngest only about two years old.

True Christianity.

The good wife of Freeholder Vanderbeek set a Christian example yesterday afternoon. She is a teacher in the Mt. Olive (colored) Baptist church Sunday school of this city. Her class numbers 50 women, 45 of whom yesterday accepted her invitation to "Tea" from 4 to 6 o'clock. After tea singing of Christian hymns was indulged in, and before leaving for home, Street Commissioner Angleman, who was also there, asked God's blessing on all present.

PLAINFIED CHORAL SOCIETY.

A Local Chorus of 100 Voices Organized.

The people who remember with much pleasure the past entertainments of the defunct Local Vocal Society, would have recognized the faces of every man and woman who gathered together in Vincent chapel, last evening, to consider the organization of another choral union, in reponse to a call published exclusively in these columns.

There was much enthusiasm displayed in the meeting, and the unanimous expression of speakers and voters was in favor of the project. Messrs H. O. Newman, D. E. Davis and D. E. Titsworth were appointed a Committee on Constitution which they subsequently presented for adoption. It provided that the name of the organization be the Plainfield Choral Society.

An election of officers resulted in the choice of the following:

President—W W. Howland.
Vice President—C. W. McCutchen.
Secretary—N. W. Bunyon.
Treasurer—W. T. Kaufman.
Directors—H. O. Newman, D. E. Davis and H. A. McGee.

The matter of engaging a leader was left in the hands of the directors. The society will hereafter meet for rehearsal every Monday evening in Vincent chapel.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. F. H. Martin of East Fifth street, is visiting her brother, Mr. F. A. Leggett, at Asbury Park.

Mrs. M. E. Edgerton is at home on Front street, East, after a Summer at Wentworth Hall, Jackson, N. H.

The August number of Sun and Shade, contained a full-page portrait of Miss Hart of this city, labelled "Sunshine."

Miss Emma McIntyre, started yesterday for a few weeks' visit with her sister, Mrs. Mary Lappin, of Centreville, Bayonne City, N. J.

Mr. D. D. Schenck has returned from a few weeks absence among the farms of Ohio. He has all the higher opinion of New Jersey now by comparison.

At Westfield on Wednesday, occurred the death of T. Harry Hawes, son of the late John and Elizabeth Hawes. The deceased was eighteen years of age.

Mr. James Cahill, a resident of this city, died in the Newark Hospital, yesterday. Undertaker Casey went to Newark, last evening and took charge of the remains.

Mr. Frank W. Vermeule, of Peace street, has enlisted in the U. S. Cavalry, and is now at Jefferson Barracks, Miss., where there are 600 soldiers in camp for training.

The Rev. and Mrs J. W. Mitchell will celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary at the residence, No. 32 Liberty street, on Tuesday evening, October 22, from 7:30 to 12 o'clock.

At the Convention of New Jersey Democratic Clubs, held at the Newark Academy of Music, yesterday, W. K. McClure, Esq., was chosen as the member from Union County of the Committee on Resolutions.

The late Earl of Shaftesbury, for many years President of the London Association, said: "I have always looked upon the Associations in all parts of the United Kingdom and in America, as good cities of refuge."

Mrs. Lambert Edmonds, (nee Esther Kidd), formerly of this city, but now a resident of Bound Brook, in company with her mother, Mrs. Samuel Tucker, are making a short visit with the family of Mr. Gideon Barnes, of the Borough.

State School Law.

A new edition of the State School laws, revised and enlarged, will soon be issued. About twelve pages have been added, consisting of new laws, and the index has been made much more comprehensible. A valuable new feature on the margin of the pages is the time when each particular law was passed and the place where it can be found in full.

This work has all been done by J. Brognard Betts, head clerk in the office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. Besides this, Mr. Betts has, with great labor, searched the reports of the higher courts, and in foot notes gives the result of all opinions bearing upon the laws.

The "Y's" New Rooms.

The "Y's" will occupy their new rooms for the first time next Tuesday, Oct. 15. Two rooms on the second floor of Mr. Love's building at the corner of North avenue and Peace street, have been rented by the "Y's" and they are looking forward to a useful and prosperous Winter.

The expense of the rooms is lightened for the "Y's" by the rental of certain rooms to the Hurlbut Circle, the Episcopal Guild, and Prof. Tetedoux.

The young women hold meetings on the first and third Tuesdays of each month, and the Temperance Drill Class for colored children held once a week, will soon be resumed.

Fourth Anniversary.

The fourth anniversary of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Trinity Reformed church, will be held in the church, this evening. The Rev. J. T. Kerr, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church of Elizabeth, who is an earnest friend of the Y. P. S. C. E., will deliver the address of the evening. Subject: "Consistency in Christian Endeavor." Rev. Mr. Skellenger of Dunellen, and Rev. C. Schenck, the pastor, will also make ten-minute addresses. All are welcome.

THE GUN CLUB SHOOT.

Live Birds Slaughtered by the Wholesale at Dunellen Yesterday.

The live bird shooting at the Dunellen grounds of the Middlesex Gun Club began yesterday. At dawn the rain was falling in sheets. The wind, however, was from the Westward, and the old weather prophets wore smiling faces. As the morning wore on the sun came out warm and bright and the day proved afterward a perpect one of Indian Summer. The attendance throughout the day was large, and the different events filled rapidly.

The shooting began promptly at 9:30, with event No. 18 of the published programme—eight birds, $100 guaranteed purse, open to all, divided into four sums. Budd, B. White, W. Wolstencroft, R. Heikes, Welsh, Irwin, Riggott, Mc Murchy, Cubberly, Dukes and Sigler tied for first with clean scores of eight each. The tie was shot, miss and out. Sigler, Dukes and Cubberly each missed a bird, and the others got the prizes. Quimby, Lindsley, Wolstencroft, Penrose, Manly, C. Smith, Voorhees, J. Smith, and Capt. Jones tied on seven for second money, and divided without a shoot off. Walton, Yerrington, S. G. Smith, M. Fox, E. M. Cooper, and Houghton killed six each and divided third money. Fourth was taken by Beal without an antagonist, he being the only one to miss three out of the eight shot at. The other events were as follows:

Event No. 19—Ten birds each man, guaranteed purse $200, divided, 34 entries. C. Budd, Frank Class, R. Heikes, W. Wolstencroft, Tom Beal, Mahlon Fox, John Riggott, Welsh, Irwin, VanCamp, Williams, Billy Hughes and Charley Smith tied for first, and divided without a shoot off. For second money McMurchy, Sigler, Penrose, Walton, J. Wolstencroft, J. Smith, Cubberly, S. G. Smith and B. White tied. with nine killed out of the ten shot at. Capt. Jones, Manley, Quimby, Lindsley, Forrest, Houghton and Dukes each killed eight, and came in for a share in the third money, which they divided. W. S. Canon, Irwin, E. M. Cooper, old man Voorhees, and Yerrington killed seven each, and divided fourth money.

Event No. 20 of the programme, 7 birds each man, guaranteed purse of $100—Thirty-six men entered for the contest, and the competition was hot from start to finish. First money went to Penrose, Canon, Sigler, Lindsley, Jones, Irwin, McMurchy, Heikes, W. Wolstencroft, Welsh, Williams, S. G. Smith, Fox, Manley, Cubberly, Class, J. H. Force, Piggott, Bowdish and VonCamp, with clean scores of seven killed each. Second money was won by Budd, Walton, Beal, Yerrington, P. Daly, Jr., Quinly, Hughes, J. Smith, Houghton, D. Terry and Bob White, each killing six. This money was divided without a shoot off. Third money was won by Collins, Forrest and C. Smith, and divided. Fourth money was divided by Tee Kay and Snediker. Those who tied for first money were not willing to divide, and a shoot off was insisted on. It was getting dark and, the shooting was postponed until this morning.

A New Cattle Disease.

A new cattle disease has just made its appearance in the neighborhood of Stelton, Middlesex county, and in the vicinity of Harlingen and Griggstown in Somerset county. Dr. J. C. Higgins, who has been called upon to examine several infected herds, says that the disease, in some respects, resembles certain varieties of the terrible scourge known as antrox or charbon; but he at present thinks that it will prove to be nothing more than a severe type of enzootic typhoid influenza in which the majority of case will not necessarily prove fatal.

The disease is supposed to be caused by the wet season. At any rate, it is climatic, and the outbreaks so far are mainly upon low, wet soil.

Will Speak at Somerville.

The President and General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of this city, will speak with reference to the training of Christian Workers at the chapel of the Second Reformed church in Somerville, next Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock. They go by invitation of the Young People's Society of the Second Reformed church of that place, who have also invited the young people of the other churches in town to unite in the service.

Twenty-third Annual Session.

The twenty-third annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars of New Jersey, will be held at Bridgeton, commencing Wednesday, Oct. 16, at 10 A. M., continuing two days. This session will undoubtedly be the grandest ever held by the Order in this State. The Mayor of Bridgeton will deliver an address of welcome and extend to the visitors the freedom of the city.

Major Anderson Post Meeting.

A regular meeting of Major Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R., was held last evening, with Senior Vice Commander Chas. Randolph in the chair.

There were present visiting comrades from Winfield Scott Post, 73, of this city, and Wadsworth Post, 75, of Somerville. Amos B. Stites was mustered in as a comrade, increasing the Post roll to 53.

It is too bad to spend half of a short life distressed with neuralgia, when 25c. spent for one bottle of Salvation Oil will cure it quickly.

He talked as if he had "frog in his throat," but he was only hoarse; a single bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup relieved the trouble at once. 25 cents.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY

Of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Dunellen Presbyterian Church.

The third anniversary exercises of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church of Dunellen, took place in the church last evening, and the exercises were of a very interesting nature. The singing of Miss Benton and Miss Blair was particularly pleasing. The attendance was large, including a score or more persons from this city. Following is the

PROGRAMME:

Hoyt's First, Funniest and Greatest Comedy.

"A Bunch of Keys" will again unlock the doors of humor and let out the fascinating lady warblers and male jumpers at Music Hall, on Thursday, Oct. 24.

Since its first production in this city, "A Bunch of Keys" has been one of the strongest and most popular productions presented. It has been witnessed by large audiences. The music is light and lively, the songs original, the fun continuous and contagious, and the dances characteristic and enjoyable.

The funny hotel scene is familiar to all laughter-lovers as one of the drollest ever conceived, and in the entire performance there is not one dull or prosy feature.

The company presenting "A Bunch of Keys" comprises nearly the same clever people who were in the cast during the last engagement in this city. That delightfully clever little soubrette, Ada Bothner, plays Teddy; Grimesy was never better played than by the talented comedian, James B. Mackie, and Mr. Charles Burke's Snaggs is a capital bit of comedy acting. The minor parts are in competent hands, and an excellent and artistic performance is assured.

New medleys, new songs, dances and witticisms have been added, and it is safe to assert that Music Hall will be filled with a flood of mirth and melody.

Railroad Men Discharged.

Wm. Gulick, of Somerville, a brakeman on the New Jersey Central Railroad, with Brakemen Shedd and Smith of Conductor Rand's crew, were discharged last Saturday for playing cards while waiting for their trains at Jersey City. Inasmuch as no order had been issued by the Company forbidding its employees to play cards, the action seems rather severe.

Mr. Burdick's Coming.

Music Hall has been engaged by the ladies of the W. C. T. U., for Gospel temperance meetings, led by Mr. Burdick, during the evenings of November, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 20, 22 and 23, commencing Sunday afternoon at four o'clock of Nov. 10.

Professor Gauthier, of Paris, states that certain vital processes of the body develop putrifying substances in the tissues, which, if not speedily eliminated, produce disease. Ayer's Sarsaparilla effects the removal of these substances, and thereby preserves health.

Coughing

IS Nature's effort to expel foreign substances from the bronchial passages. Frequently, this causes inflammation and the need of an anodyne. No other expectorant or anodyne is equal to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It assists Nature in ejecting the mucus, allays irritation, induces repose, and is the most popular of all cough cures.

"Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of colds, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there is none, within the range of my experience, so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For years I was subject to colds, followed by terrible coughs. About four years ago, when so afflicted, I was advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and to lay all other remedies aside. I did so, and within a week was well of my cold and cough. Since then I have always kept this preparation in the house, and feel comparatively secure." —Mrs. L. L. Brown, Denmark, Miss.

"A few years ago I took a severe cold which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continual use of the Pectoral, a permanent cure was effected."—Horace Fairbrother, Rockingham, Vt.

ANOTHER HOT FIGHT

A Fever-Heat Struggle for the Association Pennant.

ONLY THREE GAMES TO PLAY.

Brooklyn Has a Good Lead But Cannot Afford to Lose a Game.

The Grooms Will Visit Columbus To-Day and the Browns Will Play Cincinnati—Von der Ahe Has Hopes of Winning the Pennant—Sharp Contest for Third Place. Standing of the Clubs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—As the situation looks now the close of the American Association will be as exciting as that of the League. Both Brooklyn and St. Louis have three scheduled games to play. The former has three with Columbus, while St. Louis is on the card to face Cincinnati three times. Columbus has proved a hard nut for the Grooms to crack this year, the Brooklyns having won nine and lost seven with the Association "babies." However, the friends of Brooklyn's pets say the St. Louis men will surely meet reverses in Cincinnati, as the Reds are now playing fine ball and are anxious to see Von der Ahe defeated. Brooklyn looks to Cincinnati for assistance. She surely expects none from Columbus.

There is another point to be considered. The Association season does not end until the night of Oct. 17. The last games are scheduled for Monday, Oct. 14, thus leaving three open dates for playing postponed games, of which the St. Louis has fixed three with the Athletics and one each with Baltimore and Brooklyn. President Von der Ahe has been negotiating with the Quakers to play three games, and if necessary for the Browns to win the pennant they may be played. It is a fever-heat struggle.

TO SAVE LECONEY'S NECK.

The Indicted Man's Friends Working Hard to Save His Neck.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 11.—The friends of Chalkley Leconey are working in earnest now to save his neck from the rope.

The evidence against him was submitted to the Camden County Grand Jury yesterday, and after a very short deliberation that body indicted him for murder in the first degree by a unanimous vote.

Garrett Murray, Frank Lingo, Dr. Izard, Billy Smith and an unknown woman furnished the testimony to the Grand Jury.

Leconey's friends were surprised, as they hoped for a disagreement at least. The ablest legal talent will be employed to defend him.

The trial is expected to begin the latter part of this month.

A London Ex-Lord Mayor Dead.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Sir Benjamin Samuel Phillips, Kt. ex-Lord Mayor of London and ex-Alderman of Farrington within, died to-day, aged 79 years. Sir Benjamin, who was the second Lord Mayor of the Jewish faith, retired from the Aldermanic court a year ago in favor of his son. He was elected Lord Mayor in 1865 and was knighted in 1866 in recognition of his efforts to relieve the cholera suffers in India in 1865.

Buffalo Men Burned by a Blast.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 11.—A premature explosion of a blast occurred at Kable's Stone Quarry, Buffalo Plains. John Sailor was badly burned about the head, neck and hands and his eyesight completely destroyed. Lawrence Rabel was badly burned on the face and his left eye destroyed. Their injuries are not fatal.

The Poisoned Candy Investigation.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 11.—Until last evening it did not seem likely that the crime of sending the poisoned candy to the clergymen's families here could be fastened upon William McDonald, but the evidence developed at the inquest, though only circumstantial, is of such a character as almost to prevent a doubt of his guilt.

Session's Ball Playing at Lebanon, Pa.

LEBANON, Oct. 11.—S. S. Neff, superintendent of the Cornwall Railroad, has made the arrangements for an exhibition game between the Athletic and St. Louis base ball clubs at Ponryn Park. The game will be played on Tuesday afternoon, October 22. Thousands of people will attend.

The Aggregate Vote of France.

PARIS, Oct. Oct. 11.—The total vote cast for members of the Chamber of Deputies on September 22 is as follows:

Republican	4,012,353
Conservative	2,340,686
Boulangist	1,017,667
Total vote cast	7,370,706

CLERICAL COUNCIL.

Meeting of the Lutheran Evangelical Church of North America.

PITTSBURG, Oct 11.—For the first time in twenty-one years the General Council of the Lutheran Evangelical Church of North America met in this city yesterday. The Council watches over the welfare of 1,350,000 worshippers and controls 4,500 ministers and 5,000 congregations. About 100 visiting clergymen from all parts of the United States are present. Dr. J. A. Seiss, of Philadelphia, delivered the opening sermon.

At the afternoon session, reports were submitted and the subject of foreign missions was discussed.

The session last evening was devoted to the consecration of Dr. Emanuel Edmunds, of Princeton, Ill., to the mission work in India. A discussion of the question, "Shall Lutheran ministers be permitted to preach in the pulpits of other denominations?" will be had during the council and promises especial interest. The English speaking ministers favor the idea, while the German element do not.

NO CHANGE DESIRED.

The Episcopalians Want No Ecclesiastical Court of Appeals.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Protestant Episcopal Convention was continued at St. George's to-day. The report of the Committee on Canons, providing that the consecration of Bishops shall take place wihin three months of election, in place of six months as heretofore regulated, was adopted.

An amendment was also made to the constitution that all changes in the prayerbook hereafter must be made by a majority of the House of Bishops, and also by a majority of the dioceses entitled to seats in the House of Deputies. There was a warm debate when the resolutions for an ecclesiastical court of appeals were presented.

It was finally defeated. In the clerical vote fifty-one dioceses were represented and voted as follows: Yeas, 28; nays, 18; divided, 2. Lay vote of forty-nine dioceses: Yeas, 23; nays, 24; divided, 2.

Tributes to the Memory of Sunset Cox.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—There was a large audience at the Cooper Institute last night to pay tribute to the memory of the late S. S. Cox. The meeting was under the auspices of the Steckler Association, of which Mr. Cox was a member. Ex-President Cleveland, Mayor Grant, A. S. Hewitt, ex-Gov. Hoadly, Gen. Sherman, C. A. Dana and Roger A. Pryor were among the many well known citizens on the platform. Ex-President Cleveland and Proctor Knott were among the principal speakers.

National Grange Meeting.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 11.—James J. Draper of this city, overseer of the National Grange Patron of Husbandry, has issued the itinerary of the visitors from the eastern States to the meeting of the National Grange in Sacramento, Cal., in November. The price of tickets to Chicago from Boston will be $18; from that point to San Francisco and return $100; tickets good for six months. The itinerary as arranged gives every desirable opportunity for sight-seeing all along the route.

Kemmler's Execution.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Burke Cockran's law partner says that steps will be immediately taken for an appeal in the case of Wm. Kemmler, the Buffalo murderer. Mr. Cockran holds that Justice Day's decision in favor of the constitutionality of the new electric execution law really settles nothing, and he will fight the case to the highest court. Kemmler can not be executed until the final decision.

Liabilities of $3,000,000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 11.—The report of the assignees of the Riverside Oswego Mills Company, which failed last August, shows liabilities of $3,000,000, against which there are assets of $1,661,187.72, not including the plants. The appraised valuation of the plants is estimated at $574,000, but the cost of both plants, as appears by the company's books is no less than $1,548,930.17.

Double Tragedy at Wilkesbarre.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 11.—Geo. W. Moss, a machinist, shot his wife dead while she was eating supper last evening. He then shot himself three times in the head, and will probably die. He had just been released on bail from jail, where he had been sent for abusing his wife. Moss came here two years ago from Auburn, N. Y., with the Sheldon Axle Works employes.

The Tennis Tournament Closed.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—The Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis tournament closed yesterday. The match for second prize in singles between Hovey, of Brown, and Hurd, of Yale, was won by Hovey, 6-2, 8-6, 6-1. In the final doubles Campbell and Wright, of Columbia, defeated the Huntington brothers, of Yale, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5, 6-4.

Steele May Succeed Tanner.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Ex-Congressman Steele of the Hoosier State is being seriously considered by the President as a successor to Commissioner Tanner. Mr. Steele, with Secretary Noble, had a long talk with the President to-day, and his friends give it out that his appointment is but a question of time.

The Poisoned Priest Improving.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The attempt made to poison Rev. Father Kelly of Oneida is causing much excitement in that place. The case is surrounded by mystery, as there is yet no clue to the person who put the arsenic in the sacramental wine. Father Kelly is much improved to-day.

Juror Rice Declared Insane.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Addison Rice, the juror who tried to secure a bribe from the Ontario Canning Company and was fined fifty dollars and sent to jail for thirty days for doing so, has been declared insane and Judge Corlett released him from jail.

A Gun Inventor Dead.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Superintendent W. H. Baker of the Syracuse Forging and Gun Works at Batavia and inventor of the new Baker gun manufactured at the works, died at his home in that village yesterday of consumption, aged 53 years.

Fertilizer Factory Burned.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11.—G. Ober, Sons & Co.'s fertilizer factory at Locust Point was destroyed by fire last night. Loss about $150,000.

A LAW SCHOOL FOR WOMEN.

Mme. Emily Kempin Who Will Train Modern Portias.

One of the Three Women Jurists of Europe Who Has Come to New York to Open a School Where Ladies Can Imbibe Legal Lore.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

Her name is Mme. Emily Kempin; she is an LL.D. from the University of Zurich, Switzerland; she has three bright children and a husband who is a Presbyterian minister, and eleven students have applied already for admission to the law school for women which she will open in East Fifty-ninth street, New York, on the 7th of October.

The small brown turban which lies on top of the big iron safe is her turban and the closely rolled silk umbrella, with a gold knob which stands in the corner, is another article of her belongings. She wears an autumn walking-dress of brown wool, with brown velvet cuffs and revers. Her eyes are blue, her complexion blonde and her hair light brown; she may be a trifle above middle height, is of slender figure and sits erect and well poised in her straight-backed chair; she has a face of sweetness and intelligence, and commands a better English vocabulary than most native-born Americans, though her accent is piquantly foreign. She is presiding at a paper-strewn desk in her law office on Broadway, an office which differs in no essensial particular, save the presence of two small brown gloves and the turban, from other suites in that many-storied office building whose inhabitants are exclusively masculine.

Only three women in all Europe have graduated in law. One is lecturing in the University of Bologna, Italy; one is the daughter of a Belgian judge and her application for admission to the bar of her own country is now under consideration; the third is the quiet Mme. Kempin. Since women are nowhere allowed to practice law on the Continent her story of how she came to choose the profession is interesting.

She was a writer for the Swiss press, but had received only a high school education. "Suppose," said her husband, "you attend the University lectures."

One day she drifted accidently into a lecture on the history of law. Every abstruse point of it was clear to her and what she had secretly wished for years, but never had dared to put into words, came upon her irresistably. "Yes," said her husband, "you would make a good lawyer; if you wish it, suppose you study for the bar."

"But," said Mme. Kempin, "there are the children"—the youngest was only two years old—"and I cannot pass the entrance examination."

"I will fit you," said this Swiss husband, and he tutored her in mathematics and Latin.

Mme. Kempin studied at Zurich three years and a half. She graduated with the first honors of her class, and a prominent lawyer of Zurich, who believed, she thinks, "that such a novelty might advertise his office," engaged her as managing clerk. She doesn't know whether or not she brought him business, but when the two were invited to little suppers and parties he declared that he had never had such a clerk, and when she decided at the end of a year that she couldn't be content to be a lawyer's clerk forever, he offered to double her salary if she would remain. She applied for admission to the bar, but her sex had closed the doors against her, and when an assistant Professorship in the University was offered her, she was refused the Government license to teach, also on the ground that she wore petticoats instead of the trousers of the sterner sex.

Her plan in the beginning had been simply to fit herself to advise her husband's parishioners, who often came to the pastor with questions they could ill-afford to carry to a lawyer, but with study her ambition had grown. "Suppose," said her husband, "we go to America."

To familiarize herself with American law Mme. Kempin applied for admission to Columbia College Law School. Some of the trustees were out of town, and it was four months before she was definitely refused. Meanwhile she had been quietly attending the lectures. From Columbia she went to New York University, and here, as a mark of courtesy to the University of Zurich, but with a distinct understanding that no precedent was created, she was received. Since beginning an independent practice she has become counsel for the Swiss Legation in Washington and Superintendent of the New York Arbitration Society, and says that the idea of opening a law school came to her only when repeatedly questioned by ladies owning property who wanted information about their own business matters, about contracts, guardianships, wills and inheritances.

"Suppose," said her husband, "you lecture to women to qualify them for the management of their affairs or the supervision of their agents."

Somewhat to Mme. Kempin's surprise no ladies have yet applied for these partial or special courses for property owners of business women, but eleven young women desire to become full-fledged lawyers. Three of these budding Portias are New Yorkers, two from Brooklyn, one each from Washington, Connecticut and Canada and the rest from the interior of New York State. All of them are full of enthusiasm for the bar. One Brooklyn woman declares that she has waited four years for a chance to study law and one country girl who is afraid her parents will interpose a veto protests that "people are so stupid in our village."

For two years now women have been eligible to practice at the bar of New York, and the new law school will give them a two years' course based rather on foreign university methods than on American models. Each year will be divided into two terms and degrees will be conferred on those who pass the examinations, which will be conducted by prominent lawyers. Mme. Kempin has received promises of assistance from experienced members of the New York bar, who will lecture on the law of procedure, slander and libel, criminal law, and other special features of jurisprudence.

When families are fairly back from the country and married women and widows who intend only to take courses of lectures for the sake of getting legal knowledge on some special subjects begin to apply, she means to give a series of talks on the law of family relations, the law of real estate, mortgages and leases, landlord and tenant, the law of contracts, the drawing of wills and such matters as may enable women who own property to handle it without getting cheated, and women who earn their own livings to fit themselves for places of trust and responsibility.

"And what future is there," I asked her, "for your graduates at the bar?"

"A bright one. The younger lawyers are quiet liberal. Why, Mr. — here," and she turned with a bright smile to a young sprig of the law who was admitted last week and who was her vis-a-vis at the office desk, "Mr. — would esteem it a privilege to practice with a lady lawyer." Mr. — looks embarrassed. "Am I mistaken?" This with a frank, still smiling appeal. Mr. — blushes furiously, but stammers:

"Certainly, I believe in lady lawyers."

"Some of the young women who will enter the law school come from the families of lawyers. They mean when they graduate to enter the offices of father, brother, husband or uncle as clerks in charge, where their feminine neatness and methodical habits, joined with a legal education, will make them invaluable. Others, of course, mean to set up offices of their own, and as the number of women lawyers increases and they cease to be objects of curiosity, their chances will improve for making good incomes. There are four women lawyers in Boston now, and every one of them does better, so I am told, than Lelia J. Robinson, who was the pioneer, did when she had the field all alone. Women doctors had the same experience. Practice grew as their numbers multiplied."

"But people even of liberal views do not believe there is any such need of women lawyers as of women physicians."

"Let me tell you a story. While I was a lawyer's clerk in Zurich a woman asked me to recommend her a lawyer. I sent her to my employer but he sent her back in a short time to me. He could not listen to the story she had to tell. She wanted a divorce, and the details of the treatment she had suffered were such that she found it absolutely impossible to relate them to a man, and the man found it impossible to question or to hear. I could not myself discuss the case with her. It was too bad to be talked about even between two women. I took such facts as she could bring herself to utter, and drew up the plea. As I was not admitted to the bar, I gave the plea to my employer and he read it in court exactly as I had written it. Before he had finished the manuscript two white-haired judges left the room in tears. They could not hear it through. The woman won her divorce, and as it was known that it was really my case, it was esteemed a great triumph for a lady lawyer.

"Cases of this sort ought to convince people that women lawyers have a call. When there are horrible things that must be said women have a nice tact to make the meaning plain and yet avoid anything blunt or shocking. Many cases come up in court which ought to be handled by men above the age of 70 or by women."

"Do you believe that women will become criminal lawyers?"

"Certainly; enterprising women will like that field. As for their getting cases, suppose it was known in any neighborhood that such and such a woman was a lawyer and a clever one, and suppose that there was a woman to be defended, don't you suppose that she would go to the lady lawyer?"

"Will women succeed with juries?"

"Why not? They have a good deal of intuitive knowledge of human nature and are supposed to have much experience in testing the motives which will appeal to average men. Women are always addressing Judge and jury all in one in the home circle."

"Do you expect ever to see women on the bench?"

"Women may wear the ermine in the twentieth century, but whether they will in our day is a different question. I expect, at least, to see the number of women at the bar increase rapidly."

"What sort of business will come to women lawyers?"

"Well, no great railroad or corporation cases, at least for many years. These Mr. ——," and she nodded in mock serious bestowal to the young sprig of the law, "these we will give all to you. But cases to which women are parties involving questions between landlord and tenans, guardianship and real estate contract cases, will come, and, of course, divorces. There will be business, too, in managing the estates of women. For my own part, I have not been here long, and I can scarcely speak the language, and yet I have no fault to find with the bread and butter end of my business."

"How do your legal brethren receive you?"

"I have met with much kindness; see here and here," and there was produced a package of letters from gentlemen of the legal profession full of good wishes for the school. "I am going to be an American citizen. One of the first things my husband said to me in New York was, 'suppose we see about our first papers.'"

"You must have an exceptional husband."

"Yes, I should like to present him," and from a chair and a newspaper in a far corner there rose up most unexpectedly a fine-looking stalwart clergyman, who smiled down on his blue-eyed little wife as the interview came to an end.

THE DRUMMER ABROAD.

How He Receives the Consideration Due an American Citizen.

"I'll tell you what I saw in Manchester, Eng.," said a Michigander who lately returned from a trip abroad. "On the hotel register I found the name of 'C. Sidney Smith, U. S. A. Ambassador to England and France and S. P. D. to the Czar of Russia.' It was a puzzle to me and I smelt a mouse, but I waited to see him before giving any thing away. After a few hours he called at my room. Then I found him to be an ex-drummer for a Chicago crockery house. He had saved up a few hundred and was making the tour.

"'Why do you assume all these titles?' I asked.'

"'Simply to receive the respect and consideration due me,' he replied.

"'Does it cheapen your bills?'

"'No, not to any extent, but it gives me the best for my money, and I have free carriage rides and many invitations out to dine. A man who registers over here as plain Smith or Brown gets only common. I'm off for France next week, and I shall register there as "Special Envoy of the American Congress and Jim Dandy Representative of 70,000,000 Americans." I'll get quail on toast when you fellows have only bacon. Well, so long. I'm off to dine with a big manufacturer, and to-morrow I'm to ride out with an M. P. and a Duke. Take my advice and hitch on a title.'"—Detroit Free Press.

Opening of London's Drawbridge.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 11.—The great drawbridge over the Thames was formally opened yesterday. The bridge is 1,423 feet long and the draw 503. The structure is owned by the railroad companies forming the Shore Line system. It has a double railroad track along the entire length, and is considered a great piece of engineering skill.

BARGAIN HOUSE.

Come in at any time and you will always find buyers; and there is many a good reason for it. We carry the largest stock—keep almost everything that one wants. We buy direct for cash and sell for the same, and sell our goods on a closer margin, and more of them, than all others. Sometimes we sell auction goods and remnants, but why not? Little difference does it make to you if some concern fails and we buy their stock at 50c on the dollar and sell it at the same rate—'tis only your gain. We'll buy anything and sell anything if we can sell it less than its real value. We are here for business, and we think we are getting it 'Tis time to think of Winter goods, and we have them. There is everything that is new and desirable in dress goods, and the prices are right. Underwear for Ladies, Gentlemen and Children, in all qualities and sizes. We sell for 25c an extra heavy red flannel—value 35c., same in blue. There are 1,000 yards, remnants of French Flannel—price 10c., value 15c.

If you want blankets and comfortables, come and see us. We can sell you a good 11¼ wool blanket for $2 50, and a good comfortable, that is filled with white cotton, for $1 25.

Housekeepers will find our furnishing goods department an interesting place. We keep everything needed in Crockery, Tinware, Granite Ironware, Hall and Parlor Lamps, Rugs, Matting, Curtains, &c. Come and see us.

LOOKS LIKE A FARCE

Another Sensation in the Cronin Murder Trial.

A VERY SUDDEN ADJOURNMENT.

The Stenographer Said to Have Skipped With the Evidence.

Mysterious Movements by the Judge and State's Attorney—Time Asked for Another Investigation—The Judge Promptly Acquiesces—A Peculiar Statement From the State's Attorney.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Something unusual happened at the afternoon session of the Cronin case yesterday. Just as Judge McConnell was about to take his seat on the bench he was asked by the State's Attorney to wait awhile, as counsel for the prosecution were in the midst of an important investigation.

Shortly after one of the bailiffs came in with the announcement that Judge Longenecker was wanted down stairs. Judge McConnell went down also, and he and Judge Longenecker returned to the court room. Both had solemn faces, and the whisper went round that there was a sensation afoot. As soon as Judge McConnell took his seat on the Bench, State's Attorney Longenecker said:

"In view of some matters of which I have advised your Honor, I shall have to ask this Court to adjourn for the present, in order to enable us to complete an investigation we are making."

"I am disposed to think," was the prompt response of the Court, "from what I know of the matter, that this is a reasonable request, and as I have some business with the Drainage Commission, the Court will stand adjourned until to-morrow afternoon."

Judge Longenecker hurried from the room and counsel for defense looked at each other in surprise. The unexpected adjournment was the subject of excited comment, especially in view of the fact that extra detectives were stationed at the doors of the State's Attorney's office, and there was a rumor that some one was inside making a confession.

Judge Longenecker hurried from the room, and counsel for defense looked at each other in surprise. The unexpected adjournment was the subject of excited comment, especially in view of the fact that extra detectives were stationed at the doors of the State Attorney's office.

The first rumor was that the adjournment had been made because the final quartet of jurors passed were about to be accepted, and that before declaring the panel completed a general consultation as to further procedure was desired. Later it was said that two important arrests had been made. Neither report proved true.

The sensation is said to be the disappearance from town of James Purcell, State Attorney's stenographer, with all the evidence the prosecution possesses against the Cronin suspects now on trial.

Purcell has been State Attorney Longnecker's confidant, and took down all the testimony of witnesses and the State Attorney's informants in shorthand. These notes had not yet been transcribed, and this entire mass of evidence has disappeared with Purcell into Canada, it is alleged.

The misfortune may prove fatal to the Cronin persecution. Purcell was a Clan-na-Gael member and a relative of Miss Murphy, who claimed she saw Dr. Cronin on a street car after the murder. He has been stenographer in the State Attorney's office for several years and is about 30 years old.

Mr. Longnecker says that unless Purcell's notes were obtained from the fugitive the State might be compelled to drop the persecution of this celebrated case.

The court officers, however, denied that Purcell had disappeared or that this was the cause of the sudden adjournment.

THE DELEGATES IN ALBANY.

They Are Accorded the Freedom of the City and Entertained by Gov. Hill.

ALBANY, Oct. 12.—The delegates to the American International Congress arrived here at 9:30 last evening. At that time the streets in the vicinity of the depot were thronged with citizens to welcome the distinguished visitors. When the train rolled into the depot the Tenth Battalion was in line, and as soon as the delegates had been presented to the committee from the Chamber of Commerce the delegates were escorted to the Delevan House, where a light lunch was served. The battalion rested on their arms outside. Soon the delegates emerged and were escorted to carriages, and then amid the glare of red fire and the music of the band the battalion, as escort, marched to the City Hall, where the delegates were cordially received by Mayor Maher, and the freedom of the city extended to them in a brief speech. From there the procession proceeded to the Capitol, where they were received by the Governor.

Mayor Maher accompanied the delegates, and after he had presented them the Governor in an extended speech welcomed them to the State and to the capital. After a general handshaking the party, escorted by the Governor, went on a tour of inspection through the Capitol, every department of which was brilliantly lighted and presented a gay appearance. Having viewed the building, the party returned to the Fort Orange Club, where an elaborate banquet had been arranged for them.

HALSTEAD'S APOLOGY.

He Says His Charge Against Mr. Campbell Was Caused by Forgery.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 12.—The "Commercial Gazette," under the caption "A Personal Statement to the Public," prints the following:

"Upon testimony believed to be conclusive, and my own responsibility, I addressed Mr. James E. Campbell a letter and published it in the editorial columns of the 'Commercial Gazette,' stating I had the proof that he had secured a money interest in the ballot box on behalf of which, as a Member of the House of Representatives, he had introduced a bill, and upon his denial I caused to be engraved and published what purported to be a fac-simile of his signature appended to a paper subscribing for three-twentieths of the interest in the ballot box job. In yesterday's paper I made the announcement that the original documents were in my possession. They consist of Mr. Campbell's bill, the contract numbered 1,000 and the subscription paper to which names are written, beginning with that of Mr. Campbell, has been reserved.

"Testimony was placed before me last night proving that the names, including that of Mr. Campbell, are, with two exceptions, traced from detached signatures, and are substantially forgeries. The exceptions were written without a copy. That there may be no shade of doubt upon my exact meaning, I have to say that Mr. Campbell's signature as it has been used, is fraudulent. The proof of this came to me in conclusive form at a late hour, and it is my duty at once to declare the truth. The papers that seemed to show the business behind the bill, are as published, but the signatures, of which I have given that of the author of the bill, are fabricated.

(Signed) M. HALSTEAD."

TO SUCCEED MR. COX.

It is Probable that a Newspaper Man Will Be Selected.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Amos J. Cummings, the newspaper man and ex-Member of Congress, was asked last fall to take a renomination in his district. He would not do it because he could not afford to pay the assessment of $8,000 which was asked for the nomination. It is now probable that he will go to Congress as a successor to S. S. Cox, whose death made the seat vacant.

Several Democrats of greater or less prominence have been asked to take the nomination, among whom is ex-President Cleveland. A committee of Tammany braves waited upon him, headed by W. Bourke Cockran, and tried to induce him to take the nomination. The offer was taken into consideration and refused. On what grounds only Mr. Cleveland and his personal friends know.

The Horse Mourned Its Master.

BETHLEHEM, Pa. Oct. 12.—At Hatfield, a small station on the North Penn Railroad twenty-five miles from here, yesterday, the south-bound Buffalo express, running fifty miles an hour, struck a buckboard driven by George Brunner, demolishing it and almost instantly killing Brunner. When the trainmen reached the spot where the accident happened the horse was standing by its fast dying master whining piteously, and it was with difficulty it could be led away.

Mr. Randall's Trip to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Hon. Samuel J. Randall is resting quietly at his home, 120 C Street, Southeast in better health and spirits than he has enjoyed for some time past. The trip from Wallingford to Washington has really proven a benefit to him.

Murder in the Second Degree.

SMETHPORT, Pa., Oct. 12.—Annie Miller, alias "Dutch Annie," who has been on trial here for the killing of Bill Hilton last August, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree and will probably suffer the full penalty, 12 years imprisonment.

The Pension Commissionership.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—There is no reason to believe the report that Congressman Steele of Indiana has been offered the Pension Commissionership. The fact that President Harrison and Secretary Noble have called him into consultation may mean nothing more than that they wished to ascertain his views. He has an extensive acquaintance in the Grand Army, and knows pretty well what men and measures would be popular with that organization.

ROASTED IN FLAMES

Horrible Death of a Mother and Three Children.

CAUSED BY GAS EXPLOSION.

Frantic Efforts of the Husband to Save His Family.

The Charred Bodies of the Four Victims Presented a Sickening Sight—The Mother's Flesh Cooked to the Bone—Great Grief of the Father Over the Terrible Accident.

BRADFORD, Pa., Oct. 12.—At Davis's Switch, a small village thirteen miles from this place, the dwelling of Patrick Daily was burned and his wife and three sons, aged 13, 11 and 9 years respectively, were roasted in the flames.

At 6 o'clock last night, while the Daily family were at supper, the father stepped to the cook stove to turn off part of the gas. He unintentionally shut the throttle tight, and on turning it on again the house was filled with gas. An explosion followed, and in an instant the entire house was in flames. The three boys and mother fell prostrate on the floor, overcome by the heat and flames. Mr. Daily rushed out of the house to call assistance, but all efforts to save the unfortunate inmates were futile. The house was entirely consumed in a few moments.

The charred and blackened bodies of the four victims presented a sickening sight. Mrs. Daily's ribs were burned from her body and her intestines were exposed to view. Her flesh was cooked to the bone. The sons were not so horribly burned as the mother, but their blackened bodies could not be identified until placed side by side.

The gas pressure was very strong, the gas pipe running direct from a neighboring oil well to the cooking stove.

Mr. Daily is severely but not fatally burned about the head and face, and is almost crazed with grief.

ROME'S REPRESENTATIVE.

Mgr. O'Connell Says He Is on No Secret Business From the Vatican.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Among the passengers on the City of Rome, which arrived yesterday was Right Rev. Denis J. O'Connell, Rector of the American College at Rome. He will represent the Pope at the ceremonies attending the Centennial of the American Catholic Hierarchy on Nov. 10th, and the Catholic Congress of Nov. 11th and 12th at Baltimore, and the opening of the Catholic University at Washington on Nov. 13d.

Mgr. O'Connell said that he had no weighty secret mission from the Vatican. He came merely to pay a long-deferred visit to his relatives and to attend the ceremonies in connection with the centennial celebration of the Catholic Heirarchy and the Catholic Congress. He would not admit that he carried the letter which is said the Pope has written to Cardinal Gibbons, and insisted that he had no such diplomatic errand. The Pope was in excellent health when he left Rome.

THEY WILL GO SOUTH.

Walker Blaine Says the Pan-American Delegates Will Visit the Southern States.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—Walker Blaine, of the State Department, says that in the original planning of the programme for the Pan-American Congress it was intended to give the delegates an excursion to the South. He further says:

"It is proposed to visit the Southern States later in the season, when the weather will be more favorable and the various and peculiar industries of those States can be seen to better advantage. It is the desire that the distinguished visitors shall be given an opportunity to see it all, and it was therefore necessary to divide the tours and each section be visited when its peculiar industries could be seen to the best advantage."

Three Cities Interested.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 12.—It now looks as if there would be a warm contest between this city, Bethlehem and Easton for the proposed railroad to Nazareth, there to connect with the Bangor and Portland Road, which would give a direct line to the Northampton slate regions and secure for the city building the new road the enormous trade of that section. It is rumored that the Allentown Terminal Railroad has taken hold of the matter and will construct the proposed road.

$105,000 for Axtell.

TERRE HAUTE, Oct. 12.—Col. Conley of Chicago this morning completed the purchase of the great trotter Axtell for $105,000. It is supposed he represents a syndicate. Andy Walsh of Hartford and John Madden of Lexington offered Williams $101,000 for the colt, and had a certified check to forfeit to offer him. This he refused, and afterwards accepted Col. Conley's offer with much reluctance. "It is like selling a child," said Williams.

New York's Big Death Roll.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Dr. Tracy, Register of Records of the Health Department, has issued in pamphlet form a report of the deaths which occurred in this city during the year 1888. The report shows that the total number of deaths for the year was 40,173, and that the death rate was 26.33 with an estimated population of 1,526,081.

Assigned Because of Another Failure.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 12.—Charles W. Woodward & Co., of this city, merchant tailors, have assigned. The failure is attributed to the recent failure of Barr & Snow, of Providence, who have consigned goods to Woodward & Co. to a large amount.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Leal's school football team defeated the Pingry school team at Elizabeth this morning, 18 to 12.

—The public schools of Somerville and Raritan have adopted a systematic course of instruction in vocal music under the weekly direction of Mr. T. E. Hazell of this city.

—There will be more rustics thrown into jail this Fall, in this State, for violating the game laws than ever before. Two lads hunting near Ridgewood were chased by a game constable on Thursday and were compelled to wade a brook up to their arm pits to get away, but they thereby escaped jail, a fine, and probable confiscation of their shooting irons.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Attorney-General J. P. Stockton will speak in Plainfield, Friday evening of next week.

Miss Lulu Tyler of New York city, is the guest of Miss Maggie Manning of Franklin place.

Miss Florence Titsworth, a scholar in the Pennington Seminary, will spend Sunday with her parents on Madison avenue.

Mr. Wilbur Chamberlin of the Jersey City Argus, son of Mr. O. E. Chamberlin of this city, is seriously sick with typhoid fever.

Miss Nellie Shepard is quite ill with a low fever and nervous prostration. The services of a trained nurse have been engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pickford, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, are stopping at Mr. S. O. Doane's residence on East Fourth street, on their way to Europe and the Holy Land.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed, of Craig place, are being envied and congratulated on their possession of a little daughter, and the Hon. Alvah Clark is the proudest grandfather in Somerset county.

Luis Castellannos, son of the delegate from San Salvadore, Central America, to the Congress of American Nations now being held in this country, is a student at the Harned Academy, on Park avenue He will remain until he has mastered the American language.

The Elizabeth Herald says: "Miss Dilly Kent, a pupil of Francis Fisher Power of Brooklyn, has recently achieved the distinction of becoming a member of his quartet. Miss Kent has for some time past occupied the position of soloist in the choir of the First Presbyterian church at Plainfield, and will shortly be heard prominently in this city.

WILL RE-BUILD THE DAM.

The Injunction Restraining Mr. P. M. French From Re-building Tier's Dam, Set Aside.

Some time since Mr. Charles Hyde, through his counsel, Mr. C. A. Marsh, filed a bill in the Court of Chancery, to make Mr. P. M. French lower Tier's dam to the extent of 8½ inches. After the dam broke out on July 30, 1889, an order was obtained restricting Mr. French from rebuilding the broken portion of the dam, also a rule to show cause why the preliminary injunction should not issue. Counsel for Mr. French, Messrs Clark & Reed, argued the case before Vice Chancellor Bird on Tuesday, and yesterday the Vice Chancellor delivered an order that no injunction should issue, and that the restraining order should be vacated with costs. Mr. French is therefore at liberty to proceed with the re-building of the broken dam.

Messrs Ostrom and Sampson Will Speak.

Sunday meetings will be held in Reform Hall to-morrow at 9.15 A. M., in the basement, and at 4 and 7.30 P. M., in the auditorium. Mr. Nicholson of the Pond Tool Works is expected to lead the afternoon meeting, and in the evening platform addresses will be delivered by Capt. Wm B. Ostrom and Mr. Wm. H. Sampson. There will be the usual devotional services and a choice musical programme. A sincere welcome is extended to all.

OF THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY

Of Trinity Reformed Church—Interesting Exercises—The Reports of the Committees, and Addresses by Rev. Messrs Kerr of Elizabeth and Skellinger of Dunellen

The members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Trinity Reformed church, celebrated the fourth anniversary of the society's organization in the church last evening. The attendance was large, delegates being present from Metuchen, Elizabeth and Dunellen.

The exercises opened with an organ voluntary by Mr. A. L. Titsworth, followed by prayer by the pastor and singing by the congregation. The pastor and congregation read responsively the 148th Psalm, after which Mr. J. B. Dunn, Secretary of the Society read the following excellent reports:

After the most pleasing success of the year previous, our Society—trusting in the Almighty God for our strength and guidance—went to work with renewed zeal and vigor to do the Masters will, and although a few misfortunes have befallen us, we have indeed, reason to be truly thankful to the God we love and serve for the success that has attended our efforts during the past year. The officers who have served the Society during the past year were as follows, with the exception of the President and Recording Secretary whose business duties necessitated their removal from the city. Their places were filled by others: President—Mr. Fred. Lucas, later Mr. F. S. Dunn; 1st Vice President—Mr. C. D. Wheeler; 2d Vice President—Miss E. U. King; Cor. Secretary—Miss E. C. Benedict; Rec. Secretary—Mr. J. G. Connolly, later Mr. J. R. Dunn; Treasurer—Miss Susie R. VanWinkle.

Among the most noticable events that have transpired during the year were the adoption by the Society of the Model Constitution and the refurnishing of the meeting rooms. Also one of our members—Mr. G. A. Luckenbill—was admitted to Rutgers Theological Seminary, where he will prepare himself for the ministry. Just here we might add that our hearts have been saddened by the heavy hand of death which took two of our most esteemed and active members from our midst, the first being Miss Alice Tallman and the next Mrs. John H. Van Winkle. Although we sincerely mourn our loss we can not help but feel most greatful indeed, that the Lord has spared our lives for still further use in this good work.

The report of the Lookout Committee showed a total membership of 104 active members and 36 associate members. The report of the Devotional Committee was most encouraging. It showed an average attendance for October, November and December 1888, of 98, 66, and 71. The average attendance this year was as follows: January, 133; Febuary, 93; March, 99; April, 77; May, 84; June, 85; July, 91; August, 116; September, 118. The Secretary's report went on to say:

To much cannot be said of the faithful manner in which the duties of the Flower Committee have been performed. Since they took upon themselves the responsibility of furnishing the flowers for the church their duties have been largely increased. They have gone to no end of trouble to provide flowers for the sick and friends of the deceased as well as for the Muhlenberg Hospital. For their labor they deserve the hearty thanks of the Society. Miss Lillian A. Force is chairman of this Committee.

The Social Committee have been in the habit of alternating with the Womans' Christian Work Society connected with this church in the matter of holding our sociables. During the last Winter several interesting and successful socials were held in the room below.

We have now three other committees namely the Sunday School. Music and Reception Committees. These have not been in the habit of sending in monthly reports, but the many duties of each have been faithfully performed, and the result is very satisfactory.

The treasurer's report:

Total receipts for the year	$49 04
Total expenditures for the year	30 95
Leaving a balance in the treasury of	$18 09

MISS SUSIE R. VANWINKLE, Treasurer.

The committees were selected with much care and thought and reflect great credit on our former President Mr. Fred. Lucas who appointed them. They have worked together faithfully and in perfect harmony which has aided materially in the general success of their aims.

In bringing this report to a close let me say that our meetings have been marked for the uniform zeal and earnestness displayed in the cause of Christ, and our earnest prayer is that the Saviour who has prospered and guided us in all our affairs in the past will continue to do so more abundently in the future.

Respectfully submitted,
J. R. DUNN,
Rec. Secretary.

Mr. B. F. LaVere followed with a beautiful cornet solo, and Rev. J. T. Kerr, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church of Elizabeth, who in appearance resembles the late Dr E. W. South, was then introduced The reverend gentleman clearly and forcibly portrayed the "Constancy in Christian Endeavor." He illustrated the result of inactivity on the part of Christians, and stated that true Christian Endeavor was a desire to manifest itself to the world.

Rev. Mr. Skellinger of Dunellen was the next speaker. The true Christian, he said, must be built after the statue of the perfect man—Jesus Christ. The most beautiful agency of the church today is the Christian Endeavor.

Rev. Mr. Schenck, the pastor, made a few timely remarks, and after a hymn was sung and the Lord's prayer repeated, the audience was dispersed with the benediction.

Mr. F. S. Dunn, president of the society, presided at the service. The platform decorations were rich and modest, and consisted principally of cut flowers and Autumn leaves.

DEMENTED DOINGS.

The Strange Actions of Four Formerly Respectable Citizens.

Not wishing to depress the value of real estate in the vicinity, THE PRESS will merely state that it was somewhere about Central avenue and Eighth street, that great excitement was occasioned, this afternoon, by the sudden stopping of all the grandfather clocks' in the neighborhood, and the automatic ringing of the alarm bells. Everybody rushed to their windows in anxiety, fearing some terrible cyclonic or electrical disturbance, but the sight that met their eyes changed their anxious feelings to thoughts only of self-protection. Windows were at once closed and bolted, doors locked and skylights fastened. Even the chickens fled to roosts out of reach, and the sun stood still in wonder and diversion.

Summoned by telephone, a special policeman, thirteen firemen, a PRESS reporter and a yellow dog, hastened to the scene. The cause of the neighborhood's consternation was apparent, but there was no need of terror. In a vacant lot were to be seen four old folks conducting themselves in a very strange manner. They were clad in arctic overshoes, base ball belts, and other juvenile paraphernalia, and engaged in losing innumerable small balls by knocking them over one another's heads out of sight.

At the sight of the special policeman, some of the adjacent residents summoned enough courage to raise a window an inch or two and suggest in a frightened voice that the men be seized, and gagged, and hurried to Morris Plains at once. But as the four were otherwise respectable, and had previously been supposed to be in possession of all their senses and the esteem of the community, no arrests were made.

For the sake of their families their names might be omitted, but that the community may be on the watch for other possible outbreaks, THE PRESS deems it a duty to warn all to keep an eye on Charles W. Beebe, a certain New York tea broker; George A. Chapman, a speculator in cotton; Alex. Gilbert, bank cashier; and John W. Murray, Vice President of a to-be-pitied insurance company. The quartette are old enough to know better, and have always been considered heretofore as real nice men. In fact, previous to the sad occurence of today, Mr. Murray had been spoken of as Plainfield's next Mayor.

THE GUN CLUB TOURNAMENT.

Closing Events on the Grounds Yesterday.

Fine weather fell to the lot of the marksmen gathered on the grounds of the Middlesex Gun Club at Dunellen. By 10 o'clock the firing was as rapid as on any day of the tournament. New faces were to be seen at every point, the great sweepstakes filling to the brim, and, in fact, running over. No less than 19 men planked up the necessary $25.

The first contest of this the last day, was event No. 22, $3 entrance, 5 birds each. This was soon shot off. There were 18 entries. Of these no less than ten killed all their birds, and came in for first money. These were Beal, Penrose, Cubberly, Fox, Walton, C. Smith, C. Budd, H. McMurchy, Sigler and Lambertson. The cash was divided. For second money S. G. Smith, I. J. Voorhees, Tee Kay, Van Brackle and Uncle Billy Hughes; each missed a pigeon and then they amicably settled the difficulty. The third money men, with two misses each out of the five, were Lindsley and W. S. Canon, and they also divided.

The big event of the day, No. 21, was the grand guaranteed purse of $400, sweepstakes, open to the world, 25 live birds, $25 entrance fee, 19 entries.

First money was won by W. Wolstencroft, who killed all his birds in masterly style. It amounted to $190. Second money was tied for by Heikes, W. Sigler, M. Williams and C. VanCamp; it came to $142 50 and was divided. Third money was tied for by Tom Beal, C. Budd, P. Daly, Jr., C. B. Manley and I. Lambreson. It amounted to $95, a trifle among so many, so the tie was shot off, miss and out. Beal, Daly and Budd dropped out rapidly, and then the other four consented to divide. Fourth money lay between M. F. Lindsley, McMurchy, H. A. Penrose and M Fox. They divided $47 50 without a fight. The only two in the cold were C. M. Hedden and John Erb.

The Truth in a Nutshell.

He who advertises from year to year draws many customers from far and near. His sales are larger, he is prosperous and wise, for the reason he never fails to advertise. His goods are new, his stock complete, and he is the busiest man you chance to meet. He is known at home and far around, and his store is the place where bargains are found. The number of his friends you cannot tell, for he is the man that has goods to sell. His fortune is made, for he has learned to think, and liberally use printers' ink.

A very interesting and enthusiastic meeting is expected. Everybody heartily welcome.

Mr C. W. Hillman will conduct the devotional exercises at Warren Mission chapel, to-morrow evening.

The Workers' Training Class will be held at the Y. M. C. A., to-morrow, from 9 to 10:15 A. M. Visitors welcome.

"Give Them the Cold Steel."

A vivid description of some of the scenes to be presented at Music Hall, next Wednesday evening, under the auspices of Winfield Scott G. A. R. Post, of this city, is as follows:

When the gallant Confederate General Armistead leaped over the little stone wall that served as a breastwork for the Philadelphia Brigade, on the morning of the third day at Gettysburg, he called to his men to give the Union troops the "cold steel." All in vain, however; within the next five minutes that splendid officer and forty-two of the hundred brave Rebs, who followed him over the low wall, were lying dead in their tracks, and all the rest of the noble little band were crushed and wounded. The bayonet, in modern warfare is almost a thing of the past, and the soldier finds but little use for it. Certainly there were a few men killed by it at Gettysburg, but very few, indeed, in comparison to the great number slain by the rifle and artillery. Col. Jeffers, of the 4th Michigan, was bayoneted to death in the wheat field, and some fifty-four men fell at that point in the same manner; but it would seem that the soldier of our day prefers to kill his man in some other way.

When the lines crashed together in the great cavalry fight on the third day, many men were cut down with the sabre, and General Wade Hampton, now United States Senator from South Carolina, had his face split open with a sword cut. When our infantry came to hand blows, they seemed to rather prefer to club their muskets and dash each others brains out than to drive the cold steel into the bodies of their opponents; and many men were killed in this manner. During the dreadful fight over Rickett's guns on East Cemetery Hill, many of the Louisiana Tigers were brained by our men. Lieut. Charles Brockey crushed in a Confederate's skull with a rock, and Lieut. Worcester, of the Seventh Louisiana Tigers, had his head smashed to a jelly by a hand spike in the hands of one of our gunners. "Glorious Gettysburg!" May all the people of our country ever keep green in their memories the bravery of the devoted men who fell there.

Training Class Topics.

Plainfield's Bowlers.

From these columns, the New York Sun of this morning reprints the following:

"A lively time in bowling sports is promised at Plainfield during the Winter. The games will be played at Elizabeth, Westfield and Plainfield. Twenty games for the Plainfields are scheduled so far. Jas. Davis, an expert bowler, is captain of the team, and has picked out the following men to fight for the league championship: Messrs VanEmburgh, Kieb, Reed, Teel, Ulrich, Rogers, Thiers, Emerson, Van Winkle, Baker and H. Teel. The new alleys on East Second street will be ready for use in a few days, and will prove attractive quarters for the games.

Low Prices

Seely Edsall, the leading dry and fancy goods merchant, on Front street, stated to a PRESS report today that during his twenty-five years experience in the business he had never known the prices of goods in his line so low as now. He also added that his store is stocked to its utmost capacity in all departments, with the newest and best the market affords, and the inducements he offers are equal to most New York houses. He is offering special low prices on merino underware, just now.

Democratic Primary.

The Democratic voters of North Plainfield township met in the school building, last evening, and elected delegates to the County Convention. Mr. Lewis R. Blackford was elected Chairman and Mr. D. J. Carney, Secretary. Delegates were elected as follows: John H. Carney, Andrew Love, Sr., John Bodine, Lewis R. Blackford and John H. Jackson.

The healing and purifying qualities of Salvation Oil render it the best article for the speedy and safe cure of ulcerated sores. Price only 25 cents.

Vintage of Grapes for Invalids.

The Port Grape wine of New Jersey is the best medical wine in the market, and it is said that the vintage of Alfred Speer far excels any other produced. It is heavy in body, rich in flavor, and well adapted for sickly persons and for general family use. It makes new blood and gives color to the pale and sickly. Leading physicians prescribe this wine in their practice, and use it at their own homes. Druggists sell it.

—The Congregational Church Circle will hold its meeting Tuesday evening of next week, instead of Monday, as before announced.

The opinion of the people is that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best and cheapest remedy for coughs, colds, sore throat, asthma, etc.

—Go where young men meet at the Y. M. C. A., Monday at 8 P. M. These meetings are now largely attended and full of interest. All men welcome.

A MILE IN 2:12.

The Three-Year-Old Stallion Axtell Beats the Record for All Ages.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 12.—Axtell, the three-year-old stallion, with the help of the running horse John, was sent yesterday to beat the three-year-old record, 2:13¾, held by the California filly Sunol, and lowered it 1¾ seconds. The first quarter was reached in 0:34, the half in 1:05½, the three-quarters in 1:37¾, and the mile in 2:12.

The great stallion finished strong without a wabble or false stroke. Besides reducing the three-year-old record, this performance beats the record for stallions at all ages.

Williams, the driver, was taken from his sulky and borne aloft on the shoulders of his admirers amid cheers for the colt.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

James E. Church has been nominated by the Prohibitionists of Bergen county, New Jersey, for Senator.

Jesse Eastman, a prominent farmer living about four miles north of Alma, N. Y., suicided yesterday by cutting his throat with a butcher-knife.

Frank H. Marsh, of Wakefield, Mass., is charged with embezzling $1,850 from his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. J. Parker, whose property he had charge of.

An infuriated bull at Carlisle, Pa., gored to death the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. Rodebaugh, living near that city, and severely injured another child.

The twenty-third annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars will be held in Bridgeton, New Jersey, October 16 and 17.

A call has been issued by Luke Dillon, M. Scanlon, Dr. McCahey, P. Stanton and J. Casey for a convention of the Clan-na-Gael to be held in Chicago in November.

Job Lilly, a retired merchant of Lowell, Mass., died of heart disease last night while witnessing the play of "The Old Homestead" at the Academy of Music, New York.

P. T. Barnum, the great showman, will sail this afternoon to astonish the Britishers with his "greatest show on earth." Two steamers will take the show across the water.

Blessing of Sleep.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

THE CZAR IN BERLIN

No Cheers from the Crowds in the Streets.

HE IS VERY CLOSELY GUARDED.

Emperor William Gives Him a Cordial Greeting.

The Exalted Guest Pays Great Attention to Prince Bismarck—He Offers the Great Statesman His Chair in the Opera—The Edison Phonograph Pleases the His Majesty

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—The Czar arrived here yesterday, accompanied by the Grand Duke George, his second son. Emperor William, several of the Royal Princes, Prince Bismarck, Count Herbert Bismarck and a number of generals' and court officials received the Czar and Grand Duke at the Lehrter Station. The Czar was attired in the uniform of the German Alexander Regiment, of which he is honorary colonel.

The two Emperors affectionately embraced one another and the Czar shook hands with Prince Bismarck. A brief conversation ensued when the Czar and his attendants entered the State carriages, the Guard of Honor defiled and assumed its place in the procession. The band of the Imperial Guard played the Russian National Hymn and the State carriages bearing the imperial visitor and his party were driven at a fast trot to the Russian Embassy.

The streets were crowded with people and the decorations of public and private buildings surpassed in all respects anything of the kind ever before displayed on the occasion of the visit of a foreign sovereign to the German capital.

The precautions taken against the approach of the populace to the Imperial carriage were as perfect in affect as they were formidable in appearance. The route from the railway station to the Russian Embassy was lined with troops.

There was some cheering on the part of the populace, but on the whole the enthusiasm of the people was far from being demonstrative.

As the Czar alighted from the train an imperial salute was fired, but even this failed to inspire enthusiasm among the crowd who neither at the station or at any point along the route to the Russian Embassy gave vent to the cheering with which they greeted the Austrian Emperor on the occasion of his visit.

The Emperor wore the uniform of the Russian Wyborga Regiment and upon his breast was a Russian decoration. Prince Bismarck also wore the insignia of a Russian order.

The Emperor entered the Russian Embassy with the Czar and remained there a few minutes conversing with his guest. Prince Bismarck did not depart with the Emperor but remained in conversation with the Czar for half an hour.

While at the Russian Embassy the Czar expressed a wish to see an Edison phonograph, of the wonders of which he had been told. Mr. Edison's agent here was notified and he promptly sent an instrument for his majesty's inspection. The Czar became deeply interested and manifested the most undisguised delight with the working of the machine.

At the opera last evening the Emperor wore the uniform of his own cuirasseer regiment, and the Czar that of a regiment of Prussian guards. Immediately after the banquet a graceful act of courtesy on the part of the Czar drew the attention of all present. Noticing that Prince Bismarck was standing deferentially a short distance from him, he approached the aged statesman and insisted upon his being seated while he himself remained standing and, leaning over the back of the Prince's chair, he engaged him in a pleasant and genial conversation.

THE CONCLAVE ADJOURNS.

No Change in the Ritual Believed to Have Been Made.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—In the Knights Templar conclave yesterday the report of the Committee on Ritual was received and adopted with great unanimity. It is understood that no radical changes were made. The essentials were adopted and the ceremonials were committed to the same committee for consideration and report at the next triennial meeting.

The encampment also considered the irregularities resulting from a misconstruction of the law that were alleged to have been committed by Col. Olcott, eminent commander of Washington Commandery No. 1, and they were declared illegal.

After the transaction of considerable routine business the encampment, at 6 p. m., adjourned sine die.

The banquet last night given by the Knights of Washington to the Grand Encampment at Willard's Hotel was the last formal event on the programme of conclave week, and was a great gathering. Covers were laid for 232 guests. Past Grand Master Roome was unable to attend owing to indisposition resulting from the arduous work of the past week. Sir M. M. Parker of Washington occupied the seat of honor at the head of the table. The banquet opened at 8 p. m., and feasting and speechmaking was kept up until long after midnight.

LOOKS LIKE SUICIDE.

A Letter Full of Forgiveness Found at Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Mrs. Louis Petochke of Buffalo, came here yesterday with the evident intention of committing suicide and to all appearances has succeeded in so doing. She has in all probability passed over the falls.

Yesterday evening a black straw hat trimmed with lace and white flowers, a black hand satchel and a silk umbrella were found on the bank of Goat Island with the following letter, which explains the motive for the deed:

"DEAR HUSBAND:—You have drove me to this. I forgive you more than a 1,000 times, but I can stand no more. May God forgive you as I forgive you. I die loving you.

YOUR WIFE."

P. S. Farewell forever.

Killed in a Mine.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 12.—Peter McManus, a coal worker at one of the mines here was killed yesterday by a fall of fifty tons of coal. Two Polish miners were badly injured.

Austin Corbin Off for Europe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—President Corbin of the Reading railroad sailed for Liverpool to-day by the steamer Umbria.

FATAL RAILROAD COLLISION.

One Man Killed and Twenty-Five Hurt—An Engineer Disobeyed Orders.

MARTIN'S FERRY, O., Oct. 12.—A collision occurred on the Cleveland, Lorain & Wheeling Railroad two miles west of Bridgeport, between the miners' train of two passenger coaches, containing about 70 miners, bound for the Wheeling Creek Coal Works, and a freight train of 21 cars south-bound. Both locomotives were demolished and also two passenger cars and eight freight cars.

The accident was caused by the failure of the engineer of the freight train to obey orders. He was instructed to lay up at the mines until the work train arrived, but instead of doing so started to run into Bridgeport. A man living near the track, seeing that an accident was inevitable, signalled the work train, which was coming in the opposite direction at a rapid rate, and the engineer succeeded in slacking his speed considerably. This probably averted great destruction of life.

The total number of injured is twenty-five. The engineers and firemen and many of the miners saved their lives by jumping. David Moore, a miner, was killed. Those seriously injured are: Samuel Tracy, three ribs broken and injured internally; will die. Nathan Clay, bruised about the head and body; probably fatally hurt. David Richardson, arm broken in two places and dislocated; will recover. John Johnson and Thomas Marden, legs crushed. William Stitt, leg and foot crushed; will recover. Several others were injured, but their wounds are not serious.

DEAD AMONG THE WIRES.

A Lineman Held in Mid-Air for Three-Quarters of an Hour.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—John Feeks, a lineman of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was killed this yesterday by coming in contact with an electric light wire near the bridge entrance.

Hundreds of people stood watching the body being consumed and nobody dared go near it. Even the brave firemen's faces blanched, and they said to another lineman:

"Benson, you are in the business, why don't you go up?"

He said: "No use; he's dead. I don't know the electric wires. I can't help him."

The blood spurted from the victim's body to the sidewalk. The current was finally turned off by the Electric Light Company and the man's remains were taken down.

He died on the network of wires on the corner of Centre and Chambers street. The flames could be seen burning the man's face away. For fifteen minutes this was going on and by the end of that time half the face had been burned away. The left arm was also seen to be burning and every few seconds the blue flames spurted out from various parts of the body.

ABOUT THE COAL TRADE.

Facts and Figures Concerning It—Advices from the Schuylkill Region.

POTTSVILLE, Oct. 12.—Though there has been no formal agreement to restrict the production of anthracite coal for the month of October, the tonnage reports of the first week show that the September reduction is still being adhered to.

The tonnage for that week was 138,586 tons less than that of the corresponding week of last year. This reduction exhibits a continued depression in the trade, which it was supposed would be greatly relieved by the reduction of a million tons in September. Except in the Philadelphia market there is no apparent benefit from the large reduction of the stock in hand, and this improvement does not extend to prices, which are as unsettled as at the beginning of the season. Compared with last season the anthracite trade is in a very unsatisfactory condition and there does not appear to be any prospect of a material improvement in the near future.

JOHNSTOWN BODIES FOUND.

The State Forces Preparing to Close Up Their Work.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 12.—The State forces are preparing to close up their work to-day and quit for good.

Three bodies were found yesterday by workmen while making an opening to a sewer outlet. It seems hard to stop the work at this stage, with the stream full of dead people, but the fiat has gone forth and the work must cease.

It is reported that the Cambria Iron Company will declare an advance in wages within a few days. This, it is said, is justified by the advance in the price of iron and steel.

The building and loan associations here are in a flourishing condition. Money was sold at the meeting of one of them last night at 28 per cent. premium.

Mrs. McDonald Leaves New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Mrs. "Mike" McDonald, who is alleged to have left her home in Chicago some months ago with a priest, and who returned to this city a few days ago, kept herself safe from the newspaper reporters a part of yesterday by staying in her room at the Fifth Avenue hotel, but about 6 o'clock her husband, whom she expected from Chicago, not having made his appearance, she paid her bill and left the hotel. It was the impression about town last evening that Mrs. McDonald had left for Chicago, and that her husband was waiting for her there to forgive her for her alleged indiscretions.

Kemmler's Appeal.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12.—In the General Term here to-day Mr. Becker, of Buffalo, made a motion that a day be appointed for argument of the appeal in the Kemmler execution case. The court set Friday, the 18th inst. The case will be argued by Attorney-General Tabor for the people and Bourke Cockran for the defence.

Schools Closed on Account of Diphtheria.

DOVER, N. H., Oct. 12.—All schools in the city have been ordered to close, on account of the prevalence of diphtheria. There are sixty cases of the disease now, and there have been during the year 516 cases and 68 deaths. An epidemic is feared.

Twenty-six Old Ladies at Dinner.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—Twenty-six old ladies, eight over 70, one 83, another 87 and one, Frau Schulten, 104 years old, sat down to dinner at Betts Street Hospital yesterday. The occasion was the celebration of the birthday of Frau Schulten.

THE DOINGS OF WOMEN FOLK

Who Are Settling Down for the Winter After Vacation Days.

Victoria Volkes is not like Rosina in face, but the comediennes are even curiously similar in their mannerisms. Victoria's fashion of rising from a chair or seating herself or pinching between her fingers a bit of the skirt of her gown, the pucker of her lips, the roll of her eyes, her whole air recalls her sister. Victoria is the taller and heavier, and her hair is less abundant than Rosina's, though it curls all over her head in the same way. Victoria's eyes are not so big and brown, but her voice is better and her art of almost identical quality. Victoria might easily give her sister a few points about gowns. On Broadway one day last week she wore one of the most striking of the new round hats in the fashionable heliotrope shades. The wide felt brim had three immense ostrich plumes drooping to the shoulder on either side. Bows of light and dark brocaded heliotrope ribbon were the crown trimmings and long streamers were brought about the neck from behind in lieu of strings.

This is the season when the verdant freshman is at the height of his sufferings and a question often asked concerns the existence of hazing at the girls' colleges. Do the sweet girl sophomores compel their timid sisters to ride the goat or indulge in such like hilarious indiscretions? To this query only one answer is possible, it all depends on the colleges and on the girls. As a rule there is no hazing even of the mildest description in the schools for women only, but in coeducational institutions it often happens that the spirit of Mother Eve prompts to a far away imitation of masculine pranks in a little surreptitious but innocent fun. Vassar and Boston University are examples of opposite states of affairs. At Vassar, in spite of its newspaper reputation for frolics that are freakish and feminine, the tradition of deathless rage between sophomore and freshman is maintained by class declaration, with smiling lips that contradict the words, "please consider yourselves hated" rather than by hostile demonstrations. The sophomoric campaign against the freshwomen varies in its details from year to year, but in general it embraces a banquet served in the most gorgeous college style to which each freshwoman is escorted with the prettiest and most graceful courtesy by a sophomore dressed in her most stunning clothes. All the luxuries procurable are heaped on the newcomers and flowers are provided tied with the Vassar colors for the corsages of their gowns. At the end of the feasting and the merrymaking one class gathers on the one side the other on the other of the ravaged board, and then they solemnly swear undying hostility to each other and depart with arms about one another's waists to their rooms. At Boston University there is no dormitory system and no night frolicking but sometimes it happens that a war party of sophomores catches a group of freshwomen off their guard of an afternoon. Then rises the sound of laughter and struggle, even in the staid precints of Beacon Hill, and by and by there emerge from the conflict dishevelled freshwomen with flour powder whitening their hair who relate to their classmates confused tales of blindfoldings and leadings up and down and orders to leap from precipices. Cane and plug hat rushes are more difficult for the college youth feminine to imitate, but tales have been told of how she undertakes the task. Silk dresses, bustles, sealskin cloaks, high-heeled shoes, slippers with buckles and divers other adornments have in one school and another been prohibited by sophomoric edict during the freshman year. The genuine articles being too valuable to demolish, daring freshwomen have put on cheese-cloth or pasteboard imitations and sallied out to meet their natural enemies. No sophomore could endure an affront of this description. In the twinkling of an eye the upstarts are surrounded and their unlawful finery torn from them, with screams of triumphant laughter, and scattered to the four winds. How she shall do her hair is one of the points on which a sophomore oftenest attempts to dictate to a freshwoman. If any unauthorized coiffure is observed the hair-pins are pulled out and the brown, black or auburn tresses let down at the instant gathering of the clans. All these, however, are but incidental divertissements in the life of the college girl. Take it together her life is a very industrious one, and the more fun she gets the better is her digestion at the end of the year.

The latest addition to my lady's jewel box is a ring or bracelet or necklace of gold and platinum, fashioned of several bands or wires, half of each material, twisted into a braid or held together by an intricate knot or clasp in which both elements join. Gold and platinum are sometimes combined in the Greek fillets which are worn with classic evening gowns to confine the fluffy knot of hair. When used as a diadem for the empire coiffure two bands of gold are used, with one between them of platinum. Sometimes the platinum is used to trace a Greek fret on the plain burnished bands of gold. Kathryn Kidder was one of the first to appreciate the possibilities of gold and platinum, and one or two of her friends wear pretty twisted rings chosen by her from the first devices shown. Miss Leiter, the Washington beauty, wears a unique and artistic fillet of this new jewelry. Another novelty of the autumn is the enameled orchid jewelry. There is hardly a variety of this weird and delicate flower which is not now exactly reproduced, in life size, in enamel in very large brooches and dress ornaments which chime in well with the gorgeous coloring of the winter brocades.

Mrs. George Kennan is the possessor of a genuine Russian icon. The Russian craze was epidemic in unusually severe form last winter, and there is only one thing, the budding passion for Ibsen and things Norse, which can this winter disturb its continued rule. The fur dealers are importing Russian skins, and modistes are getting ready to make much of Russian gowns. The modern young woman thinks her den incomplete without an icon, but as there are not for sale in this country a dozen of these images which ever saw the land of the Czar it may be guessed that Mrs. Kennan's specimen, which the explorer of Siberian prisons picked up at the Nijni Novgorod fair, has a better authenticated history than most before which prie-dieus are placed and brass lamps kept burning. Some hard wood, presumably oak, is the material, but like all Russian work it is covered so profusely with white paint and gilding as to make close examination next to impossible. The features are those of some saint of the Greek church and the figure has brawny chest and shoulders which fall off into an indeterminate block, the arms, hands and all but the upper part of the body being represented with a rude conventionality that has not altered by so much as a line in the hands of centuries of carvers, as covered by a gold tinsel screen. Much of Mrs. Kennan's table service is the work of Russian silversmiths, and is gilded and embellished with old Russian proverbs.

Yellow and heliotrope are the favorite colors for dinner and lunch decorations. At a pretty breakfast some days since the two were combined. Pongee silk, of a heliotrope tint bordering on violet, was puckered about a yellow bowl filled with yellow and dull yellowish-red chrysenthemums. Six silver candlesticks were placed at intervals, and these had shades of yellow linen with silk fringe. At each plate were laid yellow chrysanthemums tied with heliotrope ribbons.

MISS SMITH'S FISH.

They Eat Ice-Cream, Beans, Tissue Paper and Ginger Snaps.

Nobody visits Lake Pennesseewassee the prettiest point in Oxford County, without going to see Miss Emma Smith's natural aquarium, writes a New York Sun correspondent: The young lady is the possessor of Tanglewood, a picturesque cottage on the western shore of the pond, one of many built in recent years on the shores and islands, where merry parties from adjacent towns find summer recreation. She spends the season at Tanglewood cottage, and takes pleasure in entertaining the girls of her circle and in cultivating this rather remarkable aquarium.

The aquarium had a small beginning, but it has become great. This is the third season of her cottage life, and she noticed at the beginning that the sunfish, chubs and horned trout liked to loaf around the little dock. They were carefully encouraged to come by liberal donations of crumbs and food scraps, until this year the number attracted to the landing reaches up into the hundreds. After every meal Miss Smith and her guests have half an hour's fun feeding the fish. They swim up to the wharf with an amount of splashing worthy of a lot of sharks, and scramble for the crumbs like a lot of small boys after coppers. Nearly all will eat from the hand. Two or three have been educated to eat from a spoon, and these favored ones get luxuries. Two or three more have become sufficiently reckless to allow themselves to be picked up by the fair hands of Miss Maud Allen, a fearless young lady of Boston, who rewards each one by feeding it with beans from a spoon. The latest experiment tried on the fish was to test their taste for ice-cream. They fought to get at the tempting spoonfuls after a couple of tastes. Chocolate cream seems to hit a horned trout right where he lives.

A horned trout's greatest joy is found to be in eating ginger snaps. He doesn't nibble, he bites. When small Miss Virgie Sargent, the seven-year-old belle of the cottage, pokes a ginger snap into the water the trout will take a bite out of it equal to anything Miss Virgie could do in the same line.

While feeling tender toward beans, ice-cream and ginger-snaps, the trout are not particular. They will open their wide mouths at any thing. One young man who saw them perform recently filled them up full with wads of tissue paper artfully rolled up, and was properly denounced for doing it. The fish didn't mind.

The trout are in the majority in the collection, chubs come next, and sunfish last in order of numbers and boldness. Some of the chubs are a foot long, and this is the average length of the trout. The latter are getting horribly obese and roll around weightily. They occasionally try to go off with a pink finger belonging to one of their hosts, and slide away, looking up reproachfully from the clear depths when they learn that it can't be had.

The lordly black bass and pickerel, with which the pond is stocked, refuse to be beguiled into accepting this profuse hospitality. They are all invited.

STILL ON THE GO.

Looking for a State Where One Can Live Without Hard Work.

A gentleman riding over the Western prairies met a dilapidated "prairie schooner" drawn by a pair of bony and hollow-eyed oxen. A ragged, uncouth man, and a woman of equally unattractive appearance, with a fretful and untidy baby in her arms, occupied the front seat, while the rear part of the wagon did not seem to contain any thing but ragged, dirty children of all ages and sizes.

The man brought the oxen to a standstill and thus, according to the Youth's Companion, accosted the traveler:

"Got any terbacker, mister?"

"No, I never use it."

"You don't? Well, I wonder how in creation a feller kin git along 'thout terbacker. Are you travelin', or j'st goin' somewhere?"

The traveler, not unwilling to have a little conversation with this queer specimen of humanity, had reined in his horse and said: "I am going to the next town. Where are you bound?"

"Well, I don't 'zactly knows just where we will settle down. Where'd you come from?"

"From Kansas."

"How's times out there?"

"Very good."

"Any chance for a feller to make a living?"

"Oh, yes; plenty of chance."

"What at?" asked the man, eagerly.

"At hard work."

This reply evidently dampened the man's ardor.

"Some kin stand hard work," he said, "and some can't. I don't b'lieve in a feller makin' a slave o' hisself. That's why I left Iowa and Ohio and Illinoy."

"What do you want to do for a living."

"Well, I don't 'zactly know."

"And you're no idea where you will locate?"

"No, dunno as I hev; but I'm willing to stop in any place where times is good an' I kin git along."

He is probably wandering still, he and his family, adding to that great and widely-scattered army of people who never "git along" in any country.

How He Weighed the Dog.

A lady who has a splendid great dog, sent the animal out to the stables the other day to be weighed. She confided him for this purpose to the hands of a new servant, a good-natured but not wholly brilliant individual, who regarded the dog with much awe and apparently with not a little attention.

The man was gone some time, but at length he reappeared with the dog and announced that the animal weighed 120 pounds.

"One hundred and twenty pounds," repeated his mistress. Are you sure you weighed him right? He must weigh more than that."

"Oh, yes'm; sure I weighed him right, but I couldn't get him all on the scale."

Many a beau who wears a sweet-smelling boutonniere is without a cent in his pocket.

Pennsylvania Switchmen on Strike.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 12.—The switchmen in the yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad in this city struck last evening for higher wages. Business in the yards of that company as well as in the yards of the Hocking Valley and Ann Arbor Railroads is suspended. The men assert that they will not return to work at the old wages and the company say they will make no concession.

Fell With the Scaffold.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 12.—While hoisting timbers to the top of a new factory to day the apparatus broke and fell to the ground, carrying three men with it. One, David Forrest, a carpenter, was injured perhaps fatally. The other two escaped with slight bruises.

He Was Despondent.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Frank Ages, lately employed at the Co-operative Foundry hanged himself this morning. He had been laid off and was despondent. He was 33 years old and unmarried.

Strychnine and Cancer.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Thomas Elliott, aged 65, who was afflicted with a cancer of the face, committed suicide last night by taking some strychnine sprinkled on a piece of cake. He died three hours later in great agony.

Irish Proclamations.

DUBLIN, Oct. 12.—The Government has issued a proclamation against the National League in Tipperary and three adjoining parishes, including the parish in which the Smith Barry estate is situated. Another proclamation imposes various restrictions on the importation of arms and munitions into Ireland.

The Panama Canal.

PARIS, Oct. 12.—The Government will send a commission to Panama to inquire into the condition of the canal works.

The princesse gown will be in high favor during the Fall for dressy house wear. The favorite model has the back in smooth-fitting princesse breadths, the fronts being cut off at the waistline, with a full-gathered vest of surah or China silk, and a sash of the same edged with fringe and knotted at the left side. The underskirt is laid in medium-sized plaits, which are briar stitched with silk to a depth of half a yard.

TALMAGE HOMELESS

The Brooklyn Tabernacle Destroyed by Fire.

CAUSED BY AN ELECTRIC WIRE.

Dr. Talmage Appeals to the World for Assistance to Rebuild.

This is the Second Tabernacle Fire—The Damage Nearly Covered by Insurance—The Fire Discovered Early in the Morning—Dr. Talmage Postpones His Visit to the Holy Land.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The famous Brooklyn Tabernacle, of which the Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage is pastor, has for the second time in its history received its baptism of fire and for a second time been totally destroyed.

The fire was discovered at 2:45 yesterday morning by a policeman, who turned in an alarm. The flames had gained such headway, however, that the firemen were almost helpless, and turned their attention to saving the adjoining buildings. The three-story structure, No. 353 Schermerhorn street, caught fire and was damaged to the extent of $1,000. The roof of the building No. 355 also became ignited and was damaged to a like amount. Dr. Halleck's house, on the west side of the church, and No. 357, owned by John Ames, were badly burned. Buildings on the south side of the street were also damaged. The loss on the church building, including the organ, one of the finest in the country, is $150,000, well covered by insurance.

It was at first supposed that the flames originated in a defective flue, the statement being made that fire had been started in the furnace to heat the building for yesterday morning's services. The sexton, however, denies that there was any fire in the furnace. Workmen had been putting electric light wires in the building all day Saturday, and it is now thought that during a thunder storm in the night lightning surcharged the wires and caused some of the woodwork of the interior to ignite.

A Letter from Dr. Talmage.

Dr. Talmage has written the following letter to the newspapers:

To the People—By sudden calamity we are without a church. The building associated with so much that is dear to us is in ashes.

In behalf of my stricken congregation I make appeal for help, as our church has never confined its work to this locality. Our church has never been sufficient either in size or appointments for the people who come. We want to build something worthy of our city and worthy of the cause of God.

We want $100,000, which, added to the insurance, will build what is needed.

I make appeal to all our friends throughout Christendom, to all denominations, to all creeds, and to those of no creed at all, to come to our assistance. I ask all readers of my sermons the world over to contribute as far as their means will allow.

What we do as a church depends upon the immediate response made to this call. I was on the eve of departure for a brief visit to the Holy Land, that I might be better prepared for my work here. But that visit must be postponed. I cannot leave until something is done to decide our future.

May the God who has our destinies as individuals and as churches in His hand appear for our deliverance.

The response of this appeal to the people may be sent to me in Brooklyn, N. Y., and I will, with my own hands, acknowledge the receipt thereof.

T. DEWITT TALMAGE.

INDIGNANT PARISHIONERS.

They Will Not Receive a Pastor Sent Them by Their Bishop.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The only topic discussed in the Delaware Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday, before and after services, was the appointment of Rev. Dr. Phelps as pastor by the recent Lockport conference.

Rev. Dr. Bashford, pastor of the church, had been appointed president of the Wesleyan University of Ohio, but by an arrangement with the University he was permitted on certain conditions to retain his pastorate here for another year. Notwithstanding this, the conference appointed J. D. Phelps, of the First Church of Rochester, to fill the pastorate of the Delaware Avenue Church.

The stewards of the church held a secret session and elected Dr. Wentworth as temporary pastor. They also passed caustic resolutions on the action of the bishop.

One of the trustees states that the meeting voted unanimously to respectfully refuse to receive Rev. Mr. Phelps. If the bishop refuses to reconsider his action the church will continue to refuse the appointment of Mr. Phelps and engage their own minister.

Sailed With Non-Union Firemen.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Cunard line steamer Umbria, which was detained by a strike of her firemen, sailed yesterday for New York with a crew of non-union men who were hired to take the place of the strikers.

Three Men Burned to Death.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 14.—A special from Rico, Colorado, says: "Fire here destroyed the St. James Hotel and three other buildings. John Phillips, Cash Carpenter, and one other man, were burned to death."

A Street Railroad Sold.

ROCHESTER, Oct. 14.—The Rochester City and Brighton Street railway has been sold to the new Cross Town Street Railway Company. The latter company is backed by eastern capital. The price paid is over $2,000,000 cash.

LABOR CHIEFS CONFER.

A Meeting in Philadelphia To-Day of Leading Workingmen.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—Samuel Gompers, President of the Federation of Labor, and other officers of that organization are in this city for the purpose of a conference with the Knights of Labor.

It is believed that the Federation will request the Knights of Labor to abstain from giving charters to non-unionists or to men who have abandoned their trade organizations. Again, they will be asked to prevent Knights of Labor from taking the places of union men who go on strike. As regards the eight-hour movement, the Knights will be requested to remain neutral if they do not decide to join in the eight-hour movement.

The conference with the Knights will be held late this afternoon. The Federation will be represented by Mr. Gompers, Vice-Presidents Daniel McLaughlin of Brantwood, Ill., and John Martin of Pittsburg; Secretary P. J. McGuire of Philadelphia and Treasurer Henry Emrich of New York. The Knights will be represented by General Master Workman Powderly, John Devlin of Detroit, A. W. Wright, Toronto, Can.; John J. Holland, Jacksonville, Fla., and John Costello, Pittsburg.

In speaking about the Federation Mr. Powderly said: "They insist that we shall present the eight-hour question to the General Assembly. We have our views on this question and they have theirs. The object of our conference is to learn just what they want. I believe in a shorter day, but it will never be brought about by strikes. Arbitration is all that can bring it about. The stockyards strike in Chicago was a good illustration of this."

Mr. Powderly does not intend to resign. On that point he says: "I never thought of such a thing. It seems to be the policy of a number of men to keep me busy contradicting this statement—to keep me in hot water, as it were. I am not thinking of resigning.

TRIP OF THE DELEGATES.

They See Niagara and Left for Buffalo This Forenoon.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The members of the International American Congress left here this forenoon for Buffalo.

Their visit here was made as pleasant as possible. After breakfast at the Cataract House yesterday, carriages were taken and the party were driven to the various points of interest about the falls. The day was cloudy and so cold that no long stops were made during the drive. At Prospect Point a photograph of the party was taken, after which they were conveyed down by the inclined tramway to the pier at which the Maid of the Mist lay. The party were soon on board the steamer, and were taken as close to the roaring cataract as the boat could go. After a short stop the steamer returned to the landing place and the visitors were taken back to the hotel to lunch.

The afternoon was spent in driving on the Canadian side of the river, the whole party bringing up at the Clifton House at 6 o'clock. A banquet was here given in honor of the guests by Hon. Erastus Wiman. Many informal speeches were made, and at a late hour the party returned to the Cataract House.

Suffocated by Gas While Drunk.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Mary A. Barnett, aged 30, and Daniel Murphy, aged 32, a painter, were suffocated by gas last night in a room at the Mansion House, 205 East 132d street. The woman's husband, Flory Barnett, the boxer, left her three years ago for her unfaithfulness. She had been intimate with Murphy, and the couple were on a drunken debauch at the hotel. Just how the gas came to be turned on and unlighted is not known.

The Dangerous Electric Wires.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Linemen employed by the Board of Electrical Control were busy yesterday examining the electric light wires strung along the streets of the city, and obtaining information as to unsafe spots, to be laid before the Board this afternoon, when another step will be taken in the fight between the city and the companies over the question of putting the dangerous wires under ground.

President Eliot's New Departure.

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—The Massachusetts Democrats rejoice in a notable addition to their ranks, in the person of President Eliot of Harvard. He made public declaration of his affiliation at the Bay State Club dinner. He said that henceforth he was a Democrat, because the principles of the party were in harmony with his own convictions.

Defaulting Postoffice Clerk.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 14.—John F. Donahoe, head clerk of the money order department of the postoffice, is a defaulter to the amount of several hundred dollars, probably less than $1,000. A Government inspector is examining his accounts. Donahoe has not been seen since Saturday morning. The amount of the shortage is covered by bonds.

Hissed the Stars and Stripes.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—When the Stars and Stripes were raised at the Socialist mass-meeting in Vorwaerts Turner Hall yesterday afternoon the flag was greeted with hisses. Sergius E. Shevitch, of New York, was the first speaker. Shevitch began by declaring the hanging of the Anarchists the gravest crime ever perpetrated in America.

His Last Sermon as Pastor.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—The Rev. Dr. Thomas F. Davies, Bishop-elect of Michigan, yesterday preached his last sermon as pastor of St. Peter's P. E. Church. Dr. Davies will be consecrated as Bishop on Friday next at St. Peter's.

CHASING A MAD BULL

A Lively Scene in the Streets of New York.

SEVERAL PERSONS INJURED.

The Animal Shot Full of Lead by Policemen and Citizens.

Mad Chase Through Fifth Avenue and Other Thoroughfares—People Frightened as They Left Church—Women Fainting—The Bull Finally Killed, After Forty-four Shots Had Been Fired at Him.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—There was nearly as much shooting and excitement yesterday in the vicinity of Hudson street and Eighth avenue, as there was in that spot during the famous Orange riot of 1871. The shooting was not this time by the military, but by the police, and the object of the bullets was not a mob, but a Texas steer.

The animal was one of two that escaped from a drove which were being received at Stern Brothers slaughter-house in West 40th street. Forty-five shots were fired at it by the police and dozens more by outsiders, before it bit the dust. Two of the shots wounded a spectator in the hand and thigh. About twenty persons were knocked down by the bull during its rushes into the crowd.

The steer traveled a long way from the slaughter-house before it brought up in the locality named. It went down 11th avenue to 39th street and through 39th street to Broadway, striking terror to the hearts of the residents of that tenement house district, and causing men, women and children to flee in all directions. The animal then started down Broadway, and the panic was continued among the strollers of that thoroughfare down to 31st street. It seemed to be a peaceable beast, its chief anxiety evidently being to get out of the way of the crowd of excited citizens and policemen which was following and hooting at it. At 31st street a policeman headed it off and it ran into Fifth avenue. A man standing in the door of a Fifth avenue mansion fired the first shot at the steer, and missed. The animal kept on down to Madison Square, terrorizing the fashionable promenaders and causing drivers of carriages to hurry their vehicles out of range. The avenue was invaded by a howling mob, and the guests of the various hotels filled the windows, gazing with surprise at the spectacle. The steer dashed through the Madison square park, nurses, children and other loungers in the park escaping from its path as best they could. At Broadway and Twenty-third street a man who tried to stop the animal by spreading an umbrella in front of it was knocked down, and the bull proceeded on its way. It turned up Broadway again, and in front of the Hoffman House a policeman shot at it without effect. At Twenty-fifth street the animal turned off toward Eighth avenue, and on reaching the avenue it stopped, apparently exhausted. It had paused along the route wherever it could find a pool of water, and tried to quench its thirst. It was a homeless animal, and except for its great size not at all formidable in appearance.

In 8th avenue the crowd completely hemmed the tired animal in. Shots were fired at it from windows as well as by policemen. Attempts were also made to lasso it with clothes lines. The animal, goaded by these attacks, would occasionally dash into the crowd, knocking people down and causing a stampede. Finally the poor beast sided up against a street car that had been stopped by the crowd, and as it stood panting and bleeding, an officer stepped up and gave it the coup de grace.

When the excitement was over it was found that during the promiscuous shooting Emil Bachman, a baker, had been wounded in the thigh and hand. He was taken to a hospital, where his injuries were pronounced dangerous.

YANKEE ENTERPRISE.

Barnum & Bailey's Big Show to Leave Bridgeport To-Night for England.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 14.—Barnum & Bailey's show leaves its headquarters here to-night for New York. It will go directly to the Anchor line pier in Brooklyn and embark on the steamer Furnesia, which will take it to London.

The Furnesia will carry 240 of the employes and 160 more will follow Wednesday on the City of Rome. It is a monster undertaking to transport the vast show to England.

Before a single performance is given $350,000 will have been expended. There have been $90,000 expended on new costumes and $166,000 worth of advertising matter will be distributed in London.

The daily expenses of the show will be $12,000. Mr. Bailey, "the Napoleon of the show world," as he is called in amusement circles, says he doesn't care if they lose a million in Europe. Mr. Barnum and he only want to give the people there an idea of Yankee enterprise.

A Soldiers' Memorial Building.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Lafayette Post 140, G. A. R., has initiated a movement for the erection in this city of a Soldiers' Memorial Building. All members of the G. A. R. will be invited to aid in the enterprise. It is not yet fully decided just what form the building shall assume. A committee of eminent veterans are working out the details.

Iron Furnaces in Full Blast.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The extensive smelting works located on the river bank, near here, which have been closed for the past sixteen years, have been put in operation by their new owners, the Tonawanda Iron and Steel Company. The capacity of the works is from 100 to 125 tons of pig iron per day.

The visiting lodge, including the Grand Lodge officers will arrive on a special train, and after conferring the rank of Knight in amplified form, the visitors will be tendered a collation.

ROBBED HIS EMPLOYER.

Butcher Linbarger of Bound Brook Relieved of His Watch and Chain and a Quantity of Wearing Apparel—The Thief Caught at Dunellen.

About two weeks ago Butcher Linbarger of Bound Brook went to New York and engaged a German to work in his meat market. The man was attentive to his work, and soon gained the confidence of his employer. Last night the man skipped the town, taking with him Mr. Linbarger's watch and chain, revolver, overcoat and rubber boots.

The thief walked to Dunellen to take the train from there to New York. The Chief of Police of Bound Brook was notified of the robbery, and he followed the thief to Dunellen, where he was apprehended just as he was about to board the milk train for New York. The prisoner was committed to the Somerville jail.

An Exciting Runaway.

Mr. Edward Apgar, the genial clerk at the City Hotel, had a thrilling experience near Mt. Bethel a little before three o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Apgar was driving a mustang at the time, and a young lady was sitting beside him in a covered buggy.

The mustang became frightened and ran away. Mr. Apgar pluckily held the reins and guided the animal in the roadway. Just as he was approaching a steep incline, a flock of chickens ran out from a hedge, and again frightened the mustang. The animal made a plunge into a stone heap, upsetting the buggy and throwing the occupants out, but still the driver held fast to the reins and was dragged fully one hundred and fifty feet, when his head came in contact with a large stone, and he was forced to relinquish his hold.

Rushing back, Mr. Apgar found the young lady lying unconscious on a heap of stones. He carried her to a physician's office some distance away, where the wounds were found to consist principally of cuts on the forehead and bruises about the body. After the wounds were dressed she was taken home in a carriage. Mr. Apgar was badly bruised on the forehead. The entire top and seat of the buggy were torn off, and the mustang was cut on the front legs, The animal was captured at Mt. Bethel.

The Reform Hall Meeting.

A very interesting meeting was held in Reform Hall, last evening. President Harper presided, Freeholder Vanderbeek led the music, and Mr. Sampson conducted the devotional services, Bible reading and prayer.

The speakers were as announced, Mr. Wm. H. Sampson and Captain Wm B. Ostrom, both members of the Reform Club. The address of Mr. Sampson was of a religious tenor and clearly voiced the saving principles of Christianity. He conveyed to the audience most valuable instruction and commanded close attention.

Captain Ostrom recounted in his usual happy manner several incidents connected with a recent extended visit to the Western Lakes, and from them drew moral lessons of great practical worth. Both gentlemen in the course of their remarks ably advocated the all important cause of total abstinence from intoxicating liquors of every kind.

President Harper gave notice that next Sunday evening the platform would most likely be occupied by our fellow citizen Aaron M. Powell, who has just returned from a visit to Europe.

After a few earnest words from Mr. Sampson on behalf of pledge signing, the assemblage dispersed.

Miss Cleaver's Taffy Pull.

Miss Eleanore Cleaver gave a "Taffy Pull" to a few of her friends on Saturday evening, the occasion being the fifth anniversary of her birthday. The prize for the whitest candy was won by Miss Maud French, while the "Booby" prize fell to the sad lot of another young Miss of that name.

After the distribution of these prizes, refreshments were served and the young people dispersed, wishing their little hostess many happy returns of the day.

That Dam Question.

It is true as stated in Saturday's PRESS, that the preliminary order has been vacated by the Vice Chancellor, and an injunction refused restraining P. M. French from rebuilding Tier's dam against the wishes of Charles Hyde, but the matter is not finally settled.

Mr. French can go on and build the dam, but the case will go on also—be argued, and testimony presented—then if it be decided in favor of Mr. Hyde, down must come the dam.

Sprained His Ankle But Saved His Life.

Mr. Charles VanWinkle, son of ex-City Treasurer VanWinkle, slipped on the rail and fell in front of the incoming seven o'clock train this morning, at the station. Although his ankle was badly sprained and the train was almost on him, yet he succeeded in rolling out of danger and the locomotive passed in safety a few inches from him. He was taken to his home and the doctor sent for.

A Sudden Death.

Mrs. Frank Campbell, the wife of the Liberty street caterer, fell dead in her husband's restaurant, last evening with heart disease. Mrs. Campbell was taken ill on the street, but she managed to reach home but a few minutes before her death occurred.

A MAIDEN SAVED.

How Ernest Gabriel, a Cavalier From Switzerland, Was on the Eve of Bigamy When His Wife Made Herself Known.

Considerable scandal has been created in the hamlets of Union Village and Stirling, by the escapade of a young man who worked in the former place, and who was paying assiduous attention to a young lady resident of the latter.

Gabriel Ernest, as he called himself, a native of Berne, Switzerland, came to this country a few years ago to seek work at his trade of brass-finishing and surgical instrument making. After arriving in Plainfield he found employment with Mr. Charles Castle, maker of surgical instruments, of Union Village. Being an expert mechanic Gabriel secured good wages, and being of a social disposition and quite a singer, he had no trouble in forming a vocal society, which met weekly at Stirling, under his leadership. Salary and position thus made him a favorite in township society, and quite a catch in the eyes of the maidens.

Gabriel soon formed the acquaintance of a respectable young lady to whom he became engaged to be married, the only stipulation being that he should wait a year or two, as the parents were not willing to part so soon with their daughter. To this Gabriel consented.

One day last week an acquaintance of this cavalier received a letter from an attorney in Berne asking for information of "Ernest Gabriel." The letter stated that Gabriel's wife was anxiously waiting for news from him. Enclosed was a note from Ernest to his wife, telling her he was sick in a hospital, and that that was the reason he did not remit any money to her.

The attorney wanted to know if Ernest was still sick or dead, as no word had come from him in some time. The man who received the letter went to Stirling to make inquiries, and there found the true state of affairs. When the contents of the letter became publicly known, on Saturday the 5th, Ernest drew his wages at noon and went to spend Sunday at Stirling. He received so unusually warm a reception, however, that he subsequently disappeared. It is supposed he has gone to New York.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. "Wallie" Smith, of New Haven, Conn., spent yesterday with his aunt, Mrs. R. C. Potter of Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. "Ike" Weir, otherwise known as the "Belfast Spider," of prize fighting fame, was in the city on Saturday evening.

Major Rufus K. Case took a party of Plainfield school teachers, members of the History Class, on a very enjoyable trip up the Hudson, Saturday.

Mr. John E. Beerbower, proprietor of the City Hotel, has secured the right to sell the Numan lawn pump and fire extinguisher in the counties of Union, Somerset, Essex, Passaic, Mercer and Bergen.

Miss Maud Bowers returned on Monday last to the Boston school of oratory where she is studying. A number of friends saw her off at the Grand Central depot, among whom was a bashful young man who only seen through tear dimmed eyes, just escaped being kissed in mistake by the ladies, in the hurry of leave taking.

A Particularly Pleasing Place for the Ladies.

Many Plainfield ladies with a few hours to spare after a morning's shopping in New York, stop in at the American Institute Fair, 3d avenue and 64th street, and view the thousand and one things displayed of interest and beauty to them. From unique and labor saving household utensils and food products, to the furniture and art exhibits, there are hundreds of wonderful inventions and new means of elaborate decoration, that are each worth the small price of admission. A whole day can be spent in the building with profit and entertainment, and at the cocoa, coffee, bouillon, griddle-cake, muffin and mince meat exhibits, a palatable lunch is freely offered.

Interesting Services at Holy Cross.

There were very large congregations at both morning and afternoon services in the Church of the Holy Cross, yesterday. In the morning the Rev. Dr. Perkins, of Louisville, Ky., preached an excellent sermon. A missionary service for children was held in the afternoon. They were addressed by the Rev. Mr. Blanchet, who has spent ten years in Japan as a missionary.

Rev. Mr. Clark Will Speak.

Rev. Francis E. Clark, of Boston, and Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, D. D., of this city, will address the young people at the First Presbyterian church, Thursday, Oct. 17, at 4:45 P. M. An informal reception will be held in the church parlors from 7 o'clock, where Dr. Clark will be pleased to meet all Christian workers.

A New Place of Worship.

The new place of worship furnished the Unitarians by Mayor Male, at No. 4 Second place, was filled at the first service held there yesterday The acting pastor, Rev. W. P. Tilden, preached a very instructive sermon on "The Bible Ode of Creation."

Prominent clergymen, physicians, and all classes of citizens are unanimous in the endorsement of Salvation Oil, the greatest cure for rheumatism.

No greater guarantee of the excellence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup could be furnished than that it is recommended by all the leading druggists.

PEERLESS DYES Are the BEST. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS

EVERYBODY READ THIS.

It Doesn't Apply to You, but You Know Some it Hits.

There are a number of people in Plainfield today, as in every place on the face of the globe, probably, to whom this writing—published in all good feeling—applies. There are none of them, of course, among the readers of THE PRESS, but, for all that the article, which is from The Orphans' Friend, will be none the less interesting reading:

By some unaccountable misapprehension of facts, there is a large class of people in the World who think that it costs little or nothing to run a newspaper, and if they buy a copy occasionally they are regular patrons and entitled to unlimited favors. Men ask for a copy of a newspaper for nothing, who would never dream of begging a pocket-handkerchief from a dry goods store or a piece of candy from a confectioner, even on the plea of having done business with them before. One paper is not much, but hundreds at each issue will amount to something in the course of time.

But this is a small drain compared with the amount of free advertising a newspaper is expected to do. Some people when they once pay for an advertisement think they are stockholders in the establishment for eternity. Without being represented in its advertising columns we have had people to request us to gratuitously insert this notice, or draw attention to this article, with the slight suggestion that "it will cost you nothing to put this in," which is just as ridiculous as to ask a man to grind your ax on his grind stone, and graciously tell him it won't cost him a cent.

It takes money to run a newspaper as well as any other business; no paper can succeed financially that carries a dead-head system. Any mention of people's affairs which they are anxious to see in print is worth paying for, and when printed is generally worth as much as any other investment of the same amount. The newspaper business is very exacting on all connected with it, and the pay is comparatively small; the proprietors risk more money for smaller profits, and the editors, reporters and printers work harder and cheaper than the same number of men in any other profession, requiring the given amount of intelligence, training and drudgery.

The life has its charms and its pleasant associations scarcely known to the outside world; but it has its earnest anxieties, and hours of exhaustion, which also are not known to those who think the business fun. The idea that newspaperdom is a charmed circle, where the favored members live a life of ease and free from care, is an idea which should be exploded. Business is business, and the journal that succeeds is the one that is run on a square business footing, the same as banking, building bridges, or keeping a hotel.

Middlesex County Bowling Club.

A lively contest between the members of the Middlesex County Bowling Green Club, took place on Mr. C. Schepflin's Green at Dunellen, on Saturday afternoon last, for the champion medal. Dr. W. E. Linstedt of New Brunswick, was the victor, and he found strong competitors in Messrs L. A. Pawlson and F. P. Haffner, and only defeated the latter by a score of 15 to 14. Among the other competitors were Messrs E. D. Christian, R. M Pettit, F. Weigel, A. W. Pettit, J. E. Powelson, H. B. Willis, T. B. Booream, P. W. Frick and Dr Wagoner Mr. C. Schepflin was the holder of the medal last season, but arrived too late to show his skill for 1889.

The season will close after a friendly game between the Middlesex and the Dunellen Bowling Green Clubs, which will take place after the return of Mr. Schepflin from his trip to the West and Southwest. This will be in about three weeks.

The Place and the Monument.

The members of the G. A. R., of this city, who are to raise $5,000 for the erection of a Soldier's Monument in Plainfield in commemoration of the Nation's dead heroes, will make a mistake by placing such monument in Hillside Cemetery, so far from daily sight.

Let it be erected in some such prominent spot as the junction of Broadway and Crescent avenue; and let it not be in the form of a gloomy tombstone. What's the matter with putting up a magnificent fountain?

Twenty-third Annual Session.

The twenty-third annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars of New Jersey, will be held at Bridgeton, commencing Wednesday, Oct. 16, at 10 A. M., continuing two days. This session will undoubtedly be the grandest ever held by the Order in this State. The Mayor of Bridgeton will deliver an address of welcome and extend to the visitors the freedom of the city.

Work Done at Ocean Grove.

The Ocean Grove Association finished its twentieth annual session on Friday. All the old officers were re-elected, making the twenty-first election of Dr. E. H. Stokes to the position of President of the Association. The Rev. J. H. Alday was elected to the Executive Committee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Joseph H. Thornley.

So They Are Here.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Rahway is making a strong effort to raise funds for the erection of a handsome building. Several thousand dollars have already been subscribed.

A Westfield Wedding and an Anniversary.

(From the Union-County Standard.)

Mr. Harry Harden and Miss Lillie Barton were married Wednesday afternoon in Grace Episcopal church, Westfield. The church had been very prettily decorated for the occasion and was well filled with friends and relatives of the happy pair. The ushers were J. Edward Kingsland, of Roselle; John Sansom, of Westfield, and John Harden and George Gray, of New York. The bride's brother, William H. Barton, acted as best man. Immediately after the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Alfred B. Taylor, the couple repaired to the home of the bride's parents, on Broad street, where a family reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Harden will reside in Brooklyn.

The Bible readings which have been conducted during the past year by Rev. Mr. Greaves, will be held hereafter on Monday evenings, alternately at Mr. Hanford's on Prospect street, and at Dr. Morse's on Orchard street. All who wish to study the Scriptures are made welcome.

The twenty-second anniversary of the Westfield Baptist Sunday school was held last Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The attendance was good notwithstanding the rain. The exercises were interesting and the singing by the school hearty and spirited. The secretary, Charles E. Smith, presented a gratifying report, showing a net increase in membership during the past year of fourteen, also that seven of the scholars had united with the church during the same period and that the average attendance is now 102. The Rev. J. Madison Hare, of Elizabeth, made the address and proved himself to be an unusually interesting speaker. An exceedingly pleasant feature of the occasion was the words of greeting and encouragement expressed by Messrs H. Fink, M. Wells and R. R. Sinclair, superintendents of the Presbyterian, Congregational and Methodist schools.

The Central New Jersey Baptists.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

The sixty-first session of the Central New Jersey Baptist association was recently held at Clinton. The ministerial conference of the association held their half-yearly meeting at the same place, on the same day. Reports from the churches, mission work, with much time given to Sunday school and higher education by schools and colleges, was the main order of business. There are six associations of Baptist churches in the State, of which this is the smallest. Last year 4,013 members were reported in the following churches, which compose this body: Belvidere, Berean at Stockton, Bethlehem, Calvary at Hopewell, Central of Elizabeth, Central of Junction, Cherryville, Clinton, Croton, Flemington, Frenchtown, George's, Road, Kingwood, Lambertville, Mansfield, Montana, New Brunswick (First, Second and Third), Ringoes, Sandy Ridge, Somerville, South River, Washington, Wertsville. Several of these reported quite an increase from the several revival meetings held in the earlier months of the year.

The reports for the year 1888 showed 200 Baptist churches in the State, with a membership of about 39,000, and this year there will be more churches reported and a much larger membership throughout the State. The State convention, composed of delegates from all the churches, will meet at Salem, about the first of November.

Indian Summer.

Pretty soon the annual argument about Indian Summer will begin, and some very silly statements made. The truth is we do not have an Indian Summer every year, or at least some years have very few days while others may have two or three weeks. Indian Summer as defined by the early settlers and our aboriginal brethren was, that after a severe frost there will sometime come a spell of warm weather and slightly hazy, and then occurs the Indian Summer, peculiar only to America and to our Northern latitudes.

They are not the "melancholy days, the saddest of the year," for on a real Indian Summer day the winds don't "wail" although the "meadows are brown and sere" Moreover there is no fixed time for the occurrence of Indian Summer, it may come in October or it may be delayed until November, or even in the early part of December, but when it does come there is no more beautiful season, especially for outings. If there is any poetry in a man it will come out then.

MONADNOCK.

A Dinner by Chauncey B. Ripley.

Chauncey B. Ripley entertained at dinner at the Hoffman House, Saturday, Matthew P. Deady, United States District Judge, residing in Portland Ore., and an associate of Justices Field and Sawyer. Judge Deady is President of the Board of Regents of the University of Oregon, and a lecturer in the Law and Medical Departments. He is related to the St. Helen's Seminary for young ladies, and is prominent in Episcopal church circles, being a delegate to the General Convention now in session in New York. Hiram Barney, ex-Collector of the Port; Edward Jordan, ex-Solicitor of the United States Treasury; A. B. Tappen, Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall; Judge Henry Wilder Allen, of the Court of Common Pleas; Frank Loomis, counsel of New York Central Railroad; Austin Abbott and Dr. John H. Ripley were among the invited guests.

—Leaves are falling from trees much earlier than usual, and the extremely wet weather during the season is thought to be accountable for it.

GOV. HILL OFF FOR GEORGIA.

He Arrives in Washington This Morning and Called on the President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The special train and committee of Georgia citizens to escort Gov. Hill down to Atlanta arrived here this morning. The party will spend most of the day in the city. This forenoon the Governor called on President Harrison.

The Governer's party consists of himself and Col. E. L. Judson, his military secretary; Hon. Roswell P. Flower and John B. Inman, of New York; General Patrick A. Collins of Boston; Adjutant-General Josiah Porter, Assistant Adjutant-General McEwen, General Austin Lathrop, Superintendent of State Prisones; E. L. Ridgway, of New York; Chancellor Henry R. Pierson and ex-Mayor A. Bleecker Banks of Albany.

On Wednesday Governor Hill will deliver an address at the Exposition. The party will be absent one week. The people of the South are anxious to see Governor Hill, and his appearance at their principal exposition will create intense enthusiasm. The machinery at the Exposition will undoubtedly be started by the hand of the Governor.

Wednesday has been set aside as Governors' Day. The Governors of four States will be present, and Governor Hill's address will be upon the agricultural products of the South and the future outlook for that great section of our country.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Sixteen hundred men are working at the Chester, Pa., shipyards.

Edgar Allen Poe, '91, is the probable captain of Princeton's University football team.

The pilot boat Jesse Carll was driven ashore near Zach's Inlet Life-Saving Station on Long Island, and afterward sank.

The Pennsylvania coke workers employed by H. C. Frick threaten to strike unless a discharged union man is given work soon.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish the Ingredients Used?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

JURY FIXERS JAILED

Six Men Indicted for the Latest Cronin Plot.

THE AFFAIR NOT YET ENDED.

The Prosecution Say the Conspiracy is the Worst Ever Concocted.

Two of the Accepted Jurors "Fixed"—Secret Meeting of the Counsel for the Defense—They feel Their Position Keenly. Stenographer Purcell Expected To-Day from St. Louis.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Six more men have been indicted and arrested for connection with the conspiracy to "fix" the Cronin jury in the interest of the men accused of the murder. The Lawyer Forest, who is charged by Kavanaugh, the Clan-na-Gael agent, with a knowledge of the plot, is out in a fierce denial.

State's Attorney Longenecker declares that two of the accepted jurors have been already "fixed."

Of the six men indicted by the Special Grand Jury Saturday night, O'Donnell was allowed to remain at home under guard, his wife being sick. Tom Kavanaugh, Hanks and Solomon are in jail. Smith and Koren are supposed to be under the "sweating" process of the police.

Luther Laflin Mills, counsel for the prosecution, said last night that the world will be shocked when all the facts of the stupendous plot are known. He says the plot is, so far-reaching that the world will wonder that it was ever fathomed. It was the most hellish ever concocted.

The attorneys for the defense held secret conferences all day yesterday, but their plans could not be learned. They feel their position keenly. Mr. Forest looked five years older. His face was colorless and his eyes heavy. Judge Wing was as calm as ever. Mr. Donahue showed less anxiety than any of the attorneys for the defense.

Those who have studied the case affirm that the affair has not yet ended and that the desperation of the power behind the accused murderers will reach a still higher climax in order that the guilt of the real culprits may never be learned. The District-Attorney now casts the blame on his former stenographer, Purcell, who disappeared so mysteriously. Purcell, it is said, left on account of financial troubles and went to St. Louis. He will be in Chicago to-day.

MONDAYS RESERVED.

New Rules at the White House While Congress is in Session.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—In anticipation of the meeting of Congress, the President has established the following rules for the daily transaction of business at the Executive Mansion, which will be strictly adhered to:

Senators and members and others having business with the President will be received every day, except Monday, between the hours of 11 and 12:30 o'clock, and at no other time.

The public receptions in the East Room at 1 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays will be held as usual.

The President regrets the inconvenience to which friends may be subjected to by the enforcement of these rules, but he is sure that they will see the necessity of his having some hours each day that are absolutely free from interruption.

ORDERED OUT OF CHURCH.

The Father Lambert Trouble Revived at Waterloo.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 14.—The old fight between the Rev. Louis A. Lambert, now in Rome, but formerly pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Waterloo, and Bishop McQuaid of Rochester, broke out with a new vigor in Waterloo yesterday, and a riot was narrowly averted in the church. Seven weeks ago yesterday the Rev. Father Hickey, the present pastor of St. Mary's Church, read a letter from Bishop McQuaid excommunicating William Dempsey and James Kelly because they had been instrumental in bringing the Rev. Dr. McGlynn, of New York, to Waterloo to deliver a lecture upon "Father Lambert, a Priest Who Went to Rome, and What He Got There." On the Sunday following the reading of the Bishop's letter neither Dempsey nor Kelly attended church, but they have been in their pews every Sunday since at the second service, which takes place at 11 o'clock, but they have not heard mass because Father Hickey refused to celebrate mass while they remained in their seats. This morning at a few minutes before 11, John Welch, a trustee, advanced to the altar rail and said:

"I request James Kelly and William Dempsey to leave their pews and stand at the door of the church."

Neither man stirred, and Mr. Welch then called upon the congregation to put them out. Michael Boyle and James Talbot, two Auburn constables, went down to Mr. Kelly's seat and ordered him out. After some talk Mr. Kelly got up and took a seat near the door, from which he refused to stir. Then the constables tried to get Dempsey out. He refused to stir even when they took hold of him. Several men, members of the congregation, crowded around and made fun of the two constables, and the latter finally said that they had gotten into a muddle and left the church. Kelly and Dempsey remained in the church until 18 minutes to 2, when they went out, followed by the members of the congregation who had stayed in the church during the scene.

To Form an Aluminum Trust.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—Alfred Bolton, of Staffordshire, Eng., is in Pittsburg to see what can be done about the consolidation of the aluminum interests in the United States. There is a factory in Lockport N. Y., which he is interested in, and the other is in Pittsburg. He believes that a consolidation of interests would be very beneficial, as there is a great demand for aluminum, and will consult with the Pittsburgers as to what can be done looking to the formation of a "trust," though he does not consider it as such.

Gen. Poole to Succeed Tanner.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Gen. Poole, of Syracuse, N. Y., is believed now to be the leading candidate in the race for the Commissionership of Pensions. He has the advantage of being a New York man, and he has the sincere and hearty support of Senator Hiscock.

PRIZES FOR GOOD WORK.

The Pennsylvania Railroad to be Overhauled this Week.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 14.—General Manager Pugh, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, left to-day on an inspection tour of the entire main line between Jersey City and Pittsburg. He is accompanied by forty experts, and the trip will occupy five days.

The directors have voted to donate $1,000 in prizes for those divisions which show the most careful supervision, and it is this offer which has induced all division superintendents to keep the road, as it were, in exhibition garb. The present system of organization calls for two general superintendents to take care of the roadway from Jersey City to Pittsburg, and they are assisted by four division superintendents. Within each division there are several assistant engineers, five supervisors and six section foremen, whose duty is to daily supervise every mile of roadway under his jurisdiction.

In view of the responsibility being so well divided, a spirit of rivalry has been aroused and the award of prizes stirs up an even more energetic spirit. The prizes will be distributed by the general manager as follows: $150 to the supervisor of the best kept district; $100 to the second in rank of distinction; $100 to the supervisor showing the most orderly yard; $75 to each of the most proficient supervisors in the respective divisions, and $50 to the section foreman with the best record.

A novel method has been adopted to decide upon the merit of the various subordinates, and the decision is reached by a vote of the forty experts who accompany General Manager Pugh. As the inspection proceeds a record is kept on a card of the ranking to which each employe is entitled. When the investigation is completed these cards are sent to Altoona and the awards made according to the general average.

The party travels at about the rate of eighteen miles an hour in an inspection car which is pushed ahead of the engine, so as to secure an uninterrupted view of the roadway. All rubbish and disarranged ballast about the depot building are carefully noted, while requisitions for supplies can be made from the general superintendent as they pass through the respective divisions. Supervisor Murphy has been very busy putting his yard in Philadelphia in good order, and he will try to win again the $100 prize which he obtained last year.

STABBED IN THE HEART.

A Milkman Discovers the Body of a Man Inside the Entrance to a Cemetery.

STONEHAM, Mass., Oct. 14.—Early yesterday morning a milkman found the body of George Martin, Jr., of Stoneham, lying just inside the entrance of the Williams street cemetery.

An autopsy shows that death was caused by a knife wound in the heart. Wm. E. Maguire and Patrick Bishop have been arrested. They were in Martin's company Saturday night at a saloon in Montville. The three returned here on a horse car about midnight. Bishop says that after leaving the car a quarrel occurred, and Martin knocked Maguire down. Bishop wished to avoid being mixed up in the quarrel, and hurried away. He heard cries for help, and afterward, looking back, saw, by the aid of the electric light, Martin walking toward the cemetery gate. He thought Maguire had got the worst of the fight. He went home and knew nothing more about the affair until arrested.

Maguire denies the fighting, and says he went straight home on leaving the car, and knows nothing as to how Martin met his death. The crime occurred in a thickly settled part of the town, supposed to be well policed.

Doctors say that the wound was immediately fatal, and Martin could not have walked from the car-track to the cemetery after receiving it.

AN ARTIST'S FANCY.

He Adopts a Paris Custom and Follows a Newark Young Lady on the Street.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 14.—Miss Lillie Williamson, as she was returning home from Sunday-school yesterday afternoon in company with her friend, Miss Tennie Fox, on looking back noticed that a man was following them. He followed them for nearly a mile, came up close and looked into their faces. When they reached the Williamson residence at No. 79 Summer avenue, the young ladies were badly frightened. Mr. Williamson discovered the reason and made for the man angrily. The man ran, but was finally captured and taken to the Second Precinct Station.

He proved to be a mild-mannered, brown-eyed, spectacled man of good appearance, with an artist's portfolio under his arm. He said he was William Voegels, that he lived with his wife at No. 138 Montclair avenue, and that in Berlin and Paris, where he had studied, it was the custom for artists to follow ladies whose faces took their fancy. Miss Williamson's face had taken his fancy, and therefore he had followed her so that it might become fixed in his memory. Justice Van Ness accepted the explanation, and the artist was allowed to go home to his wife.

Ex-Gov. Minor Dead.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 14.—William Thomas Minor, ex-Governor of Connecticut, died yesterday at his residence in this city, where he was born Oct. 3, 1815. He was graduated at Yale in 1834 and taught in Stamford from that year until 1841, studying law in the mean time. He was admitted to practice in 1840. For eight years he was a member of the Connecticut Legislature. From 1853 to 1858 he served as Governor of his native State. In 1864 President Lincoln appointed him Consul General at Havana. Three years later he resigned. In 1869 Mr. Minor was appointed a judge of the Superior Court of Connecticut, but resigned in 1873 and lived a retired life up to the date of his death.

Students Refuse to Amalgamate.

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—The Victoria Medical School students have revolted against the amalgamation with the Laval Medical school. Yesterday one of the professors produced a revolver and was allowed to enter his lecture room, but he failed to obtain a hearing. Two other professors were barred out of their lecture rooms by the students, who made threatening demonstrations.

Divers Examine the City of New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Divers, who have examined the bottom of the steamship City of New York report that no serious damage was caused by the stranding of the vessel. She will probably sail for Liverpool Wednesday as scheduled.

A FUND OF INFORMATION.

THERE are in the United States 28,663 Indians enrolled as church members.

POSTAL cards were first used here in 1872. Now there are 160,000,000 per year used.

THE word "cobbler" is derived from an old French word "cobler"—to tie together.

LOTTERIES are said to have originated in Florence about 1530, and to have been legalized in France in 1539.

THERE are four statues to Christopher Columbus in the United States—one in Baltimore, one in New York, one in Boston and one in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

LONDON was first lighted in 1414 with private lanterns. In 1736 they were increased from 1,000 to 5,000. In 1744 the first Lighting Act passed. In 1820 gas was generally substituted for oil.

GUNPOWDER was used by the Chinese in the year 80 of the Christian era, but they have left no record of the name of the original discoverer. Bertholdus Schwartz, a monk, is generally credited with discovering the process of granulating this explosive, in 1320. A great deal of doubt exists concerning the origin of gunpowder, but the above are the commonly-accepted data.

THE phrase "getting into a scrape" probably came down to us from the days when England was still full of forests, and the deer running wild in the woods cut sharp gullies between the trees, called "deer scrapes," which it was easier to fall into than to climb out of. Another suggested derivation takes the phrase from the driving of a ball at the game of golf into a rabbit burrow or "scrape."

ELIOT'S translation of the Bible into the Indian tongue, issued in 1663, was the first publication of the Scriptures in America. The first literary work produced in America was a translation into English of Ovid's "Metamorphoses," by George Sandys, Treasurer of Virginia, in 1724, and published with illustrations in London in 1726. Mrs. Anne Bradstreet, a daughter of Governor Dudley, of Massachusetts, published in 1640 a volume of poems, the first original work issued in New England.

THERE is no positive knowledge regarding the origin of the American Indian, because their own traditions vary widely, and the researches made into the matter have not proved as satisfactory as could be wished, a great deal depending on conjecture. One of the most plausible theories is that they originated with two great Asiatic races; the more northern tribes on our continent from the lighter Mongolians, who crossed at Behring's Strait, and the more southerly ones, in California, Central and South America, from the darker Malays, who first peopled Polynesia, in the South Pacific, and finally made their way to the western continent, gradually spreading over it from one great ocean to the other. This theory is not based on any similarity of languages with those of the Asiatics, but the traditions of the Indians, their implements and their modes of life point to a close relationship.

INGENIOUS INVENTIONS.

AN Austrian railway official has invented a portable telephone for speaking from a railway train at any point stopping to the nearest station.

A Swiss inventor has perfected a method of making artificial boards, and is advocating their use in building. They are made of a mixture of plaster of paris and reeds pressed into shape by hydraulic process. The material has the advantage of incombustibility and lightness, and will resist the warping action of atmospheric changes.

STILL another application of the "nickel in the slot" principle is reported from England. It is proposed there to utilize this method for giving the general public the benefit of the telephone at street corners and railway stations. With a closely-fitting earpiece and a tube to speak into, the telephone may thus be available for all corners at a penny a time.

AN electric fire-engine, which can be tapped for service whenever wanted, is the latest invention. The advantages claimed are that it can be started at full speed; that it is much lighter than a steam fire-engine of equal power; that it costs one-third less; that it is noiseless in its operation, makes no smoke or ashes, and that it is safer and more economical.

A PORTLAND (Me.) man has invented and constructed a bicycle locomotive, which is to be given a trial on the track of the Coney Island railroad. The engine has two cylinders, one drive wheel, and two wheels under the tender. The engine and cars are to be supported on their single track by wooden guiding beams supported fifteen feet above the track by a skeleton frame arching the track. The design is to make an ordinary track serve as a double track for the bicycle system.

A LONDON shoemaker has invented a boot to make small people appear tall. The invention is an odd and ingenious one. Instead of tacking six inches on to a person's heel, a pair of entirely false feet made of cork is put into the shoes. When the wearer gets into them he or she is raised according to the inches of cork. Of course in this invention the original foot is made to combine with the cork one under the leather, in such a manner that the line of demarcation is not perceptible. The size of the foot is sacrificed, it is true, and a larger boot is necessary with the cork "elevator" than would be the case naturally.

THEATRICAL TOPICS.

"GRANDMA SARAH" is what they call the Bernhardt in Paris.

EDWIN S. CONNOR, an aged actor of Philadelphia, has acted Richelieu 1,013 times, but has never seen any one else act it.

IN the section of the Paris Exposition devoted to the Histoire du Theater there is a collection of wax models of feet of noted ballet dancers.

A NUMBER of treasurers of the New York theaters have formed an organization to protect themselves against the free pass "fiend." They propose to get a list of all the theatrical deadbeats and warn each other against their methods.

STUART ROBSON, the comedian, began his career as a page in Congress. He was fortunate in serving at the time when such men as Webster, Clay and Calhoun were in the House, and he has many interesting reminiscences to tell of those distinguished men.

MRS. KENDAL explains why she and her husband have always acted together by the statement that it was because of a vow made to her father. Mrs. Kendal's father, when his daughter wanted to marry an actor, insisted that they should always act together.

MARY ANDERSON is responsible for the popularity of English shoes among American women. Mary's feet are not small, but she had the courage to abandon French footgear for shoes in which she could walk comfortably. Her example has been widely followed.

SOL SMITH RUSSELL'S wife is a small intellectual-looking woman with a Bostonese face. She is the daughter of Mr. Adams, known to fame as "Oliver Optic." Mr. Russell is the owner of several fine buildings in Minneapolis, besides his handsome residence. He takes care of his money.

THE Empress of Austria has been drowning her great griefs in the study of Greek, in which she has made admirable progress.

SMOKELESS powder has proved a humbug, as it will not retain its normal explosive quality under prolonged field service. Such is the verdict of the English Ordnance Department.

THE first Mohammedan mosque in England has just been built in the parish of Woking, close by the Oriental Institute. It is a handsome structure, surmounted by an elegant dome.

NOVA SCOTIA is remarkable for the number of its old people. It has a larger population of centenarians than any other country, there being one to every 19,000 inhabitants, while England has only one in every 200,000.

THE magistrates of Adelaide, Australia, lately cautioned a bookseller who has been outraging the public sense of propriety by exhibiting in his window a volume of Zola and Sankey's hymns side by side.

IT is expected that the whole number of recompenses of all classes given by the International jury of the Paris Exposition will be as follows: Eight hundred and ninety grand prizes, 5,599 gold medals, 11,104 silver medals, 10,985 bronze medals and 9,037 honorable mentions.

OCEAN steamers can now go to Matadi, at the head of navigation on the Lower Congo, the point from which the railroad is to start for Stanley Pool. There is a channel sixty feet deep. Goods can now be shipped from any of the ports of the world to the foot of Livingstone Falls without breaking bulk.

THE Shah's misconduct in Austria is said to have driven the Emperor and his court nearly wild. He went so far as to laugh heartily when Archduke Joseph barked his shins against a stool placed in his way by little Axis, the Shah's "mascot," and, altogether, the thing they liked best about him was his departure.

ODD AND AMUSING.

'TIS said that the first dialect story originated from the effort of an author to do his own typewriting.

NOW IT is said that mosquitoes live on vegetable substances. They take human blood merely as a stimulant, probably.

AT Tuckxutawney, Pa., the other day, a man was seen carrying home a bottle of beer wrapped up in a copy of a prohibition paper.

"LENTEN PARTIES" are becoming very popular, as every young man is expected to bring a lemon, a girl and squeezer. Of course that is in the country.

A LAWYER at Tarpon Springs, Fla., advertises as follows in the local paper: "Marriages and divorces secured with neatness and dispatch, with or without publicity."

THE book-keeper of a Cleveland plumbing firm is under arrest for embezzling ten thousand dollars. He probably neglected to report an order received to thaw out a frozen pipe last winter.

"ARE your children doing well at school?" was asked of a fashionable woman. "Very well, particularly Clarence. I have great hopes of him. Why, I can't read a word he writes. I think he is going to be literary."

A CARELESS female reformer, who was aroused in her room at the Arlington Hotel in Petoskey, Mich., the other night by an alarm of fire, took time to dress and pack her trunk before she ran down-stairs, but forgot to wake her husband.

A MELON fell off a Wheeling, W. Va., truck and split lengthwise. A dirty-faced boy immediately sprang from nowhere, lit on one of the hemispheres, gave his face a header into its liquid depths, and, presently emerging, spluttered the ecstatic remark: "It's a sloppy day when I don't get aboard."

THE bass in the Brandywine river, Pennsylvania, are so inteligent that when they find a baited hook in the water one fish holds the line and another quietly eats off the bait. They then signal to the fisherman to pull up and put on a new bait. Local fishermen are authority for this.

"CHARLEY," cautioned his mother, "the Bishop is to dine with us to-day, and you must be very quiet at the table. I want him to think that you are a good little boy." Very much impressed, Charley ate his dinner in silence, until his plate needed replenishing. "Pa," he said, devoutly, "will you give me some more string beans, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven!"

THE plague of fleas which is annoying the residents of Cambridge, Mass., is accounted for scientifically by a Boston paper, which says that the number of companies of educated fleas now performing in the dime museums in the country have increased to such an extent that they have been obliged to visit Harvard College at Cambridge for the purpose of putting the finishing touches to their education.

MISCELLANEOUS MENTION.

ROTTEN ROW is said to derive its name from rottirin (German), to muster.

THE Belle Vernon gas field in Pennsylvania is twenty-two miles long and two miles wide. There are three wells in this field that yield 45,000,000 feet per day.

SOME years ago Hon. Francis D. Kernan had an eminent Chinaman for a client, and won his case. Ever since the latter has sent, several times a year, a box of choice tea to his lawyer as a token of remembrance.

THE tan shoe may have a permanent future after all. One of the results of the recent maneuvers of the British fleet has been the suggestion that the marines should wear tan or brown shoes henceforth instead of black ones, and brown gloves instead of white.

LADY MACARTNEY, wife of Sir Halliday Macartney, secretary of the Chinese Embassy in London, was recently fined twenty-five dollars for ill-treating her female servants. She was in the habit of tearing out handfuls of their hair whenever they displeased her ladyship.

WHILE the Shah was in Paris recently he visited the Wild West show and took passage in the Deadwood coach. The King of Kings is described as delighted with the attack by red Indians. His only regret seemed to have been that he could not be given a real hot, reeking scalp as a souvenir. He offered his own barber for the operation, but Colonel Cody smilingly declined the suggested sacrifice.

JUMPED THE TRACK.

The Fast Philadelphia Express Derailed at Rahway, N. J.

RAHWAY, N. J., Oct. 14.—At about 11:15 yesterday morning the fast express train which left Philadelphia at 9:40 was derailed here, and the entire train of five passenger coaches, smoker and locomotive jumped the track, tearing up the rails and ties for a distance of about two hundred yards.

As soon as the accident occurred the engineer reversed his engine, but was unable to stop the latter until the train had been derailed. The train was going at the rate of about forty miles an hour and it is regarded as remarkable that there was not some loss of life. There were about two hundred passengers, including Kiralfy's theatrical troupe. No one was seriously hurt, but all the passengers received a terrible shaking up, while some suffered more or less bruises.

A wrecking train arrived from New Brunswick at the scene of the accident in the afternoon, and the road was cleared after there had been a delay in travel of about three hours.

He Drank a Quart of Whisky.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., Oct. 14.—Some people here are likely to be charged with manslaughter by a Coroner's jury to-day as the result of an investigation into the death of John Roach, an old pensioner of the British army. Roach and Thomas Cronin, another pensioner, after getting their last pay went on a big spree and wound up in the saloon of Town Constable Strasburg, where Roach boasted of his ability to drink great quantities of liquor. He made a wager with a bystander to drink a quart of whisky; so the constable poured a quart measure full and Roach drank it in two and one-half minutes. Just as he offered to drink a pint more he dropped dead.

Landed from an Abandoned Schooner.

WOOD HOLL, Mass., Oct. 14.—The steamer Eleanora, New York for Portland, sent a boat ashore here while passing yesterday, and landed Captain Peter E. Child and Mate Wayman Foley of the schooner Adel, of Falmouth, abandoned between Point Judith and Block Island.

Death of Gen. Van Buren.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14.—Gen. Thos. B. Van Buren died here yesterday. He was a brother-in-law of William Walter Phelps. Gen. Van Buren was Consul General to Japan between 1874 and 1885.

PLAINFIELD
BARGAIN HOUSE.

Come in at any time and you will always find buyers; and there is many a good reason for it. We carry the largest stock—keep almost everything that one wants. We buy direct for cash and sell for the same, and sell our goods on a closer margin, and more of them, than all others. Sometimes we sell auction goods and remnants, but why not? Little difference does it make to you if some concern fails and we buy their stock at 50c on the dollar and sell it at the same rate—'tis only your gain. We'll buy anything and sell anything if we can sell it less than its real value. We are here for business, and we think we are getting it. 'Tis time to think of Winter goods, and we have them. There is everything that is new and desirable in dress goods, and the prices are right. Underwear for Ladies, Gentlemen and Children, in all qualities and sizes. We sell for 25c an extra heavy red flannel—value 35c., same in blue. There are 1,000 yards remnants of French Flannel—price 10c, value 15c.

If you want blankets and comfortables, come and see us. We can sell you a good 11/4 wool blanket for $2 50, and a good comfortable, that is filled with white cotton, for $1 25.

Housekeepers will find our furnishing goods department an interesting place. We keep everything needed in Crockery, Tinware, Granite Ironware, Hall and Parlor Lamps, Rugs, Matting, Curtains, &c. Come and see us.

We deliver goods everywhere free of charge.

PEERLESS DYES Are the BEST. SOLD BY DRUGGISTS.

NEW YORK IN GLOOM

Electric Currents Closed in the Great Metropolis.

NO MORE RISKS WILL BE TAKEN

The Electric Light Companies Shut Off Their Currents for the Present.

They Wish to Prevent the City from Cutting Their Wires—Extra Vigilance by the Police During the Night—Strange Sights on All the Thoroughfares—Gas Used In and About the Theatres.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—This city was in darkness last night. There was no electric lights on the most frequented avenues and streets. The public parks and squares were great black spots, framed by lighted windows of surrounding buildings.

The Brush and the United States electric light companies, the two largest purveyors of light to the city, cut off all circuits yesterday afternoon. After running for the help of the law and enjoining the city from cutting its wires, the companies came forward with a proposition. This was to shut off their currents until the injunction obtained by them on Saturday last could be thoroughly argued before Judge Andrews of the Supreme Court.

The proposition was accepted by John M. Bowers, representing the municipal authorities, because it was felt that the principal object in view—the safety of the public—was temporarily assured by the voluntary offer of the companies.

When night come on, the city's thoroughfares looked as gloomy as those of a country town. But the public took the darkness good humoredly. There was but one opinion expressed, "Better darkness than more deaths by wire."

Although it was an unusual dark and stormy night, the city was well protected by the police. Superintendent Murray ordered out the reserves, and the patrolmen did extra duty.

Theatergoers witnessed plays by gas in some theaters that ordinarily use electric lights, and after the stores closed the public squares and streets were very dismal and dark. In some streets the darkness was so great that pedestrains had the greatest difficulty in plodding through the rain and across streets. After 10 o'clock Fourteenth street, from river to river, had only a stray gas lamp, and the entire length of Twenty-third street was without an electric light. Union and Madison squares were black blotches set in a border of lights from hotel windows.

Broadway was unrecognizable after 10 o'clock. From Fourteenth to Fifty-ninth street all electric lights were out. Fifth avenue looked strange indeed, and the upper stories of mansions were not visible, so black was the night. Private lamps gave a little light, but they scarcely penetrated the gloom more than a few inches. The old had been cast off for the new, and but a very few gas lamps were available last night in any portion of the city that was covered by the Brush and United States supplies.

Downtown the darkness held the streets and avenues captive. City Hall Park was without a light, and the tall buildings in Newspaper Row served to make the square more dismal. Down in Battery Park the darkness was impenetrable, and it was hard work to find Castle Garden. Along the river fronts no one ventured except those whose business was imperative. The docks were dark and forbidding, and extra policemen patroled them.

MATAAFA KING.

His Election Likely to Cause Trouble With Germany.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Oct. 15.—At the time of the latest advices from Samoa preparations were in progress for the election of a King. At a public meeting held in Apia, the present King and all the foreign representatives were in attendance. Malietoa addressed the people and in his speech highly praised Mataafa and advised them to elect him King. As for himself he said he was perfectly content to be Vice King. It is understood in Samoa that in case Mataafa is elected, which seems almost certain, Germany will refuse to recognize him. In that case serious complications are threatened.

Dillon's Mission to Australia.

DUBLIN, Oct. 15.—Dr. Kenny publishes in the "Freeman's Journal," of this city, a list of the donations which have been sent from Australia to the National League fund and to the fund for the aid of evicted tenants. The total of these gifts amount to £13,000. Dr. Kenny's article is inteded as a refutation of the statements which have been made by the Tory newspapers, that the mission of Mr. Dillon to Australia was a failure. It has evidently proved a very fair success.

A G. A. R. Man Short in His Accounts.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 15.—At a meeting of the Admiral Foote Post, G. A. R., the auditors reported a deficiency of nearly $4,000 in the accounts of the quartermaster, Wm. H. Stowe. Mr. Stowe has been very prominent in Grand Army circles, and was for years instructor in military tactics at General Russell's preparatory school. He has been quartermaster of the post for seven years, and stood high in business and social circles.

Social Ostracism Wrecked His Life.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Amid the squalid surroundings of a Bowery lodging-house George Peterson Marris, formerly a well-known Baltimore society man, ended his life. The peculiar circumstances of his death point unmistakably to suicide, though his friends are inclined to believe it accidental. Disgrace and social ostracism had wrecked his life.

A NEW POLITICAL FACTOR.

The Noble Red Man Will Soon be an Independent Voter.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The Indians as a political factor is a feature of politics which is likely in the near future to attract public attention. By recent acts of Congress every Indian over 21 years of age who receives an allotment of land in severalty becomes a voter, clothed with every attribute that attaches to citizenship. The successful termination of the negotiations with the Sioux Indians, by which they surrender a large part of their reservation in Dakota, will, it is estimated, by next year throw into the politics of the state the uncertain quantity of 4,937 voters.

This vote, thrown solidly, as it probably will be in both State and National elections, is likely to become an important factor in that State. Negotiations now in progress with other Indian tribes will soon make many thousand more Indian voters.

At the Interior Department it is thought that upward of 26,000 Indians will be entitled to vote in the next Presidential election. How the "Red Man" will conduct himself as part and parcel of the nation, and not as its ward, will be watched with interest by all who are interested in the solution of the Indian problem.

THE EPISCOPAL COUNCIL.

The Proposed Million-Dollar Endowment Fund Before the Body.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The Rev. Wm. R. Gordon made a lengthy report to the Episcopalian Convention on missionary work in Mexico.

The first matter considered was Dr. Huntingdon's motion for a joint committee to prepare a standard prayer book before 1892 and Dr. Huntingdon said the plates were in the possession of a London firm and in such condition that it would be impossible to produce the prayer book this year. He hoped that the standard prayer-book would not be issued before 1892. The matter was postponed until the pending resolution of action by the present convention was disposed of.

The committee to whom was referred the report of the Board of Managers of Foreign and Domestic Missions regarding the proposed million-dollar endowment fund enrollment, which failed of its purpose, suggested that the money be returned to the subscribers. Laid on the table.

The Committee on Colored Evangelization presented its report and moved that $40,000 be appropriated for the purposes of the committe for the ensuing two years. The motion was adopted.

The Church Club gave a reception at Delmonico's last night to the delegates attending the Episcopal Convention. President Everett P. Wheeler, of the club, Bishop Williams of Connecticut, S. Corning Judd of Chicago, and Rev. Dr. Davenport, Ill., were among the speakers.

The New York M. E. Conference.

WATKINS, N. Y., Oct. 15.—In the Central New York Methodist Episcopal Conference Horatio Yates was appointed to Auburn to serve as chaplain of the prison. Dr. Searle was appointed financial agent of Cazenovia Seminary and C. M. Eddy general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association at Corning. Principal Clements of the Cazenovia Seminary reported that $30,000 had been secured for the endowment. Dr. O'Neal and Dr. Ives have been elected clerical delegates to the Ecumenical Conference and Prof. J. R. French and Hon. D. Decker lay delegates.

Greenwall Must Hang December 9.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 15.—John Weile, alias John Greenwall, who was twice convicted for the murder of Lyman S. Weeks, was yesterday sentenced to be hanged on the 6th of December. His counsel moved to set aside the judgment on the ground that the defendant had not received an affirmess of the conviction of May 18, 1889, from the Court of Appeals. He also claimed that the Court of Sessions did not have jurisdiction to pass sentence.

Severe Storm at Nantucket.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Oct. 15.—A severe storm is raging here. The body of a man was washed ashore on the south side of the island. The Cockaty life saving station reports seeing two vessels in collision Saturday in Nantucket Sound, one of which sank. The vessels are unknown. A quantity of bedding has been picked up at the station.

Kemmler to Prepare for Execution.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The formal order remanding Kemmler, the murderer to, prison for execution by electricity was filed yesterday.

THE EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Representative Workingmen Discuss the Movement.

WARRING ELEMENTS COMBINE.

The American Federation and Knights of Labor Bury the Hatchet.

A Mutual Exchange of Worker's Cards Between the Two Organizations Considered—The Short Hour Day to be Brought Before the General Assembly at Atlanta.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—Representatives of the Knights of Labor and the American Federation of Labor held a conference at the Girard House last evening. General Master Workman Powderly, Secretary Hayes and A. W. Wright represented the Knights, and President Samuel Gompers, William Martin, of Pittsburg, Henry Emrich and John B. Lennon, of New York, appeared for the Federation.

The conference was harmonious throughout and lasted three hours. The present condition of the eight-hour movement received a full and free discussion. The Knights' representatives stated that the Executive Board could do nothing as a board until the General Assembly, which meets at Atlanta on November 12 next, had acted in the matter. Circulars relating to the eight-hour system had been sent to all local assemblies, and it is likely that delegates to the General Assembly will be fully informed as to the views of the people they represent on the question.

On behalf of the Federation it was stated that letters had been sent to representative men seeking an opinion on the subject and the replies received were in nearly every instance favorable.

It was agreed that the Federation give the Knights' Executive Board for presentation to the General Assembly a written statement of their views and their plan of action, and President Gompers, if possible, will attend the General Assembly and address the delegates. The Knights agreed to promptly notify the Federation of any action that may be taken by the General Assembly bearing on the eight-hour question.

The present condition of the relations of the different labor organizations to each other was next discussed with a view to harmonizing various interests and to prevent disputes and disagreements in future.

The Knights offered a written proposition suggesting a mutual exchange of working cards; a mutual recognition of trade labels, and the adoption of a rule which would prevent one body from organizing the suspended or expelled members of another.

The Federation and the Knights discourage the formation of trade organizations within the order, the promise being made that the Federation would urge the members of unions to connect themselves with mixed assemblies of Knights of Labor. It was agreed that the matters above referred to should form the subject of discussion at some future conference. This is the third conference that has been held between the two organizations. Another will be held between the General Assembly on November 12 and the convention of the Federation at Boston on December 10. Before adjournment the gentlemen present had a general conversation on the condition of the labor movement at present, and exchanged views as to what would best promote the success of the common object.

DEMOCRATIC JUBILEE.

Preparations Completed for the Gathering of Pennsylvania Clubs.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—The General Assembly of Democratic State organizations met to-day in the Thalia Theatre, at Crown and Callowhill streets. Over 600 delegates are present.

Chauncey F. Black, president of the combined clubs, called the convention to order. The most important business to be looked after is the election of officers for the ensuing year.

This evening will be spent in social enjoyment at the headquarters of the various local Democratic club houses. To-morrow the Reception Committee will take the visiting delegates on a trip up the Schuylkill, stopping at Belmont Mansion for dinner. The festivities will be brought to a close to-morrow night with a grand mass meeting in the Academy of Music, where ex-President Cleveland, United States Senator Gorman, of Maryland; Congressman Mills, of Texas; Henry Watterson, of Kentucky; ex-Governor Abbett, of New Jersey; Governors Biggs, of Delaware, and Jackson of Maryland are expected to speak.

Guilty of Illegal Seining.

BARNSTABLE, Mass., Oct. 15.—In the Superior Court Judge Sherman hear the appealed cases against the crews of the Menhaden steamers A. T. Serrel, Seaconnet and George T. Church, who are charged with illegal seining in Buzzard's Bay. After listening to the evidence against the Serrell's crew, the jury was ordered to bring in a verdict of guilty. The case will be taken to the Supreme Court, and as it is a test case probably from there to the U. S. Supreme Court. As the cases of the other crews involved the same issue they were continued to the Supreme Court.

An Old Sea Captain Dead.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Oct. 15.—Capt. Jordon, who died yesterday aged 75, was for twenty years master on the Saco and Boston packet line. During the war 1812 he was one of the eighteen who went to Fort Hill to drive the English cruisers out of the Saco harbor. He was a member of the first city council of Biddeford, and was one of the oldest Masons in Maine. He followed the sea from early manhood to old age.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—The publication of the laws in the newspapers is nearly completed. The cost to the State will be in the neighborhood of $75,000.

—The severe storm last evening served to thin out the pedestrians on the street, and but few persons ventured out of doors after eight o'clock.

—The ball of the season will be that of the colored Knights Templar, in The Crescent, Thursday evening. It will be enjoyable even to see others participate in it.

—The regular business meeting of the "Y" will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the new "Y" rooms over Love's store, corner North avenue and Peace street.

—Those who may desire to assist a worthy woman in the support of herself and two children, can do so by giving her plain sewing as advertised for in another column.

—Postmaster Force has recommended the advancement of the mail carriers from third to second class grade. This will increase their salary from $650 to $800 a year.

—"The Kindergarten" will be discussed by Mrs. Hall, at the Seminary on Friday, October 18, at 3:30 P. M. All those interested in the Kindergarten work, are invited to attend.

—"If anybody should happen to ask you," tell them that the best place to find genuine bargains in this city is at Edsall's. Thus begins his ad. today, followed by a list of seasonable goods at special low prices.

—The Court of Chancery opened at the State House, Trenton, this morning, for the Fall term. There are twenty-eight cases on the calendar. Opinions will be read by the Chancellor and Vice Chancellor today.

—The Board of Directors of the Middlesex Gun Club will meet in a few days to report on the receipts and expenditures of the recent tournament. The tournament was a success, financially, and the club will realize a handsome sum from it.

—The members of the Young Men's Catholic Associations of Morristown and Elizabeth, about 200 strong, will visit this city on the 24th instant, on a target excursion. The shooting will take place at Keller's Grove, and the visitors will then dine at Caspar's Hotel.

—On Saturday last, the [illegible] ball eleven of the Princeton preparatory school, played Leal's team, of this city, on the grounds of the Crescent League. The home team had just returned from a hard fought victory at Elizabeth, and being rather tired were defeated by the visitors.

—At Rand's stationery store on West Front street, you can purchase for the very small price of 30 cents a well bound book of poems, history, novels, etc., by popular standard authors. Over 200 volumns are on sale and while the stock is large and fresh is the time to buy. Such bargains are rarely offered.

—The twelfth annual meeting of the Woman's Synodical Society of Home Missions of New Jersey will be held in the First Presbyterian church, at New Brunswick, on Wednesday, beginning at 9 A. M. It is very desirable that all officers of the Presbyterial Society be present, and also that the local societies will be well represented.

Base Ball.

The Young Americans of Dunellen, were defeated by a picked nine of this city, on the Evona grounds, Saturday morning, by a score of 12 to 10. The picked nine won the game on Holland's poor pitching.

The batting for the picked nine was done by M. Melin, E. Leonard, C. and M. Sutphen; and for the Young Americans by Holland and Richerts. The batteries were Leonard and Melin for the picked nine; Richerts and Holland for the Young Americans. Umpire—Burke.

Inspected in the Rain.

Although rain fell continuously yesterday, the Rahway fire laddies turned out with their machines to be inspected by the Mayor and City Council. There were over 300 in line. The sidewalks were crowded along the route of parade, and there were decorations on all sides. It was a gala day despite the rain, as all the shops closed at noon to give the men an opportunity to participate.

FRAZEE LEE'S WILL SUSTAINED.

The Chancellor Decides the Property Shall go to the Church.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

TRENTON, Oct. 15.—Chancellor McGill handed down his decision in the Frazee Lee will case, this morning.

It sustains the will which will be admitted to probate at once. Messrs M. B. Long, M. D., and John H. Jackson, immediately qualified as executors.

AN ACTIVE ASSOCIATION.

Prominent Speakers to Address a Meeting of the First Presbyterian Y. P. S. C. E.

At a regular meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E., of Dr. Ketcham's church, held on the 2d inst, the following officers were elected:

President—A. E. Hoagland.
Vice President—Josphine Petrie.
Secretary—Bessie E. Blair.
Treasurer—Edward Petrie.

This society of the First Presbyterian Young People, is one of the most active and progressive in the State. It will hold a meeting in the church, Thursday evening, at 7:45 o'clock, to be addressed by the Rev. F. E. Clark, of Boston, President of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor, and the Rev. J. L. Hurlbut, D. D. Those interested in Christian work are cordially invited.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. J. Harding Page Wharton, of Pittsburg, Pa., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Dingee, of East Fifth street.

Mr. Jacob Blimm left at noon today for Newburgh, N. Y., where he will be a feature of to-morrow's firemen's parade in that city.

Mr. R. J. Swackhammer, of Dunellen, Superintendent of bridges of the New Jersey Central Railroad company, has gone to Illinois for a month.

At the home of the bride in White House, to-morrow evening, will take place the wedding of Miss Minnie Bonnell, and Mr. Dilts, brother of the Rev. Asa Reed Dilts of this city.

Mr. George Vincent is in the city for a few days and will attend the wedding of Miss Jackson, Thursday evening. Bishop Vincent who it was hoped would officiate, finds it impossible because of numerous official engagements, to be present. The Rev. A. H. Tuttle, of Baltimore, a former pastor of the M. E. church here, will perform the ceremony.

A Plainfielder who attended the Rev. Mr. Germond's church, in Tarrytown, N. Y., tells of a startling incident that caused the entire congregation to laugh aloud on Sunday, a week ago. The pastor intended to open his sermon with the assertion—"Moses, was a great man." He had got no further than "Moses!" when the colored sexton of that name roused himself from a nap and answered most audibly, "Here, Sah!"

The Frazee Lee Will Contest.

The Frazee Lee disputed will case was called for trial at Elizabeth yesterday by Judge VanSyckel. The suit is brought by Ezra and Daniel Hetfield, of this city, uncles of the dead man, who was an old hermit and miser, and who bequeathed about $200,000 to the Baptist church at Scotch Plains.

Ex-Chancellor Runyon appeared for the church, and asked the Court to grant a postponement until a decision as to the legality of the will could be given by Chancellor McGill in the Prerogative Court, which will be done today, and it is said the document will be admitted to probate.

Lawyer Lindabury, the counsel for the aged contestants, who are each over ninety years old, fought hard against delay, and said the case had already been twice postponed. Judge VanSyckel, however, permitted an adjournment until Wednesday, as stated exclusively in yesterday's PRESS, when the trial will begin.

Mr Hand and Thad Doane Were There.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS—I wish to say to my young friends who want to know what the battle of Gettysburg was like, that probably to-morrow evening at Music Hall, will be the best opportunity they will ever have to learn all about it.

And I would like them to remember when they see General Sickle's 3d Corps advancing against Longstreet's rebels, about half a mile from little Round Top, near the Emmetsburg road and near the peach orchard, that that is where the 11th N. J., lost all its officers above the rank of Lieutenant, and more than 3-5ths of the men in less time than it takes to tell it. Chief Doane and myself were among the wounded. The Rebel General Barksdale, and hundreds of others, were killed at the same time by men of our regiment.

WILLIAM HAND.

Meetings of Home and of Foreign Missions.

The Twelfth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Synodical Society of Home Missions of New Jersey, will be held in the First Presbyterian church, New Brunswick, to-morrow. Mr. H. M. Booth will address the meeting, beginning at nine A. M.

The Synodical Society of Foreign Missions will hold their annual meeting in the same place, the same day, beginning at 2 P. M. Mrs. Andrews will address them.

A NEWS "SPECIAL."

The Sort of Information Furnished Its Few Foolish Readers.

Upon the ridiculous information that is daily fed them, the few benighted readers of the news who may yet exist, are probably as senseless by this time as is the paper. Here's another example of ignorance taken from yesterday's news:

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 14th. (Special.)—After brief arguments by counsel in the Frazee Lee will contest, the case was adjourned until Tuesday, Oct. 29th. The case is being tried being a struck jury.

The Grand Jury brought in twenty-nine indictments, and were discharged with the thanks of the court.

The regular panel of jurors was discharged until the 21st inst., and the court adjourned until Friday, 18th inst.

The Frazee Lee will contest was not adjourned at all, but postponed pending the receipt of a decision of Prerogative Court. The date set down was not the 29th, but the 16th as published in yesterday's PRESS. The case is not being tried before a struck jury, as it is not being tried at all yet.

The Grand Jury was not discharged. It had not completed its labors and retired again.

The regular panel was not discharged until the 21st inst., but until the 31st. The Court did not adjourn until Friday the 18th inst. It meets again to-morrow.

FOOTBALL FIENDS.

The Plainfield Boys Defeat the Pingry Club in Elizabeth.

(From the Elizabeth Herald.)

The base-ball season is about over and the base-ball has been laid on the shelf for a well earned rest, but foot-ball comes bounding in the field to take the place of its older brother with all its old time vim and muscle. The Pingry club played a very close and exciting game with the Leals of Plainfield on the Maple avenue grounds, Saturday morning.

The Plainfield boys were older and larger than their opponents, thus giving them an advantage that counts on the long run. The Leals were the first to score, they secured in making a touchdown but failed to kick a goal thereby receiving four points. The Pingrys also secured a touch-down. The Leals then took the lead again by making another touch-down. The Pingrys also scored again, and so it was all through the game "nip and tuck" until the finish, when the score stood in favor of the Leals they having 16 points to the Pingrys 12.

The Central's New Signal Tower.

The Central Railroad Company have just placed in their signal tower at the new Communipaw depot one of the most perfect and ingenous system of interlocking signals known to the railroad community throughout the world. It is the first of its kind ever used, and the results of the many trials made have far surpassed their most sanguine expectation.

The principle of the machine is known as the Saxby & Farmer system applied to interlocking signals. The machine itself is a marvel of simplicity, and the wonder is how great is the saving of labor and accuracy of its operations. There are 72 levers operating 40 switches, 45 locks, 40 signals and 36 indicators. In its construction 22,000 feet of pipe have been used and 36,000 feet of iron wire. Capable of 140 possible movements, its great superiority over those now in use is at once manifest. The action is termed "new special bevel locking."

To Extend the Service.

Inspector Rogers of the Free Delivery system, was in the city a few days ago, looking over the district already laid out for free delivery here. It was decided to extend the service up to and including Sherman and Clinton avenues, in the Southwestern portion of the city. This will necessitate another carrier, and an extra one has been granted. The carrier who is to cover the district above referred to, will make his rounds in a carriage or on horseback.

Wants of the Relief Association.

At the beginning of its new year the Relief Association wished to remind its friends and sympathizers that donations of money or of second-hand clothing are always acceptable, and that the need for help is now as urgent as ever. Money contributions should be paid to the Treasurer, Mrs. Wm. W. Myers, while clothing may be sent to the society rooms —No. 45 West Second street.

E. R. LEONARD, Secretary.

Register Today.

Voters should bear in mind that today is the first of the registration days, and unless their names are on the poll list, they will be debarred from voting at the coming election. The several boards will again sit on October 31, to revise the original list and to add names thereto.

A YEAR'S WORK.

Miss Tweedy's Annual Report of the Relief Association and Its Branches.

To the officers, members and patrons of the Relief Association:

In reviewing the work of the Association for the past year, we feel that we have abundant cause for encouragement, not only for continued success in the branches of work already established, but for the extension of our lines in new directions.

We acknowledge our indebtedness to a generous public, and to our many efficient and faithful workers, for the results here recorded, and we hope that in the coming year many who have not been identified with the Association will cooperate with us. To develop the opportunities which are within our grasp we need the sympathy nd help of the entire community. It is impossible to give a detailed account of the applican s or of the various methods of relief, but the following reports will serve to give an idea of the different departments of the work.

/ t the beginning of the year, October 1, 1888, there were on our record the names of 16 families who were being assisted. Since that time the names of 55 families have been added, making a total of 71.

These may be subdivided as follows: (1), Needing continuous relief, including some partially supported by the city, 19. (2), Needing temporary relief, owing to sickncss or lack of work, 38. (3), Needing permanent work rather than relief, 14. Dismissed as ineligible applicants, 16.

The Employment Bureau reports the number of families who have received beneficiary aid, 71; number of persons represented, 223; nationalities represented, American (21), Irish (19), Colored (11), German (9), English (4), French (4), Scotch (1), Swede (1), Swiss (1); number of women who have received sewing, 38; number of garments made, 1,311; amount of sales from ordered work, $31.76; amount of sales from beneficiary work, $215.95; amount of sales to the city for Johnstown sufferers, $75 (making a total of $322.71); number of parcels of clothing given gratuitously, 126.

In comparing the reports of the Employment Bureav since the organization of the Associat on, we are forcibly struck by the falling off in the sale of garments. This is a significant fact, and may be accounted for, in great measure, by the decrease among the working people of a demand for substantial, plain garments. The poorly made and much be-trimmed clothing displayed in the shop windows is more attractive to their eyes, and as few bring their reason to bear on such a question, they are not influenced by the fact, that the plainer garment, though perhaps higher priced, is more economical in the end. Can we not all use our influence here to bring about a better state of affairs? Our receipts from ordered work have also decreased.

Perhaps it may be as well to repeat this year, as a reminder to some, and as an announcement to others, that no more substantial aid can be given to the Association than orders for plain sewing. We have not among our applicants many experienced seamstresses, but there are a number who can satisfactorily fulfill orders for plain sewing, and if all who approve of this method of making our beneficiaries self-supporting would occasionally patronize this department, its practical usefulness might be greatly increased. It is comparatively easy to give applicants the alms that tend to degrade them, but it requires an effort, and oftentimes a sacrifice, to devise methods to maintain their self-respect. But if we claim as an Association to be guided by principle rather than by impulse, should we not be willing to make the necessary effort and sacrifice to maintain the principle?

The Warren Mission Sewing School records another year of faithful work. There has been an enrollment of 200 scholars, and an average attendance of 151. There have been 28 classes, each one supplied, as far as possible, with a regular teacher; 336 garments and 321 handkerchiefs have been redeemed by the scholars' marks. A large corps of teachers would greatly add to the efficiency of the school, and would lessen the responsibility of those who have it in charge.

During the past sixteen years this school has been of incalculable benefit to Plainfield, but we feel that the time has now come when we may reasonably expect the public school to assume this work. We were pleased to note last year the introduction of industrial training into our schools, which gave hopeful promise of its extension this winter.

Our Plainfield school has so long had the well merited reputation of being second to none in the state in its advanced methods of instruction and high standard of work, that its well wishers desire to see it abreast of the age in industrial training. As an adjunct to the public school curriculum, it supplies a long felt want in the education of our boys and girls.

We have only to turn to one of our neighboring towns, East Orange, to see it in successful operation, and other towns in the state have introduced this training into their schools. It teaches above all things the dignity of labor, and it directly appeals to us, as an Association, for encouragement, from the close relation which it bears to our work. This industrial system gives the child a more complete education, by training the eye and hand, as well as the brain, thus bringing to light and developing natural aptitudes.

The result of such a system of instruction tends to produce more skilled workers, thus adding to the number of self-supporting men and women in the community. Who that has looked under the surface of the problem of poverty, does not know that many lives are wrecked by an inadequate preparation for the duties of life. What a change in the condition of the working man, if in starting in life he could depend on a lucrative handicraft, rather than on the precarious odd job, which to so many is the extent of their aspiration. And what a transformation would be wrought in the home life of our working class, if every woman had a knowledge of sewing and domestic economy. Can we individually, and as an Association, do better work for the rising generation than by hastening the day when these possibilities may be realized?

The report of the Women's Class is, as usual, very satisfactory. Twenty names have been enrolled, and the weekly sewing meeting, ending in a light supper, has been a genuine pleasure to these women, who have so little to brighten their lives of toil. They have made 59 garments and 150 button-holes in garments for the Sewing School, besides sewing 20 pounds of carpet rags, which were woven into a carpet for the Relief rooms.

The Evening School for Boys, reported last Autumn, attained during the Winter such proportions as to exceed our most sanguine expectations. While we do not take to ourselves any credit for this success, we cannot but feel gratified that the little class which assembled in the Relief rooms during the Winter of 1887 and '88, was the nucleus of what has proved to be such an educational benefit to the men and boys of Plainfield. Last Autumn, feeling that we could no longer supply the demand for evening instruction, we laid the matter before the Board of Education. It expressed great willingness to do all in its power to further this work, but it decided that it would not be justified in maintaining an evening school unless an average attendance of forty should be secured. In response to a call to organize, there were fifty-one present. The school was accordingly opened and continued for four months. The general average for the forty-six evenings was 81, more than twice as many as were required by the Board to maintain the school.

Shortly after the organization of this school, appeals came from many women that they might receive similar instruction. This request was also placed before the Board, but it decided that it could not at that time assume the entire responsibility and support of another school. It agreed, however, to open rooms, furnish fuel, light and books, provided there should be an average attendance of 25. It was not difficult to obtain the required number, and accordingly on January 11, the Women's School was opened. It held twenty-two sessions and the entire average of attendance was 49. The school was under the superintendence of one of the managers of the Association, assisted by several volunteer teachers. Although the time was short and the sessions were only held twice a week, many of the women made decided progress, and all displayed great earnestness. Some of the older women came after a hard day's work, so eager were they to gain some slight knowledge of reading and writing. Surely, with such proofs as we have had of the earnest desire of these women to acquire merely the rudiments of an education, ought we not to give them every opportunity to accomplish this end? And how can this more effectually be done than by the Board of Education extending the same privileges to them that they have to the men

This year records the organization of a Provident Savings Committee, which we trust may be a valuable addition to our work. Feeling that improvidence is one of the factors in the wretched condition of many of our poor, the object of this Committee is to urge upon those who have no bank account, the importance of saving. The Committee appoints collectors, who go from house to house each week to collect the savings, giving receipts. The money is carried to the Treasurer, who deposits t in h bank, the savers receiving int rest on their deposits when they have amounted to $1. The collectors have invariably been well received, and those to whom the Association has proved a friend in time of need, have gladly availed themselves of this opportunity to save for a rainy day. The collectors have been most faithful in their work, and have appreciated the opportunity these weekly visits give them to help their savers in their home life, by making kind suggestions or offering a word of encouragement and sympathy. There are 129 accounts at the present date, and the number is increasing each month. The entire amount collected since the beginning of the work in June is $305.40 and the amount withdrawn, $31.45. On Oct 1, fifteen individual bank books were opened for those whose deposits amounted to $5 and upwards We aim especially to enroll among the savers the boys and girls who are just beginning to earn wages, hoping that the provident habits thus inculcated may be one of the means of ennobling their future lives It has been suggested by some that we are doing too much in making the effort to go from house to house to collect the money The savers should suffic ently appreciate the advantage of saving to bring their money to us. Perhaps, as a permanent system, it might be unadvisable, and we hope the time may speedily come when they will save without our help, but at present it is too new an idea with many to bear fruit without encouragement and assistance. Possibly the human nature of the future may be of such an elevated type as not to need props and helps, but in this present unregenerate day, we are none of us so sufficient unto ours lves as to feel justified in declining to lend a helping hand to those whose evil tendencies and degrading surroundings entitle them to our pity and consideration

The response to our appeal for a Thanksgiving dinner for our beneficiaries was, as usual, most generous, and sixty families on that day were provided with good cheer. Last Spring, as in former years, over $20 was contributed by friends of the Association for prizes for the Warren Mission Sewing School. The physicians have greatly assisted us by their gratuitous treatment of our beneficiaries; the editors have shown us constant favors in publishing our notices and reports; the merchants have discounted our bills, the express companies have served us free of charge, and others have assisted us generously in many ways. We thank them all most sincerely, for their valuable services to the Association.

In closing, let us take for our comfort and inspiration in the coming year, Lowell's noble rule for political evils: "Have faith in God; have faith in man; have faith in work."

Respectfully submitted,
FLORENCE TWEEDY, Sec'y.

Catarrh is in the blood. No cure for this loathsome and dangerous disease is possible until the poison is thoroughly eradicated from the system. For this purpose, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best and most economical medicine. Price $1. Six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

CHIEF CONSPIRATOR

The Employer of the Jury Fixers Released on Bail.

AN OLD HAND AT THE WORK.

A Belief that the Eight Jurors Accepted Have Not Been Tampered With.

The State's Attorney Confident that the Same Man is Back of This Plot Who Conceived the Murder of Dr. Cronin—Graham Required to Furnish $10,000 Bail. No More Indictments at Present.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—John Graham, the seventh man indicted in connection with the conspiracy to bribe jurors in the Cronin case, gave bonds to-day in the sum of $10,000, double the amount required of his fellow-conspirators. A brother of the noted lawyer, A. S. Trude, and Alderman Whelan became sureties for the prisoner.

Joseph Keenan, the fruit dealer, who was arrested late Saturday night, was also released on $5,000 bail, which was furnished by his relatives.

State's Attorney Longenecker said that Graham was the man who employed the other six to see the men who were to be summoned on the jury. The evidence against Graham, he said, was as strong as could be expected in such a case. Graham began his work over two months ago, but the State's Attorney is satisfied that the eight jurors already chosen have not been tampered with. Frederick W. Smith will be the principal witness against Graham. Mr. Longenecker stated emphatically that up to this time there had not been any evidence of any kind that would implicate A. S. Trude, or Thomas Sennott, clerk of the Probate Court, whose names have been connected by rumor with the plot. He asserted that he had no new evidence at present which would result in further indictments for jury bribing, but did not hesitate to say that he believed the same man to be at the back of this plot who was the fountain head of the conspiracy to murder Dr. Cronin.

"The arrest of the jury-fixers," said State's Attorney Longenecker, "will have no direct effect on the main case, whatever. Things will be pushed right along. It is probable that the trial of the bribers will not occur until after the murder trial is concluded, that is unless more time is consumed in the latter than we believe will be. We are, of course, perfectly satisfied with the nine jurors already selected."

THE MARITIME CONFERENCE.

Twenty-Three Nations Represented in Washington To-Day.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The International Maritime Conference opens here tomorrow. The gathering embraces about 50 members, representing 23 the more important maritime nations, that furnish perhaps 99 per cent. of the tonnage of the world. In fact no maritime country of any importance is without representation, except Portugal.

The Conference expires by limitation on the 31st of next January, and even then it is doubtful if the members will have finished the work laid out for them. The meeting is an event second in interest only to the Three Americas Congress.

Herr Sievoking, a noted authority on Maritime law, is the leading German delegate to the conference. He comes instructed to ask the Congress to extend its programme beyond technical questions and consider general international maritime laws, with a view to the acceptance of principles regulating the settlement of disputes like the Behring Sea fishing troubles. If the Congress adheres to the present limits of the programme, Herr Sievoking will propose a subsequent special conference on excluded questions.

Alexander Duncan Dies in London.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 15.—A cablegram announces the death in London of Alexander Duncan, formerly of this city. He owned real estate here assessed at about $2,000,000. He was born in Scotland in 1805, came to America in youth, was graduated from Yale, practiced law in New York, settled here in 1838, became president of the Providence and Worcester railroad, was a member of the Peace Convention held just before the war, removed to England in 1863, and has spent most of his time there since. He gave largely to public institutions in this city. He leaves a son in this country, another in England, and a daughter the widow of Sir Robert Hay, Bart.

An Attempt to Poison a Family.

LISBON, N. H., Oct. 15.—Chauncey L. Williams, of Lisbon, has been arrested on suspicion of attempting to poison Frank Foster and family. It was found that about two pounds of paris green had been tied in a bag and hung in a water tank used by the family. Williams being suspected, search was made and strong circumstantial evidence secured. Williams was arraigned before Justice Foster, waived examination, and was bound over to the November term of court. Not securing bail he was taken to the Haverhill jail.

Schooners Disabled at Vineyard Haven.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Oct. 15.—A violent gale has prevailed here for the last twenty-four hours. The schooner Nellie, of Eastport, Me., St. John for New York, loaded with lumber, parted both chains in the harbor and ran ashore near the steamboat wharf at the head of the harbor, where she now lies bilged. The schooner Benj. English, of Elizabethport, N. J., is also ashore at the head of the harbor.

Gas War in Erie, Pa.

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 15.—The gas war has assumed a phase which the people believe will bring the Pennsylvania Gas Company to terms. Last night the city council repealed the ordinance giving the company the use of the streets.

New York Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The following are the latest appointments of fourth-class postmasters in New York State: Selah D. Fish at Barrington and John O. Hall at Gaines.

Not Guilty of Murder.

RUTLAND, Vt., Oct. 15.—After a four days' trial, Calvin M. Inman has been found not guilty of the murder of Patrick Lennan at Poultney on October 1, 1888.

GOV. HILL IN ATLANTA.

He Will be Given a Grand Reception on His Arrival To-Night.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 15.—Elaborate preparations have been made here for Governor Hill's reception to-night. He will speak at the Piedmont Exposition to-morrow, and a grand military review and sham battle have been arranged for the day.

A feature of the sham battle will be the review of it from an adjacent hill by General John B. Gordon, now Governor of Georgia, with his old staff, the veterans who served with him in the late war; General James Longstreet, with his old staff, and General Joseph P. Johnson, with his old staff. It is proposed for them to appear in the old gray uniforms which they wore in the last campaign.

A regiment of Confederate veterans in their old gray uniform will charge in the battle.

SUDDEN TRIP ABROAD.

Prominent Irish Nationalists Leave for London on Short Notice.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 15.—Dr. O'Reilly, Treasurer of the National League of America, and Col. John Atkinson, a prominent attorney and Irish Nationalist of this city, left here yesterday for London, England. Rumor has it that their departure has something to do with recent disclosures in the Cronin trial at Chicago.

Dr. O'Reilly received a cablegram from London and a telegram from Chicago, and subsequently held a long conference with Col. Atkinson, at the latter's residence, which lasted long past widnight. Their intention to go abroad was not known by any of Father O'Reilly's parishioners or Col. Atkinson's many clients

TROUBLE IN MONTANA.

Both Parties Claiming the State and Charges of Fraud Made.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 15.—Col. Seligman, Chairman of the Republican Central Committee, announces that the Republicans will have the Legislature either by one or three majority.

The Democrats do not like the outlook, and Marcas Daly has been summoned here from Anaconda to consult with Col. Broadwater, ex-Gov. Hauser and other leading Democrats.

The "Independent," Democratic organ, charges Republicans with an attempt to steal the Legislature and two United States Senators.

Forestry Congress.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15.—Gentlemen from all parts of the country interested in tree-planting from the standpoint of universal benefit will gather here to-night to attend the opening session of the combined meeting of the American Forestry Association and the Pennsylvania Forestry Association. The joint bodies will meet in Horticultural Hall to-night, Wednesday and Thursday. The occasion marks the eighth annual gathering of the congress, and the forth annual meeting of the Pennsylvania organization.

Great Combination of Star Actors.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska opened their New York season last night at the Broadway Theater, and the occasion proved an attractive one, the audience being unusually large and demonstrative. Another interesting theatrical event was the appearance of Joseph Jefferson and W. J. Florence in "The Rivals," at the Star Theater. The popular comedians were warmly received.

A New Branch Route.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Oct. 15.—The Pennsylvania Railroad engineers are still at work surveying a route between this city and Montgomery along the line of the West Branch Canal. It is intimated that this portion of the canal will be abandoned, it having been left in a dilapidated condition by the great flood of June 1.

The Pan-American Delegates.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 15.—At the Iroquois Hotel last evening the Pan-American delegates were tendered a banquet at which the prominent and representative men of the city were present. Mayor Becker presided and Mr. Morey made the welcoming address. At 8 o'clock this morning the delegates proceeded to Erie, Pa.

Renounces His Allegiance to Italy.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Francis Fova, the son of the present Italian Minister to this country, was qualified as a citizen of the United States at the State Department yesterday. Mr. Fova is an Italian nobleman, the son of a Baron, and has been a civil engineer in this city for several years.

Exterminating the White House Pests.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—The work of clearing the White House of rats has been commenced by W. H. Hosmer, the contractor who has undertaken the job under the direction of Major Ernst, the Superintendent of Public Buildings and Grounds.

Washed Overboard and Drowned.

BOSTON, Oct. 15.—Capt. Whalen, of the fishing schooner William Emerson, of Boston, and Patrick Jennings, one of the crew, were washed overboard and drowned in the bay last evening by a sudden squall. Both leave families in this city.

An Old Hotel Keeper Dead.

PERRY, N. Y., Oct. 15.—Artemus W. Walker, the oldest hotel keeper in this section, proprietor of the Walker Hotel here and the Walker House at Silver Lake, died last night of brain fever. He was 76 years old.

A Strike Quickly Settled.

WOBURN, Mass., Oct. 15.—The strike inaugurated yesterday at the leather factory of Stephen Dow & Co. has been amicably settled, the firm acceding to the demands of the men. Work was resumed this morning.

An Offer to Creditors.

READING, Pa., Oct. 15.—The Reading Iron Works, which failed six months ago, has offered its creditors 4 per cent. mortgage bonds, guaranteed by the Reading Railroad Company for 50 per cent. of their claims.

Clemency Refused the Hungarian.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 15.—The Board of Pardons have refused clemency to Peter Baronowski, the Schuylkill county Hungarian under sentence to be hanged October 22.

FLIRTATIONS AT SEA.

There is a Quality in Ocean Air that is Conducive to Flirtation.

The Per Contra of Short Passages—The Beauties of Seasickness—Woman's Helplessness a Charm—A Comedy in One Act—Moonlight Nights.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

The great labor-saving movements of the world have generally been marked by vehement protest on the part of laborers. Spinners and weavers smashed Arkwright's machines and nearly smashed him; the Nottingham lace-weavers were regarded by the pillow-workers whom they superceded as a good deal worse than anarchists; and it has taken all the "power" of steam to make its way against brute strength whether in man or beast.

Are you glancing back at the heading of this paper? Be patient; we shall "get there" in a moment; and I will bridge the chasm with a proverb or two, such as, "No great gain without some small loss;" "One man's meat is another man's bane;" "The greatest good of the greatest number," etc., etc.

Are we across the bridge? Well, then, let me say that the determined efforts of the great steam-ship companies to shorten the passage across the Atlantic is by no means a source of satisfaction to a large class of summer passengers; and this is the flirting class, wherein I count many friends, although myself too busy or too indolent to belong to it. On land there is so much to do, and at sea it is not worth while to do anything, even so little as flirting, my own usual occupation on board ship being what an envious stewardess once described as "laying back on your steamer-chair and being blowed around the world."

But I have been on deck of a moon light night, and I have put on my go-ashore clothes and sauntered round among the groups performing tender adieux in the lee of the smoke-stack, or the extreme tip of the bowsprit, or some other of the extraordinary solitudes a deux to which tender couples are compelled on board ship. I have eyes, and I have ears, and I have appreciation, and, moreover, I have many friends of both sexes who have made wholesome confession in moments of returning sanity as to freaks of midsummer madness besetting them at sea.

Judging from the data thus gained, I conclude that there is something in the quality of sea air strongly conducive to flirtation, and that about a fortnight is the proper time to fully experience its effects. I have talked with several East Indian voyagers, both men and women, and these generally agree that the ninety days, more or less, of the old Indian service, was quite too much of a good thing; it became either stale or dangerous, sometimes both. A flirtation is by its own limitations a brief matter, and like a pyrotechnic display, should be as brilliant as brief. A chronic St. Katherine's Wheel would be an intolerable nuisance, and a flirtation of two or three months is a monstrosity when the parties are compelled to associate every day and all day long. Either they will find out all each other's foibles, sharp corners and stupidities, and grow heartily tired of each other, or the affair will become serious, involving marriage, money and broken hearts, the whole category of interests too deep for summer pastime.

FLIRTATIONS AT SEA.

"No, my friend," said one of these gentlemen to me some years since, himself an expert in the business under discusssion, "an Indian or Australian voyage is altogether too long for a flirtation, although one invariably drifts into one. Commend me to a nice, slow trans-Atlantic steamer, well appointed as to table, big enough to be steady, and content with ten or eleven days' record. A fortnight is better, but Americans won't stand so long a voyage. There is the situation for a flirtation!"

"Granted the young lady," suggested I.

"Madame, any woman is adorable when she will remain in the field of vision long enough to be appreciated," was the reply. "And it is only at sea that she is sure to do so."

Well, a few days since I met my friend again, just off the "fastest record" yet made, something short of six days, I believe, and a more disgusted creature I never saw. I believe he really felt himself defrauded of his rights, and yet confessed the absurdity of complaint when every one else was shouting paeans of praise.

"Then you had no flirtations?" inquired I, surmising the true inwardness of the matter.

"Flirtations!" shouted my friend. "One might as well expect to get up a flirtation in falling from the top of Trinity steeple to the pavement. We shot out of Liverpool as if we were discharged from a mortar, and in half an hour everybody of any delicacy of feeling was prostrate, and the rest of us had all we could do to hang on to the rigging. I didn't have my feet square under my head one minute unless while I was in my berth. As for the ladies, it was just five berth-days in succession, poor dears!"

The joke wasn't original, but I didn't tell my friend so; it was evidently a case of the "ministering angel" necessity, and I ministered a good big dose of flattery which he swallowed whole and felt better.

No, the short voyages cut in dreadfully to that episode of summer travel, which so many ingenuous young friends of mine have ranked above all other of their experiences. "The Coliseum and St. Mark's and Paris and Florence are all very nice, of course," remarked one of these dear girls in a moment of artless confidence. "But, then, pictures and books and other people give you a very good idea of these, if you greatly care for that sort of thing; but, dear me, nobody can give anybody else an idea of how charming a nice flirtation is; now, can they?"

"Try. Tell me as well as you can just what it is, and let me see if it's anything worth going on deck for."

So the darling tried, but I think some other accounts I have received were even more lucid, so I will generalize a bit and give the "rationale" of this doomed delight of the slow passages already passing into antiquity.

The two persons destined to figure in this comedy of one act may of course be already acquainted when they embark, but this is hardly desirable, as it forestalls some of the first scenes. It is better that, as the lady bids a more or less tearful farewell to the friends who have come to see her off, she should notice a cavalier who, without starting, is attentively regarding her, and if he has a friend with him, is evidently confiding a most flattering opinion concerning her to said friend. This is the opening scene. The next is the pointing out the beauties of New York Harbor to mamma, or some member of the young lady's party; perhaps the steward is bribed to give convenient seats at table; perhaps the purser or captain gives an introduction; at any rate, before the shades of night and the fiend of seasickness end this scene, a sort of acquaintanceship should be established. A day, perhaps two, now elapse, and the next setting is a tilting deck, settees, couches, steamer-chairs and cozy rug-lined nests in various sheltered nooks. The heroine, pale, tottering, fragile but cheerful, appears on deck and makes toward a chair; the hero starts forward, with uplifted cap, and an "Allow me!" to which the lady responds with a glance, a smile, a murmur of thanks

"ALLOW ME."

She is arranged in the chair, and a very pretty bit of business with rugs, sunshade, wraps, etc., ensues, ending in the hero fetching a stool and seating himself beside the chair. Lunch is announced, and the invalid in charming horror refuses to move, and disdains all thoughts of nourishment. Perhaps papa comes along, or half-grown brother, and receiving a decidedly negative reply to all overtures of "sending you something," casts scrutinizing glances at the hero, who receives them with modest self-respect, and goes on to his own repast.

The hero now asserts himself, secures a waiter, fees him handsomely, suggests an esthetic and attractive little lunch, has it brought, and by judicious coaxing and the force of good example persuades the heroine to accept the morsel he proffers, and which she presently gratefully declares has "really done her good."

If the good soon becomes evil, and he notices a greenish pallor overspreading the pretty face he so attentively contemplates, the hero rapidly effaces himself and sends a stewardess, well aware that nothing he can do or say will be as acceptable just then as his absence.

By the next day this stage of convalescense has passed into that where "a little exercise" is to be recommended, and the hero and heroine, arm in arm, blithely promenade the deck, she laughing gayly as the heave of the sea sends her staggering down against him, and he, with a grand air of protection exclaiming:

"Cling close to me! You won't fall; I'll take good care of that."

Then comes a little rest in the steamer-chair, and a game of cards, or chess, or halma, or something else; the name of the game doesn't matter, for the real game is always the same. And then moonlight promenades, and the necessity of being on deck dark nights to see the phosphorescence, and bribing a sailor to draw up a bucket of the fiery water, and the dabbling of white hands and wrists in the glowing fluid, and the going forward to look ahead into the pathless gloom and to listen to the hiss and roar of the waters parted by that hastening prow, and a little more than half-way over, the conversation beginning:

He—"And then we shall part at Queenstown. And are we never to meet again?"

She—"Oh—I don't know—I suppose you will be in London about the first of the month, sha'n't you?"

Of course he says "Yes," and of course they don't meet, and after a few days forget pretty nearly all about it; and it is better that it should be so, much better no doubt, but still—it is a pretty thing while it lasts, and so is a soap-bubble, so is the phosphorescent fire of mid-Atlantic seas; but, alas! the bubble bursts, the phosphorescence dims, the short passages will soon be the rule and leave no time for even the brief dreams of a trans-Atlantic Flirtation.

MRS. FRANK LESLIE.

The Flapping of a Fly's Wing.

The slow flapping of a butterfly's wing produces no sound, but when the movements are rapid a noise is produced which increases in shrillness with the number of vibrations. Thus the house fly, which produces the sound F, vibrates its wings 21,120 times a minute, or 335 times in a second; and the bee, which makes a sound of A, as many as 26,400 times, or 440 times in a second. On the contrary, a tired bee hums in E, and therefore, according to theory, vibrates its wings only 330 times in a second. Marey, the naturalist, after many attempts has succeeded, by a delicate mechanism, in confirming these numbers graphically. He fixed a fly so that the tip of the wing just touched a cylinder, which was moved by clockwork. Each stroke of the wing caused a mark, of course very slight, but still quite perceptible, and thus showed that there were actually 330 strokes in a second, agreeing almost exactly with the number of vibrations inferred from the note produced.

Not in His Case.

Moneybags — Advertising, my dear boy, always pays.

Youngblood—It hasn't paid me.

"What do you mean?"

"Nothing, except that father advertised me in the papers awhile ago, and I haven't been able to get tick anywhere since."

"With Constabulary Duties to Be Done."

The London police are now ordered to wear India rubber or noiseless boots at night always.

Low Water in the Erie Canal.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 15.—The canal was shut off on the Eighteen Mile Creek this morning closing down all the vast industries dependent on the water power. This is caused by the low water at Buffalo. Many boats are aground at Tonawanda. The level is eight inches to a foot lower at Tonawanda now.

Ralph Waldo Emerson's Remains Safe.

CONCORD, Mass., Oct. 14.—Mr. Farrar, the undertaker, is authority for the statement that the Emerson casket was not opened. The vandals uncovered it but were evidently frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose.

Escaped from Auburn Prison.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 15.—A reward of $50 is offered for the capture of Charles H. Cline, who escaped from his keeper last evening while he and a gang of five other convicts were taking machinery from an old building on Hill street, which was to have been used by the State. He was serving a term of five years for robbery commited in Erie county in 1887.

Convention of Railroad Brakemen.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 15.—About 70 delegates handed in their credentials to the second annual convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Brakemen, which opened here to-day.

Twombly Admitted to Bail.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Seth Twombly, the engineer who is mainly responsible for the Washington Heights accident on the Rock Island Railroad, was admitted to bail by Judge Baker last evening in the sum of $25,000, covering all the cases on which he is held.

Engineers and Stokers Strike.

ANTWERP, Oct. 15.—All the engineers and stokers on the transatlantic steamers lying at this port struck to-day for an increase of wages, and a number of vessels ready to sail are delayed in consequence.

Richard and George Hankins, two brothers, were shot and dangerously wounded at Ithaca, N. Y., yesterday while setting a decoy for ducks. A gunner in the marsh not noticing the men fired two charges of shot at the decoy, supposing it to be a wild duck. Each of the Hankins received more than twenty shots in the body and both had one eye destroyed. The two men are in a critical condition.

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PURIFIER. Superior to quinine.

Mr. Lode Hoornbeck, of the U. S. Ship Kearsarge, writes that he meets people almost daily who have used or are using Kaskine, and who affirm from experience that it is superior to quinine in tonic and curative properties, and produces no subsequent bad effects.

Mr. John C. Scarborough, Selma, N. C., writes: "I got malaria in the Southern army, and for a dozen years suffered from its debilitating effects. I was terribly run down when I heard of Kaskine, the new quinine. It helped me at once. I gained 35 pounds."

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists or sent by mail on receipt of price.

BARGAIN HOUSE.

Come in at any time and you will always find buyers; and there is many a good reason for it. We carry the largest stock—keep almost everything that one wants. We buy direct for cash and sell for the same, and sell our goods on a closer margin, and more of them, than all others. Sometimes we sell auction goods and remnants, but why not? Little difference does it make to you if some concern fails and we buy their stock at 50c on the dollar and sell it at the same rate—'tis only your gain. We'll buy anything and sell anything if we can sell it less than its real value. We are here for business, and we think we are getting it. 'Tis time to think of Winter goods, and we have them. There is everything that is new and desirable in dress goods, and the prices are right. Underwear for Ladies, Gentlemen and Children, in all qualities and sizes. We sell for 25c an extra heavy red flannel—value 35c., same in blue. There are 1,000 yards, remnants of French Flannel—price 10c, value 15c.

If you want blankets and comfortables, come and see us. We can sell you a good 11/4 wool blanket for $2 50, and a good comfortable, that is filled with white cotton, for $1 25.

Housekeepers will find our furnishing goods department an interesting place. We keep everything needed in Crockery, Tinware, Granite Ironware, Hall and Parlor Lamps, Rugs, Matting, Curtains, &c. Come and see us.

We deliver goods everywhere free of charge.

THEIR DEATH RIDE

Frightful Accident on an Incline Railroad.

FIVE PASSENGERS WERE KILLED

The Car Struck the Bumpers, Breaking the Cable.

It Falls With Awful Velocity on the Mount Auburn Slide in Cincinnati—The Passengers in the Car Terribly Mangled—One of the Victims a Common Pleas Judge—Ugly Rumors About the Machinery.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 16.—One of the most awful accidents that Cincinnati has known occurred Tuesday. A car containing eight persons had just reached the top of the Mount Auburn incline when the steel clamps that were to hold it in place gave way. The car shot down 700 feet to the bottom, descending a grade that has an angle of twenty-five degrees.

At the bottom the track ends in a sort of basin walled in with heavy masonry. The car, as it dashed into the basin, was ground into bits. The roof was thrust forward with such force that it came off as if it had been cut with a great knife and flew on across the street as if shot from a catapult.

Along the track was a frightful sight. Nine bleeding and in some cases almost dismembered bodies lay among the debris.

A vast crowd was quickly on the spot, and the work of rescue began. The scene as the bodies were taken out was heartrending. Much time was consumed in identifying the dead, owing to their mangled condition.

Joseph McFadden, an old man, was first taken out. He was crushed into a shapeless mass.

M. Kreiss, a teacher in a Mt. Auburn school, had his chest smashed in, but his face was not even scratched. He was dead.

Judge William Dickson, one of the leading jurists of Ohio, was found in a pile of splinters and mud. His eyes had almost been forced out of their sockets. His skull was crushed and the internal injuries he received were sufficient to kill him.

Mrs. Caleb Ives, an aged lady of great wealth, was killed by her neck being broken.

Mrs. Shaffer was also killed by internal injuries. She was about to become a mother.

William McFadden, son of Joseph McFadden who was killed, had his foot crushed and received internal injuries of which he is dying.

Mrs. Augusta W. Hostetter, wife of a prominent merchant, is seriously injured.

Miss Lillie Oskamp, one of the handsomest girls in the city, daughter of Henry Oskamp, the furniture dealer, was in the car on her way home from college. She was horribly mangled. Her scalp was torn from her forehead; one of her eyes was gouged out, her nose was split open and her mouth crushed. She is lying at the hospital in a dying condition.

The Coroner took possession of the incline and sent the United States Inspector of Steam Vessels and Henry Korb, engineer at the courthouse, to make an investigation to learn the cause of the accident.

It is reported that the engine at the incline has been out of order for several days and the pilot on the car, Charles Goebel, told the engineer to lookout for the "cut off" yesterday, and was told that it had been repaired. Goebel says that was the cause of the accident.

Howard Wordendieth, the engineer, is a new man said to have been employed because he worked for less wages than the old engineer, who was in charge of of the incline for years.

DEADLY SANDBAGS.

A Connecticut Hotel-keeper and an Inspector Murdered and Robbed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Thomas Carey, proprietor of a hotel at Portland, Conn., died yesterday in the Roosevelt Hospital from injuries inflicted on Tuesday night last with a sand bag at the corner of Thirty-third street and Seventh avenue. Only two blocks from where Carey was found leaning against a lamp post Custom House Inspector Edward H. Woodridge was found on the previous Sunday with a fractured skull.

Both gentlemen were arrested by the police on a charge of being drunk. Woodbridge the next morning was fined $10 which he paid and immediately had a physician to examine his wound. The doctor sent him to Roosevelt Hospital where he died last Sunday from the effects of being sand bagged.

The sergeant at the Station House thought Carey was drugged and sent him to the Roosevelt Hospital.

Made Crazy By Fear of Electricity.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 16.—Catharine Gough, of No. 105 Ferguson street, attempted to stab her husband yesterday afternoon. She became suddenly insane while reading about the death of Lineman Feeks in New York. She imagined that her husband wanted to kill her by electricity. She had refused to leave the house since Saturday, fearing injury from electric wires. She was taken to Police Headquarters for examination.

Tried to Roast Her Father and Brother.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Pearl Scott, a girl 15 years old, is in jail here for burning her father's barn. She has confessed her crime and says she set fire to the barn hoping it would burn her father's house and roast him and her brother, both of whom she says have treated her cruelly. The girl is of a criminal family. She has a sister in the Hudson Refuge and her father has been arrested frequently.

A LABOR EXCHANGE.

Miners to Organize a New Labor Union With Franklin B. Gowen as Adviser.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 16.—A new Labor Union, which will comprise all miners of the anthracite regions, has been started at Pittston. It is proposed to organize a Labor Exchange similar to the Coal Exchange, and when difficulties arise both bodies can meet and discuss.

The exchange will be composed of three officers: General superintendent, general secretary and grand adviser. Franklin B. Gowen is named for the latter place, with a salary of ten thousand dollars a year. The Union will also nominate Legislature candidates to be voted for in 1890.

Three of the Crew Drowned.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The schooner Laura, with a deck load of iron from New York for Dorchester, capsized in the North River off 97th street and Wm. Jackson, James Hughes and Alexander Christie, of the crew, were drowned. Captain Martin and Seaman James Lawler had narrow escapes. The Laura was carrying too much sail and was upset by a squall. Her cargo is insured.

A Light Sentence for Shields.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 16.—Thomas Shields, section boss of the New York and New Haven Railroad, who was convicted of manslaughter in leaving a rail insufficiently spiked, thereby causing the death of three persons by the derailment of the Boston express last summer, has been sentenced to thirty days' confinement in jail, and to pay a fine of $50.

Sullivan Ready to Fight Again.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—John L. Sullivan announces that he is ready to fight again and would like to have a match arranged as soon as possible. He is anxious to meet Jem Smith and would pay his expenses to America. His next choice of antagonists is Charley Mitchell, but he is ready to meet anybody that will challenge him.

A Sporting Man's Sudden Death.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 16.—Yesterday a policeman found the dead body of James Dawson, a well known sporting man of this city and Philadelphia, lying on the sidewalk at the corner of Market and Vine streets. A wound on Dawson's forehead indicated that he had been foully dealt with.

Will Spend His Honeymoon in Prison.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—John Dougherty was sentenced to-day to two years' imprisonment. He was taken from the court to the District Attorney's office where he was married to a young woman whose name is not made public. The bride wept bitterly as her husband was taken away to spend his honeymoon in Sing Sing.

Providence Favors New York.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 16.—At the adjourned meeting of the business men called by Governor Ladd, to express a choice of a World's Fair site, there was little discussion and the meeting passed resolutions endorsing New York for first choice, with Chicago second and Washington third by a vote of 36 to 22.

Congressman Nutting Dead.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The Hon. Newton W. Cutting, who on Saturday last resigned his seat in Congress that his successor might be elected at the coming general election and that the 27th District might not be without a representative, died last night of cancer of the jaw.

Railroad Firemen's Convention.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 16.—The sixth annual Convention of the Grand Lodge of the Brotherhood of Railroad Brakemen convened for the second day's session in the House of Representatives in the State Capitol this morning. It is expected the session will last a full week, and probably ten days.

Bottlers Organize for Mutual Protection.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—A permanent organization was effected here by the Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey bottlers for mutual protection, an amicable mutual interstate arrangement as to the exchange of bottles and siphons being the special issue under consideration.

Four Hundred Girls on Strike.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 16.—The girls in the weaving room of the Arlington Mill have been notified of a reduction in wages of 5 and 10 cents per cut on 100 and 200 quality goods, respectively. The girls, to the number of 400, refused to go to work.

The Cronin Jury.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—The work of securing a jury in the Cronin case was resumed to-day. The defence have eight peremptory challenges remaining to their credit.

CHAMPION GROOMS!

The Brooklyns Return Home With the Pennant.

THEY ARE WARMLY WELCOMED

The Defeat of the St. Louis Club by Cincinnati Settled the Contest.

The Athletics of Philadelphia Secure Third Place—Preparing for the World's Championship The First Game to be Played on Saturday—Exhibition Games and Record of the Clubs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The defeat of the St. Louis Browns at Cincinnati, yesterday, makes it impossible for that club to win the championship as, the season closed yesterday. Brooklyn wins the pennant. The club returned home last evening and was welcomed by an enthusiastic crowd. The contest for the World's Championship between the New York and Brooklyn teams will probably begin on Saturday next.

ITALY AND THE VATICAN.

Signor Crispi Denounces the Temporal Claims of the Pope.

ROME, Oct. 16.—At a banquet given in his honor at Palermo last evening, Signor Crispi, Prime Minister of Italy, delivered one of the most powerful speeches to which he has proven utterance during his political career, and clearly outlined the unswerving policy of the Government with regard to the Vatican.

He declared it to be imperatively necessary to combat all persons and principles seeking to undermine Italy. Rome had existed before the Papacy had wielded temporal power and would continue to exist without it. Complaints and threats at home and abroad would have no effect. King Humbert's declaration that Rome is a part of Italy is, just as the principle that law forms a part of the modern world, unassailable.

The Pope, he asserted, possessed perfect religious liberty and was only restricted, and less harshly so than in other Catholic countries, from encroaching upon the sphere of nationality right, which is the right of reason. "Let the church, now free," he exclaimed, "endeavor to frighten Prometheus with the thunderbolts of Heaven. Our task is to fight in the cause of reason."

Referring to Anarchism, the Premier said that was much the easier to combat. He appealed to those of advanced, but reasonable ideas, to separate themselves from the creators of disorder who were pretending to represent the ideas of Mazzini and Garibaldi.

Mother and Child Killed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Lizzie O'Brien fell or was thrown from the sixth story of the tenement house No. 42 Oliver street, last night, with her 13-months-old girl in her arms, and both were killed by striking on the pavement in the courtyard of the building. Mrs. O'Brien had recently quarreled with her husband. O'Brien was found drinking with two men in his apartments after the bodies of his wife and child were picked up. The three men claimed to know nothing of the tragedy. They were arrested.

Tammany's City Ticket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The Tammany Convention last night nominated the following city and county ticket: Register, Frank P. Fitzgerald; Judge of Court of Common Pleas, Henry Bischoff, Jr.; Judges of City Court, Robert A. Van Wyck and Chas. J. Nehrbas; Judge of the General Sessions Court, H. A. Gildersleeve; President of the Board of Aldermen, J. H. V. Arnold.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The second annual Fall games of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, will be held in The Crescent, Thursday evening, Nov. 21.

—In New Brunswick they advertise egg, stove and nut coal at $4 per ton; and sell a "No. 2 nut" at $2.75 a ton, delivered.

—The Grand Division, Sons of Temperance of New Jersey, will meet in Paterson on Wednesday next, 23d instant, at 10:30 A. M.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., are making extensive arrangements to be present and work the Amplified Degree, to-morrow evening.

—The quarterly business meeting of the Sunday school teachers of the Crescent avenue church, will be held after the prayer meeting this evening.

—Contractor James Hardy is making a big hole in the job he has before him, in converting the old saloon on East Second street into the Crescent Bowling Alley.

—To take an advertisement out of the paper during the so-called dull season is about as bad as to stop feeding the horse because the weather is unsuitable for using him.

—On Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Mrs. Hall will lecture on "The Kindergarten," in Seminary Hall. All those interested in the work are cordially invited to be present.

—Mr. John Collins, of West Third street, was severely bitten on the thigh by a dog belonging to Michael Spillaine on Sunday. The animal was shot on the following day.

—Saturday a handsome carving knife and fork will be given by Laire & Co., to every purchaser of ten dollars worth of goods at their store corner of Front street and Park avenue.

—The quince crop is reported as very poor in this locality this year. Quinces have almost become a thing of the past and yet housekeepers think there is nothing like them.

—The Woman's Home Missionary Society will hold its regular meeting for sewing, Friday, at 2 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Newhall, No. 20 East Seventh street. All the ladies are invited.

—An adjustable coat-collar spring that will always keep the lappels and collar in shape and prevent the coat from blowing open although unbuttoned in the wind, is sold by Mr. Alex. Titsworth of 28 North avenue.

—The street sprinkler could have been put into service today with effect. The high wind which has prevailed during the day lifted the dust from the roadbed, and deposited it in the eyes, ears and mouths of pedestrians.

—Eighty thousand baskets of peaches were sent from the White House station during the late peach season. This is indicative that the farmers in the White House district are giving much more attention to peach culture than in former years.

—The State Board of Health has issued Circular LXVIII: "To Local Boards," Circular LXIX, as to the "Quality of Meat, Poultry, Game and Fish" used as foods, and Circular LXX, containing various facts to direct Local Boards as to the laws.

—It is a subject of remark that so many fruit trees in different parts of the county put forth unusual bloom this Fall. The blooming of trees in Autumn is considered by many an omen of evil, but it is only one of the vagaries of nature, and need not disturb any one.

—In addition to the two classes in mechanical drawing already at work at the Y. M. C. A., a new class with a membership of thirteen was organized last evening. Young men may be enrolled as members of these classes upon application at the Association rooms.

—The regular mid-week meeting of the Reform Club will be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. These gatherings are open for free discussion and possess decided interest. Like all meetings of the club they commence with devotional services. A cordial greeting awaits attenders.

—In order to properly set the foundation stones for the new bridge over Green Brook, at Somerset street, the contractor has been compelled to employ four men to pump steadily in order to keep the water down. Today a pipe was run from the boilers at French Bros., mill, and a steam pump will hereafter be used.

A PHILADELPHIA METHOD.

A Newspaper Man From the Quaker City Invades the Home of a Plainfield Lady.

Nowadays there seem to be no privileges of privacy that the newspaper reporter respects. Right into the heart and hearthstone of the family he will force his way, with no sentiment of pity nor consideration for the mother or children.

A reporter of THE PRESS called at the residence of Mrs. John Chandor, of East Fifth street, on Monday, to offer the columns of this paper for any public explanation, denial or defence she might chose to make of the newspaper stories that were being cabled from England regarding her husband. Mrs. Chandor with dignity declined to say a word, and THE PRESS reporter respected the lady's desire to be let alone.

The same day a reporter of the Philadelphia Press called on Mrs. Chandor and was treated in the same modest but firm way. Yet after acknowledging in the Plainfield PRESS office that the lady would not say a word, he went back to Philadelphia and wrote and published the following fake:

There is a neat little frame cottage on East Fifth street, in Plainfield, New Jersey, number 56, about whose occupants many people in Plainfield have wanted for some time to know more than they do. The house is inhabited by a lady and her seven children, the oldest a girl of 15, and the youngest not 3 years old, and about all any one knew was that the lady's name was Mrs. Chandor. Curiosity in Plainfield was stimulated yesterday by the cablegrams in the papers telling that John Arthur Chandor had had Mrs. Bloomfield Moore arrested for criminal libel in London, as a late development of the Hughes-Hallett case.

A reporter of The Press went over to Plainfield yesterday, and had a charming chat with Mrs. Chandor at her home. A trim, English-looking maid answered the summons of the door bell, and with an imported courtesy said that her mistress was in, and ushered the visitor into a cosy little parlor, where a handsomely framed photograph of Mr. Chandor first strikes the eye. It shows his handsome, jovial face, ornamented with a heavy mustache, while his forehead reaches backward to his crown.

A heavy, hasty step on the stairs and Mrs. Chandor stood at the door. She is apparently about 40 years old.

She said that she had read the newspaper cablegrams of her husband's prosecution of Mrs. Moore and Colonel Hughes-Hallett. "But," she said, with a tremor of the lower lip, "I don't know anything of the trouble between Mr. Chandor and Mrs. Moore, and if I did I would say nothing about it. I have no statement to make for my husband and I certainly have nothing to say of Mrs. Moore. I only knew Mrs. Moore slightly."

"Is it true that Mrs. Moore offered your husband $10,000 a year to manage her estates?" was asked.

"I refuse to say anything about that or the relations between Mrs. Moore and my husband. I came here a year or two ago to find quiet and to educate my children. My husband and myself are now living apart, and I don't want to be mixed up in his troubles. They are now before the court and I suppose everything will come to light through the courts. I don't know anything about such matters in this country—or in England, either, for that matter—but I suppose everything comes out in the courts."

Mrs. Chandor then inveighed bitterly against the American love for the scandalous, and immediately followed this with the declaration that London almost lived on scandal. "Why," she exclaimed, with an animated smile, "there is hardly an earl, a duke or a lord in England who has not been in the courts one way or another or has had his name represented there by someone of his family. They seem to live there on scandal in high life."

Mrs. Chandor was told that a cablegram had stated that her husband was credited with being a Philadelphian. Her face flushed with indignation. "I hardly think my husband would feel flattered if he were told that he had been taken for an American," she said slowly. Then she continued with bright, snapping eyes: "You met him in Philadelphia; did he strike you as an American?"

"Not at all; he appeared a thorough Englishman," was the reply.

"Well, I should say so," she assented, with a toss of her head and an expression in which scorn and pride were comically mixed. She chatted brightly on various topics for some time and gave the impression that she was not an American, as rumor has had it. She spoke contemptuously of everything American and professed ignorance of American customs. The pronunciation of her words are thoroughly American and there is nothing in her personality that indicates the Englishwoman. It is only in her expressed contempt for things American that she belies the impression as to her nationality. Mrs. Chandor holds aloof from everyone and repels every neighborly overture that has been made to her. In doing so once she said that she had come to Plainfield for solitude and to take advantage of the superior school facilities offered by the town in the education of her children. Her name is not in this year's directory and she declared yesterday that nobody knew of her name and address but those in the telegraph and post offices. Although living apart from her husband, as she says, there has been no legal separation and he sends monthly remittances for the maintenance of his wife and children. The children attend the public schools in Plainfield, of which there are five of the best in the State.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. Chas. B. Mitchell leads the young men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Monday next.

Mr. W. C. Hubbard, '90, is spending the week in Boston attending the 43d annual convention of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Frank Campbell, who died suddenly on Sunday night, took place from the late home of the deceased on Liberty street, this morning at ten o'clock.

Mrs. E. Landis, of Newark, and Miss Anna Yost, of Norristown, Pa., returned home on Monday after a few days stay at Maier's Park Hotel, Dunellen, much pleased with their visit.

The death occurred yesterday morning at her home on West Sixth street, of Mrs. Elizabeth Regan, mother of Mrs. Walter L. Hetfield. The remains were today taken to Worcester, Mass., for interment.

A young son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pope of West Fourth street, gave a birthday party, on Monday evening. About thirty young people were present and spent the evening in playing games, etc.

The entitled address of Mr. Aaron M. Powell, editor of the National Temperance Advocate, in Reform Hall, next Sunday evening, will be: "The Temperance Outlook in Europe." All who possibly can should go and hear him. He is a chaste and able speaker and master of any subject he takes in hand.

Among all the portraits of prominent citizens of Poughkeepsie, that adorn the really magnificent souvenir edition of the Eagle of that city, just issued, the best and handsomest face of all is that of the Rev. James M. Taylor, D. D., President of Vassar College, and a younger brother of Mr. Morgan S. Taylor, of Washington Park, North Plainfield.

W. C. T. U. and Kindergarten Meetings.

Bear in mind the meetings of the W. C. T. U. this week, to all of which you are welcome: The Loyal Legion Wednesday at 4 P. M. Mothers meeting Thursday at 3 P. M., (note the change of hour for the Winter). The Saturday night service of song and prayer at 7:30. Sunday morning at 9:15 and Sunday afternoon at 4. Come to them all, if you can, they'll surely do you good.

On Mondays and Tuesdays at 4 P. M. the Kitchen Garden classes are held in the same rooms, to which admission by card may be had by applying to the teacher, Miss Alice Smith, 32 West Second street.

Addresses by Rev's Clark and Hurlbut.

The programme for the young people's meeting at the First Presbyterian church, to-morrow evening at 7:45 o'clock, will be as follows:

By the Merry Four.

One of the many pleasant sociables given during the Fall and Winter by the Merry Four, was held last evening, at the residence of Mr. Peter G. Kline, Summit avenue, North Plainfield. There were many young people present. Dancing was indulged in until an early hour this morning. The Merry Four is composed of the following young gentlemen of this city and North Plainfield: Messrs Horace G. Adams, Harry C. Ackerman, Henry Adams and Charles VanMiddlesworth.

Firemen's Fair.

Amoskeag Council, No. 25, Order of American Firemen, will hold a grand fair in Dunlap's Hall, on West Front street, from October 21st to the 26th instant inclusive. An agreeable feature of the fair will be the absence of the book contest nuisance. The Committee of Arrangements consists of Messrs A. Saltzman, chairman; J. A. Hubbard, treasurer; J. B. Gable, secretary; J. B. Heath, J. E. Crater and C. R. Hope.

Only a Wheel Off.

One of the hind wheels of Mrs. Aldrich's wagon came off in front of the post office, last evening. The lady herself was driving but the horse did not get away. Another wheel was procured from a neighboring carriage shop, and the journey continued to Mrs. Aldrich's home at Grant and Sherman avenues.

Mr. Burdick's Coming.

Music Hall has been engaged by the ladies of the W. C. T. U., for Gospel temperance meetings, led by Mr. Burdick, during the evenings of November, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 20, 22 and 23, commencing Sunday afternoon at four o'clock of Nov. 10.

Five Houses For Sale.

In another column is the advertisement of the executors sale of the real estate of the late Lewis Mundy. The sale on Thursday, Nov. 14, will be of three houses and lots in this city and two in North Plainfield.

Most men, otherwise strong in body and mind, will become unhappy and break down when afflicted with rheumatism. If they would only try Salvation Oil they would find relief at once. Price 25c.

Thousands of bottles of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup have been sold by W. H. Brown & Bro., Balto., Md.

A BICYCLE AS IS A BICYCLE.

Charles VanDeever's Wagon Wheel That He Has Ridden 4,000 Miles.

THE PRESS readers have often noticed the colored gentleman who rides through Plainfield's streets on a wagon wheel, and have felt some curiosity to know something about him and it.

His name is Charles VanDeever, he is of this city, and himself gives the following account of the inception and production of his wheel.

He says: "Being a poor boy and not having the cash to purchase a high grade bicycle, I thought I would try and see what I could do toward making one. I wanted a bicycle badly, and one day while standing under a shed I saw an old wagon wheel, and I asked the owner if he would not give it to me, as I wanted to make a bicycle. The owner of the wheel told me that I could not make a bicycle, but I said 'if you will let me have the wheel I will try mighty hard,' and so he gave it to me. After I got the wheel I went to work on the forks. I found a fine piece of hickory behind the barn, and with an axe I chopped out two pieces of wood 1x2 inches. The backbone I got from a blacksmith; it is solid. The tools I had to work with were an axe, a draw knife, and some old bits for boring. I made it in Somerville, N. J., and I was about five days in its construction. When I first rode it the people in that place were very much interested, and the wheel attracted a good deal of attention. I have ridden the wheel some 4,000 miles in all."

A description of this unique machine appeared in the Hartford Times, under the head "Not a Racing Wheel." We clip the following from that paper:

"The United States Express Company received this morning from Plainfield, N. J., a bicycle as is a bicycle. Compared with the racing wheel of Champion Rowe, it is somewhat heavy, but compared with a twenty-ton pulley wheel it would probably rank first in point of lightness. It is home-made from the word go. The big wheel is an ordinary carriage wheel, while the rear wheel is a round disk 18 inches in diamater, cut out of an oak plank an inch thick, bored full of holes to make it lighter, and having a thick iron tire. The fork is of carriage lumber, heavy and cumbersome. The backbone is not hollow, oh no, it is of solid iron, hammered into shape while red hot, and rather rough at the fork for the rear wheel. The handle bar is of iron, with a heavy block of wood in the middle and movable wooden handles at the ends. Then there is a step on the backbone above the small wheel and a seat, a little beauty stuffed with straw and covered with a boot leg, and a leg guard to keep the muddy wheel from the trousers of the rider. The pedals are not exactly ball bearing, but square blocks of wood with small holes for oiling. Everything is complete; all the details are worked out. The machine weighs nearly 100 pounds, and was probably made in a blacksmith's shop."

Plainfield Prisoners Arraigned.

The General Court of Sessions convened at Elizabeth, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Judges McCormick, Hyer and Wiley on the bench. The attendance of spectators was large. The following persons of this city, of whom indictments had been returned, were arraigned and plead:

Joseph E. Sullivan, disorderly house, selling liquor without a license, plead not guilty. Trial October 31.

Thomas Flynn, John Shannon and James Donovan, petty larceny, stealing five bushels of apples, plead guilty. Sentence to be imposed November 9.

Henry Forrest, breaking and entering (four counts) and theft of goods of the value of $32, plead not guilty. Trial set down for November 1. Committed in default of $300 bail.

Alonzo Randolph, (colored), larceny of watch of the value of $15, not guilty. Trial November 1.

Died in Illinois.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

Mr. Piatt Drake died at his home at Topeka, Ill., on Friday, and was buried yesterday. He was born near Plainfield, and removed to the West many years ago. At one time he resided near Rahway. His widow has many relatives and friends in this city. Mr. Drake was quite advanced in years, and was a brother of Mrs. Jas. Drake, whose death occurred in this city eight weeks ago. Mr. Drake was the last but one of a family of twelve children.

To Represent Plainfield.

The following gentlemen will represent the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., at the District Convention to be held at Rahway, beginning Friday of this week: W. D. Murray, E. St. John, Stephen Cahoone, C. T. Kissam, E. L. Suffern, J. A. Robinson, A. C. LaBoyteaux, R. E. Pease Thomas Mair, Charles Brown and John Lindsay. The Youths Department will be represented by Chas. P. Gelhaar, Walter Dobbins and Lynn Edsall.

Mr. Murray Will Lead.

The subject for Bible Study at the Young People's meeting at Bethel chapel, Friday evening, will be—"Christian Work, what is it? The Worker, who is he? Why should he work?" The leader will be Mr. Wm. D. Murray. All are invited and are requested to bring their own Bibles.

—Wetumpka Lodge, 3,401, K. of H., will hold an open meeting, Thursday evening, Oct. 17, for the benefit of members and their friends. An entertainment will be the principal feature.

24 EDUCATED HORSES.

A Remarkable Exhibition to be Given in Music Hall.

Commencing Monday evening, Oct. 28, for one week, with entertainments Wednesday and Saturday afternoons, there will be given at Music Hall a remarkable display of horse sense, under the direction of Prof. Geo. Bartholomew.

The school consists of 24, and they appear all at one time without bridle or halter, and are directed entirely by spoken language. The horses reproduce scenes in school; know figures, height, width, depth, curves and circles; drill equal to pretentious military companies; fight a battle; reproduce a court scene, and 12 of them play with bells "The Last Rose of Summer."

This extraordinary indoor entertainment appears only in the largest cities, but through a misunderstanding about a week at the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, they will appear here, and there is no doubt they will be favored with very large and fashionable audiences. The entertainment is endorsed by the leading humane societies and clergymen, and is in every particular worthy the patronage of a discriminating public. Manager Mishler today inspected the stage of Music Hall and says it is just right for their performance, and that he was agreeably surprised to find such a complete and cosy theatre.

Why the Leaves Turn.

Probably not one person in a thousand knows why leaves change their color at this season of the year. The common and old-fashioned idea is that all this red and golden glory we see now is caused by frosts. A true and scientific explanation of the causes of the coloring of leaves would necessitate a long and intricate discussion. Stated briefly and in proper language, those causes are these: The green matter in the tissue of a leaf is composed of two colors, red and blue. When the sap ceases to flow in the Fall, and the natural growth of the leaf ceases, oxidation of the tissue takes place. Under certain conditions, the green of the leaf changes to red; under different conditions it takes on a yellow or brown tint. The difference in color is due to the difference in combination of the original constituents of the green tissue, and to the varying conditions of climate, exposure and soil. A dry, cold climate produces more brilliannt foliage than one that is damp and warm. This is the reason that our American Autumns are so much more gorgeous than those of England.

How to Purify Cistern Water.

Mr. Samuel Stockton of Lambertville, has been experimenting as to how to make the impure water in a cistern pure, and he has met with success in the following simple receipt, which he is anxious to give to the public: Throw into your cistern ¼ of a pound of saltpetre, and do not disturb the water for ten hours afterward. At the expiration of that time the water will be found pure and sweet. Several persons have tried the experiment and all report good results.

Advice to Hunters.

Gunners who are now forging through the forests and over the stubble fields and marshes with blood in their eye and powder in their horn, had better pause in their wild career long enough to read the farmers' warnings to trespassers, lest, peradventure, they be jerked up short by the lasso of the law and made to pay. The law is clear on the subject, and hunters who are not posted should read up before they jump any fences.

Fire at Dog Corners.

A house belonging to Daniel Cole, near DeCamp's Hotel at Dog Corners, was burned to the ground at 1 o'clock this morning. It was occupied, but the contents were saved.

A barn and outhouse were also burned. The former was rented by Johnson, the well-driver, and contained his tools to the value of $300, all of which were consumed.

POWDER MILL EXPLOSION.

A Locomotive Spark the Cause and One Man Killed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The double wheel mill of the Schaghticoke Powder Company was blown up yesterday and one employe, Fred Bennett, was killed. No other person was injured. Fortunately the mill shut down at noon and none of the employes were present save Bennett. It is believed the explosion was the result of a locomotive spark. The report of the explosion was heard at Troy and Waterford.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

HIS LETTER CHEERED

Mr. Cleveland to the Keystone Democracy.

EX-SPEAKER RANDALL HISSED.

Every County in Pennsylvania Had a Representative at the Democratic Gathering.

Black and Hensel Make Tariff Speeches. The Old Officers Re-Elected—A Colored Man for Vice-President—Enthusiastic Meeting of New Jersey Republicans at Elizabeth.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—The First General Assembly of the Democratic Societies of Pennsylvania was a big convention—bigger, indeed, than even some Democrats had expected. Every county in the State was represented, and the basis of representation was one delegate for every thirty members of a club. The gathering, therefore, acted for 24,000 Democrats, there being over 800 delegates present.

In his speech on calling the convention to order President Black evoked applause by referring to the tariff as a tax "which pillages the mass to enrich the class."

At the close of his address Mr. W. U. Hensel of Lancaster was elected temporary chairman by acclamation. After thanking the convention for the honor conferred Mr. Hensel, in the course of further remarks said: "We are for tariff reform and will not abate our efforts nor turn back from the course of our leaders. [Cheers and applause.] We are for genuine civil service reform. Some may fall out by the wayside, but others will take their places. Chalmers may go, but we welcome Eliot of Harvard. We are for ballot reform, for the enfranchised blacks in the South and the white workingmen of the North."

The chair then announced that he had two letters to read, and then proceeded to read one from ex-Speaker Randall, who regretted his inability to be present, stating as his reason that he should be obliged to be in Washington at the time of the meeting. At the conclusion of the reading of this letter there were mingled cheers and hisses. The chair could scarcely quell the disturbance. One delegate shouted out, "He's no Democrat."

The following letter from ex-President Cleveland was then read:

NEW YORK, Oct. 11, 1889.

Hon. Chauncey F. Black.

MY DEAR SIR: I am sorry that I shall not be able to be in Philadelphia at the General Assembly of the Democratic Societies of Pennsylvania on the 15th inst., and can not, therefore, attend the meeting which will follow that assembly.

My estimate of the value of these Democratic societies as agencies for the instruction of the people upon political topics and for the accomplishment of legitimate political work is well known, and there never was a time when, in the interests of good government and National prosperity, they were more needed.

The condition of political affairs is such that the attention of all true Democrats should be directed to the enforcement of the distinctive principles of the party; and in my opinion this is no time for the search after makeshifts and temporary expedients.

We, as a party, are fairly enlisted in the cause of the people, and patriotism, duty and party success require that we should be consistent and steadfast. All personal and selfish aims should be subordinated.

I confidently expect that in the work we have in hand our Democratic societies will exhibit an efficiency which will be gratefully acknowledged by all who have at heart the welfare and prosperity of the American people.

Yours very sincerely,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

The scene which followed the reading of this letter was almost beyond description. The delegates cheered until they could cheer no more by reason of exhaustion. The enthusiasm was of the wildest character, and has scarcely been equalled at a State gathering.

A motion prevailed to file the letters and the chair to make appropriate replies.

President Black, Secretary J. D. Worman, of Philadelphia, and Treasurer J. Irwin Steel, of Ashland, were re-elected, and W. J. Rauch, of Reading, J. H. W. Howard, (colored) of Harrisburg; Joseph P. Murphy and John H. Fow, of Philadelphia, were elected Vice-Presidents.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions was received and unanimously adopted. This ended the business of the convention.

A mass meeting was held in the Academy of Music last night, at which a number of prominent Democrats spoke.

ENTHUSIASM IN JERSEY.

Republican Clubs Hold a Convention in Elizabeth and Listen to Gen. Grubb.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 16.—The convention of the clubs of the Republican State League, which took place in this city yesterday, was a very enthusiastic gathering. General E. Burd Grubb, Republican candidate for Governor, was met at the station by a delegation from the Soldiers' League, and in a carriage with Senator Miller and Congressman Kean was taken to the Sheridan House, where he was tendered an informal reception. Among the prominent men of the State present were General Sewell and Congressmen Liehlbach and Buchanan.

The convention was held in the Temple Opera House, and every county in the State was represented, there being 500 delegates present.

Chairman Mott delivered an address, and was frequently interrupted by storms of applause. He congratulated the convention on the auspicious circumstances under which it was assembled, and paid a high tribute to President Harrison and Hon. James G. Blaine. At the mention of these names the applause was deafening.

Gen. Grubb made a speech and the reading of his letter of acceptance created intense enthusiasm.

A mass meeting was held here last night. Hon. John W. Griggs, of Passaic, being the speaker.

Another Night of Darkness.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—The city was again plunged in darkness last night, as the electric lights controlled by the Brush and United States Illuminating Companies had been shut off by orders of the managers. With the exception of a few gas lamps scattered here and there and the lights of the other smaller electric companies, there was nothing to relieve the gloom.

Hillman Denied a New Trial.

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 16.—A new trial for Hillman, convicted of the murder of Herman Leimar, at Woodbury, has been refused by Judge Garrison. Hillman will be executed on Nov. 13.

SUNDAY WITH SPURGEON.

An American's Visit to the Greatest Pulpit Orator in the World.

In the Temple at Newington—A Vast and Miscellaneous Audience—Silks and Satins, Diamonds and Simple Homely Dresses and Babies in Arms.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

A sunshiny morning in London. There is an air of quietness and peace over the old city on the Thames. It is Sunday morning. The church bells are chiming out merrily. There are crowds on Westminster and London Bridge and no end of pleasure boats on the Thames beneath them. The omnibuses are filled with people and scores of hansoms are flying from the city proper to the neighborhood of Newington.

There is a crowd of men, women and children in front of the Tabernacle that Charles Haddon Spurgeon has made famous in all the lands where religion is known. It is not an imposing-looking structure. Like most of the buildings of London it is soot-colored. But it is a theme in itself; so full of interest and remarkable incident that a long and instructive newspaper article might be written out of the circumstances attending its origin, growth, completion and opening free from debt. A high iron railing keeps the church clear of the crowd in the street. The building is situated perhaps twenty feet back from the curbstone and is reached by a short flight of a half dozen steps. Architecturally it is an imposing structure in the Gothic style. A half dozen big stone columns support an arch, which gives the front of the edifice a rather picturesque appearance. There are plenty of windows through which the sunlight is streaming, and at either end of the stoop is a big gas-lamp which, in the evening, sheds its rays upon the worshippers.

It is easy enough to gain an entrance if the visitor has taken the precaution to ask, a day or two in advance, for tickets of admission. I had done this and found no difficulty in passing in at a side door. Seen through American eyes for the first time the interior of Spurgeon's church is hardly what one would suppose it to be. It is not attractive in any way. The window-panes are not over-clean, the walls are grimy, the seats are narrow and the backs straight and stiff. In some of the pews there are cushions, but in the majority just a plain board seat. There is a slight incline to the floor, so that worshippers in the rear get a fairly good view of what is going on in the immediate front of the house. The aisles are narrow and arranged with patent seats, so that every available inch of room on the ground floor is occupied. A gallery runs around the church except in the direct rear of the pulpit. At a rough guess it would be safe to say that 7,000 persons could be accommodated. You look in vain for an organ or for a choir-loft for singers. But there is a big clock that ticks in a tired sort of a way in the gallery.

It is just five minutes of eleven o'clock. A few of the regular pew-holders are in their seats. There is a loud ringing of the church bells and a dozen men throw open the gates leading to the Tabernacle and all the doors. In less than five minutes every seat and every inch of standing room is taken. The rule of first come first served is observed. The old women who open the doors of the pews and who seat visitors have their hands full for a moment. There is very little noise with it all and a quick glance at the people shows that it is, perhaps, the most miscellaneous congregation in the world. There are flashes of diamonds, marvelous gowns, the brightest of bonnets, and there are the plainest of women with nothing but an old shawl about them, wearing frayed dresses and looking almost out of place opposite their wealthy sisters. It is not hard to see that the thick-set, well-dressed, mutton-chopped-whiskered banker of London is at home here side by side with his clerk or his workman in his Sunday clothes. There are a plenty of youngsters from the Sunday-school and a score or more of babes in arms.

The first thing that strikes the American visitor as strange is that there are two platforms at the extreme end of the church. That on the ground floor is occupied by the orphans from the Stockwell Orphanage. The other directly above it, but back a few dozen feet is for the preacher. It contains a table on which there is a pitcher of water, a big bunch of homely English roses, a bible and a hymn book. There is an old-fashioned easy chair near it and a lounge. All eyes are turned to this platform, for at this moment there emerges from the room just back of it a short, thick-set, bearded Englishman, who is the reverse of brainy looking and far from handsome. His grayish hair is combed loosely from his forehead. His beard is also tinged with gray. His frock coat is a good deal longer than the fashionable tailors of London would recommend and it flaps loosely about him. The sleeves are long and entirely hide his cuffs. He wears a turn-over collar and an old-fashioned black necktie. He would never be suspected of being a great man. He is followed from the anti-room by half a dozen gentlemen who comprise the official board of the plain that the most uneducated in the audience can follow him. He occupies thirty-five minutes in his discourse, talking about 140 words per minute, and is listened to with marked attention. The sermon is interspersed with bits of descriptive incident and anecdote. It is all told in such a plain, fatherly and simple way that it carries conviction to the heart and it is easy enough to see that one source of the great preacher's success is the simplicity of his manner of preaching.

I have listened to many orators on both sides of the Atlantic, have heard all the famous preachers, but I know of none who parallels this real bishop of London in his earnestness, his eloquence and his simplicity. If I were asked to name a man who preached to the next largest and enthusiastic audiences, I would say that that man is Dr. T. De Witt Talmage of Brooklyn, New York.

The service ends by the singing of another hymn and the benediction. The great audience passes out through the various doors and the preacher retires to one of the anti-rooms. As quickly as they can reach him a couple of hundred strangers and friends join him there. For an hour he is kept busy hand-shaking, and giving words of encouragement and cheer to those whom he knows and those who come to him for advice. I find myself in this anti-room with the others. I tell the great preacher that I am an American and a newspaper writer and he greets me in the most cordial way.

"It is a little odd," he goes on, "but you are the tenth person who, within the last ten minutes has told me that they came from across the sea. It is nothing unusual for me to have among my audience visitors from India, Australia, China, Japan and from America, and I am always glad to see my friends. Give my love to those who are working earnestly for the cause of Christ across the ocean. Tell them to be of good faith. Christianity is making great progress, but it needs new soldiers for its army. I wish it were possible for me to go to America and see some of the dear friends there; but that can never be. I must devote my time and attention to my own dear people here in London."

He passes on to others who are waiting for a word with him, picks up a little child, kisses it with the fondness of a father, whispers some tender message in the ear of a new convert; in fact, goes about the room like a sunbeam.

SUSIE SPURGEON.

It would not be possible in the space of a newspaper article to tell who this wonderful man is nor to outline the work he has performed. I may say, however, that everything he has undertaken has prospered; whether it be an orphanage, a magazine or a college, it has grown magnificently under his care.

It may interest you to know that he is one of the most voluminous and popular authors of the day. He is the head of a theological college which has sent out a thousand students into the ministry. He is the founder and maintainer of an orphanage in which 500 orphans find a comfortable home. He is a director of a colportage association, the editor of a magazine and the author of countless pamphlets on all sorts of secular and religious subjects. He preaches to the largest audience of any minister in the world. His sermons are scattered in all lands and have been translated into every language. Some of them have reached an edition of 150,000 copes. For twenty-five years he has issued weekly the sermons preached on the preceding Sunday morning. He has never missed a week, except during extreme illness. These sermons, bound together, compose a library of fifty volumes. He has published many talks to young men and all his lectures have been in pamphlet form. There is hardly a subject of interest to the human race that this great man has not touched upon and said something that has added to its interest and influence. His writings would make a complete library. He is one of the great men of the world.

The graduates of his preacher's college are doing yeoman service in many lands. He takes these young men almost into his family, treats them like sons, instructs them, lectures to them and fits them for the ministry. There is not a subject from theology to the culture of the voice that he has not lectured to them upon. For all this there is no charge. The college is supported by voluntary contributions. Nearly a thousand graduates have passed through the institution since it was organized. Of the orphanage it is sufficient to say that it has saved many children from early graves and is a very bright spot in a very dreary city.

Mr. Spurgeon has been heard all over England, Ireland and Scotland, and often preaches to a congregation of from fifteen to twenty thousand people. He is very fond of out-door preaching and is the only man who was ever invited to deliver a religious discourse at the Crystal Palace. He frequently exchanges pulpits, and often asks his congregation, including the pewholders, to stay at home for a Sabbath and permit visitors and strangers and others who cannot afford to buy pews to take their places for a day in his church.

That he is a busy man you may well guess, when I tell you that he employs five stenographers and keeps them all going. With the exception of Mr. Gladstone, he receives the largest mail of any man in the three kingdoms. A great many of his letters from sailors, from soldiers, from poor fellows, whom he has managed to help out of the gutter, are simply addressed, Spurgeon, England. To these he replies cheerfully, and is always ready to give advice. Nor is this all. He gives freely of his money. In fact he is a poor man. If it were not for the kindness of his congregation, he would be penniless. A few years ago they purchased a house for him, the house that he now occupies at Westwood, the southern ridge of the wooded heights of Sydenham. Upon the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate of the church, his congregation presented him with a large purse of money as a token of its esteem. It was intended that he should pay off a mortgage on his house and take the remainder for a holiday. He did nothing of the kind; he divided the large sum equally between the pastor's college and the orphanage. If it were not for the prudence of some of his friends who insisted that it was his duty to keep his house free, he would to-day be living in hired apartments. I may add, however, that his charity is not indiscriminate. His money is only given to those who deserve it.

He has declined as many as a score of invitations to lecture throughout Europe and America at fabulous prices, because, as he explained, he is not a lecturer and he didn't want the money and he preferred to work in his own way among his own people in London. When an American Lecture Agency offered him recently $1,000, for every lecture and to pay all the expenses of himself and his wife and a secretary, from London to America on a great lecture tour and held out the tempting offer that he could make $50,000, Mr. Spurgeon declind it. He said he could do better. He would stay in London and try to save fifty souls.

Of his personal habits it may interest you to know that his sermons are prepared after six o'clock on Saturday evening. He does not memorize them. He simply selects his text, makes a few notes, takes an hour in his study thinking over the subject and goes into the pulpit next day prepared to deliver a sermon that will stand for all time as a model of simplicity, clearness and eloquence. An old and favored shorthand reporter takes his sermons verbatim and on Monday the great preacher revises them. Monday is a day of rest and of seeing visitors, or rather, personal friends. On Tuesday and Wednesday he is generally away somewhere preaching. He devotes some portion of each day to literary work editing his magazines or preparing his lectures for his college students. Thursday morning he devotes to the orphanage and Thursday is what is known as "service night," generally preceded by an inquiry meeting, when he talks with those about to join the church. Friday morning is entirely devoted to the preacher's college and Friday afternoon to visiting the sick and needy of his parish whom he wishes to see for himself. Saturday morning he attends to correspondence and the afternoon is devoted to a reception for visitors. Of course one day differeth from another. There are calls upon the sick and the dying. There are great public meetings to be attended. There are special lectures to be prepared and a vast amount of other work.

His home in Westwood is a delightful spot. All is so peaceful and still that the house and the grounds might be fifty miles from town instead of being but three-quarters of an hour's drive from the Tabernacle. It is a plain, old-fashioned house, with plenty of room, tastefully laid out grounds, well kept lawns and shrubberies in good order. There are easy chairs under the trees and a splendid tennis court not far away. There are any number of beehives, for Mr. Spurgeon is a great apiarian. The grounds are aglow with pinks and other homely English flowers. The stables and out-houses are big and roomy. The stable is protected by an enormous horse shoe, weighing 200 pounds, the gift of a friend, who deemed it an invaluable specific against evil spirits. In another part of the garden is a fountain with gold fish. Within the house is bright and airy. The entrance hall is small. The dining-room opens to the right and Mr. Spurgeon's study to the left. In this study Mr. Spurgeon keeps three private secretaries constantly busy. Big shelves loaded with books on all sorts of subjects and the great room is strewn with papers, magazines and other evidences of a literary worker. Mr. Spurgeon works, or rather did the day I was with him, in a light alpaca garden coat and wore on his head a white felt wide-awake hat. He chatted pleasantly about men and things and drew my attention particularly to a wide collection of caricatures, which he has preserved through his career as a London preacher. For, be it known that his sailing has not always been smooth and that he has often found himself on the side of a question that brought dispute and heated argument. As I rise to go, Mrs. Spurgeon appears. She is a pleasant-faced woman, a fit help-meet for the great preacher, who has taken upon herself a large portion of the work of the Tabernacle, and in her home has a room set apart for distributing books, tracts, etc. She is a ministering angel among the poor of London and is one of the most popular of women in the big city. All her children, or rather her three sons, are ministers, and her only daughter is married to a minister and is herself a speaker of no mean ability. It is a typical English home.

Spurgeon dines in the middle of the day and after an early tea there are prayers and then Mrs. Spurgeon seats herself at the parlor organ and in a sweet voice, joined by her husband, her sons and the visitors, they sing for an hour or two some of the old-fashioned melodies that sound sweeter to-day because they are so seldom heard.

Spurgeon's active career in the pulpit is well nigh ended. Bodily infirmities, long threatened, seem at last to have overtaken him and he is frequently a prisoner in his room at the pleasant home in Westwood. He himself has expressed the fear that his last appearance in the Tabernacle will soon have been made, for he is now often so afflicted that he cannot be moved without suffering pain. His congregation, it is hardly necessary to say, feel keenly for their beloved pastor. Indeed, it would be impossible to estimate the good accomplished by the Spurgeon family, and if the men and women whom they have helped would stand shoulder to shoulder they would make an army that would circle Great Britain.

Veteran Firemen in Newburgh To-Day.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Oct. 16.—The city last night was brilliant with illuminations and decorations to greet the Veteran Firemen's Association of New York with their old-time hand-engine. The company arrived at 6:30 last night by special West Shore train. This morning they were shown the sights of the city and in the afternoon will take part in the triennial parade of the City Fire Department. There will be visiting companies in line from Middletown, Goshen, Union Hill (N. J.) and Kingston.

Seven Men Shot.

BOTHEN, Ala., Oct. 16.—In a difficulty here yesterday seven men were shot. Two are dead and another dying. The trouble arose between the Town Council and the draymen of the Farmers' Warehouse, the latter refusing to pay the license demanded by the town authorities. Both marshals were shot and one will die. Two draymen were killed. Great excitement prevailed among the farmers last night, but to-day all is quiet.

Excitement Continues at Montana.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 16.—There is much excitement in Butte and the action of the canvassers is the only theme of discussion there. Judge Dewolfe has issued an order setting the hearing of the matter of the Silver Bow returns for November 4th, the first day of the Court. The order is for the canvassers to show cause why the vote of the contested precincts should not be set aside.

Recovering from Oyster Poisoning.

WOODBURY, N. J., Oct. 16.—An oyster supper was given at Joseph Morgan's boarding-house, in Woodbury, Monday night, and yesterday about fifteen of those who were there were prostrated with an illness which is supposed to be due to poisoning. Among those present were Prosecuting-Attorney Belmont Perry and two school teachers. They will all recover.

The Wauregan Mills Extension.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 6.—The plan of extension for the Wauregan Mills and E. P. Taft, proposed by the creditors' committee, has been agreed to by a sufficient majority of creditors to insure its success, and the mills will continue running, thus avoiding an assignment. The plan is for five years' extension at six per cent interest.

PLAINFIELD
BARGAIN HOUSE.

Come in at any time and you will always find buyers; and there is many a good reason for it. We carry the largest stock—keep almost everything that one wants. We buy direct for cash and sell for the same, and sell our goods on a closer margin, and more of them, than all others. Sometimes we sell auction goods and remnants, but why not? Little difference does it make to you if some concern fails and we buy their stock at 50c on the dollar and sell it at the same rate—'tis only your gain. We'll buy anything and sell anything if we can sell it less than its real value. We are here for business, and we think we are getting it. 'Tis time to think of Winter goods, and we have them. There is everything that is new and desirable in dress goods, and the prices are right. Underwear for Ladies, Gentlemen and Children, in all qualities and sizes. We sell for 25c an extra heavy red flannel—value 35c., same in blue. There are 1,000 yards. remnants of French Flannel—price 10c, value 15c.

If you want blankets and comfortables, come and see us. We can sell you a good 11/4 wool blanket for $2 50, and a good comfortable, that is filled with white cotton, for $1 25.

Housekeepers will find our furnishing goods department an interesting place. We keep everything needed in Crockery, Tinware, Granite Ironware, Hall and Parlor Lamps, Rugs, Matting, Curtains, &c. Come and see us.

We deliver goods everywhere free of charge.

SIXTY MINERS DEAD

Frightful Explosion in a Colliery in England.

BURNED BEYOND RECOGNITION

One Woman Drops Dead When She Hears the News of Her Husband's Death.

Hard Work Recovering the Entombed Bodies—Not a Single One Identified by Relatives—The Mining Pit Completely Wrecked—The Number of Lives Lost Will Reach Seventy.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—An explosion occurred in the Bentille colliery, at Longton, Straffordshire, at an early hour yesterday. There were seventy men in the pit at the time and of these only eleven are known to have survived. The pit is completely wrecked and search for bodies is attended with great difficulty. A large force of men is engaged in clearing away debris and endeavoring to reach the dead or dying miners.

The men engaged in searching for victims of the explosion have found forty bodies of the dead miners.

For the present the search for the bodies of the other victims had to be abandoned as the fire-damp made it impossible to proceed with the work. Of the fifty bodies so far taken out, not a single one has been identified, as the features in every case were so frightfully burned that recognition even by those nearest and dearest proved impossible. In most cases the clothing was also completely burned off the bodies of the victims and it is feared that but few of the scorched bodies now lying in two rows on each side of the road a few feet from the mouth of the shaft, will ever be identified by the wives and mothers whose wails for their dead are ringing out dolefully everywhere.

It is almost certain that there are ten more bodies in the mine which the brave explorers could not reach and it is even rumored now that the number of men at work when the explosion occurred exceeded the figure given by the officials. The first report said that sixty men all told were at the bottom of the shaft, but it is stated by some that the number will be much nearer a hundred. This statement is to some extent borne out by the fact that fifty bodies were recovered so quickly. The searchers say that there are certainly more than ten victims still left at the foot of the shaft.

An old man and his three sons who were in the mine when the explosion occurred were lost, and when the news was brought home to the old man's wife, the mother of the boys and the only surviving member of the family, she dropped dead almost without a word, the shock having killed her.

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS.

Chief Arthur Admonishes the Brotherhood Against Radical Ideas.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 17.—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers assembled this morning for the second day's session of its twenty-sixth annual convention. Chief Engineer Arthur was in the chair. He assured the delegates of his belief in the satisfactory results that would be reached during the present session. Chief Arthur said:

"The present time represents the turning point in the history of the order, for it has become apparent that a feeling essentially radical has crept in and taken possession of a few of our members. This is dangerous and must be suppressed; for, owing to this, statements seemingly contradictory have crept out and become public, which could never have happened had there been unanimity of thought and honesty of purpose.

"If a man's ability extends beyond that required by the Brotherhood, then it becomes his duty to assume another position for which he is particularly gifted. To nurse one's dissatisfaction and scatter its seeds broadcast, to take relief in the imagination of other men, is sinful and blighting to character."

Carriage Builders Elect Officers.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 17.—At yesterday's session of the Carriage Builders' National Association the following officers were elected: President Capt. John A. Scott, Boston: Vice Presidents R. M. Rivers, New York; Henry Tinker, St. Louis; E. M. Hallowell, St. Paul, Minn.; G. W. Joyce, Washington; G. H. Babcock, Watertown; H. S. Holcomb, New Haven, Conn.; C. J. Rogers, Philadelphia; Joseph Colyer, Newark, N. J.; A. A. Abbott, Chicago; S. H. Clark, Cincinnati; H. A. Meyer, Syracuse; George W. Osgood, Amesbury, Mass.; W. T. Jones, Carthage, N. C.; Secretary and Treasurer, H. C. McLear, Wilmington, Del.

Sheffield Jealous of America.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Society of Master Cutters of England held their annual banquet in this city last night. Speaking of the competition of American factories, the president of the Sheffield Cutters' Association said England had nothing to fear from legitimate competition from over the water. What was ruinous to the Sheffield manufacturer was, he claimed, the practice adopted by the American manufacturer of palming off their goods for Sheffield wares.

The Dominie's Third Bear.

BRIDGEBORO, N. J., Oct. 17.—Rev. Charles S. Mervine, a well known preacher living above the Water Gap, while on route to one of his parishioners in the country on Tuesday, encountered a bear. He routed bruin out of the bushes and after a severe struggle, during which his gun was broken, he killed the animal. The bear weighed 250 pounds. This is the third bear the dominie has killed.

AMONG THE EPISCOPALIANS.

Rejection and Adoption of Words and Sentences in the Rubric.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The question, in the Episcopal Convention, whether in the rubric before the Venite, after the words, "the following anthem," there be inserted, "or else the 19th Psalm," was discussed and rejected.

A motion to change the wording of the Benedicte was also lost, and a motion to alter the rubric before the Benedicte, already carried by the upper house, was lost, too. The resolution offered by the joint committee that for words, "Thy Holy Church Universal," there be substituted, "the good estate of the Catholic Church," was non-concurred in. The motion to omit the Litany on Christmas Day, Easter Day and Whitsunday was lost.

Dr. Huntington's motion that the word "earthquake" be added to the appeals in the Litany was carried in concurrence with the House of Bishops. The addition of certain prayers for use during Rogation was also concurred in. The resolution that Psalm 69 be replaced by Psalm 64 in the service for Good Friday was concurred in.

SANDBAGGED AND ROBBED.

A Young Girl Attacked in Kearney, N. J., and Her Assailant Escapes.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 17.—W. H. Green, of Kearney, a well-known builder, sent his daughter Annie to Newark yesterday with $60 to pay a bill. As she had not returned by evening search was instituted for her, and she was found lying unconscious near the Erie railroad bridges. Her clothing was wet and the $60 which had been pinned in her pocket was gone.

Annie states that she had been struck by a man just as she was about stepping on the railroad bridge. There is no clue to the robber.

Miss Green is in a critical condition and it is feared she will die. It is believed that she was sandbagged and after being robbed was dragged up a steep embankment to the spot where she was found. Her hat, shoes and coat were missing.

COLLIERIES SUSPEND.

Two Thousand Persons Affected by the Depressed Coal Trade.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 17.—Owing to the depressed condition of the coal trade the following collieries of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company have been temporarily suspended: North Franklin, Bear Valley, Monitor, Reliance, East, North Ashland, Shenandoah, Bear Run and Tunnel Ridge.

These nine collieries employ nearly 2,000 men and boys. It is customary for these collieries to shut down at this season for a short period for repairs. Many of the employes will go to other points.

It is the general opinion that the stoppage of the above works will have no damaging effect in other business circles.

On Trial for Murder.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 17.—The trial of Gustav Willinghaus for the murder of James Daly in this city on May 16th last, is now being held. The crime was committed near Herther's saloon on Watkins street. Willinghaus had been evicted from the saloon for disorderly conduct and shot Daly as he was leaving the place, the prisoner blaming Daly for the eviction. Willinghaus is a wealthy Hebrew, and every effort will be made to save him.

Shot and Killed His Driver.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—During a quarrel last night between Herbert Muxlow, an express proprietor, and his son William at the former's office, 1283 Third avenue, Stepen Ruff, a driver, was shot and instantly killed. It is supposed that Muxlow attempted to shoot his son, and that Ruff was shot while interfering to stop the fight. The Muxlows have been arrested.

Gen. Alger in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Gen. Russell A. Alger was tendered a reception at Masonic Hall last night by the members of the Lafayette Post, G. A. R. A banquet accompanied the reception, and many toasts and speeches were made in honor of the distinguished guest. Gen. Alger replied in a felicitous speech.

Postmaster Hines Missing.

NORTH ABINGTON, Mass., Oct. 17.—Searching parties are scouring the woods in this vicinity in search of Postmaster Albert W. Hines, who has been missing since Friday last. His accounts at the office are said to balance exactly. No cause but ill-health is assigned for his disappearance.

The Marine Conference.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The diplomatic reception room of the State Department presented a scene of unusual brilliancy when Secretary Blaine received the delegates to the International Marine Conference. The members are a noble looking set of men, and, arrayed in the naval gold lace of every prominent maritime nation, presented a striking appearance.

Gen. Hartranft in a Critical Condition.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 17.—The condition of Gen. John F. Hartranft, who has been ill for some time with pneumonia, is said to-day to be critical. His recovery is doubtful.

Change in Custom House Cashiers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Charles A. Taylor, cashier at the Custom House, has resigned. W. L. Bostwick, of Ithaca, has been selected for the position. The salary is $5,000 per year. Mr. Taylor is a Democrat.

The King of Portugal Delirious.

LISBON, Oct. 17.—The King of Portugal is considerably worse to-day. Gangrene has ensued and he is delirious.

GIANTS AND GROOMS

They Will Battle for the World's Championship.

THE FIRST GAME TO-MORROW.

Eleven Games to be Played, Alternately Between the Two Cities.

If Either Team Wins Six Games No More Will be Played—Meeting of the Atlantic Association—Worcester Gets the Honors. Arranging for Next Year's Programme and Selecting Clubs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—After two hours' conference President Day of the New Yorks and President Byrne of the Brooklyns agreed that the world's championship series should begin on the Polo Grounds to-morrow and continue until one of the clubs wins six games.

There was not a great deal of difference between the two magnates regarding the main points, and while James Mutrie was on hand to assist Mr. Day, and F. A. Abell advised with Mr. Byrne, there was not much need of this diplomacy.

The series will be of eleven games, or, rather, a sufficient number of games to give the victors a majority of that number in winnings. The first game at the Polo Grounds to-morrow will be followed by one Saturday in Brooklyn, and excepting Sunday the clubs will play every day, alternating between the two cities, until the championship is settled. In case of rain the game scheduled will be played on the succeeding day, and then the schedule will go on as before.

The price of admission will be the regular tariff for all championship games, 50 cents and 25 cents extra for reserved seats. The joint playing rules will govern, and umpires will have the usual power of fining and imposing penalties. All fines must be paid within twenty-four hours to the opposing club, or there will be no game until paid.

The Champion Worcesters.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A special meeting of the Atlantic Association was held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. All the associate clubs were represented. The championship of the Atlantic Association was awarded to the Worcesters. It was then voted to combine the offices of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, and J. M. Braden was elected to fill the consolidated position. The question of a salary limit was discussed, but no definite action was taken. Messrs. Burnham of Worcester, Trott of Newark and Sullivan of Lowell were appointed a committee to secure a club to make up the required number of six for next year.

GREAT RAILROAD DEAL.

Rumored Consolidation of the Gould and Huntington Systems.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—The great railroad deal that is reported to be under way in Chicago with fair prospects of being soon completed was a general theme of discussion among railroad men here to-day although it has been heard of before. What caused the interest here was the rumor that as soon as the Western deal was completed an effort was to be made to bring in one of the large Eastern systems and thus form a monster arrangement that would spider web the entire country.

The deal in Chicago is the consolidation of all the Gould and Huntingdon systems and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe system, including some of the lines west of the Missouri River a direct and independent outlet to Chicago.

The roads between the Missouri River and Chicago to be taken into the new consolidation are: Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Chicago, Santa Fe and California and the Wabash. The total length of all lines taken in by the new combination will be 29,096 miles, as follows: Wabash Railroad, 948 miles; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, 5,678; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, 7,706; Denver and Rio Grande, 1,466; Denver and Rio Grande Western, 373 miles; Missouri Pacific, 4,994; Southern Pacific, 5,931. Total, 29,096 miles.

CUT THEIR THROATS.

A Divorced Mother Kills Her Children and Attempts Suicide.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Effie I. Scholl was found at her home in Tustin yesterday with her throat cut and her two children, a boy aged five and a girl aged three, were found dead beside her, with their throats also cut. Mrs. School had killed the children and attempted suicide, but she will probably recover. Her husband, from whom she was divorced three years ago, was trying to gain possession of the children, and it is believed that this caused her to commit the crime.

Working for Train's Release.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 17.—Lawyer E. A. Snow has requested a writ of habeas corpus in George Francis Train's case on the ground that he is non compos mentis, but Judge Devin has refused. Lawyer Snow claims that Mr. Train cannot be legally held under a civil process in this commonwealth until the courts decide by expert testimony that he is of sound mind as they are bound to give full faith to the courts of New York and Judge Davis on the testimony of Surgeon General Hamilton, found that he was non compos mentis in 1871.

Soldiers' Monument Dedicated.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 17.—The soldiers' monument at Winchendon was dedicated yesterday. Grand Army posts from all the towns in the vicinity took part in the exercises. The dedicating address was made by General Hincks, of Cambridge.

J. A. DEMAREST. - - MANAGING EDITOR.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—Thirty-six ladies were in attendance last Friday upon the Workers' Training Class, conducted by Mr. E. L. Suffern, at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. Visitors welcome to-morrow, Friday, at 4 P. M.

—In an advertisement elsewhere, Mr. J. B. Hatfield calls attention to his large assortment of Winter apples and potatoes. Call at the corner of Park avenue and Second street and inspect them.

—The date of the Fall games of the Plainfield Bicycle Club has been necessarily changed from Nov. 21, to Thursday, Nov. 14, on account of the appearance of a grand English Concert Company in Music Hall on Nov. 21.

—The First Assembly District Republican Convention will be held in Robinson's Hall, Metuchen, on Monday, October 21, at 2 P. M., to nominate a candidate for the Assembly and to transact such other business as may come before the convention.

—It was the "Silent Four" who gave the sociable at the residence of Mr. Peter G. Kline in North Plainfield, on Tuesday evening, and not the "Merry Four" as previously reported. The "Merry Four" will give their hop at Dunlap's Hall this evening

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The family of Mr. T. E. Hazell returned home from Bailey's Island, Maine, last evening.

Mr. Geo. D. Morrison will lead the prayer meeting at Hope chapel, to-night. All are welcome.

Fraternal Gathering of Knights.

Perseverance Lodge 74, K. of P., will tender a reception to Grant Lodge 89, of Jersey City, at Reform Hall, to-morrow night, at which Grand Lodge officers, as well as delegations from a number of sister lodges will also be present. The Third degree in amplified form will be conferred on two candidates by Grant Lodge's officers.

A literary programme will follow, terminating with a banquet to the visitors. An invitation is extended to all Knights at present residing in this city to be present on this occasion, and all are requested to meet in Perseverance Lodge room at 7:30 P. M., prompt, to receive guests.

Election of Elders and Deacons.

At the congregational meeting held in Trinity Reformed church, last evening, the following persons were elected to serve as elders and deacons for the term of two years each:

Elders—R. R. Field, G. Q. Dolliver and O. W. Dunham.

Deacons—E. E. Anthony, T. E. Hazell and A. L. Force.

Mr. James K. Arnold was also elected deacon for the term of one year.

Great Speakers to be Present.

President Gates of Rutgers College, Norney Williams of New York, W. R. Janeway and Prof. Jacobus of New Brunswick, will be among the speakers at the Y. M. C. A., District Convention, to be held at Rahway, Oct. 18 to 20. A good delegation will represent the Plainfield Association. For information apply to Mr. Stephen Cahoone of the District Committee, or at the Association rooms.

Raising the Telephone Wires.

The N. Y. & N. J. Telephone Co., has a force of nine men at work in this city substituting telephone poles, ranging in height from 50 to 65 feet, in place of the ones now in use. The company's object is to raise the wires above the trees so that the service will not be interfered with. The men are at present working on Liberty street.

The Tramp Nuisance.

The cool weather has brought around again the usual number of tramps, and people are being accosted by them for alms much to their annoyance. There should be some action taken to rid the city of this growing evil as some of the nomads are desperate characters and would do almost anything for money.

So They Are Here.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Rahway is making a strong effort to raise funds for the erection of a handsome building. Several thousand dollars have already been subscribed.

THE COMING FAIR.

Choir and School Will Work Together.

At a meeting of the officers of the Crescent Avenue church—when the matter of raising fifteen thousand dollars for the new Sunday school building was talked over—as no one had any faith that the whole amount could be raised at once, it was suggested that part of the amount be raised by means of a fair or entertainment of some kind.

As the choir had been very successful five years ago in raising twelve hundred dollars toward the new organ, and as they seemed the most tangible body, it was suggested that the matter be brought before them. They reluctantly consented and in addition to individual subscriptions by each member, pledged themselves to raise fifteen hundred dollars expecting the hearty cooperation of the congregation.

The statement was made that the whole amount was raised, and from that time a misunderstanding has arisen and the choir have been much embarrassed in their work, being met by the remark that the whole amount was raised, and if the choir pledged themselves to give fifteen hundred dollars why did they not do it, and not call on others to assist them?

At the teachers' quarterly meeting last evening, the matter was brought up, and as the Sunday school was the body most interested, and should as a body take an active part in providing for the chapel, it was voted that the choir receive the co-operation of the whole school in the fair which it was hoped could be held in the new chapel early in December. As there has been delay with the lumber it may have to be postponed, but in the meantime, committees will be formed and the whole matter be gotten in running order.

Choked to Death by Small Boys.

Under the above caption, the New York Tribune today says as follows, which is news to the people living in the immediate vicinity:

"James Kelly, a lad thirteen years old, who lived at Oak Tree, three miles from Plainfield, with three companions went into the woods near Plainfield on Tuesday to gather nuts. Kelly was gathering them up when other lads about Kelly's age appeared and attacked him. During the struggle Kelly was thrown to the ground and a chestnut burr was forced into his mouth. He began to choke and strangle. His assailants became alarmed and ran away, leaving him lying on the ground unconscious and bleeding from the nose and mouth. Kelly was conveyed to his home by his companions, but he died without regaining consciousness. The identity of the boys who attacked Kelly has not been established. The authorities are making an investigation.

Republican Primary Meetings.

The Republican voters of the City of Plainfield are requested to meet in their several wards on Monday evening, Oct. 21, 1889, for the purpose of electing delegates to the Third Assembly District Convention and the election of two members of the County Executive Committee from each ward.

The First ward to meet at the Associa rooms, East Front street, at 7:30, and is entitled to six delegates. The Second ward to meet at the Bryant school building, East Sixth street, at 8 o'clock, and is entitled to six delegates. The Third ward to meet at the Park House at 8 o'clock, and is entitled to six delegates. The Fourth ward to meet at the Association rooms, East Front street, at 8:30, and is entitled to seven delegates.

By order of the City Ex. Com.,
C. M. GODDARD, Chairman.
J. B. COWARD, Secretary.

Scotch Plains' Market for Women's Workmanship.

The Woman's Exchange of Scotch Plains intend holding their annual sale for the benefit of the Exchange on Friday, October 18. In this they follow the custom of the city exchanges, which all use this means to raise the means to carry on their enterprises successfully.

This seems to be an appropriate time to reiterate the statement that has several times been made in these columns that the Exchange is not run for the benefit of any church or society, but simply to afford the women of Scotch Plains who desire to avail themselves of it, a market for the results of their skilled workmanship. To-morrow the Exchange will be open all day, and all visitors will be welcome.

State Teachers' Association.

The State Teachers' Association willl meet in Trenton in December. The Council of Education will meet on December 26, in the office of the Principal of the Normal School. The Council is a select body, consisting of some of the most prominent educators in the State, and is limited in number to forty-eight. Superintendent Wm. N. Barringer, of Newark, President; Supervising Principal Gregory, of Trenton, Secretary, and Principal James N. Green, of the Normal School, Treasurer. The subject for discussion at the meeting will be the report presented by the Special Committee on School Organization at the June meeting, and discussed at some length at that time. It deals with the methods by which Boards of Education are constituted all over the United States.

Catarrh is in the blood. No cure for this loathsome and dangerous disease is possible until the poison is thoroughly eradicated from the system. For this purpose, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best and most economical medicine. Price $1. Six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

DR. KETCHAM HER SPONSOR.

His Kind Words in Endorsement of Mrs. Chandor.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—I observe in your edition of yesterday the name of Mrs. Chandor brought before the public in a somewhat unpleasant light. I therefore beg leave, as much less a stranger in Plainfield than Mrs. Chandor, to say to the Plainfield people through you—that while I know nothing of Mr. Chandor, or of Mrs. Chandor's relations to him, I do know that many of our noblest women have been infelicitously married, and I also know that Mrs. Chandor is an American, and a member of one of the most honorable and refined families in the city of New York, whose acquaintance and friendship I esteem it a privilege to enjoy.

Mrs. Chandor is my tenant, and since I ceased keeping house two years ago, has with her unusually bright and interesting children lived in my house in Fifth street; and during that time both I and my daughter have seen much of Mrs. Chandor as a tenant, and neighbor and friend, and know her to be a true, just, refined Christian woman. I write this without any consultation with Mrs. Chandor and the more freely because she is an Episcopalian and not a Presbyterian.

The Ocean Grove Convention.

The State W. C. T. U. Convention yesterday was well attended. St. Paul's church was filled, numbers coming in by every train. Exercises were held according to the programme for the day, Mrs. Downs presiding, and giving her excellent annual address in her usual pleasing way assuring her interested audience that our God is marching on and step by step we are coming to victor. The reports of Cor. Secretary, Mrs. Ellis, so well-known in Plainfield, and the report of the Treasurer, Mrs. Mickle, also were very interesting and satisfactory.

The afternoon session—following the noontide hour of prayer and a bountiful and substantial collation which was served at a hotel near by—was given to hearing the reports from individual Unions and Superintendents of the different branches of work. 219 Unions were represented by delegates who reported 6,436 pledged members. Think of it! 6,436 white ribbon women banded together in our little State of New Jersey—and increasing in numbers every year—to overthrow the curse of their homes—the saloon.

The list of honorary members, gentlemen who are pledged also, numbered 1,461 and $33,659.35 had been raised the past year to carry on the different branches of the work. Indeed the importance of the mission work of the W. C. T. U., was an earnest consideration, as items were given by the workers in the reports which stirred all hearts to greater activity for the coming year. Over 2,000 meetings had been held and those present from Plainfield, a goodly number, felt that Union county had well done her part. The Convention will close to-morrow, Friday, at noon.

Pernicious Effects of Tobacco.

—A number of school boys pummeled each other on Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon, to the evident delight of a number of spectators.

When the hair shows signs of falling, begin at once to use Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation strengthens the scalp, promotes the growth of new hair, restores the natural color to gray and faded hair, and renders it soft, pliant and glossy.

—$1,483,000, or an average of $59,320 each, has been contributed by twenty-five men in the United States to the work of the Young Men's Christian Association.

MUNICIPAL POLITICS.

A Contemporary Who Doesn't Know That Prohibition in Plainfield Has Been Tried Already, and Found Wanting.

(From the Central Times.)

The municipal political pot is beginning to simmer. It will not commence to boil until after the State election. The contest promises to be the usually mixed up affair that it always is as respects the "issues." The license question is of course at the front and, as there is a temperance campaign already planned for the two weeks in November, beginning with the 10th day of the month, by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, that question promises to be thrust forward in the election even more prominently than usual.

Unfortunately, the license issue is still involved in the election of Councilmen, and the difficulty of always combining competency and anti-license principles in the same Council candidate is likely to be experienced again.

The difficulty could, however, be easily solved by the Republican party of Plainfield, as it has a natural majority of 300 or more of the voters. This could be done by the adoption of a Republican platform pledging the party to an anti-license policy in the Council, and securing the acceptance of a nomination on that platform by some of the best men in the party, who may not, indeed, be Prohibitionists from conviction but who are perfectly willing to give Prohibition a fair trial in Plainfield. Will not the Republican party do this?

Seven Councilmen are to be elected this year, three of them on the general ticket. The four who hold over are Messrs Dunham, Jenkins, Newhall and Gallup. Of these, the first three are anti-license Republicans. The election of three more anti-license Republicans would secure a Prohibition Council. The duty of Republicans seems clear and easy of fulfilling.

The Woman's Synodical Convention.

The annual Synodical Convention of the New Jersey Women's Home Missionary Society was held yesterday in the First Presbyterian church at New Brunswick. Delegates from every county were present. Mrs. C. H. Langdon of Elizabeth, Recording Secretary, reported $15,438 received and $11,861 spent during the year. The Committee on Resolutions reported favorably the following, which was adopted:

Resolved, That, while this Society makes no pledge, it will do all in its power to raise $6,000 for a mission school in Utah, to be known as the New Jersey Academy.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—Mrs. W. E. Honeyman of Plainfield; First Vice President—Mrs. J. H. Owens of Perth Amboy; Second Vice President—Mrs. J. B. Beaumont of Chatham; Recording Secretary—Mrs. C. H. Langdon of Elizabeth; Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. M. E. Druax of Perth Amboy; Treasurer—Mrs. G. P. Milligan of Plainfield. Addresses were made by Dr. Booth of Englewood; Miss Perlee of Spanish Fork, Utah; Mrs. Owens of Perth Amboy, and Mrs. J. Andrews of India.

Baptist Sunday School Convention.

The Thirty-ninth annual meeeting of the East New Jersey Baptist Sunday School Association of which Plainfield is a part will be held with the First Baptist church in Elizabeth, next Tuesday. The programme embraces the usual routine work and the following special topics:

3:05—Open Conference of Teachers—Subject: "Elements of Successful Teaching," led by Rev. W. J. Bronson, of Perth Amboy. (Participants allowed five minutes.)

4:05—Address—"The Teacher and the Class," by Rev. W. C. Bitting, pastor of Mount Morris Baptist church, New York city.

7:30—Address—"The Duty of the Church to the Sunday School," by Rev. J. K. Folwell, of Westfield.

8:20—Address—"Enthusiasm in Sunday School Work," by Rev. W. W. Boyd, D. D., of Newark.

Y. M. C. A. Convention Trains.

The 4.30, 5.15, 5.45, 6 and 6.30 P. M. trains from New York on the Central Railroad connect at Elizabeth with trains for Rahway. Gentlemen finding it necessary to return to Plainfield the same night from the Y. M. C. A. District Convention, can leave Rahway at 9.03, arriving at Plainfield at 9.43 P. M. Services will be held to-morrow, Friday, evening, in the Second Presbyterian church, and Saturday evening in the First Presbyterian church at 7.45 o'clock. Assignments for entertainment will be made at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, 160 Main street, Rahway, and at the close of the evening session at the church.

Representing Franklin Council.

Franklin Council, No. 41, of this city, is represented at the State Council session of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, held in I. O. O. F. Hall, at Trenton, today, by P. C., Charles C. Davis. The meeting was called at 10 o'clock this morning and probably will last until a late hour this evening. P. C., Robert E. Connolly was also a representative but not being well was unable to attend. P. C., Peter H. Bennett was appointed a proxy to represent the Council in his place.

CHURCH CENSUS STATISTICS.

Supt. Porter Highly Compliments His Appointee, Dr. Carroll of North Plainfield.

To the Editor of the Evening Post: SIR—Having determined to include church statistics in the special inquiries to be made for the eleventh census, I wish to announce to you, and through you to your readers, my desire and purpose to obtain the fullest and most accurate results possible in this special department. I need not enlarge upon the value of such results to any who are in any wise interested in church work and progress, and wish to know the numerical strength of the various religious denominations of the United States.

The inquiry will be broad enough in scope to embrace every religious body, of whatever name or creed, however few or many its churches and members, and it will be conducted with the utmost fairness and impartiality. The information sought will be arranged under five heads:

1. Organizations or Societies.
2. Church Edifices.
3. Seating Capacity.
4. Value of Church Property.
5. Communicants.

This is as much, in my judgment, as it will be wise to undertake in this direction for the eleventh census.

In order to prosecute this plan successfully and to make the results so thorough and accurate that they cannot be impeached, the Government has to count largely on the prompt and generous cooperation of those in each denomination who are in a position to furnish the information desired. This information cannot be gathered by the enumerators. They are already fully burdened; and the appropriations available for the census will not admit of the appointment of special enumerators for this work. It is necessary, therefore, to make church statistics a special inquiry, and they must be gathered chiefly by schedules placed in the hands of some competent person in each of the minor ecclesiastical subdivisions of the various churches.

The conduct of this special inquiry has been committed to a gentleman whose qualifications for the work will, I am sure, be instantly recognized. H. K. Carroll, LL.D., editor of the Independent of New York, has consented to assume the duties of the position. Dr. Carroll is now engaged in preparing plans for such a division of the territory of each denomination as will make it comparatively easy for those to whom his inquiries will be addressed to give a prompt and faithful response. I ask for him, and I am sure you will heartily second me, such cheerful and generous assistance as he may require.

Supt. of Census.

THE NEW FREEHOLDER LAW.

The Act Declared Constitutional—What Its Provisions Are.

The Judges of the Supreme Court (Messrs Beasley, VanSyckle, Depue and Scudder) before whom the question of the constitutionality of the Freeholder law, passed last Winter, was argued, have unanimously decided that it is valid and binding. This decision was formally communicated Tuesday at Trenton. The opinion declares that the classification of counties of the first-class is constitutional and acts based thereon are legal; that the title of the act is good, and that Assembly districts may be used as a political division for the election of Freeholders.

The law was passed to reorganize the Board of Freeholders of Essex and Hudson counties, and provides that they shall consist of one Chosen Freeholder from each Assembly district of such county, to be elected at the November election by Assembly districts, with a Director-at-Large elected from the whole of such county.

The fifteen Freeholders elected last Tuesday, in Newark, cannot, therefore, act. One member of the board will be elected from each Assembly district, and a Director-at-Large will be elected by the voters of the county next month. The new board will have eleven instead of forty members, as at present, and will in all probability be under Democratic control. The salaries of the Freeholders representing the districts will be $1,200 each, and that of the Director-at-Large $2,000 a year. The law does not apply to Union county.

The "Battle of Gettysburg."

Large audiences were present at both the afternoon and evening production of the "Battle of Gettysburg," in Music Hall, yesterday afternoon and last evening. The exhibition consists of ten mammoth paintings in oil, executed by the eminent artist Frank D. Briscoe, and an able corps of assistants, representing months of untiring labor and an immense expenditure of money. The ten works of art represent in a realistic degree the ten great episodes of that famous fight on the fields of Gettysburg. "Opening of the battle at McPherson's woods," "Evening of the first day," "General Hancock's arrival on the field," "Noon of the second day," "Afternoon of the second day," "Evening of the second day," "Night of the second day," "Morning of the third day," "Noon of the third day" and "Afternoon of the third day and end of the battle."

She stood at the gate in the late Spring twilight, and when she said good bye, she felt neuralgia kiss her rosy cheek; but she only smiled, for her mother had invested 25c in a bottle of Salvation Oil.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

WATCHING SULLIVAN

The Noted Irish Leader Under Suspicion Again.

HIS SECRETARY IS ARRESTED.

Charged With Attempting to Fix Cronin Jurors.

More Arrests Are Expected To-Day—State's Attorney Longenecker Says He Will Soon Have the Arch-Conspirator—The Work of Obtaining a Jury Still Dragging Along.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Henry M. Statenberg, private secretary and stenographer for Alexander Sullivan, was arrested last evening for alleged complicity in the jury-bribing in the Cronin case. It is believed that Statenberg acted as the confidential agent or messenger who carried messages to John Graham and Fred Smith, who were arrested a few days ago for jury-bribing.

This newest and most sensational development in the famous case brings the prosecution one step nearer and closer to the man upon whom, it has so often been alleged, the burden of the entire affair rests. The former dictator of the Irish Nationalists, the head of the triangle, the quiet, stoical lawyer, whose office is in the Opera House, is slowly but surely being drawn once more into the meshes of the State's Attorney's net. It has been impossible to tell who was the arch conspirator, but whoever he may be he is resorting, it is alleged, to still more serious methods.

It was rumored about the Criminal Court Building that having failed to bribe the jury, the arch conspirator had minions at work to induce the witnesses for the State to either modify their evidence when called to testify or get out of town. This failing, more desperate means, according to the rumor, would be employed after.

The State is using every precaution to protect its witnesses, and since the exposure of the plans of the jury-bribing game, extraordinary measures have been adopted. It was authoritatively stated this morning that further and more sensational arrests might be expected at any moment. Judge Longenecker and the assistant counsel for the State refused, however, to give the names of the men until they have been brought in.

The hunt for jurors in the case proper continued to-day without result, though one promising candidate remains in the box.

GOV. HILL AT ATLANTA.

He is Smothered With Roses and His Address is Received With Cheers.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 17.—Thirty thousand people greeted Governor Hill and party at the Piedmont Exposition grounds. The Governor's carriage was profusely decorated with flowers, the black veneering on the wheels and body of the vehicle being completely covered with roses. Six iron-gray horses drew the carriage, in which were seated, besides New York's Executive, Henry W. Grady, Governor Gordon and Hon. Roswell P. Flower. Governor Gordon's staff, mounted and wearing the brilliant gold and yellow uniform similar to that of the German Uhlans, escorted the party.

The Governor delivered his address from a flag-covered rostrum facing the grand stand on the right of the race-track, which was also elaborately decorated with bunting. The Governor was frequently interrupted in his address by cheers, and when he referred to the solidity of the South the applause was almost deafening. After the opening ceremonies Governor Hill and party were given a dinner at the Driving Club's house on the grounds.

Governor Hill's speech was not political in a partisan sense, though he touched more or less upon political questions. Much of it was devoted to a review of the nation's industrial and scientific progress, as manifested in such exhibitions as the present.

DOMINION DIFFICULTIES.

The British Minister Will Soon Have a Talk With Secretary Blaine.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, said last evening that he expected within two or three weeks to call upon Secretary Blaine, when he would broach the Canadian Fisheries and the Behring Sea seal questions. His previous visit, he said, had been such a trying one that he had not communicated with the American State Department with regard to the diplomatic differences between the two countries, but he was prepared to do so. He would not, of course, give any indication of the desires of his Government in these two matters.

Safe from Grave Robbers.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 17.—Mr. Edward Emerson, the son of the illustrious Ralph Waldo Emerson, whose grave in Sleepy Hollow was recently desecrated, has taken steps to prevent any future disturbance by amateur grave robbers. He has made a personal examination of the casket which contains his father's remains and is satisfied that the contents were not disturbed. He ordered the coffin placed in a new box and will have the whole enclosed in a heavy stone tomb under ground. The slabs are to be hermetically sealed and the tomb will be made so strong that only a determined effort by professional body snatchers could rob the coffin of its contents.

Mr. Hayes Re-elected Commander.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17. — Brevet Major-General R. B. Hayes presided at the annual meeting of the Commandery-in-Chief of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and before the session was concluded the members decided to make an exception to a heretofore unbroken rule and re-elect him their commander-in-chief by acclamation. St. Louis was selected for their next meeting place.

Cut His Wife's Throat With a Razor.

CAMBRIDGE, N. J., Oct. 17.—Harvey Hedge murdered his wife here by cutting her throat with a razor. He then drew the weapon across his own throat, but it is not believed that his injuries will prove fatal.

Big Electric Light Sale.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—The entire plant of the Brush Electric Company, it is understood, has been sold to the Thomson-Houston Electric Company for a cash consideration of $3,250,000.

HURLED FROM THE TRACK.

Two Trains Collide and Fifty Passengers Injured.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 17.—The collision between the two trains on the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad at Gibson, a few miles from Omaha, resulted in injury to at least fifty passengers and the complete demolition of two engines, a chair car and a combination car.

Gibson is the meeting point for the two trains, but the westbound was slightly behind time and had just crossed the spur when the east-bound train struck the rear end, which was still on the main line, and hurled both engines and the two coaches from the track. The combination coach and the chair car were both crowded with passengers and the chair car, after being overturned, caught fire, many of the passengers being burned in addition to their other injuries.

The exact number of the injured has not as yet been ascertained. Peter Reuland, proprietor of the Tremont House in this city, was so severely injured that he died shortly after being taken to the hospital. Mary Butler, of South Omaha, had a hand crushed and was badly bruised about the body. She is in a precarious condition. Charles Laure, of Craig, Mo., had an ear cut off, his face severely cut, and his body and lower limbs badly bruised. He is also in an almost hopeless condition. Engineer Gillespie of the east-bound train was badly bruised about the body. Henry A. Weller, of the Richardson Drug Company, Omaha, was badly cut and bruised about the head and shoulders.

The following of the injured are at the Millard Hotel: E. Mix, of New York, shoulder dislocated and lower limbs badly bruised; Francis Elder, New York, bruised and thought to have received internal injuries; Frederick J. Schultz, New York, slightly cut about the head and face; J. W. Falkenberg, Chicago, lower limbs and shoulder bruised.

The following are at the Murray: G. W. Chaffee, Boston, slightly bruised; Isaac La Bold, Cincinnati, injured about the shoulders and head, but not badly; J. Kalisher, New York, shoulder badly bruised; S. Kemper, Buffalo, N. Y., bruised about the body and head cut; Isaac W. Brooks, Hartford, Conn., injured about the body.

Of the trainmen, Conductor Loverin of the west-bound train, had his right lower limb badly bruised and amputation may be found necessary. Engineer McCay, of the same train was slightly bruised about the body. The two firemen, Haskins and Martin, escaped with slight injuries.

THE POISONED BOARDERS.

Only Three Still Ill and the Cause Not Arsenical Poisoning.

WOODBURY, N. J., Oct. 17.—Of the seventeen persons poisoned by eating oysters at the boarding house of Mrs. Joseph Morgan, only three are still ill from the effects. One of these is out, but is still very weak.

The three who are still ill are Walter Hawn and Albert C. Watson, who are still confined to the house, and Albert F. Wilson, who is able to be on the street.

The girl, Maggie Morris, has not been arrested, nor is she likely to be. Her reputation is above reproach. She has always been regarded as an honest and upright girl.

The symptoms with which the boarders were attacked is now declared not to be those of arsenical poison. Official investigation proves this fact. The symptoms are those of verdigris poisoning. It is often found in brass and copper kettles and frequently iron pots. It is believed that the vessel in which the oysters were cooked was not properly cleaned. The vessel used was an iron kettle.

Artificial Fuel Gas.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 17.—The Fuel Gas and Electrical Engineering Company, of which George Westinghouse, Jr., is the principal stockholder, announce that mechanism has been perfected whereby artificial fuel gas can be produced at a less cost than is expended in piping the natural gas from the wells. The process is as yet a secret, as all the patents are not yet secured. The company promises to be able to furnish the gas very shortly.

The Bakers' Strike in Newark.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 17.—At a special meeting of the Trades Assembly of this city the action of the striking bakers was endorsed. Bakers' Unions Nos. 2 and 4 have issued an appeal for public support. They claim that the men imported from New York to take the place of union men are green and incapable of doing the work properly. Seven baking firms have been boycotted by the strikers. The lockout has assumed serious proportions, and may become general in the trade.

Conemaugh Benevolent Society.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 17.—By the advice and assistance of Miss Clara Barton there has been organized here the Benevolent Society of the Conemaugh Valley. The purpose of the society is to take up the work of relief after Miss Barton goes away, the intention being to look after the cases of destitution. The goods on hand when Miss Barton leaves will be turned over to the society, as well as a large amount of goods in the hands of committees throughout the country.

Collision on the Lehigh Valley.

HAZLETON, Pa., Oct. 17.—A coal engine on the Lehigh Valley road ran into the caboose of a gravel train at Lattimer, near this city, yesterday, smashing the engine and caboose, and injuring Thomas Reed, John Blass and an unknown Hungarian. Reed's skull was fractured, and it is thought he will die. The balance of the laborers and train hands had a narrow escape.

Backed Into a Freight Train.

LEBANON, Ind., Oct. 17.—A construction train loaded with section men on the Midland Railroad, three miles east of here, backed into a freight train. Sherman Moore, brakeman, was ground to pieces; Oliver Heath and John Fitch were seriously injured. Several others were badly hurt. The freight failed to clear the main track in switching.

Canada Negotiating With Spain.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 17.—It is learned at the Finance Department that Sir Charles Tupper has left London for Madrid to endeavor to reopen negotiations for a commercial treaty between Canada and Spain to include the Spanish West India Islands. It is understood that Sir Charles visited Spain at the request of the Spanish Government.

TOLD OF THE TITLED.

EX-QUEEN ISABELLA, of Spain, recently won forty thousand francs on a horse-race.

THE King of Italy recently visited the tomb of Garibaldi and placed upon it a wreath.

WHEN the Czar of Russia visits his father-in-law, the King of Denmark, he pays all the expenses.

THE King and Queen of Greece have seven children, the youngest a year old. The Princess Alexander is a very pretty girl of nineteen.

MR. LABOUCHERE says that if the Prince of Wales were to appear in petticoats the streets of London would soon be filled with men in the same garments.

LITTLE KING ALEXANDER, of Servia, is much impressed with a sense of his own dignity. He can scarcely write three lines on any topic without using the expression "I, the King."

DOM PEDRO has ordered the Brazilian Minister at Washington to keep him informed about the World's Fair of 1892. The Emperor will attend the fair if he is alive and well at the time.

QUEEN VICTORIA has a great fondness for pearls, and has taken special care that all her daughters shall have fine pearl necklaces for their adornment. One of her first purchases after the birth of each has been two or three pearls, and every year until their marriage she has added a pearl or two to her stock, until the necklace she required was ready.

THE Court of Austria has not yet recovered from the sensation caused by the Shah of Persia. He was considered at Vienna a thorough barbarian. He paid no attention to his royal hosts and snubbed them in the most brutal fashion. On three different occasions he made appointments to visit public institutions at Vienna, and Archdukes and Ministers assembled to receive, but he came not. His manners at the table were horrible, and he seemed to take delight in shocking the onlookers.

THE Queen of Corea belongs to one of the greatest families of the country and it is an open secret that she has at times her voice in the councils of the King. She has an establishment of her own inside the palace grounds, and the King, the Crown Prince and the Queen have each their separate households. The Queen dresses, of course, in Corean costume. She wears fine silks and she has beautiful diamonds. She carries a chatelaine watch, which is diamond-studded, and she smokes American cigarettes by the thousand.

THE Princess of Wales has been very stern and particular in the education of her daughters. She has had good material to work upon, as her girls are clever by nature. The Princess has taken great pride in their accomplishments and feels that her discipline has been extremely beneficial. The Prince of Wales has sometimes pleaded with her in vain to give her daughters a holiday. She has often answered that, as they were to hold high social positions, they had no time to waste while acquiring social graces.

THE royal family of England is not walking well at present. The Queen's knee-joint is still swollen and she can not walk without a stick. The Prince of Wales still suffers from a varicose vein and limps perceptibly. An affection of the instep causes the Princess of Wales to limp a trifle. Prince Albert Victor, who may rule over England some day, recently met with an accident while stalking deer in Scotland. In leaping from one bowlder to another he fell and sprained his ankle. He still goes about with his leg bandaged and walks lame. Royalty halts, so to speak.

THE King of Italy has a taste for precious stones that once seemed likely to develop into monomania. He used to carry handfuls of them in his pockets, and offered them on occasion, as old gentlemen used to offer a pinch of snuff. The crown jewels of Italy were always splendid. Victor Emanuel added largely to them, and Humbert has increased them with some marvelous gems. The famous Savoy necklace of pearls, which Queen Margherita loves to wear, consists of row upon row of magnificent pearls, which go round the neck and hang down over the corsage. The value of the necklace is considerably over half a million of dollars.

STRANGE AND STRIKING.

A PLAIN gold ring was lately found by a Washington (N. C.) man imbedded in a large block of ice.

A FARMER in Harrison County, O., while repairing his house recently found a pocket-book that he lost in 1840.

WOMEN have often successfully hid valuables in their hair, and a young French lady recently found a 1,000-franc note in her deceased mother's chignon.

SAYS a Philadelphia jeweler: "I had a man in here lately whose watch would not run properly just because he wore it over his heart. It's odd, but if a man is of active temperament it makes his watch run slow."

A NEW YORK farmer fired a shot at the reflection of a burglar in a mirror and shivered the glass. When he came to replace the mirror he found a niche in the wall back of it wherein his grandfather had secreted $15,000 in cash.

A BOY in Maryland recently found a small snake having two perfectly developed heads. When teased it will strike viciously, sometimes with both heads and sometimes with one. Each is perfectly independent of the other, and is attached to the body about three-quarters of an inch back on the neck.

A RESIDENT of Clarksville, Ga., lately cut a perfectly sound, fresh-looking muskmelon he had just received from Banks County, and upon examination it was found that a number of the seeds had sprouted, and had roots nearly an inch long. The melon was perfectly sound and the flesh firm and nice.

A REMARKABLE wedding took place at Goshen, Ind., recently. Messick Carpenter, aged eighty-nine, was wedded to Mrs. Phene Clandaniel, who has seen sixty-nine summers. Both of the contracting parties had been wedded three times before, and they were accompanied at the ceremony by their grandchildren.

BY A series of strange coincidences eight young people living in Hatfield township, near Lansdale, Pa., became engaged to each other at the same time, fixed upon the same date for their marriage, and were married by the same minister at the same place and hour the other day. Up to the hour of the ceremony each of the four couples had been totally unaware of the intention of the others, as to when, where and by whom they should be married, although the fact of their engagement was known.

THERE is a lady in Ellijoy, Ga., who has a singular experience about reading. When she was about twenty years old she was converted and joined the church. She did not know how to read, just barely knew her letters, and she was very anxious to read the Bible. She got her sister to help her read three chapters in the Bible, and then she took it up herself, and can read the Bible as fluently as any one, and pronounce all the proper names correctly. The strange part of it is that she can not read any thing else but the Bible. She can not get any sense out of a newspaper or any other book.

FRAGMENTS FROM ABROAD.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA is becoming a wine-producing country.

THE annual returns show that 78,084 persons emigrated from Ireland during the past year.

THE electric light on the Eiffel tower, Paris, is reported to be visible at Orleans, sixty-nine and a-half miles distant.

MORE than 70,000 acres have been bought in the Bahamas by British-American capitalists, to be devoted to raising sisal hemp.

THERE are over twenty thousand young women in Great Britain studying music with the idea of some day blossoming into stars.

THERE is a spot in Siberia about thirty miles square where the ground has not thawed out for the last 100 years, and where it is frozen to a depth of sixty feet.

A BRONZE statue of General Gordon, lately unveiled in London, weighs two tons, and it took two hours to hoist it into place by means of a huge three-legged crane.

THERE are thirty oyster beds in Tangier sound, whose united area is 17,976 square nautical miles, with twice as much additional bottom where oysters are occasionally caught.

CARDINAL GIBBONS has started a movement for the erection of a memorial to Cecilius Calvert, second Lord Baltimore, the pioneer of civil and religious liberty in America.

"NEVER before," says the Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph, "has work been so abundant and so well remunerated in the city as during the exhibition season."

A SYNDICATE has offered £4,400,000 for the fortification wall surrounding Paris and the ground attached to it. The wall cost £3,700,000. The French War Office has recommended the demolition of the circular wall.

THE sole panacea for every ailment in China is a plaster. So great is the national predilection for this method of treatment that the Chinese have not inaptly been described as a plaster-and-blister-loving people.

MR. EIFFEL, the builder of the tall tower of Paris, is expected in Quebec shortly, to build a $5,000,000 bridge across the St. Lawrence, which would make a continuous roadway from ocean to ocean on Canadian soil.

A MOVEMENT is on foot in St. Petersburg for observing Sunday as it is understood in the United States and Great Britain. It is said that 1,200 St. Petersburg merchants lately declared themselves willing to keep their places of business closed on the first day of the week.

AN English paper states that some days ago there was terminated at Warsaw a lawsuit which lasted four centuries. The suit was over a forty-acre piece of uncultivated land. It was commenced in 1490, and was, curiously enough, brought to an end by amicable arbitration.

ITALY has been almost devastated by the Abyssinian Embassy bearing presents to King Humbert. The King of Abyssinia's brother headed the delegation, and several dignitaries accompanied him. Their appetites are enormous. Ten of them ate thirty-seven steaks at one sitting.

THE Germans are distinguished for their love of titles. The climax in this direction was reached recently in Darmstadt, when the Grand Duke created a man "Court Sauer-Kraut Cutter." Hereafter he must be addressed according to custom as "Mr. Court Sauer-Kraut Cutter," and he will be offended unless the title is used.

THE German Government has issued regulations for the management of public dances organized for the diversion of children on national holidays. Dancing is not to be until after noon and in no case to be continued after eight o'clock p. m. No one but school children to join "the mazy." Boys and girls who happen to be undergoing preparation for the ceremony of confirmation are absolutely forbidden to indulge in terpsichorean festivities. Waltzes, polkas, quadrilles and cotillions are forbidden. Other amusement than dancing is urgently recommended for children of tender years.

GARDEN GLEANINGS.

ANNUAL plants are those which grow from seed and mature and die in one year. These should be collected after the plant has obtained full growth and are in bud to flower.

TO HAVE a plentiful supply of early greens next season sow turnip seeds and allow the turnips to grow and remain in the ground during the winter. A slight covering of straw will protect them.

THE proper way to control the growth of geraniums is to pinch back their growth and to remove buds as the plant is losing its proportion. This method does not interfere with the vitality of the plant and prevents much useless growth.

BIENNIAL roots are those which grow from seed first year and go to seed the second. These must be dug late in the fall of the first year, or at the latest in the early spring of the second, before they begin to bloom. Burdock and yellow dock belong to this class.

IN propagating honeysuckles, cuttings of wood when nearly ripe will strike, if inserted in a shady border in the autumn and duly watered. Perhaps the most successful mode of propagating is by layers pegged in moist soil in the autumn when the leaves commence falling.

GARDEN preparation should really begin in the fall. Gardens, as a rule, contain more weeds than any other plot on the farm. They should be mowed down, raked off and burned. The plot should then be plowed, to remain in the rough condition for the frost to penetrate. It will render the cultivation easier in the spring.

PERENNIALS are those that live in the ground for several years. These to be collected very early in the spring before growth starts; or in summer after the seed ripen, and not while the leaves are growing. Large roots must be cut crosswise and dried quickly; to avoid turning dark or molding, expose direct to the sun's rays.

BITS ABOUT BIVALVES.

OYSTERS will quickly freeze in cold weather.

OYSTERS can not be fed by any artifical means.

WHAT people call the eye of the oyster is scientifically known as the abductor muscle.

IN analyzing the contents of the stomach of an oyster nothing but vegetable matter has ever been found.

THE food of an oyster consists of such microscopic organisms and organic particles as float freely in the water.

THE eggs of the female oyster, one authority says, number 128,000,000, but Prof. Rice said that 50,000,000 was as many as he cared to estimate.

OPINIONS differ as to whether rocky bottoms are best for oyster beds. Many experienced oystermen believe that soft sandy loam is the most fruitful.

OYSTERS should be piled up or stacked in a heap, with the bottom shell or left valve at the bottom, as the deep shell holds the liquid on which the animal lives. Good stock, if packed closely this way, will keep for a long time.

Big Flow of Oil.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 17.—An oil well, owned by the Arbuckle family, was struck last night at Chattress, just outside the city limits. It is flowing at the rate of 1,000 barrels a day, and is the largest well ever struck so close to the city. It will open up a large amount of new territory.

Judgment Against James G. Blaine, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—James G. Blaine, Jr., has confessed judgment to Dr. F. C. Fuller for $329.65 in the Supreme Court. The action was brought to recover payment for professional services rendered to the defendant's wife and child between June 1 and November 1, 1888.

Secretary Noble Goes to Maryland.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — Secretary Noble left the city to-day as the guest of Congressman McComas to attend the Hagerstown, Md., agricultural fair. The Secretary's mother was born near Hagerstown, and while there he will visit the scene of her early childhood.

Dr. O'Reilly's Sudden Trip Explained.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Dr. O'Reilly sailed on the Teutonic with Col. John Atkinson and the latter's sons yesterday. Dr. O'Reilly denied the report that he was going to Europe in response to a cablegram from London and added that not only had he his Bishop's permission but all of his friends in Detroit were made aware of his trip. He takes the ocean voyage, he said, for much needed rest and for his health and will be absent about six weeks.

Terrible Accident at a Railway Station.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 17.—An accident happened yesterday in the railway station in this city. A passenger train from Mours, running at full speed, was approaching the station when the engineer applied the brakes to slow up. The brakes did not work, and the train dashed into the station and against the buffers erected at the end of the track. A number of carriages were wrecked, and thirty persons were injured.

Yesterday a locomotive and several freight cars were thrown down an embankment at Andover Plain, N. H., on the Northern R. R., by a collision with the rear section of the train, which had broken apart. The track was blocked for several hours necessitating the carrying around of passengers.

BARGAIN HOUSE.

Come in at any time and you will always find buyers; and there is many a good reason for it. We carry the largest stock—keep almost everything that one wants. We buy direct for cash and sell for the same, and sell our goods on a closer margin, and more of them, than all others. Sometimes we sell auction goods and remnants, but why not? Little difference does it make to you if some concern fails and we buy their stock at 50c on the dollar and sell it at the same rate—'tis only your gain. We'll buy anything and sell anything if we can sell it less than its real value. We are here for business, and we think we are getting it. 'Tis time to think of Winter goods, and we have them. There is everything that is new and desirable in dress goods, and the prices are right. Underwear for Ladies, Gentlemen and Children, in all qualities and sizes. We sell for 25c an extra heavy red flannel—value 35c., same in blue. There are 1,000 yards. remnants of French Flannel—price 10c, value 15c.

If you want blankets and comfortables, come and see us. We can sell you a good 11/4 wool blanket for $2 50, and a good comfortable, that is filled with white cotton, for $1 25.

Housekeepers will find our furnishing goods department an interesting place. We keep everything needed in Crockery, Tinware, Granite Ironware, Hall and Parlor Lamps, Rugs, Matting, Curtains, &c. Come and see us.

We deliver goods everywhere free of charge.

POOLE IS THE MAN

The Pension Commissionership Seems to be Settled.

SENATOR HISCOCK'S VICTORY.

The Nomination Likely to be Made To-Day by the President.

No Big Grand Army Man Willing to Take the Responsibility of the Position—Vice-President Morton Worked for Poole—It is Asserted that the Appointment Has Been Fully Decided Upon.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The Pension Commissionship has been nearly settled so many times that all reports concerning it are received of late with a reservation of doubt. But it looks this time as if it were a go and that Mr. Poole of New York, whom Senator Hiscock has been pressing for the place since before Tanner was appointed, will be the next Commissioner.

Mr. Hiscock has been working for Poole with all his might, and the Vice-President was at the White House presumably talking on the same subject. Candidates, one at a time, have been brought to the front, examined and rejected, and the big Grand Army men have been unwilling to take the responsibilities of the position.

Meanwhile Poole has stood steadily as a candidate and Hiscock has been pulling the wires in his favor.

The only thing, it is understood, that stood in his way from the first was the desire on the part of the President to get a prominent Grand Army leader to take the place. Failing in this, the name of Poole came strongly to the front again, and it is asserted now that his appointment has been decided upon and is liable to be made any hour.

GOV. HARTRANFT DEAD.

The Hero of the Old Stone Bridge Passes Away at His Home in Norristown.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Ex-Governor John F. Hartranft, who has been ill with pneumonia complicated by uremia, for the past two weeks, is dead at his home in Norristown, Montgomery county.

Many telegrams of condolence are being received by the family of the late ex-Governor Hartranft. The funeral occurs Monday afternoon with military honors, General Snowden representing the State.

John Frederick Hartranft was born in New Hanover, Montgomery County, Pa., on December 16, 1830. He graduated at Union College in 1853, and after studying law for a few years was admitted to the bar in 1859. At the outbreak of the civil war he raised the Fourth Pennsylvania Regiment and commanded it during its enlistment. He then organized the Fifty-first Pennsylvania Regiment, and was commissioned its colonel July 27, 1861, and accompanied Gen. Burnside in his expedition through North Carolina. He led the charge that carried the stone bridge at Antietam and commanded his regiment at Fredericksburg. He fought in many other important battles, and was breveted major-general in August, 1864. He was elected Auditor-General of Pennsylvania in October, 1865, was re-elected in 1868 and in 1872-8 was Governor of Pennsylvania. At the close of his second term he removed to Philadelphia, where he was appointed postmaster in June, 1879, and collector of the port in 1880. He was also major-general commanding the National Guard of the State of Pennsylvania.

Responsible for Engineer Everett's Death.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 18.—The Railroad Commissioners find that Fred Cota, the boss switchman, is directly responsible for the death of Engineer C. H. Everett, who was killed in the railroad yard here, Sept. 23, while executing orders given to him by Cota. The latter had switched three coal cars upon another track and forgot to inform Everett.

Report of Albany's Grand Jury.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The Grand Jury have made their presentments and have been discharged. Not a word was said about the Assembly ceiling case although two sealed indictments were handed in. As to the nature of the indictments nothing could be learned, but it is not believed that they are against any of the ceiling conspirators.

Connecticut's Vote Against Prohibition.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 18.—The official canvass of the vote in Connecticut October 7 on the prohibitory amendment has been made by the State Board of Canvassers and shows a majority of 27,595 against the amendment. The officers did not receive official returns from three small towns, which, as unofficially reported, would have raised the figures to 27,690.

Congressman Nutting's Funeral.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The funeral of Congressman Nutting was attended by the 29th and 38th Companies, N. Y. S. G., with the Kingsford band, the Grand Army posts, Masonic bodies and a vast concourse of citizens. The Rev. Judson Swift preached the sermon.

Big Sale of Live Stock.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 18.—At the sheriff's sale of the North Montana Cattle Company the cattle and horses brought $172,000. This is the largest sale ever made under similar conditions in Montana. One hundred and twenty car loads will be shipped from Fort Benton this week for the St. Paul and Chicago markets.

Killed in a Quarrel.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—During a quarrel last night in a cheap lodging house on Delaware avenue, Andrew Dolan, aged 62, stabbed and killed an unknown man, who recently came here from New York.

FALL OF A SCAFFOLD.

Nine Workmen Carried Down and the Foreman Killed.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 18.—The scaffold erected at the Bethlehem Water Works by McKee & Wilson, boilermakers, fell yesterday, carrying with it nine men who were at the height of 48 feet.

George Wormer, foreman, was killed; George Murphy and Cornelius McGattigan, fatally injured, and Lewis Reyeur, John Bird, Owen Doyle, John Kiernan, Thomas Walbert and Elmer Kunkle, seriously injured.

The men were erecting a large stand pipe and the scaffold upon which they stood was considered safe. All the injured, except Walbert and Kunkle, were taken to a hospital. All live in South Bethlehem, except Kunkle whose home is in South Easton.

SMALLPOX SCOURGE.

Over One Hundred Cases in Four Days at a Famous Fishing Resort.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—Mayor Hunt, of Sandusky, O., has telegraphed the State Board of Health in regard to smallpox ravages at Pelee Island, the famous fishing resort in Lake Erie. The despatch says the wildest excitement exists, over one hundred cases of smallpox having developed there within the last four days. The island has about 1,000 population, every one of whom, its is feared, has or will contract the disease.

All avenues of escape from the place have been closed by the American and Canadian authorities. Every one of the entire group of Lake Erie Islands, including Put-in-Bay, North Bass, Middle Bass, Kelley's and others, have quarantined against Pelee, and the Canadian authorities have quarantined the mainland against the island, which has become a vast isolated pest house. Dr. Probst, Secretary of the State Board, has sent instructions and has taken vigorous steps to prevent the disease spreading.

Smallpox in Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 18—Three cases of smallpox, the first in Boston for over a year, were reported to the Board of Health in a family named Cavalli, at the North End. Three Italians—a young man, 20 years of age, and two women aged 21 and 16 respectively, have the disease, while two younger children display its symptoms. The first three were taken to the hospital.

CAUGHT BY A FLY WHEEL.

A Visitor in a Rolling Mill Meets With a Horrible Death.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 18.—Solon Davis, of Providence, Pa., accompanied by two ladies entered the blooming mill of the Scranton Iron and Steel Company to observe the process of manufacture. At the doorway were three cars loaded with red hot ingots, and to escape the heat of these in passing Davis stepped backward and was caught by an immense fly-wheel, revolving 150 times a minute, and whisked out of sight. When the engine was stopped Davis' dead and horribly mangled body was found in the wheel pit.

The Episcopal Convention.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—In the Episcopal House of Bishops the question arose whether any alteration should be made in that article of the constitution which requires that satisfactory provisions should be made for the support of a new diocese. The motion was lost. The matter of the suffrage of the bishops was laid on the table. The matter dividing the diocese of California was made the order of the day for to-morrow. A prayer alleged to imply an anti-resurrectional state of the soul was defeated in both Houses.

The Monumental City's Debt.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 18.—Within the past few years Baltimore has paid $3,058,461 of its bonded debt, as follows: City Hall (1884) 6 per cent. loan, $1,000,000; consolidated (1885) 5 per cent. loan, $848,161; Pittsburg and Connellsville railroad (1886) 6 per cent loan, $1,000,000, and Valley railroad (1886) 6 per cent. loan, $1,015,300. Mayor Latrobe says that if the sinking fund had not been called upon to pay small loans at their maturity the fund would now be over $12,000,000, instead of between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000.

Republican Nominations in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The following are the candidates for the incorporated offices nominated by the Republican City and County Convention: Mayor, James R. Carmichael; Comptroller, E. C. Shafer; Treasurer, Robert Oehmig; Superintendent of Education, Dr. Joseph Fowler; County Judge, Joseph E. Ewell; State Senator, John Laughlin; District-Attorney, George T. Quinby.

The Secretary Tracy Suit Dismissed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The suit brought against Secretary of the Navy Tracy and Collis P. Huntington by Lawyer Lewis Sanders to recover $5,000 for professional services in prosecuting a claim to surplus money in an action affecting real estate of the Rockaway Beach Improvement Company, was dismissed by Chief Justice Sedgwick, of the Superior Court, on the ground that there was no cause for action.

The Boilermakers Adjourn.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 18.—The convention of boilermakers, which has been meeting in Pittsburg the past four days, concluded its labors last evening and adjourned to meet in New York next July. The convention decided to use steel only in the manufacture of boilers which will be stamped with the trade mark of the association, "A. B. M. A."

A Young Woman Kills Herself.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 18.—The 20-year-old daughter of Daniel Meridith, of Petersburg, Kent county, Del., shot herself in a fit of despondency last night and died instantly.

NOT CRONIN'S BODY

The Claim that Will be Made by the Alleged Murderers.

SULLIVAN'S SECRETARY FREE.

Every Suspect is Being Closely Shadowed Day and Night.

Graham Arrested the Second Time and Again Bailed—Alexander Sullivan Tells About Kavanaugh's Visit—Gossip About Dr. O'Reilly's Departure for Europe—A Belief that He is Seeking Parnell's Help.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—O'Donnell, Kavanaugh, Konen and Graham, who were indicted for attempted jury bribery in the Cronin case and who secured bail without difficulty, were not allowed to be at liberty for any length of time, the regular Grand Jury having indicted the same men for conspiracy. Capiase were issued for their arrest and an hour later Graham and Kavanaugh were in custody.

F. H. Frude, brother of Graham's employer, hearing of the young man's arrest, appeared in court and secured the prisoner's release. The others have not yet been gathered in, but the authorities are in no hurry about arresting them, as not a man now under suspicion could leave town were he so disposed.

Every suspect is being closely shadowed night and day. Ex-Bailiff Hanks was released on $15,000 bail.

Stoltenberg, Alexander Sullivan's private secretary, was released pending further inquiry.

It is pretty difficult to interview Alexander Sullivan under any circumstances, but a reporter essayed the task after Judge Longenecker's open and significant statement that Kavanaugh had been in consultation with Sullivan. "I have nothing to say," Mr. Sullivan said, "save that Mr. Kavanaugh was at my office. Our firm has been for a long time his legal adviser and he was to see us on legal business. If there is anything suspicious in that, you have the fact. He certainly was at our office this afternoon."

It is now pretty well understood that the defense of at least two of the individuals who are on trial for the murder of Dr. Cronin will be that the remains were not sufficiently identified and that there is no legal proof that the corpse found in the Lakeview catch basin was that of the Irish physician.

Singularly enough, the Probate Court has within the past four days provided a case which may be used as an illustrative argument. This is the case of Nicholas Gehrig, who disappeared some time ago, and who appeared in the flesh last week to claim the interest on his bonded investments after what was supposed to have been his body had been fully identified by a number of those who knew him well.

The sudden departure of Dr. O'Reilly and Colonel John Atkinson, the leading Irish Nationalists, for London has given rise to a great deal of gossip here. It is believed they have gone to enlist Parnell's help in behalf of Alexander Sullivan.

Parnell is under great obligations to Sullivan in connection with the exposure of the Pigott forgery, and this fact is given as a reason for the alleged efforts of O'Reilly and Atkinson.

HONORING GOV. HILL.

He is Entertained With a Perfect Round of Receptions and Feastings.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 18.—Governor Hill, of New York, and his party were entertained yesterday with a perfect round of receptions and feastings. The Governor and the members of his party were driven to the Capitol, where a special session of the Legislature had been convened. This being Special Thanksgiving Day, and a legal holiday. Governor Hill was introduced by Governor Gordon.

Gov. Hill spoke briefly about the good feeling between the Northern and Southern States. Roswell P. Flower said a good word for New York as the place for the World's Fair. Chancellor Pierson, ex-Assistant Postmaster-General Stevenson and Adjutant-General Porter made short speeches, after which there was a general handshaking.

Later the Capitol City Club tendered the party a reception, and a banquet was given by Irish-American citizens to General Collins. Governor Hill, Governor Gordon and all the visitors were there. The feature of the banquet was the frequent allusion to Governor Hill as the right man for the Democratic nomination for President.

Strange Disappearance.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 18.—Charles H. Ring, aged 48, manager of the Newark office of the United States Express Company, has been missing since Monday night. He has been with the company 25 years, and enjoyed the fullest confidence of its officials. Cashier Sandford of the company says he does not believe Ring is an embezzler. He thinks the missing man has committed suicide or met with foul play. Route Agent Smythe has taken charge of the office and is examining the books.

Death on the Track.

HUDSON, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Three young men, Jerome Rice, John Lewis and Thomas Cooney, were struck by a locomotive of a freight train at this place yesterday and instantly killed. They were walking on the track and were intent on getting out of the way of a passenger train when they stepped in front of a train on another track.

Crew of Eleven Men Believed Lost.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—It is generally believed among shipping men here the Captain Rigal and his crew of eleven men on the German bark Duppel have been lost. The Duppel is ninety-eight days out from Liverpool with a cargo of salt.

—Lawn tennis clubs are enjoying the fine weather and are making good use of it.

—The coming Winter promises to be aglow with parties and sociables in this city.

—Mr. John Linbarger of this city caught a fine four-pound bass at the Bound Brook dam yesterday.

—Night watchman Philip Giesse again reported for duty on Wednesday, having been laid up for a fortnight by a fall.

—Stetson's double Uncle Tom's Cabin Company has arrived in town and will perform at Music Hall, this evening.

—The Street Commissioner has been devoting his time of late to macadamizing Madison avenue, and to plowing up the gutters on South Second street.

—Mr. J. G. Miller, the druggist, has a display of very handsome Knight Templar badges in his show window on East Front street, which attracts considerable attention.

—The hop of the "Merry Four" in Dunlap's Hall, last evening was an enjoyable affair. Prof. O'Reilly furnished the music for dancing which was indulged in by about seventy young people.

—The work of rebuilding the Somerset street bridge is progressing favorably. A steam pump has been put into service, and the water is pumped out so as to not interfere with the erection of the abutment walls.

—A meeting of the Epworth League of the M. E. church, will be held in Vincent chapel, this evening at eight o'clock. The subject to be discussed is: "Americans should visit their own country before going abroad."

—This evening Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P. will entertain visiting Knights at Reform Hall. The visitors will arrive in special cars during the evening. Mr. J. E. Beerbower will furnish supper for 200 guests.

—Mr. Frank Hedden had charge of the carriage arrangements at the Wharton-Jackson wedding last evening. Upwards of one hundred vehicles were used to convey the bridal party and the guests to and from the church and house.

—Benj F. Moore, formerly of Moore Bros., will open a new store on North avenue, next door to the corner of Peace street, to-morrow, where he will sell all kinds of meats and oysters at prices so low as to astonish the community.

It has been ascertained that the horse belonging to Mr. W. H. Totten of Pruden's alley, which died with the rabies a few days ago, was bitten by a dog at Fanwood, several weeks ago, and at the time a number of cows died in that vicinity from the effect of a dog's bite.

—The Committee on Constitution and By-Laws for the co-operative grocery store that is being founded in this city, met at Miller's Hotel, last evening, and adopted a set of rules to govern the association, which the members will be called together in a few days to consider and adopt.

—William D. Murray, Esq., President of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. and nine young men were at the Second Reformed chapel at Somerville, Tuesday evening, to show how a "Workers' Training Class" for the study of the Bible could be made profitable. The meeting was highly interesting.

—The postoffice and large general country store at Blawenburg, Somerset county, belonging to Mr. John N. Van Zandt, was broken into by thieves, Tuesday night, and $35 in postage stamps stolen, besides a large quantity of clothing, cutlery, boots, shoes, etc., in all amounting to several hundred dollars.

—There is a Young Men's Christian Association at work in thirty-nine countries—among others, in Japan, India, China, Ceylon, Turkey in Asia, and Turkey in Europe, Syria, Inland Africa, Germany, Switzerland, France, Great Britain, Holland, Belgium, Australia, Canada, United States, and in the different countries in Scandinavia.

Struck by Lightning.

On Sunday during a thunder storm, a shock of corn on the old Stelle farm, now owned by Ephriam Kempton, at Flatbrookaway, near New Market, was struck by lightning. The corn was roasted as completely as if it had been put in an oven.

AUTUMN NUPTIALS.

The Wharton-Jackson Wedding, Its Bridal Party and the Gowns.

There took place in the Methodist Episcopal church, last evening, one of the most thoroughly admirable weddings Plainfield's best people have ever witnessed. The entire ceremony was essentially English in form and completely charming in its environments; while the wedding party was a beautifully arranged setting to the handsome principals—Carrie Louise Jackson, only daughter of James Wesley Jackson, Esq., of the Crescent, and Clifton Wharton, Jr., of Pittsburgh.

Although admission to the church was only available upon presentation of an engraved card of invitation, long before six o'clock, the hour of the ceremony, the auditorium and gallery were crowded by the families of the city's highest circles. The altar rail was wound with smilax, while inside it, and grouped upon the pulpit and its steps, were tiers of exotics making a mass of deep green of graceful palm and other artistic leaves, brightened in a few places with the pure white lilies of the calla only.

Hidden behind all this was the keyboard of the organ where Henry Eyre Browne—organist of Dr. Talmage's Tabernacle—rendered a choice selection of classical music. Just before the ceremony, a pathway of pure white cloth was spread from the canopy to the satin cushion at the lower step of the altar where the couple knelt for the minister's blessing and benediction.

The bridal party was headed by the ushers in conventional evening costume including white vests and pearl colored undressed kid gloves. White roses from the bride's boquet adorned the lappels of their coats. They were followed by four of the handsomest gowned bridemaids ever looked upon—Miss Carrie Streuli and Miss Caroline Knowland, of this city, Miss Etta Wharton, sister of the groom, and Miss Minerva Handen, of Brooklyn. They wore frocks of pale Nile green crepe de chine over silk, trimmed with knotted fringe, and deep collars of white point d' alencons lace; white gloves and satin slippers to match their frocks.

Next in the bridal procession was the Maid de Honor, Miss Minnie French, niece of the bride, in white mousseline de soie, over white silk. She carried a handsome boquet of white roses, as did the bridemaids. The bride followed on the arm of her father. Her gown was unusually rich, even for a bride. It was of the heaviest corded silk trimmed with quantities of point lace and orange blossoms. The brilliancy of it all was added to by the diamonds she wore, the gifts of the groom.

Awaiting the bride at the altar steps, were the groom and his brother, Mr. J. Harding Page Wharton. The ushers were: Messrs James DeGraff, Andrew McKinney and Marion Ackerman, of this city; Edward McKnight and Benjamin Campbell Bakewell, of Pittsburgh; and E. Reynolds Blagden, of New York. The Episcopal ceremony was used, and the Rev. A. H. Tuttle, formerly of this city, and now of Baltimore, officiated. It was all very impressive and the responses were particularly distinct and fervent.

The bride's mother who sat, of course, at the left of the aisle, wore black velvet and brocade, en traine. The groom's mother wore heavy black satin trimmed with cut steel passamenterie. Following the ceremonies, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, to the immediate families and friends only, of Mr. and Mrs. Wharton, Jr. One of the most extensive and costly suppers was spread by Clark, New York's celebrated caterer. The bride and groom took a late train bound East.

Those present at the ceremonies included guests from Pittsburgh, Grand Rapids, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and New York. The Rev. Dr. Hurlbut and Mrs. Hurlbut, were present; also the Rev. Dr. Ketcham and Miss Ketcham; the Rev. James B. Bryan, of Tottenville, formerly of this city; the Rev. Wm. M. Day, now of Newark; and Mr. George Vincent, and his mother the wife of Bishop John H. Vincent, of Buffalo.

The groom occupies a confidential and very lucrative position in the New York office of the National Tube Works Co., a wealthy corporation of Pittsburgh. The bride's father is one of Plainfield's wealthiest citizens, and an executor of the late Jesse Hoyt, of New York. Upon their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., will reside with Mrs. Wharton's parents. Previous to the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Wharton, senior, and the Misses Wharton, were the guests of Mrs. J. W. Jackson; Messrs Bakewell, McKnight, Blagden and J. H. P. Wharton, were the guests of Mrs. R. C. Dingee, of East Fifth street, and the Rev. Mr. Bryan, was the guest of Mrs. Edward Winter.

With Gold Medals to Winners.

The second annual Fall games of the Plainfield Bicycle Club, will be held at The Crescent, Thursday evening, November 14. The events will include a quarter-mile run between members of Leal's and the High School; a sack race, quarter-mile handicap, three-legged race, running high jump and consolation race, to members of the Club only; and a 70-yard dash, one-mile race on safety bicycles, hurdle race and half-mile run, open to everybody.

Catarrh is in the blood. No cure for this loathsome and dangerous disease is possible until the poison is thoroughly eradicated from the system. For this purpose, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best and most economical medicine. Price $1. Six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

KILLED ON THE RAIL.

Little Maggie McInerney Struck by a Philadelphia Express Train and Hurled Twenty Feet in the Air.

Maggie McInerney, the seven-year-old daughter of Mr. John McInerney of No. 111 South Second street, was struck and instantly killed by the East bound Philadelphia express train which is due in this city at 5:30 o'clock P. M., last evening.

The child was on the track in front of her home, picking chips, when the locomotive struck her, hurling her twenty feet in the air. When picked up and carried into the house by her brothers, it was found that the skull had been fractured, and that the right arm and leg were broken. The face was recognizable, and bore only a few slight scratches. Death was instantaneous.

Morgue-keeper Casey took charge of the remains, and notified County Physician Westcott. The latter gave a permit in accordance with the facts.

The funeral will take place from St. Mary's church on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

Young People's Meeting.

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the First Presbyterian church, celebrated its part of the dedication exercises of the church, which was postponed at the time of the dedication services for various reasons, last evening. The attendance was large, and an interesting programme was rendered. Mr. E. St. John presided and made a few explanatory remarks. He also introduced the speakers.

The exercises opened with an organ voluntary by Dr. E. W. Hedges, followed by a Jubilate Deo, of Dudley Buck's, by the choir, and responsive reading. The announced speaker for the evening was Rev. Francis E. Clark, otherwise known as Father Endeavor Clark, and that learned divine delivered an interesting and able address on the advantages of the Christian Endeavor. Such an address as that delivered by Rev. Mr. Clark last evening, is a guarantee of the flourishing condition of the Christian Endeavor.

Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut also delivered an interesting address on Sunday School work, a subject upon which the Doctor is always "at home." The Doctor's remarks were calculated to strengthen and stimulate those interested in the work. He also offered prayer at the close of his remarks.

A special feature of the exercises was the singing by the double quartette composed of the following: Miss Alice Holmes, the Misses Petrie, Mrs. David Titsworth, Messrs Lucius H. Biglow, Jr., M. C. VanArsdale, Frank Runyon and David Titsworth. The part song "Sing, O Heavens," by the choir, was exceedingly good.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. F. E. Kinsman of this city, was this week granted a patent for an electrically operated ice cutting machine.

Editor Mattison of the Somerville Messenger was in town today, and made a fraternal call at THE PRESS office.

Miss Lu Snediker entertained a few of her friends at her home on Grove street, North Plainfield, last evening. Games and refreshments were features of the evening's enjoyment.

Word was received in this city today, announcing the death in Connecticut, yesterday, of Mr. Frank Dodge of Plainfield, from pneumonia. The body will arrive in this city this afternoon.

David M. Runyon, brother of the late Judge E. W. Runyon, and the late J. C. Runyon, of the Central Times, died suddenly this morning in Newark. He is the third out of five brothers, that have died since March of this year.

Twin boys were born to Mr. and Mrs. George Whiteley, of North avenue, yesterday morning. Everybody is doing well, and THE PRESS unites with the other tenants of North avenue in commendation of the honor thrust upon us all.

Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Craig, accompanied by Miss Mattie Bolston of Stoney Point, N. Y., are visiting at the residence of Mrs. I. H. Hall, on East Front street. The latter, who is the mother of Mrs. Craig, celebrated the 76th anniversary of her birthday, today.

At the convention of the New Jersey Republican League held at Elizabeth, recently, Charles A. Reed, Esq, and Dr. H. K. Carroll of North Plainfield, were chosen among the delegates to the national convention of the Leagues to be held in Chattanooga, next Spring.

It is stated upon good authority that all of the Republican candidates for the Assembly convention have withdrawn and unanimously insist upon the re-nomination of Assemblyman Ulrich of this city. Whether or not Mr. Ulrich will accept the nomination is not known.

Runaway on Peace Street.

A horse belonging to Mr. I. Lewis, the butcher, became frightened at the cars when under the Peace street bridge this morning, and ran away. The traces dropped and the animal became unmanageable. Near the corner of Broadway and Seventh street the wagon struck a tree, upsetting the vehicle and wrecking the shafts. The driver was uninjured.

Broke His Arm.

Mario Ferrer, of Colombia, South America, fell from a horizontal bar, Wednesday, in the Harned Academy Gymnasium, on Park avenue, where he is a student. His arm was broken above the elbow, but it is knitting most satisfactorily and he will soon be able to use it again.

KNIGHTS OF HONOR.

They and Their Friends Much Enjoy Themselves.

Wetumpka Lodge, 3,401, Knights of Honor, of this city, met last evening with Brother John H. Doane in the chair. An agreeable and pleasant entertainment was provided by the Entertainment Committee, and a large number of friends and members were present.

Miss Hall, from Brooklyn, recited quite a number of selections; while Miss D. Tillwager's vocal solos and Mrs. B. Luersseu's piano performance, were greatly enjoyed. Instrumental music was furnished by Messrs Rogers and Conde.

Brother P. D., Haffner, in a very neat speech, presented Brother P. D., C. J. Feytel, with a handsome gold badge in the name of his friends of Wetumpka for his services since the organization of the Lodge. At the close of the entertainment there was dancing and a very satisfactory evening was spent. Wetumpka Lodge, 3,401, is a growing Lodge.

October Chautauquan. First 25 questions on political economy. Original views, as well as mechanical answers, requested.

The permanent meeting place for the season will be at the "Y" rooms, corner of North avenue and Peace street.

Foot-Ball, To-Morrow.

Leal's foot-ball eleven dropped last Saturday's game, but propose to make up for it to-morrow by defeating the Rutgers Grammar School team. The game will begin on the LaGrande avenue grounds at 3 o'clock. Admission 15 cents.

Some changes have been made in the home team that will undoubtedly strengthen it. The positions to-morrow will be: Rushers—Erickson, Cox, Gebergis, McGee, Moore, Holmes and Waring; Half Backs—Stewart and Wyckoff; Full Back—Burrows.

How a Woman Drives.

Many women do not know how to drive a horse. Watch one going along the street; she usually has the reins in both hands, but so loosely held that she has no command over the animal. And when she wants to urge the animal on she gives the lines a jerk, never using the whip if this answers the purpose; and as she always wants him to go faster, she keeps up the jerks, and makes the operation of driving hard work.

Wouldn't Wear the Uniform.

(From the Somerville Gazette.)

On Saturday last the Central Railroad Company sent a tailor from Wanamaker & Brown's establishment along the road to measure the employees for uniforms. He was accompanied by chief clerk Tull of Supt. Peddle's office. Geo. W. Abbott, Jr, ticket clerk at this station, refused to be measured, or wear a uniform, and forwarded his resignation to the Superintendent.

$25 and Costs.

The sentence of George Sanders, of North Plainfield, in the Somerset County Court today, was a fine of $25 and costs.

Judge Bartine also severely reprimanded him. A petition for mercy signed by twelve members of the Grand Jury that indicted Sanders, had been presented the Court

President Gates Will Speak Here.

The twenty-second anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association of this city will be held in the First Presbyterian church, Thursday evening of next week, at 8 o'clock. Merrill E. Gates, LL. D., President of Rutgers College, has been secured to deliver the address.

"What shall I do!" the maiden cried. "He will be here to-night and my hands are chapped; however, I have a bottle of Salvation Oil."

Old remedies under new names are being constantly introduced to the public, but Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup still maintains its pre-eminence.

OCEAN GROVE'S FINANCES.

Facts Contained in the Report of the Association's President.

Friday the Ocean Grove association finished its twentieth annual session in the association building at that place. All the old officers were re-elected, making the twenty-first election of Dr. E. H. Stokes to the position of president of the association.

President Stokes' annual report dealt mainly with the improvements that have been made during the past year. He stated that over 2,000 feet of sewer mains were laid thus making the entire system twelve and one-half miles in length, the total expenditure being $29,290. The income from the mains during the year was $3,862 50. The association put down nearly 16 000 feet of concrete walks, and private individuals laid 47,600 feet, making a total of seven miles of these walks. During this year thirteen artesian wells yielded 49,991,000 gallons of water, and 3,200 feet of water mains were laid. The total cost of the water system thus far has been $53,885. There are now nearly twelve miles of water mains through the Grove. The rental receipts were $5,132, and the running expenses $1,390.77. The tolls over Wesley lake bridges amounted to $3,413.72 for four months. The total rentals amounted to $12,000.

The electric lighting system includes 648 lamps, of 35 and 40 candle power. For general improvements there was spent $20,455 and the indebtedness has been reduced $2,000. The amount of the general inventory, which does not include lots, is $222,290. About 750,000 pieces of mail matter passed through the post office during the year, and the postmaster received $565 for his work. During the camp meeting 537 persons professed conversion. The twentieth anniversary of the association's organization will be celebrated on Dec. 23.

The System of Excess Tickets Wrong.

The Common Pleas Court of Pittsburg has decided that the practice of the railroad company of charging ten cents extra for tickets purchased on the cars is wrong, and that the complainant in the case was justified in refusing to pay it. The case is an important one because it involves the right of a railroad company to make unreasonable regulations by which the traveling public are made to act as checks upon the dishonesty of employees. The extra ten cents is added to the price of the tickets by the company as a means of inducing the passenger to report to the company at its station what amount of money he has paid on the cars to the conductor. L. B. D. Reese, of Pittsburg, Pa., is the party awarded $250 in a suit against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for being ejected from a train, as noted above.

Royal Arcanum Facts.

Under the new order of things existing in the Royal Arcanum, the State of New Jersey has been divided into eight districts, each presided over by a Deputy. Once a year the Grand Regent, with his entire staff and the whole official board of officers of all the councils in the district, makes an official visit to one council selected from each district. The amount received by the Grand Regent from New Jersey councils for the Johnstown sufferers was by a singular coincidence exactly $1,105, the mystic number of the Order. The total amount sent from New Jersey was $1,430.50. The Order has paid the full amount of his certificate—$3,000—to the family of one brother whose body has not yet been found, but who was supposed to be, and undoubtedly was, lost in the Johnstown flood.

Burglars Around.

The police were summoned by telephone to Mr. John Cuthbert's residence on West Seventh street, late last evening, by the sole occupant of the house, a woman, who declared that men were prowling around the premises. Officers Lynch and Flanagan responded to the call, but when they arrived at the place they found everything about the house intact. Special Officer Mattox remained at the house over night.

Struck on the Bay Bridge.

John Zehring of Jersey City, a salesman for Lorenz & Co., perfumery dealers, of No. 165 William street, New York, was struck by a train on the Central N. J. Railroad yesterday afternoon while fishing from the Newark Bay bridge, and killed. He was changing his position when run down by an express train. The body was taken to the Elizabethport station and later to the morgue.

In the County Court.

The Grand Jury at Elizabeth this morning, brought in 16 more bills of indictment, and announced their labors completed. They were discharged with the thanks of the Court.

The Frazee Lee will contest is still on. The Court has notified all concerned that it will not adjourn before five o'clock of each day, so as to finish the case as soon as possible.

Willie Hamilton Made Comfortable for the Winter.

With the money subscribed through THE PRESS, an easy chair for Willie Hamilton and a pretty table for his books and toys, have been purchased and sent him. The patient little lad was much affected and could hardly express his thanks upon receiving the gifts.

When the hair shows signs of falling, begin at once to use Ayer's Hair Vigor. This preparation strengthens the scalp, promotes the growth of new hair, restores the natural color to gray and faded hair, and renders it soft, pliant and glossy.

Killed in a Pulp Mill.

BRISTOL, N. H., Oct. 18.—As Wilson W. Hazeltan was cleaning a cedar cask at Train, Smith & Co's. pulp mill, with steam injected from the steam pipe, the cask exploded, hurling him some distance and killing him almost instantly. Deceased was 60 years of age and leaves a widow and son.

Brutal Murder of a Mine Boss.

POMEROY, Ohio, Oct. 18.—John Stobart, mine boss for the Charter Oak Coal Company, was found in the river here yesterday evening. His throat was cut from ear to ear, and five knife stabs were found below the heart. John Keiser, of this place, and a window-letter named Wyand, from New York, have been arrested on suspicion. Two bloody knives were found on the river bank.

Bought 83 Oil Wells.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 18.—An oil tract deal of some magnitude has been transacted here. C. W. Scofield of this city sold to several persons, residents of Allentown, N. Y., an oil tract of 350 acres in the Allentown field, containing 83 oil wells. The price was $110,000.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

AFTER THE RIOTERS

Officers Leave Baltimore to Meet the Navassa Negroes.

ORDERED BY SECRETARY TRACY.

He Directs that All Persons Implicated be Placed Under Arrest.

The Brigs Containing the Negro Rioters Expected Soon—Over 100 on Board—The United States Steamer Galena Will Arrive To-Day—She Has the Negro Ringleaders on Board in Irons.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 18.—United States District Attorney Hayes, armed with authority from the Secretary of the Navy and accompanied by United States Commissioner Bird, Deputy United States Marshal Cole ann several witnesses, left Baltimore last evening on the revenue cutter Ewing to arrest the persons implicated in the recent Navassa riots, who are expected on the brigs Alice and Romance.

The Secretary of the Navy directed Mr. Hayes to take the proper force to meet the brigs off the Capes. The Alice and Romance sailed from Jamaica on October 11 with 124 negroes, most of whom were engaged in the riots.

RIOTERS IN IRONS.

The Galena to Arrive To-Day With the Negro Ringleaders on Board.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The United States man-of-war Galena is expected to arrive in port to-day. She has been putting down the negro uprising at Navassa and has the ringleaders on board in irons.

The steamer Athos, of the Atlas Line, which arrived here yesterday, was at Navassa October 8, and the Galena was to sail the following day.

The uprising was in the nature of a revolt of the colored workmen of the Navassa Phosphate Company, who own the island, against their white foremen. Nearly all the latter were killed. The survivors are also on the Galena.

The Galena's commander arrested all the inhabitants and put the leaders in irons. The other negroes were put on the American brigs Romance and Alice, and will reach this port in ten days.

AT THE ANARCHISTS' GRAVES.

Flowers Strewn by Socialists After the Adjournment of Their Convention.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—When the convention of the Socialist Labor Party came to a close the delegates went in a body to Waldheim Cemetery and decorated the graves of the anarchists.

The convention adopted a resolution concerning the flag episode that occurred during Sunday's mass meeting. The resolution declared that those who hissed the American flag at the meeting were either fools or police spies and did so only to give the "capitalistic press" another opportunity to vent its spite against Socialists and Socialism.

The convention fixed upon Brooklyn as the seat of the Executive Committee; upon Boston as the seat for the Board of Appeals, and New York as the seat for the party organs. The Brooklyn section are said to be in entire harmony with the Shevitch faction of the party and will elect an executive committee who will support him in his attempt to control the Socialists of America. The anti-Shevitch faction when assembled in convention last month chose Chicago as the seat of the Executive Committee. The result will be a split in the Socialistic party. The convention did not select the time and place for the next congress.

AN IRISH PRIEST IN COURT.

Father McFadden on Trial for the Killing of a Police Inspector.

LIMERICK, Oct. 18.—The court room at Mayboro was packed when the selection of jurors began for the trial of Father McFadden and others for the killing of Police Inspector Martin at Gweedore, County Donegal, on February 3rd last. Both the counsel for the crown and the prisoner exercised freely their prerogative of objecting to the presence of certain men in the jury-box and their alternate objections increased the excitement, already high, until every one in the room was under its influence.

Several of the jurors protested vehemently against the objections raised by the Crown counsel to their serving in the case and the Court finally adjourned without filling the jury box.

It is not unlikely that serious trouble will result if the Crown persists in its present course. Word has been sent to all the Catholic farmers about Maryboro that Catholics are being rigidly excluded from the jury and the excitement resulting is at such a pitch that many of those notified will undoubtedly come to town determined to see justice done. A large force of police are on the way to Maryboro from Dublin.

Met by Chance at the Theatre.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Prince Ferdinand, of Bulgaria, and Milan, the ex-King of Servia, met by chance at the Vaudeville Theatre last evening. They greeted each other cordially, conversed for some moments and parted pleasantly. Prince Ferdinand will extend his tour to England. He will visit Sheen House to-morrow.

Devotion to Boulanger.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The Government will support M. Floquet for the Presidency of the Chamber of Deputies. He will probably be elected. M. Naquet has gone to Jersey with addresses of devotion to General Boulanger from the National Committee and the Derouled League.

Liberal Leaders in Council.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—At the conference of Liberal leaders being held at Hawarden this afternoon it is expected that the details of the Liberal home rule proposals will be arranged, and that they will be made public at once.

The King of Portugal Rallies.

LISBON, Oct. 18.—The King has rallied somewhat and is now slightly better. He has taken some soup and a little wine which he appears to be able to retain. His temperature is 103 and his pulse 140.

They Travel Incognito.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—Emperor William and the Empress have started on their trip to Athens. They travel incognito, and strict orders have been given that no official reception be given en route.

THE RED CROSS SOCIETY.

To Withdraw from the Conemaugh Valley After Four Months' Hard Work.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 18.—The labors of the Red Cross Society in the devastated Conemaugh Valley are about completed. The society will in a few days withdraw from the scenes that have been without parallel in the history of that organization.

Miss Clara Barton delivered an address to the citizens of Johnstown, in which she reviewed the work performed since the 15th day of June, at which time the society began the work of relief. Over 20,000 persons have received aid at the hands of the Red Cross representatives. But few applications for relief remain unanswered.

Miss Barton recommends the establishment of a permanent local relief organization, and places at the disposal of such a committe the Red Cross supply store-room, from which distribution of relief can be continued. The society will also place in the hands of this committee all that may remain of its supplies after the present list of applications have been filled.

ADVANCE IN WINDOW GLASS.

An Unexpected Move that May Lead to a Resumption of Business.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 18.—Chambers & McKee, of this city, have made an unexpected move, which is a surprise to other window glass makers.

Last week this firm sent postal cards to all glass firms in the country proposing an advance of 5 per cent. in window glass. While some are inclined to think that the offer to advance prices was not made in good faith, others are inclined to accept the suggestion in a fair spirit. Prices have therefore been advanced and the prospect is that it will lead to a general resumption throughout the country.

Looking for Two Girls.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—A general alarm has been sent out by the police of New York and Brooklyn ordering a look-out to be kept for two 16-year-old girls who have left their homes. Great secrecy is maintained as to the identity of the families interested. The disappearance of the girls was first made known to the police yesterday by two fashionably-dressed men, who said their daughters had started to visit a music teacher and had not returned.

Entertaining Ex-President Hayes.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Ex-President Hayes and his daughter lunched with Mr. Drexel. Mr. Childs was also present. The party were then driven to Mr. Childs' country residence, where they inspected the Bryn Mawr female college, and the ex-President planted a tree on Mr. Childs' lawn. Afterwards Mr. and Miss Hayes were entertained at dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Childs.

Poisoned a Man in Providence.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—Charles W. Paster, colored, aged 19, informed the police last night that he poisoned W. H. Giddings at No. 50 Burlington street, Providence, R. I., in April, 1885, by putting arsenic in his tea, and he wanted to give himself up. He will be held, pending advices from the Providence police.

Typhoid Fever at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 18.—Rupert Doty Brown, of the Yale freshmen class, died of typhoid fever. He roomed two blocks away from the college building, and there seems to be nothing in the case to indicate that the disease is likely to spread among the students, though there have been several cases of a mild type and others of a malarial character.

Albany's Democratic Nominations.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 18.—At the Albany County Convention yesterday the Democrats nominated the following candidates: For Senator, Norton Chase; County Judge, Jacob L. Clute; Surrogate, Martin D. Conway; County Clerk, Ansel Requa; District Attorney, Hugh Reilly; Coroners, Nicholas Dell, Joseph A. Dunn; Justice of Sessions, A. Rhinehart.

The Drummer Indicted for Seduction.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Alfred N. Crotty, of Brooklyn, the commercial traveler who eloped from this city September 28 with Miss Lida Bennett, has been indicted for seduction under promise of marriage. Crotty has a wife and two children in Brooklyn, but represented himself to Miss Bennett as single.

Dragging the Harbor for Bodies.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 18.—The fishermen of Cuttyhunk are dragging the harbor to find the bodies of Captain Flanders and crew of the wrecked schooner Quilp. A hat that had undoubtedly belonged to one of the men was found. The Quilp is a total wreck.

Reformed Church Synod.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 18.—The synod of the Reformed Chuch in the United States has completed its organization. The committee on a new English hymn book was continued for a year. Addresses on home missions were delivered.

Nine Thousand Men Out.

PARIS, Oct. 18.—The miners' strike at Lens is spreading and 9,000 men are out in that district now. Scenes of violence are of frequent occurrence, and the police are powerless. Only one arrest has been made since the disturbances commenced.

The Deadlock at Utica.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 18.—There is no change in the situation in the Republican Senatorial convention. So far 733 ballots have been taken. It is thought Mr. Sheard, of Herkimer, will ultimately receive the nomination.

Shoe Manufacturers Fail.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—The shoe manufacturing firm of Harkin & Baker, 59 South Fourth street, failed yesterday for $7,500, executions against it having been issued to the Sheriff upon judgment notes to that amount.

Janauschek Thrown from a Carriage.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 18.—While Madame Janauschek was being driven to the theatre last night she was thrown from her carriage. She is not seriously injured, but is suffering from the severe shock.

Amos Cummings for Congress.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Amos J. Cummings was nominated for Congress last night by the Tammany Convention of the Ninth District, formerly represented by the late S. S. Cox.

PEOPLE WHO ARE POPULAR.

LORD TENNYSON recently remarked that one of his greatest regrets was that he had never visited this country.

MR. GLADSTONE has an unconquerable aversion to smoking. It is recorded that once he was offered and accepted a cigarette from the Prince of Wales. He did not find the result encouraging, and has never been induced to repeat the experiment.

REV. ROBERT COLLYER has presented Cornell College with an old factory bell which has an interesting history. It was the bell that rung him to work every morning in his young days and fixed the time the day's toil was over. The bell will be used at Cornell for summoning the students to their classes.

MADAME CARNOT, the wife of the President of the French Republic, personally superintends the education of her children. With the Italian governess she speaks Italian, and English with the English governess. She reads the best literature, watches over the music exercises and keeps well informed of the movements of the outer world.

PRINCE BISMARCK speaks all the most important languages, including even Russian, which is by far the most difficult to acquire of the European tongues. Though it is not as a linguist or an orator that the German Chancellor is chiefly distinguished, his knowledge of languages and his power over an audience are no small addition to his fame.

JOAQUIN MILLER, who, after he went into Wall street and lost his little pile, used to rail at the rich and revile leading New York capitalists, has become a capitalist himself. Some years ago he bought two hundred acres of land near San Francisco, and now they have become valuable for town lots. The poet says that he shall spend the remainder of his days on the Pacific slope.

SPURGEON, the eminent Baptist preacher, never makes any preparation for a sermon. It is his habit to choose some text on Saturday evening to be used on the morrow. Thirty minutes, and no longer, he devotes to looking up references. Of these references he jots down a few notes, and with nothing else at hand he steps into the pulpit on Sunday morning without manuscript or thought of his text other than that given it during the half-hour's study of the previous evening.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH, says a New York correspondent, is a lucky journalist, and has never been forced by circumstances to work for a living. He likes to entertain his friends, and is perfectly competent and able to entertain every body he receives, no matter what their station in life. He is absolute ruler as an editor, and has strong ideas about style. He has a penchant for set phrases, and he has a prepared list of excommunicated words and phrases which, if found in a manuscript, almost invariably means that it will never be put in type in Mr. Aldrich's establishment.

THE people of Paris, who have been impressed with the conviction that Edison was the inventor of the telegraph, the telephone, the electric light and the phonograph, and possibly even of electricity itself, will probably think him more nearly a demigod than ever since his gift of $2,000 for the benefit of the poor of Paris. Mr. Edison is claimed to have received the greatest ovation in Paris ever accorded to a foreigner. M. Jules Clarete even declares that it may be said of Edison, as it was of Humboldt, that no nation can claim him as exclusively its own; his country is the world.

SENSIBLE SAYINGS.

IN managing others patience is the quality most needed.

PRECIPITATION ruins the best contrived plans; patience ripens the most difficult.

WHETHER we enjoy any lot in life depends upon the disposition we carry into it.

IT isn't wise to say always all that you think; but it is wise always to think carefully over every thing you say.

HAPPINESS depends mainly on temperament, especially upon a disposition to be cheerful, complaisant and obliging.

WHEN we sum up the miseries of life, the grief bestowed on trifles makes a great part of the account; trifles which neglected are nothing.

ONE of the finest qualities in a human being is that nice sense of delicacy which renders it impossible for him to be an intruder or a bore.

THE most profitable revenge, the most rational and the most pleasant, is to make it the interest of the person who injures you not to hurt you again.

MISERY and afflictions are not less natural than snow and hail, and it were as reasonable to hope for a year without winter as for a life without trouble.

DOING nothing for others is the undoing of one's self. We must be purposely kind and generous or we miss the best part of existence. The heart that goes out of itself gets large and full of joy. We do ourselves the most good by doing something for others.

WITHOUT some degree of self-restraint in society a man is found almost insufferable. For want of self-restraint many men are engaged in fighting with difficulties of their own making and rendering success impossible, while others, perhaps less gifted, make their way and achieve success by simple patience, equanimity and self-control.

TO DENY ourselves momentary indulgencies is to save, in the aggregate, a great deal more than any one who has never given the matter attention is apt to think, and there is an object in such self-denial of more importance than the money it enables one to save; it gives a man the habit of self-control, than which nothing is more important to success of any kind.

ELECTRICAL EXTRACTS.

A Moscow foundry fuses metal by electricity. The glare is greater than the sun, and employes work two hours per day.

THE English are just beginning to awaken to a realizing sense of the advantages to be derived from lighting their river steamboats with electricity.

THE Philadelphia electricity exhibit at the centennial exposition of 1876 was very small. To-day $300,000,000 is invested in the 3,000,000 lamps and 100 railways.

AN electric spark has been photographed by means of a special camera, in which the sensitive plate rotated at, it is said, a velocity of 2,500 revolutions per minute.

AN electrical attachment has been devised which may be applied to an ordinary clock for awakening a sleeper at any given time, the contrivance thus taking the place of the ordinary alarm clock.

TEN men with drills operated by electricity, it is said, can take out as much ore and tunnel as far as one hundred men with picks, shovels and blasting material; besides which, the buildings can be lighted and a great saving on insurance and oil made thereby.

"VOLT" means the inducing caused by an electrical current, bearing the same relation to electricity that "points pressure to the square inch" does to steam or "head" to water. "Ohm" is the unit of resistance by a wire or other conductor to the passage of an electric current.

TIPS ON VARIOUS TOPICS.

IN order to make the quick time that the fast steamers are now making across the Atlantic four hundred tons of coal per day are required.

THERE are now four medical colleges for women in the United States. They are located at Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

FEW people know that the Government issues a stamp of the denomination of sixty dollars. Such stamps are used on second-class mail matter and are rarely seen by the general public.

THE "Messalians" were a sect professing to adhere to the letter of the Gospel, about three hundred and ten, who refused to work, quoting this passage: "Labor not for the food that perisheth."

THE highest structure of masonry in the world is the National Museum recently completed at Turin. The gilt statue on the top of the spire stands five hundred and thirty-eight feet from the ground.

NEXT to England little Holland is the greatest colonial power in the world. The Dutch colonies have an area of nearly eight hundred thousand square miles, which includes some of the finest possessions in the world.

THE salaries of colonial governors are very high. New Zealand pays £7,000 a year; Bermuda, £3,000; Jamaica, £6,000; Fegee, £5,000, and British Guiana, £5,000. The entire Feejee revenue is only £75,000. There is only a handful of whites there.

THE regular down-East Yankee pronunciation, according to a writer in Notes and Queries, must have come from Essex. The same twang is observed in the speech there as in New England, such words as blue, true or through being pronounced blew, trew and threw, with a double e.

A SLIGHT bow is all that courtesy requires after an introduction. Shaking hands is optional, and it should rest with the older or superior in social standing to make the advances. It is quite customary nowadays to say on such occasions: "Happy to meet you!" in which case the usual reply is: "It gives me equal pleasure."

A. H. STEPHENS, of Georgia, while a member of Congress in 1870, originated the phrase "too thin" (according to the Pittsburgh Dispatch). "Mr. Speaker," he said, "the gentleman's arguments are gratuitous assertions made up of whole cloth. And cloth, sir, so gauzy and thin that it will not hold water. It is entirely too thin, sir."

COLUMBUS was twice married. His first wife was Felipa, the daughter of Perestrello, an Italian cavalier; his second, Donna Beatrice Enriques, by whom he had a son, Ferdinand, born in 1487, who became the biographer of his father. Diego Columbus was his son by his first marriage, and Bartholomew Columbus was the elder brother of the discoverer of America.

DURING times of peace all vacancies in the line officers of the navy are filled by graduates of Annapolis, but if a war is in progress those holding subordinate positions are often promoted for bravery and other meritorious conduct. In the army, however, citizens may be appointed to the grade of Second Lieutenant without preliminary training at West Point, but not to any of the higher ranks. As in the former case, privates may rise from the ranks in war times and attain the high grades.

THOMAS WILLETT was the first mayor of New York, being appointed to that position in June, 1665, in accordance with an arrangement previously made for a municipal government under English laws. His sheriff—Schout—and a majority of the new Board of Aldermen—burgomasters—were Dutch. Willett proved very popular. He served two terms—from 1665 to 1666 and 1667 to 1668—and was succeeded, at the expiration of his first term, by Thomas Delavall, who was elected to the office three times between the years 1666 and 1673.

GENERAL ANTHONY WAYNE was nicknamed "Mad Anthony" because of his fearless courage and desperate energy. One of the most brilliant achievements of the revolutionary war was Wayne's capture of Stony Point on the night of July 15, 1779. He was by birth a Pennsylvanian; Easttown, Chester County, claiming the honor. According to his request, he was buried under the flagstaff of Fort Presque Isle (now Erie, Pa.). In 1809 his body was removed to Radnor churchyard, Delaware County, Pa., and over it, in the same year, the Pennsylvania Society of the Cincinnati erected a marble monument with suitable inscriptions.

IN SPORTIVE SPIRIT.

THERE is undesigned humor in the remark of a Berlin correspondent that "the Czar of Russia is rather bombastic."

MRS. STAGGERS—"We are to have dear mother for dinner, James." Staggers—"All right. See that she is thoroughly cooked."

"IN what light," asked the teacher, "did the Emperor Nero regard the Christians at Rome?" And the smart bad boy thought it was a torch-light.

WIFE—"Am I, then, never to have my own way?" Husband—"Certainly, my dovey; when we are both agreed you can have your way, and when we differ I'll have mine."

MARY—"Mebby I'm ugly now, mum, but in me day I've broken a great many hearts." Mistress—"Well, Mary, if you handled hearts the way you do my best china, I believe you."

POLICE JUDGE—"State how the trouble originated." Accused—"We was holdin' a debatin' society, and I said I had the floor, and he called me a liar." Judge—"What followed?" Accused—"From that time until we were arrested we both had the floor."

"RAISE your right hand," said the court. "Do you solemnly swear to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so"— "Hold up, judge," interrupted the witness; "can't you mitigate that sentence just a little? You know I've been in politics for a good long while."

"I LOVE you, Emeline, with all the fervor at my command," he said. "Yes, George," she replied, "I know it, and yet I would that you told me of your love in some other terms. I have been loved with fervor, oh! so many times, and I do want this match to amount to something."

MAMMA (coaxingly) — "Come, Bobby, take your medicine now, and then jump into bed; that's a good little boy." Bobby "I don't want to take any medicine, ma." Father (who knows how to govern children) —"Bobby, if you don't take your medicine at once, you will be put to bed without taking it at all."

A STATISTICIAN says that sixty years ago the population of the United States was 12,000,000, and that the aggregate wealth of the people was $1,000,000,000, which was $84 for each individual, and that the present population is 60,000,000, and the aggregate wealth $56,000,000,000, which is $934 for each individual; but every individual does not get the $934 cash in hand.

A YOUNG doctor, wishing to make a good impression upon a German farmer, mentioned the fact that he had received a double education as it were. He had studied homœopathy, and was also a graduate of a "regular" medical school. "Oh, dot vos noding," said the farmer; "I had vonce a calf dot sucked two cows, and he made noding but a common critter after all."

THE BROOKLYNS WIN

First Game in the World's Championship Series.

10,000 ENTHUSIASTS PRESENT.

It Was a Slugging Match from Beginning to End.

The Railroads Could Not Carry the Great Crowds Who Desired to See the Game—Both Clubs Presented Their Best Players—The Game Called at the End of the Eighth Inning.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The first game of the world's championship series between New York and Brooklyn took place at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon in the presence of over 10,000 people.

The interest in the series is very great, and thousands of baseball enthusiasts were unable to witness the game owing to the inability of the railroad and horse-car lines to convey them to the grounds. At all elevated stations down town the platforms were crowded with "cranks," but the railroad facilities were entirely inadequate to the demand.

The day was delightful in every respect. There was not a fleck of a cloud in the sky and the sun shone with a genial warmth, while the wind was tempered in a most kindly way.

When the Bridegrooms came on the grounds the enthusiasm was most marked. They practised with a dash that spoke volumes for the work they would subsequently do. Their admirers looked on approvingly. When the Giants came on the field the crowd cheered wildly. Every player came in for applause and when the practice was begun every brilliant play, and there were many of them, was cheered to the echo.

With Umpire Ferguson at the plate and Gaffney at first base the Brooklyns took the field. In the first inning New York went out in one, two, three order. O'Brien was the first to face Keefe and he hit safe. Then Collins planted a two bagger in left field and O'Brien went to third. Burns hit for two bases and O'Brien and Collins scored. Foutz and Pinkney were retired on short hits. Then Terry hit safely and with two men on bases Corkhill sent a two bagger down to the left centre field fence, bringing in two runs. Smith struck out. Five runs.

By steady work the Giants had cut the Brooklyns' lead down to one run at the end of the sixth inning, and by very heavy hitting in the seventh scored five runs and took the lead. In the Brooklyns' half of the seventh Ward's error and hits by Burns, Foutz and Pinkney netted two runs. The New Yorks were blanked in the eighth and Brooklyn again took the lead, securing four runs on hits by O'Brien, Visner and Foutz and an error by Ward.

Just as the last man had been put out Umpire Furgeson called the game. The following is

THE SCORE:

New York	0	2	0	2	1	0	5	0	—10
Brooklyn	3	1	0	0	0	0	2	4	—12

Batteries—Keefe and Ewing; Terry and Clarke.

Game called at the end of the eighth inning on account of darkness.

GEN. HARTRANFT'S FUNERAL.

The Body to Lay in State in the Norristown Court House.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 19.—The funeral of ex-Governor Hartranft will take place on Monday at 3 p. m. The body will lay in state at the court house.

The catafalque will be raised in the centre of the bar, all the seats being removed for that purpose. There are five entrances to the court room, and four will be utilized for the constant passage of two lines of people. Admission will begin at 10 o'clock. Colonel John W. Schall has issued orders to his regiment to rendezvous at Norristown on Monday. Company F, of Norristown, will detail a guard of honor of sixteen men at 8 o'clock.

General Hastings has perfected arrangements for the attendence of the military at the funeral. The Sixth Regiment, Phœnixville Battery, Philadelphia City Troop and Tyrone Sheridan Troop will form part of the funeral cortege. Governor Beaver and staff; Generals Gobin and Wylie, with their staffs, will also be present. The command of the military escort has been conferred on General Snowden.

Governor Beaver has issued a proclamation reciting the eminent public services of the late ex-Governor Hartranft, and ordering the display of flags at half-mast on public buildings at the time of the funeral.

Dr. Davies Consecrated Bishop.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Rev. Dr. Thomas Frederick Davies was consecrated Bishop of the Diocese of Eastern Michigan yesterday. The ceremony occurred in St. Peter's Church, this city, of which Dr. Davies has been pastor many years. A distinguished company of bishops, priests, deacons and laymen assisted. Bishop Potter, of New York, preached the sermon. Bishop Williams, of Connecticut, presided, and Bishop Whipple, of Minnesota, was celebrant of the communion service.

Sentenced to Life Imprisonment.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 19.—Rudolf Streffel, who shot and killed Farmer Peck in Newtown in June, 1888, and has stood one trial for murder in which the jury disagreed, was brought before Judge Torrence in the Superior Court yesterday afternoon and pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary.

GOV. HILL'S ENCYCLOPEDIA.

His Reference to the Book Not Appreciated in the South.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 19.—Gov. Hill was enthusiastically received in this city. In replying to an address of welcome he said: "We are not upon any political tour, and we are not swinging around the circle. At Atlanta I did speak in reference to the interests of the country, but do not propose to repeat the speech here. I may not be able to tell you about your industrial development, or anything of that kind, as I did not bring my encyclopedia with me, and you know more about those things than I do. We have seen the National flag displayed at every corner of your commonwealth, and know that there is as much loyalty existing here as in any portion of this broad Republic. We are going to have a World's Fair in 1892 somewhere in this country, and we think it ought to be in New York, and we are down here looking after our interests in that direction."

The party left for Knoxville immediately after the speaking. The reference of Gov. Hill to the encyclopedia was supposed by many to refer to ex-President Cleveland's Southern speeches. Many prominent Democrats who are Cleveland men felt bitter at what they thought a slur upon him.

THE WATERLOO TROUBLE.

Bishop McQuaid Sends a Messenger to Dempsey and Kelly.

AUBURN, Oct. 19.—Another chapter in the trouble in St. Mary's Church at Waterloo has begun. A young priest alighted from the train last evening and the fact of his arrival soon became noised about, and the curious were on tiptoe with excitement.

The messenger was from Bishop McQuaid, and he had been intrusted with a message to Messrs. Kelly and Dempsey. A reporter saw Mr. Kelly, and learned that the priest was a representative from the Bishop. He had first sought out John P. Welch, a trustee of the church, the young man who ordered the Auburn constables to remove Kelly and Dempsey from their pews last Sunday. Then the two called upon Mr. Kelly and Mr. Dempsey and handed each a message. Mr. Kelly said that in the message the Bishop ordered him not to enter St. Mary's church to-morrow, and that if he disobeyed the orders he (the Bishop) reserved the penalty. It is very probable that Kelly and Dempsey will attend church as usual to-morrow.

TWO MEN WERE INJURED.

An Early Morning Railroad Accident Near New Brunswick, N. J.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 19.—A railroad accident happened at two o'clock yesterday morning in the suburbs of this city, in which two persons—Engineer George Garnabrand and Fireman Frank Anderson—were badly hurt and one engine was wrecked.

An east-bound freight train ran into the rear of another train composed of five cars loaded with merchandise. A caboose and two freight cars were burned. A drover, who was riding in the burned caboose, claims to have lost $3,000, which was in his satchel.

Miss Drexel to Take the Veil.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Miss Kate Drexel has decided to embrace a religious life and will probably take the veil within the next three weeks. Miss Drexel is a daughter of the late Francis A. Drexel, of this city, and has been in retreat at the Mother House of the Sisters of Mercy in Pittsburg since June last. Her decision is regarded as final and she is said to be abundantly happy in her choice. It is understood that her work in the future will be devoted largely to the care and education of Indian girls, a subject in which she has always taken deep interest.

The Flack Divorce Case.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Sheriff Flack will appeal from Judge Bookstaver's order of August 13, which set aside the decree in the Flack divorce case on account of the suspicious manner in which it was obtained. Flack's attorneys yesterday served a formal notice of appeal upon Mrs. Flack's lawyers. The matter will probably be argued before the General Term of the Court of Common Pleas in December.

SIGNALS AT SEA.

The Maritime Conference Discusses the International Regulations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The Maritime Conference resumed the consideration of article 5 of the international regulations.

Mr. Hall of Great Britain proposed to amend the rule providing that lights on vessels enumerated in that clause be placed three feet apart by inserting six feet, and that these vessels carry two black balls by day instead of three.

Mr. Goodrich, for one of the American delegates, offered an amendment changing the rule providing that three red lights be carried on steamships, so as to provide for three red lanterns. Several other amendments were offered. All these will be printed and considered at some future time.

Chief Justice Fuller for President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Colonel Robert Rae at a meeting last night of the Andrew Jackson Club of Chicago, predicted that the State of Illinois, at the next Democratic National Convention, would present the name of Chief Justice Fuller of the United States Supreme Court for President. The Chief Justice to-day denied that he was in any sense a candidate, and said the use of his name was unauthorized, and that he would not allow it to be presented.

Ready for the Cronin Trial.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—In the trial of the supposed murderers of Dr. Cronin ten jurors have been accepted. It is expected that the taking of the testimony will begin on Monday.

RELIGIOUS CONTEST.

Lively Debate in the Episcopal Convention.

SHARP FIGHT ON A RESOLUTION.

The Short Office of Prayer Encounters a Good Deal of Opposition.

It Was Proposed by Dr. Huntington in the Houses of Deputies and Finally Passed. The Bishops Refuse to Concur in the Memorial to Congress to Regulate the Laws of Marriage and Divorce.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—A determined effort was made in the House of Deputies of the Episcopalian Convention to kill Dr. Huntington's resolution for a "short office of prayer for sundry occasions" to be added to the Book of Common Prayer, which was especially designed for missionary meetings and the like.

The House, as a Committee of the Whole, on Thursday, had considered the same resolution, and, after a heated debate, it passed by a small majority. Yesterday the Committee of the Whole reported Prayer Book revisions, with a recommendation that they pass and go into the ratification books for final action at the next General Convention. It was in course of considering these recommendations that the fight was made over Dr. Huntington's resolution. Rev. Dr. Egar of Central New York led the opposition. A dozen or more speeches were made, and every step and motion known to skilled parliamentarians were taken in the effort to get rid of the matter. At times a dozen speakers claimed the attention of Dr. Dix, and more than ten times did that gentleman have to use his gavel to preserve order. Motions to amend, by striking out the meat of the resolution to lay on the table, to postpone, followed each other in rapid order. And when the Chair decided against some of the motions, or the House voted them down by a general vote, there were calls for a division and a taking of the vote by dioceses. When all other means failed, Dr. Egar made a hot fight to kill it by claiming a right to have the resolution divided—that is, to first take up the office and then consider each proposed prayer separately. This, too, was defeated, and the vote was taken. Following are the figures which send the addition to the Prayer Book to the House of Bishops for concurrence:

Clerical Dioceses voting, 49; ayes, 28; nays, 14; divided, 7.

Lay dioceses voting, 41; ayes, 34; nays, 14; divided, 3.

All the proposed revisions recommended by the Committee of the Whole were adopted, save one. The one rejected was a "prayer of intercession for those who labor in the Gospel."

The Committee on Canons reported adversely on a proposed canon erecting a missionary Episcopal jurisdiction over associated parishes of the colored race. The committee held that such a canon would be unconstitutional, and believed that the Church, in its law of parochial or diocesan organization, should not draw or recognize a line of distinction between the white and colored members. The committee therefore asked to be discharged from a further consideration of the matter. The report went upon the calendar.

A joint committee is to be named, consisting of two bishops, two clergymen and three laymen, to determine upon the place for holding the next General Convention, and it was resolved to ask the House of Bishops to consider in their pastoral letter the importance of the translation of the Holy Scriptures into various languages, a work which the Deputies gratefully acknowledged well done on the part of the American Bible Society.

The bishops refused to concur in the proposed memorial to Congress, passed by the Deputies, asking for a change in the District of Columbia and the Territories. A committee also reported that there is no authority for the placing of the eucharistic bread upon the tongues of the people instead of in their hands.

TALK ON TARIFF REVISION.

The President Confers With Senator Aldrich on the Senate Bill.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, is in town, and has had a protracted talk with the President. It is understood that Senator Aldrich was invited to confer with the President on the subject of the tariff and explain the salient features of the Senate bill. The President proposes to devote some attention in his annual messages to the question which was the chief issue in the last National campaign.

Senator Aldrich says: "The tariff question will certainly be the leading issue in the next congress, as the demand for revision is just as great now as ever, and the party cannot afford to disregard the wishes of a majority of the people."

He is not prepared now to say whether the Republican majority of the House Committee on Ways and Means will adopt the Senate bill in its entirety, or whether they will incorporate certain portions of it in the measure they may prepare. He has conversed with several members of the next house who are likely to be chosen members of the ways and means committee, and agree with him that the Republicans in both houses should unite in an effort to reduce taxation and wipe out a portion of the surplus.

New York Republican Primaries.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The Republican primaries last night passed off quietly. Little or no opposition was shown in the regular tickets except in the 13th Assembly district, where the Cowen faction polled 208 votes, the regular, or Gibbs, ticket having 593 votes.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The Rev. Chas. B. Mitchell will conduct the Y. M. C. A., meeting Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

—Stetson's Uncle Tom's Cabin Company drew a large audience at Music Hall, last evening. The performance was good and passed off smoothly.

—Stetson's steam calliope drew a big crowd of idlers and school children to witness the parade yesterday afternoon of the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupe.

—The Board of Directors of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association will meet in regular monthly session at Jackson & Codington's office, next Monday evening, at 8 o'clock.

—A 400 light Edison incandescent electric plant is being placed in the Scott Printing Machine Works, to light the office and the upper stories where all the fine lathe work is now done.

—If you are dissatisfied with the quality of your milk, Mr. John Hummel announces in another column today that he would be pleased to furnish you with pure Alderney milk. He solicits early trade.

—Among the many charming gift books to be found at Rand's, 24 West Front street, is one entitled "Off the Weather Bow of Life's Voyage," by Elizabeth N. Little. It is beautifully written and uniquely illustrated.

—Mr. Frank McInerney, a brother of little Maggie McInerney who was killed on the railroad in front of her house on Thursday evening, requests us to state that the child was not sent out to pick up chips, but was playing on the track when she met her death.

—Somewhat back from the village street
Stands the old-fashioned country seat;
Across its antique portico
Tall poplar trees their shadows throw,
And from its station in the hall
An ancient time-piece says to all:
"I tick the hours for earth and sky,
My mate you can at Collier's buy."

—No man should deprive his wife and family of a good local newspaper. They do not go out from home to learn the news as does the husband and father, and the paper serves to relieve the otherwise lonely hours of his absence. It is the worst possible economy to deprive the family of a local paper.

—A space writer in a Newark paper yesterday, devoted four inches to exaggerating the recent fire at Dog Corners. He states that the inmates were rescued from the second story by means of sheets and garments tied together, which is false. He also places the loss at $7,000—which is about $5,700 too much.

—Messrs C. Potter, Jr., & Co., the Plainfield press builders, have become interested in the patents of Messrs Schreiner and Schott, for instantaneous stereotyping by the papier-mache process, and will manufacture and sell the material and the necessary outfits for using it. The process has been thoroughly tested, and found to be a success.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The family of Mr. Henry C. Squires has returned to Plainfield after an absence of five months, and is again at home on Broadway.

"Mr. Aaron C. Martin informs us," says the Bound Brook Chronicle. "that his brother Joshua is lying very low at his home in Plainfield. The sick one is an old resident of this vicinity."

Miss Alice Burt, the school teacher, whose many misfortunes have been told in these columns, was placed on a stretcher yesterday afternoon and started by the 3:51 train for New York. Dr. T. S. Davis accompanied the patient to the Albany boat, in which city she will be cared for by a cousin, the nearest relative the unfortunate woman possesses.

A Delicate Operation.

Harry, the seven-year-old son of Mr. Edward Brown, of North avenue, is lying dangerously ill with membraneous croup. The child's condititon became so critical today that in order to prolong his life it was found to be necessary to try a last resort. Accordingly, Dr. Endicott, assisted by Drs. Long and Murray, this morning performed the delicate and difficult operation of opening the child's windpipe from the outside of the throat and inserting a silver tube in the opening.

WORKING THE AMPLIFIED DEGREE.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., Entertained About Three Hundred Visiting Knights.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., of this city, entertained in an agreeable manner at Reform Hall, last evening, about three hundred visiting Knights, representing Grant Lodge, of Jersey City, Goodwill Lodge, No. 101, of Scotch Plains, Somerset Lodge, No. 56, of Bound Brook, Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, of Somerville, Harmony, Olive Branch and Volunteer Lodges, of Elizabeth, and Unity Lodge No. 102, of this city. The visiting Knights arrived in town about 8:30 o'clock and preceded by the Plainfield Cornet Band they were escorted to Reform Hall, where the exercises and supper took place.

Chancellor Commander John C. VanDyke, of Perseverance Lodge presided, and Assemblyman Ulrich delivered the address of welcome. Past Grand Chancellor Moses Badgley, of Newark, made a short address, after which the members of Grant Lodge, worked the Amplified Degree on one member of Perseverance Lodge, in excellent form.

Following the working of the degree Mr. Wm. Chilvers, of Perseverance Lodge, rendered some vocal selections and Mr. B. R. Force, a member of the same lodge, gave a recitation, thus bringing the secret session to a close.

The Knights then adjourned to the basement of Reform Hall, where boniface John E. Beerbower, proprietor of the City Hotel, and a member of Perseverance Lodge, had set a bountiful repast for them. After supper the visitors were escorted to the lodge room where several hours were spent in speech-making, singing, etc

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, was organized nineteen years ago last Spring with charter members as follows: John R. McCall, John C. VanDyke, Jabob Wagner, Jules Canterwitz, (now of Philadelphia,) F. C. Gibbs, Eugene V. Lorton, (who for the past ten or twelve years has held the office of Keeper of Records and Seals of the Grand Lodge and who is also a member of the Supreme Lodge), Dunham Emory, Forrester Chandler, (now of Harlem), and L. B. Boolston. The lodge now has a membership of 148. During the nineteen years the lodge has only lost three members by death, and one of these, the late A. Foote, was a member but six weeks. So far as deaths are concerned, this lodge has been the most fortunate of any in the history of the Order. Three of the charter members have never drawn a cent for sick benefits. Financially, the lodge has $2,000 in the bank drawing interest, and about $800 to the credit of the benefit fund. During the coming Winter Perseverance Lodge will occupy its new home in the Hand building now being erected on East Second street.

Got Off Easy.

Mr. John Adams, coachman for Mr William Palmer Smith of Belvidere avenue, Netherwood, was thrown out of a low phaeton by a runaway horse on Front street, this morning, and cut in the head just above the left eye.

The horse was one of a pair of big banged-tailed cobs recently purchased by Mr. Smith on Long Island. Mrs. Smith proposed riding to town with the coachman this morning, but he thought it would be safer to go alone as the horse had not been out in a week. Coming through Park avenue the girth broke and the shafts jumping up and down each side of the horse's head frightened him.

The animal swung the light vehicle behind him into Front street and up against a mik wagon standing at the corner of Somerset. Adams was hanging back his whole weight and strength on the lines, but he might as well have been pulling at a telegraph pole. When the phæton struck the wagon, the former went out from under the coachman and he dropped gently in the road.

The horse ran up on the sidewalk of Vetterlein's market, turned the carriage completely over, tore himself loose and started for Rogers' fish stand. But the doors were shut in the animal's face and he was seized before he had tramped over the scores of pedestrians always on Front street at ten o'clock of Saturday mornings.

A Sad Wreck.

The son of one of Plainfield's most estimable citizens was a prisoner yesterday morning at police headquarters in Elizabeth, he having been arrested in that city Thursday while under the influence of drink.

When brought before Justice Hetfield he was shaking like a leaf, and begged so hard to be allowed to go to his home that the justice could not resist his appeal and permitted him to go, after imposing a fine of $2 and costs.

President Garfield's Physician.

Dr. Bliss speaking in the highest terms of Speer's Port Wine writes the following from

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25, 1884.
ALFRED SPEER, ESQ., Passaic, N. J.

Dear Sir—I have to acknowledge the superior quality of Wines of your production, notably your Port Wine, and to say I have prescribed them for my patients for the past two years, with uniform and satisfactory results. I have full confidence in the purity of your Wines, and that they are uniformly of standard strength, hence prescribe them almost exclusively in my practice.

Very truly yours,
D. W. BLISS, M. D.

Concerning the Late David L. Runyon.

In referring to the death of the late David L. Runyon, as told in THE PRESS of yesterday, the Newark Daily Advertiser of the 18th instant says:

"Mr. David L. Runyon, aged fifty-six years, and employed as a clerk by the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, at No. 752 Broad street, died of apoplexy at 8:30 o'clock this morning. He arrived at the office at the usual time, 8 o'clock, and had not been at his desk long before he complained of feeling ill. He laid down on a sofa that was in the room, and as he grew rapidly worse, Dr. Dennis was summoned. He did everything possible; but in fifteen minutes after he had been stricken Mr. Runyon was dead. The body was taken soon after to his home at the corner of Halsey and Linden streets, where it was received by his griefstricken wife and two daughters. Mr. Runyon had not been feeling well for several days. He had just returned from a short vacation, he having taken his outings this Summer a few days at a time. He has been employed in the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company for several years.

"Mr. Runyon was one of the twelve children of Squire Runyon, of Plainfield, and was born at the old homestead, near Washington Rock, back of Plainfield. He has been employed in the insurance business since 1870. Two of his brothers have died this year; Mr. J. C. Runyon, his elder brother, died on February 26th, in nearly the same way, and Judge Runyon died in March."

Dr. Carroll's Work.

THE PRESS a few days ago published the letter of Supt, Porter announcing the appointment of Mr. H. K. Carroll, of this city, to gather the religious statistics of the coming census report. Yesterday a reporter met Mr. Carroll and quotes him as saying:

"There is no doubt but that the announcement that church statistics will be included in the special inquiries to be made for the eleventh census will be well received by all denominations. The work will be most carefully and conscientiously done. It is a strange fact that the numerical strength of the various religious denominations should be largely a matter of conjecture. The statistics I intend securing will be of the most accurate and reliable kind. I am now engaged in preparing plans for such a division of the territory of each denomination as will make it comparatively easy for those to whom inquiries will be addressed to give a prompt response. The inquiry will be broad enough in its scope to embrace every religious body of whatever name or creed, however few or many its churches and members."

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

The Young Men's Christian Associations of the Fourth District begun their second annual convention at Rahway, yesterday. Representatives were present from the Asbury Park, Long Branch, New Brunswick, Rutgers, Plainfield and other associations of Monmouth, Middlesex and Union.

This evening James Dunn, of Rahway, C. T. Kissam, of Plainfield, and W. R. Janeway, of New Brunswick, will speak in the First Presbyterian church. Sunday services will be held morning, afternoon and evening, led by Frank B. Hoagland, State Secretary, D. F. More and others.

Mr. Fitzhugh Engaged Again.

The Plainfield Choral Society has commenced its work with commendable zeal, having already secured the services of Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh, as its musical conductor, and appointed the first rehearsal for Monday evening next, at Vincent chapel. THE PRESS will in a few days be able to give further particulars as to its plans for the season, which will be of interest to the musical portion of this community.

Mr. Powell on "The Outlook in Europe."

Meetings will be held in Reform Hall to-morrow at 9.15 A. M., and 4 and 7:30 P. M. The evening meeting will be addressed by Mr. Aaron M. Powell on "The Temperance Outlook in Europe." Doors open for the welcome admission of all.

Court of Naturalization.

The court will hold a special sitting in the County Clerk's office, at Elizabeth, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 30, from 7:30 till 9:30 o'clock, for the purposes of naturalization.

A Double Influence.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY is a medicine which will cure cases of neuralgia which other remedies have failed to reach, as it exercises a double influence, in one case over the circulation, and in the other over the nerves. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or address Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

—Oh please move that unsightly freight house, its overcrowded tracks and inconvenient yard, to the other end of town.

Do not throw away your hard earned cash for every new cough syrup, when that standard remedy for coughs, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, is 25c.

"Hurrah!" said a little girl, "I'm not to kept in because of that horrid neuralgia. My mamma has bought a bottle of Salvation Oil."

Dangerous Negligence.

It is as unwise to neglect a case of indigestion as a case of fever or other more serious disease, for, if allowed to progress as great danger to life may result. A few HAMBURG FIGS will put the bowels in a healthy condition, in which they may be kept by occasional use of this medicine. 25c. A Dose, one fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

THE VOICE OF "THE VISITOR."

What the Rev. Mr. Mitchell Has to Say of and to His Parishioners.

The first number of The Visitor since the return of the Rev. Mr. Mitchell from Europe, was issued today. It is published by the pastor of the M. E. church for free distribution among his people. A few items of general interest from the current number, are given below:

At the residence of Trustee Pangborn, Tuesday evening, October 8, Charles Pangborn Lyman, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lyman, was baptised by the pastor.

Mr. Chas. E. Cokefair and family have returned to Plainfield, and will soon occupy their new home at 9 Crescent avenue, which is undergoing extensive repairs.

Miss Clara Burt is again at Wellesly College, and her many friends rejoice over her excellent standing in her large class, the Sophomores.

Mr. Geo. W. Davis and family have moved to East Orange for the Winter, and identified themselves with the church activities of that place.

Mr. Clifford McGee with his violin gives great help in the music of the Juniors' class. How wonderful that so strong a fellow on the foot-ball ground can handle a bow so deftly, and draw from that most delicate of all musical instruments such strains of sweetest music.

George Angleman, Jr., who went to Kansas last June to take charge of the Methodist Episcopal church at Rosedale, has met with good success, and is very happy in his work.

The Misses Emma and Adelaide McGee have recently returned from a Summer trip to Alaska. Miss Emma will give a talk on Alaska before the Epworth League, Friday evening, Nov. 1.

Dr. Carroll has been much in demand this Fall. He has preached in many prominent pulpits, and temporarily supplied the Twenty-Fourth street Methodist Episcopal church, New York City.

The average attendance of the Sunday school during the past Summer months exceeded that of last year. The great need of our school is more competent and regular teachers. Each Sunday there are classes of bright boys and girls waiting for teachers who do not come. This is Superintendent Jackson's greatest trial.

The marble baptismal font, which has been placed within the chancel, was purchased in Florence, Italy, by the pastor, and presented to the church as a token of the appreciation of the long vacation granted him during the past Summer.

Rev. G. T. Reynolds, who supplied our pulpit during July and August was greatly delighted with Plainfield in general, and our Methodist people in particular. It is a pleasure for the pastor to note that this feeling was reciprocated by our people, and he congratulates himself on securing a supply which was so satisfactory to all concerned. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds made many warm friends during their stay here, and they will always be warmly welcomed to Plainfield.

The pastor expects to give as much time and thought to the service on Sunday evening as to that of the morning. If either service is to be exalted it will be the evening one; for it is then that the unsaved are to be reached. The pastor's despair is to find himself Sunday evening standing before a congregation composed of non-church members, and to look in vain for those whose presence and prayers would cheer him, and whose presence would be an encouragement to the unconverted.

The Epworth League held its first meeting after the Summer vacation Friday, Oct. 4. There was a large attendance, and the pastor gave a talk on Naples and Vesuvius. Friday evening of this week there will be a debate on the question, "Resolved, that Americans should visit their own country before going abroad." The committee on literary work are preparing an excellent programme for the coming months.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U. are arranging for a thorough temperance revival next month. A prominent worker has been secured, Music Hall has been rented for two weeks, and all who are interested in temperance should lend this movement all possible aid and sympathy. The city pastors are all in hearty sympathy with the work, and have pledged their co-operation.

STILL A MYSTERY.

The Murdered Girl Found at Rahway Three Years Ago.

It will be three years next March since the body of the murdered girl was found on the highway at Rahway, and the mystery is still fresh in the minds of our readers.

Mrs. Agnes Space of Deckertown, who expected a sister from Scotland, identified the body as that of her sister, Mary Dorman. A letter was received from Mrs. Space yesterday. Neither she nor her mother, who is still in Scotland, has since heard from the girl. Her brother-in-law, Kirkwood, who at the time of the murder lived in Jersey City, and who was suspected by many of having committed it, is now in New Zealand. His wife is now in a lunatic asylum in Scotland. Mrs. Space's identification of the body was the only complete one. She is satisfied that if her sister is alive the family would have had some tidings of her.—Newark Press-Register.

—It is said that potatoes are going to be high this Winter. What's the matter with laying in a stock of ladders?

Rev. Moysant Wanted.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Joseph Moysant, the Catholic priest who is said to have run away to France with the wife of Mike McDonald, is wanted here for forgery. An excellent picture of the fugitive has appeared on the first page of an illustrated police newspaper printed in Mayence, Germany. The Pinkertons have been tracing the priest ever since he disappeared, but have been unable to run him down.

More Sandbagging in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—As John Burke, a bookmaker and saloonkeeper, was going home from his place of business early this morning he was attacked by two men, one of whom struck at him with a sandbag while the other tore open his coat and attempted to rob him. Burke succeeded in avoiding the blow, and breaking loose from the would-be robbers, fled to his home. No arrests.

Schooner Wrecked and Abandoned.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 19.—Capt. Howes, of the steamer Dorchester, reports today that yesterday morning, 90 miles southwest of Gay Head, he passed the two-masted schooner Forest City, of Ellsworth, Me., wrecked and abandoned.

No Break in the Deadlock.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 19.—The 23d District Republican Convention, after three ballots without change, adjourned until next Tuesday evening. The convention is as far as ever from reaching a nomination.

New Orleans Favors Chicago.

Annie Green Sinking.

KEARNEY, N. J., Oct. 19.—Annie Green, the thirteen-year-old girl who was struck with a sand-bag Tuesday night, is reported to be sinking. There is no clue to her assailant.

The School Superintendents of New York State elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Supt. W. H. Maxwell, Brooklyn; Superintendent Barney Whitney, Ogdensburgh, Vice President; Supt. E. N. Jones, Saratoga, Secretary and Treasurer.

John Higgins, of Jersey City, N. J., the clerk of the Central Chemical Company of Kearney Township, who was indicted for embezzling funds from his employers, was sentenced yesterday to three years hard labor in the State prison.

The two young ladies of New York city, who were reported on Wednesday night as missing from their fathers' residences on Fifth avenue returned home last night saying they had been visiting friends in Yonkers. Who they are, is still a mystery, the police refusing to divulge their names.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

ENGLAND'S ORDERS

The Dominion Difficulties Must be Settled Soon.

GREAT DIPLOMACY TO BE USED.

The British Minister Will Feel the Pulse of the United States.

A More Extended Extradition Treaty Desired—Secretary Blaine to Take Up the Several Questions—The British Government Requests to be Fully Informed on the Alaska Boundary Question.

OTTAWA, Oct. 19.—The Dominion Government have been advised that Sir Julian Pauncefote, British Minister at Washington, returns with authority to feel the pulse of the United States Cabinet on the principal matters of dispute between Canada and the United States, the fishery question and the Behring Sea difficulty.

It is stated here in official circles that Secretary Blaine has intimated his desire to informally take the several questions up with the British Minister, that a policy may be agreed upon with reference to expensive and lengthy arbitrations.

It is learned in the State Department here that Lord Salisbury has advised the Dominion Government of its desire to have these unpleasant controversies brought to a speedy and amicable settlement. Sir Julian also returns with instructions to ascertain the views of the Harrison Administration on the question of a more extended extradition treaty with Great Britain and the outlook for the successful negotiation of a new treaty.

As to the question of extending the commercial relations between Canada and the United States, in the way of a reciprocal trade treaty, a member of the Dominion Cabinet states that that has been left entirely in the hands of the Canadian Government by Lord Salisbury. Of course the British Minister at Washington would be the intermediary figure in any negotiations or proposals, as all correspondence on the subject, while originating with the Canadian Government, would have to pass through the hands of the imperial authorities.

The British Government have also requested to be fully posted and informed on the Alaska boundary question, with a view to having the boundary defined before any serious international complications with the United States arise on that account.

FATHER M'FADDEN'S TRIAL.

Military Present in Great Numbers and Trouble Expected Over the Verdict.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Nearly two hundred additional policemen have arrived at Mayborough from Dublin, and though the popular excitement continues the Court proceeded with the work of selecting a jury to try Father McFadden and his associates for the murder of Police Inspector Martin in February last. The court room was filled with police and the indignant parishioners of Father McFadden whose violence yesterday compelled the Court to adjourn were carefully excluded. The main object of the Crown attorney appears to be to blacken the character of the accused priest and to destroy his popularity with his people.

An admission made by one of the Crown witnesses, a police official who took part in the fight in which the Police Inspector lost his life, is regarded as of the highest importance by counsel for the defense. This man admitted that before Martin was struck at all, he saw Father McFadden with blood running down his face, evidently from a wound in the head.

READY FOR BATTLE.

Gladstone to Deliver a Speech on the Liberal Programme.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt, in an oration, said that he had just left Hawarden, and that he could therefore say, of his personal knowledge, that Mr. Gladstone was never in greater vigor, and never felt more confidence in his own future and in the success of the great reforms for which he has been fighting. His health is excellent, and his spirit is as buoyant and hopeful as ever.

It is announced that in the speech which Mr. Gladstone is to deliver at Southport next Wednesday, the reform programme of the Liberal party will be given in detail and the Liberal home rule proposals will be expounded. The speech is consequently looked forward to with great interest by Tories and Liberals alike.

JACK THE RIPPER IN HAMBURG.

A Crime Similar in Every Respect to the Whitechapel Series.

HAMBURG, Oct. 19.—Excitement has been caused here by the discovery of a murder similar in details to those perpetrated in Whitechapel, London. The body of a woman has been found in Flensburg, a suburb of this city. The throat was cut, the limbs dismembered and the abdomen cut open. The work of mutilation has been by the hand of an expert who, if not Jack the Ripper, imitated him closely.

The victim was one of the class of unfortunates, the quarter in which the crime was committed was a disreputable one, and there are other circumstances to lead to the fear that the woman butcher of London has transferred his base operations to this city.

The police give no information, but an active search for the murderer is in progress.

France Making War Preparations.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The Government of France is discussing the project of doubling the strength of the Sixth Army Corps with headquarters at Nancy and it is also intending to double the railway facilities from Lille and Lyons to the Besancon frontier. This action is to be taken in view of the increase by Germany of her garrisons in Alsace.

Twenty Persons Drowned.

MADRID, Oct. 19.—While returning from an excursion into the interior yesterday, the Sultan of Morocco had to cross a swollen river to get to Fez. The Sultan crossed safely but twenty of his body guard who undertook to swim the river on their horses were swept down the stream by the raging flood and drowned.

COCKRAN'S ELOQUENT APPEAL.

He Argues in Kemmler's Behalf Against Electrical Execution.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 19.—Burke Cochran argued the appeal in the Kemmler case before the General Term yesterday. He went over the history of the case: reviewed the expert testimony taken before Referee Becker, and argued that the rights of citizens as guaranteed by Section 5 of Article 1 of the State Constitution should be protected against the experiments of so-called scientific men. He held it was not certain death that would in all cases or in any particular case be produced by electricity and quoted cases where persons now living had received shocks largely in excess of the voltage to be used on the machines now in process of erection.

He also referred to the statement made by experts that if death did not ensue within one minute from the time the victim came in contact with the current the body would be carbonized or else mummified and said that in the case of Lineman Feeks the autopsy showed that carbonization had taken place. His plea was eloquent and exhaustive.

INCOMPLETE AGAIN.

Ex-Gov. Hartranft's Death Causes a Vacancy in the Cherokee Commission.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—The Cherokee Commission is again incomplete, owing to the death of one of its members, General Hartranft, of Pennsylvania. This Commission was created to treat with the Five Nations for the sale of the lands in Indian Territory not deeded by them.

President Harrison had difficulty in securing three Commissioners to conduct the negotiations. Finally a Commissioner was secured by the acceptance of their appointments by Judge Little, of Arkansas, General Lucius Fairchild, of Wisconsin, and General Hartranft, of Pennsylvania. General Hartranft was the last to accept.

The Commission has only made one trip to the Indian Territory, but was preparing to go to work earnestly next Spring.

SENATOR STANFORD SUED.

The Vinegar Bitters Man Asks for a Cool Million.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Dr. Richard H. McDonald, the venerable millionaire, who made his fortune out of vinegar bitters and who now runs the Pacific Bank in intervals of his Prohibition work, has brought suit against Senator Leland Stanford for $1,200,000, which he claims Stanford owes him for twenty-five certificates of the original issue of Central Pacific stock made 25 years ago.

This is the stock which Stanford purchased from Mrs. Clara Belle McDonald, the complainant's wife, who, it is alleged, stole it about two years ago.

AN IRISH PARLIAMENT.

It Will be Granted to Look After Local Matters Only.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—Attorney-General Webster, addressing a meeting of Conservatives at Ryde last night, made the statement that if the Irish Parliament, for which the Home Rulers were clamoring, were intended to be given authority over strictly local matters only the Government stood ready not alone to concede it but was prepared to father a measure looking to that end.

He did not believe, however, that Mr. Parnell and his supporters in Ireland, whatever might be said of his English allies, would remain long satisfied with such a reform alone.

Maggie Mitchell Married.

BOSTON, Oct. 19.—It is reported that Miss Maggie Mitchell became Mrs. Charles Abbott in this city on Saturday last, but it is not known where or by whom the ceremony was performed. Theatrical people here know nothing of the affair, but that the happy event has taken place is certain according to an article in a Brockton (Mass.) paper which announces in its local columns that "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abbott (Maggie Mitchell) are registered at the City Hotel." The company, of which Miss Mitchell is the star and Mr. Abbott the leading man, played Fanchon there last night. When Miss Mitchell married Mr. Paddock she did it so quietly that no one knew it until two months had elapsed.

Only one Case of Smallpox.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 19.—Investigation develops the fact that instead of 100 cases of smallpox on Point Pelee Island, near Sandusky, as was reported yesterday, there is but one case. The schoolmaster of the island is the victim and he is much isolated. The scare has driven away most of the members of the Point Pelee Fishing Club, just as the bass fishing had become best, and Sandusky fishing boats have been unable to land at the island for several days. A spread of the scourge is not anticipated.

Inhaled Gas from a Rubber Tubing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Mrs Anna Rudolph, aged 29 years, committed suicide at her residence, 416 East Eleventh street. Yesterday she purchased rubber tubing to reach from the gaspipe to her bed. When her sister entered her room afterwards she found her dead in bed with the gas turned on and the tubing stuck down her throat with one hand clutching it to keep it in position. The cause of the suicide was sickness and unpleasant married relations.

An English Land Syndicate.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 19.—The Capitol Freehold Land and Investment Company of England filed a copy of its charter with the Secretary of State yesterday. Its operations embrace the 3,000,000 acres of the capitol syndicate lands in the pan handle part of the State. The capital of the company is $15,000,000.

Signed for a Finish Fight.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—Jimmy Keenan, of Baltimore, has signed articles with Robt. L. Flynn, of this city, for a finish fight within 50 miles of this city within a month for a purse of $200 of which the winner is to receive two-thirds. The men are to fight at catch weights with four-ounce gloves, Queensberry rules.

Catholic Torchlight Procession.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 19.—The division marshals, at a meeting last night at the Cardinal's residence, arranged the details of the torchlight procession of November 12, in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the archdiocese of Baltimore. Estimates from different marshals showed that 20,000 men will be in line.

A PORTRAIT statue of General McClellan is to be erected on the south front of the Philadelphia City Hall. The figure will be of bronze, and with the pedestal will stand thirty feet high. The designs are furnished by Paul J. Pels and Henry J. Ellicott, and the cost of execution will be about $30,000. The anniversary of the battle of Antietam, September 17, 1890, is the date fixed for the unveiling of the statue.

RELATED OF GREAT WRITERS.

PICART, the comic writer, composed all of his pieces in bed.

IT is said that Schiller, before composing, put his feet in cold water.

DICKENS and the Earl of Beaconsfield were fops of the first water.

THE famous Bossuet worked in a cold room, with his head warmly enveloped.

MONTESQUIEU could compose only in a post-chaise, with the horses at a rapid trot.

VOLTAIRE always fancied elegant toilets, and adorned himself in a striking manner.

JOUY wrote most of his tragedies in an alley, at each end of which was a bench, and on each bench paper and pencils, ready for use.

THE great romancer, Balzac, after a frugal dinner at six or seven o'clock, had his servant call him at midnight, when he took a cup of extremely strong coffee, and worked till noon.

THE productive capacity of Le Sage, author of "Gil Blas," depended upon the sun. He awoke at sunrise, and the higher it rose in the heavens and the clearer it shone, the richer was the flow of his thought.

THE English poet, Alexander Pope, dressed like a dandy, and his monstrous bag of hair, his elegant sword, his tight velvet hose and his excessively wide ruffles, gave to his little, crooked figure a comical appearance.

CHARLES ETIENNE, the dramatist, when the inspiration for writing seized him, sent wife, children and servants away from home, locked doors and window shutters, laid himself in bed and composed his verses in quiet and darkness.

THOMAS HOBBES, the English author, fell into a condition resembling insanity if at night the light was taken even for a few minutes from the room, but regained his composure immediately when the light was brought back to the room.

THE learned Dr. Johnson had a special dislike of stepping over a threshold with the left foot foremost, and he was often seen to make a great circuit in order to avoid a certain alley in Leicester Fields, which he believed to be fatal to him.

YOUNG wrote his "Night Thoughts" having a skull lying on the table before him, which served him also as a candlestick. Sometimes he walked among the graves of a church-yard at midnight in order to excite grave and solemn thoughts in his mind.

THE French historian, Mezeray, could not work by daylight at all, but always wrote, even during the day, by the light of a candle. In his rooms the deepest darkness reigned perpetually, and when friends visited him he never failed to attend them to the door with a light in his hand, even at bright mid-day.

GOLDSMITH was addicted to fine clothes and startling effects. "He was fond," says one of his contemporaries, "of exhibiting his muscular little person in the gayest apparel of the day, to which was added a bag-wig and a sword." Thus arrayed, he would figure about in the sunshine in the Temple Gardens, much to his own satisfaction, but to the amusement of his acquaintances.

GOING THE ROUNDS.

AN Atchison, Kan., farmer recently offered to trade a barrel of sorghum for a wife.

SALT LAKE in Utah is reported to be eight and one-half feet lower than it was two years ago.

THERE are wild lands in Southwest Missouri that can be bought for fourteen dollars a quarter section.

A WALKING-STICK, the crutch-handle of which is an ear-trumpet, is the latest convenience for deaf men.

IT is said that President Lincoln's private papers are still lying in a vault of the First National Bank in Bloomington, Ill.

EXILES from Florida are longing to return to their native land, and are moving nearer and nearer as the frost belt moves South. They will find many sad changes in the sunny land.

MR. EDISON says that "in a few years the world will be just like one big ear; it will be unsafe to speak in a house until one has examined the walls and furniture for concealed phonographs."

TWO NEW YORKERS who rode across the continent to San Francisco on horseback are reported to have said that a stack of gold bars as high as the Sierras would not induce them to make the return trip in the same manner.

CRACKSMEN now open safes by applying a powerful machine that pulls out the knob of the combination lock. They do this easily and quickly, and the old battle between safe-builders and thieves must now be fought all over again.

A DILAPIDATED safe stood outdoors in Adrian, Mich., several years ago, and recently it was sold for old iron. On breaking it up a set of account books and a good gold watch were found inside, and no one knows who the watch belongs to.

A PARTY of United States surveyors who have been engaged on the coast of Oregon the past summer say that there are hundreds of fertile valleys unsettled and several good harbors unused, and only awaiting the advent of commerce to create another world of activity.

"PUT two nickels in the slot and get a bottle of whisky," is the sign on a slot machine which has appeared in Kansas City. The "bottle" is a small one containing about a gill of stuff fiery enough to tickle the throat of the most grizzled cowboy. The machine is intended to defeat the Sunday-closing law.

THE Scott exclusion act does not seem to keep the Chinese out of the country. After an intermission of a few months Chinese immigration is assuming its old proportions at San Francisco. A steamer which arrived a few days ago brought 168 Chinese, the men classed as "merchants" and the women as "wives." The local papers say that they evidently belong to the laboring class.

LIEUTENANT SCHWATKA estimates the number of living cliff dwellers he has discovered in Southern Chihuahua at from 8,000 to 12,000. They are very wild and shy, and upon the approach of white people fly to their caves or cliffs by notched sticks placed against the face of the cliffs if too steep, although they ascend vertical stone faces if there are the slightest crevices for the fingers and toes.

THE United States Government has perfected measures for the preservation of the Casa Grande ruins in Arizona. For miles around the Casa Grande many great mounds, now hardly distinguishable from the desert sands, bear indisputable evidence of having been, at some far remote period, the abode of busy industries. The most ancient of the traditions of the Pimas and Papagoes, who yet live where their fathers have lived for centuries, allude to them as "The Ruins."

THE voice of the cowboy is heard in Cheyenne uttering this plaintive wail over the departure of the good old days: "In the fall now Cheyenne is only a nice, lively town with plenty of business. There's no more racin' up and down street on horseback; no more shootin' when you feel like makin' a noise; no more fightin' policemen or runnin' away from them. The town is all the time about half full of tenderfeet who think a cowboy in the only proper togs 'looks funny.' Why, the gamblin' games are all on the square now, and the whisky is so much better than it used to be that you can't hardly taste it, but let's go and get some of it anyhow."

NOTES FOR NATURALISTS.

THERE is a pond in New Jersey where the sacred lotus of the East has become established and proved itself hardy, although in the winter the surface of the water is frozen over.

TYRANTS, especially great-tits, are held in great horror by many bee-keepers who declare that they are their greatest enemies, and accuse them of lapping at the entrances to the hives and snapping up the bees as they come out to discover what is amiss.

THE skin of the whale is from two inches to two feet thick, that of a large specimen weighing thirty tons. The rhinoceros is the thickest skinned quadruped, with a hide so tough as to resist the claws of the lion or tiger, the sword or the balls of the old-fashioned musket.

A PLANT has been discovered in the forests of India which possesses in a high degree astonishing magnetic power. The hand breaking off a leaf receives a shock, and a magnetic needle is affected by it at the distance of six meters from the trunk.

AT a recent meeting of the Linnean Society in England a most extraordinary fruit was exhibited, the so-called "miraculous berry" of West Africa belonging to the Sapotaceæ. Covered externally with a soft, sweet pulp, it imparts to the palate a sensation which renders it possible to partake of sour substances and even of tartaric acid, lime-juice, vinegar, and to give them a flavor of absolute sweetness.

JUST as the peregrine is the largest, so the merlin is the smallest of British resident falcons. Although not much larger than a thrush, this handsome little bird is full of dash and fire, and commonly attacks birds more than double its weight. It has been known to pull down a partridge, and it is sometimes terribly destructive to young grouse. While nearly all of the diurnal British birds of prey build on rocks or trees, the merlin nests on the ground.

ONE thing that never fails to interest all who see it when it is found on the mountain heights of the Sierras is the snow plant, known to botanists as the sarcodes sanguinea, meaning blooded flesh. No flesh or blood could be so exquisitely beautiful. Imagine a rosy and snow-tinted, crowned hyacinth, from eight to twenty inches in height, every miniature bell wound about by a rosy and frosted silver ribbon, all topped by a huge head of asparagus in hoar-frost and silver.

THERE is a little yellow bee in Honduras that is very much like the little yellow flies found about corn silks. The bees are without stings, and the most industrious little insects imaginable. They build in hollows in trees and wherever they can find a lodgment, and they gather a double handful of honey of delicious flavor in these nests of rough comb. So plentiful are they that a person can take a hatchet and cut into the knot-hole in the trees and soon collect all the honey he wants without the danger of being stung by the bees.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Warren County Prohibition Convention at Glens Falls, N. Y., nominated J. P. Randall for the Assembly.

The Grand Army posts of Washington have begun to agitate the subject of the removal of General Grant's body to that city.

John Brewer, the crack live-bird shot of Pennsylvania, has sailed for Australia, where he intends stopping until the spring of 1890.

REED OR M'KINLEY
An Opinion that One of Them Will Be the Next Speaker.

SAVAGE LETTER FROM TANNER.

The Corporal is Glad if He Exceeded the Liberality of His Predecessor.

He Attacks the Methods of the Commission that Investigated the Pension Office—The New Commissioner Takes Charge of the Office To-Day—Work of the Next Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—As members-elect to the Fifty-first Congress reach the city, gossip respecting the organization of the next House of Representatives naturally increases. The consensus of opinion among members-elect now here indicate that the Speakership will go either to Maine (Mr. Reed) or Ohio (Mr. McKinley).

Messrs. Burroughs, of Michigan, and Cannon, of Illinois, are both on the ground, however, and it is said will at least make the contest interesting before balloting begins. At this writing it would be a very difficult undertaking to pick out the stronger candidate from the first two named.

Major John M. Carson, of the Philadelphia "Ledger," appears to have already practically captured the clerkship of the next House. In his modest way Major Carson has been working all summer and it is claimed by his friends that he has pledges sufficient to elect on the first ballot.

Col. Swords appears to have no rival for the position of Sergeant-at-Arms while there are several candidates for the offices of doorkeeper and postmaster.

A Busy Session of Congress Expected.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—There are not many Senators and Representatives in Washington now, but most of those here expect a very interesting and busy session of Congress during the coming winter. The tariff, trusts, the Civil Service law, the Inter-State Commerce law, and subsidies will be among the subjects that will engage the attention of Congress.

What are recognized as the great questions of the day, will, for the most part, be presented as party measures and are likely to render the coming session a very important one.

The New Pension Commissioner.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—General Raum, the new Pension Commissioner assumes charge of the pension office to-day. He has been delayed with telegrams of congratulation since the President made the appointment on Saturday. Politicians are still discussing the big surprise the President gave them in appointing General Raum, as all were dead sure that Powell of New York would get the position.

TANNER STRIKES BACK.

He is Glad that He Granted More Pensions than His Predecessor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Ex-Commissioner Tanner makes public a long letter in reply to the one recently published by Secretary Noble. It is savage in tone. He denies that he was insubordinate and quotes in ful his letter to the Secretary in August, in which he said he desired to carry out Noble's wishes, and if he had not done so he wished Noble to advise him. Tanner says the Secretary did not answer this letter.

Tanner then takes up the question of rerating and arrearages, and defends his action on the ground that it was his duty as Commissioner to do so. He calls Noble's attention to the fact that he (Noble), sent General Powell, of Illinois, to Commissioner Black with a note, and that Black rerated Powell and gave him $6,300 arrears.

Tanner states his belief that he was forced to resign because of his excessive liberty in granting pensions, but claims he only tried to carry out what he and other Republican speakers had promised old soldiers in the campaign that elected Harrison.

In conclusion he attacks the methods of the commission that investigated the Pension Office, and says he was denied the right of being present to defend himself.

All the commission found wrong was that he (Tanner) was granting more pensions than his predecessor. This he was glad of.

Australia's Federal Council.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—It is understood in Melbourne that proposals are to be made for the reconstruction of the Australian Federal Council. According to the favorite plan the number of the Council is to be increased to twenty-three members. The colonies containing more than 700,000 population will be entitled to six representatives, those having 300,000 to five members, 100,000 to four members, and under that number to two members.

Suffocated by Gas.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—George Pfeiffer was found dead in bed at 206 East 34th street, yesterday, having been suffocated by gas. His room-mate, Morris A. Redding, was unconscious and may die. Pfeiffer was out of work, and it is thought that he left the gas turned on in order to end his life, and that Redding was unaware of his action.

The Missing Express Manager Seen.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 21.—Charles H. King, manager of the United States Express Company here, who has been missing for a week, was seen in New York yesterday by Cashier Sanford, of the company, and it is believed that he is now at Mr. Sanford's house in this city. Mr. King's accounts are said to be correct.

HAD A BOGUS GOLD BRICK.

A New York Confidence Man Arrested in a Pennsylvania Town.

READING, Pa., Oct. 21.—The police of this city arrested a man who was acting in a suspicious manner in the suburbs, and upon searching him they found in a handbag a bogus gold brick, which he had been endeavoring to sell to an unsuspecting farmer. The man gave the name of James McVicker, and said his home was in New York.

The authorities in New York were notified of the arrest, and Inspector Byrnes at once recognized in the description of the prisoner, James McVicker, the notorious confidence man who plied his vocation in that city several years ago.

McVicker was at one time a cowboy. He came East about six years ago to escape arrest, it is said, for killing a man. In 1884 he shot and killed Frank Gordon, a "crook," on the corner of the Bowery and Bleeker streets, New York, in a quarrel over the division of plunder. The only witnesses to the affair were a party of degraded women, friends of McVicker, who testified in his behalf at the trial, and subsequently brought about his acquittal. He was arrested several times for confidence operations.

WHAT POISONED THEM?

A New Jersey Family Taken Violently Ill at Dinner.

CLIFTON, N. J., Oct. 21.—Henry L. Bogart, a broker of New York, stopping with his father-in-law here, narrowly escaped death from poisoning yesterday. The family sat down to dinner, as usual, but immediately afterward all were taken violently ill, apparently in consequence of some kind of poison mixed with the food. Mr. Bogart, his wife, and their two children were all taken with violent spasms, and a physician was hastily summoned. Antidotes were administered, and at a late hour last night all were in a fair way to recover.

Mystery surrounds the case, and little, if any information can be obtained. Mr. Bogart's father-in-law is a justice of the peace, and says that nothing will be made public until a careful investigation is made. No servant or stranger was in the house at the time, nor is Mr. Bogart known to have an enemy. Detectives will be put on the case.

MR. BAYARD'S MARRIAGE.

Invitations Issued for the Wedding of the Ex-Secretary and Miss Clymer.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—Invitations received in this city announce that the long-talked-of wedding between ex-Secretary Thomas F. Bayard and Miss Clymer will take place in Washington on Thursday, November 7. It was the intention of both parties to be quietly married, owing to the recent death of Mrs. Bayard, but they have decided to invite a few of their most intimate friends.

Among the guests will be ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland, ex-Secretary and Mrs. Whitney, ex-Postmaster-General Don Dickinson, Mr. Garland and Chief Justice Fuller and family. There will be no bridesmaids and the ushers have not yet been announced.

Why He Left the Episcopal Church.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Rev. J. M. Leavitt, for 41 years a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, announced from his pulpit in the First Reformed Episcopal Church yesterday his reasons for joining the latter denomination. He is unable to continue his adherence to the Episcopal doctrines on infant baptism and various other points, and also objects to the designation of ministers as "priests."

A Prominent Connecticut Man Dead.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 21.—Mr. Geo. W. Moore, a leading citizen and prominent banker and broker of this city, died yesterday after a week's illness, aged 66. He was the head of the firm of Geo. W. Moore & Co., president of the Mechanics' bank, a director of the Phœnix Fire and Life Insurance Companies, and president of the Cedar Hill Cemetery Association.

Death of Hon. George Taylor.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Hon. George Taylor, senior member of the firm of Taylor Bros., the largest thermometer manufacturing concern in the United States, died here yesterday, aged 56. Mr. Taylor represented Rochester in the Assembly in 1874-'75, and always took a keen interest in public affairs.

She Jumped from a Third-Story Window.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Adelaide Phelps Thompson, aged 30, who has been under treatment for a nervous disease affecting her brain, jumped from a third-story window of her home, No. 77 Hancock street, yesterday and was killed.

TALMAGE IN A THEATRE.

He Preached to a Large Audience in the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Rev. Dr. Talmage preached to a large audience yesterday in the Academy of Music. He announced that a site had been purchased for a new edifice to replace the burned tabernacle.

The site is at Clinton and Greene avenue, 150 by 200 feet. The price paid is about $125,000. Dr. Talmage will break ground for the new church on October 28 at 4 p. m. The plans for the building have not yet been perfected.

Through a Car Window.

RED BANK, N. J., Oct. 21.—The Rev. O. W. Hoddy, of Philadelphia, was a passenger on the express on the New York and Long railroad from New York. Near Morgan's Station some unknown person threw a stone through the car window while the train was in motion. The missile struck Mr. Hoddy in the head, inflicting a serious if not fatal wound. He was taken to Long Branch, and a physician of that place attended him.

HE RATTLED MONEY
That is What Tempted Hillman to Kill the Peddler.

THE MURDERER'S CONFESSION.

It Was Told to a Fellow Prisoner in the Woodbury Jail.

He Struck the Murdered Man With a Hatchet Three Times in the Head—The Dead Body Dragged Out of the House and Dumped Into the Creek—He Opened the Flood Gates and Went Away.

WOODBURY, N. J., Oct. 21.—M. Hillman, who is to be hanged on Nov. 13 for the murder of Peddler Herman Seideman, has made a confession. The confession was made, as alleged, to a fellow prisoner, who is described as having formerly been a New York lawyer who was ruined by drink, and who is in jail for vagrancy under the assumed name of James Jackson. Following is the confession:

"Peter Seideman had been in the habit of stopping over night with me during his periodical trips through West Jersey. Seideman gave me only about 35 cents' worth of his goods for a night's lodgings. The last time he came to my home was on the day of the wood sale, last November. I met David McGill that day, who was at the sale, and he asked me who Seideman was when he saw him at my house. I told him he was a peddler who often came to my house, and I asked McGill what he thought it was worth to stay at my house all night. He said a dollar was little enough. I told McGill I thought so, too, and that it would be the last night Seideman would stay at my house. I hung around until the wood sale was over and when I got home Seideman was still there. He had a big pack with him and he took supper with us. He told me he intended staying all night and wanted to get up early, as he had a long tramp to make next day. I made him a bed on the floor of the downstairs room. Me and my wife went up stairs early and went to bed.

"I laid there thinking about that big pack and how Seidman had rattled money in his pockets before I went up stairs. I couldn't sleep thinking about the thing, and about 11 o'clock I got up and put on my pants and sneaking down stairs without waking up my wife. When I got down there Seidman was sound asleep with his clothes on in the corner.

"I picked up a hatchet from near the fireplace and went over to Sideman. I struck him on the head with the hatchet over the eye, and he never moved. I hit him twice more to make sure of it, and he was dead.

"After killing him I went through his pockets and got $11.30. I then wanted to get rid of the body, and thought of the mill pond. I took him by the heels and dragged him out of the door to the road, and down the road across the first bridge to the second one that crosses the creek. I dumped the body into the creek and opened the flood gates. The water washed him down to the swamp. I shut the gates and went back home."

THE COAL TRADE.

The Demand at Present Not Heavy and the Season's Distribution About Over.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 21.—The active distribution of coal for the present season is practically over. New England has laid in its winter supply, except a few hundred thousand tons that will go forward in the next five or six weeks. No more orders are coming in from that section and no more are expected until next spring. The Western trade is rather more active, but the demand there is pretty well filled. In a few weeks more the movement will be reduced by the closing of lake navigation. In and about New York and Philadelphia the demand is good, but the trade is not up to last year.

Prices are held up very firmy about this city, but in New York the circular is cut about forty cents. There is no foundation whatever for the reports that prices will be advanced next week. The companies will make efforts to maintain prices at the present range until next spring, and the belief in the trade is they will succeed unless the winter is a very mild one. The output of coal is being regulated to the demands of the market, and the Reading Company has just shut down nine collieries "for repairs." All through the region the miners are being worked on short time.

DROPPED DEAD ON THE STREET.

Rochester's Oldest Baptist Minister Dies While Going to Church.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Rev. A. Judson Barrett, D. D., pastor of the Lake Avenue Baptist Church, fell dead on the street while going from his home to the church last night.

Dr. Barrett was born in 1832 and was graduated at Rockland University in 1854. He was the oldest Baptist minister in point of pastoral service in the city. For many years he was prominent in educational affairs.

It is supposed that his death resulted from apoplexy. Dr. Barrett had recently returned from a year's vacation during which he traveled throughout the United States for the benefit of his health.

To-Day's Greenback Convention.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The National Greenback party, George O. Jones chairman, assembled at the Grand Central Hotel this afternoon "to nominate a State ticket, or to take such other action as will aid in reorganizing the Greenback party."

Death of an Episcopal Delegate.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Rev. Wm. B. Nairn, of Nutley, N. J., a delegate to the Episcopal Convention now in session here, died last night at St. Luke's Hospital of typhoid fever.

—The citizens of Plainfield have a rich treat in store for them in the address to be delivered by Dr. M. E. Gates, President of Rutgers College, at the 22d anniversary of the Y. M. C. A., to be held in the First Presbyterian church, Thursday of this week, at 8 o'clock.

Not Wanted in Plainfield.

Under the above heading the Newark Advertiser of Saturday, said:

"The Solicitor of the Treasury has given an opinion that a woman now detained in New York on arrival from Scotland as being unable to support herself and two children, cannot be sent back because one of the children was born in this country when the mother was living in New Jersey about two years ago, and is therefore an American-born citizen, for whom, in the absence of her husband, who has deserted her, she is the natural guardian.

"The woman, whose name is Mrs. Nellie McKenzie, arrived in this country first about three years ago and lived with her husband at Plainfield. Their home was burned some time after they had taken up their residence there, and the family was thus thrown upon the charity of the town. At their own request they were sent back to Edinburgh, Scotland. The husband deserted her three months ago, and she, believing that he had come to the United States, followed him, arriving at Castle Garden about four weeks ago. Her passage was furnished by the Women's Protective Society of Edinburgh. As soon as the people of Plainfield heard of her contemplated return to this country they wrote to Secretary Jackson, of Castle Garden, calling attention to the fact that she was formerly a burden upon the people of Plainfield and would very likely be the same if she was permitted to land again. She is thirty years of age and carries with her the picture of her husband."

Move That Freight House.

Now that the freight and coal trains are run on the outside tracks, only one line of rails is left on which to drill the fifty cars that are each day received and unloaded at the freight house opposite the station.

No corps of men except Station Manager Haynes and his assistants, could accomplish the work in the time and space attainable. The city has outgrown the present freight house, and is also ashamed of its unsightliness. It should be removed nearer the outskirts of the city, and the old yard laid out as a park.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY IN ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

A Plainfielder Has Invented an Arc Lamp Without a Dangerous Current.

Mr. Frank E. Kinsman of Sherman avenue, has invented an arc lamp that will burn on an incandescent electric circuit. Absolute safety is thereby insured. Since the current has been turned off the death-dealing arc light wires in New York, the Sun of that city has given the Kinsman Lamp a trial, and speaks out its approval in this way:

"The electric plant in THE SUN building was intended for incandescnt lighting only. The current is supplied from Thomson-Houston dynamos and its average intensity is about 77 volts. A few days ago, when many men, who know better, or ought to, were declaring that a high-tension current was necessary for successful arc lighting, THE SUN set about making a practical demonstration of the truth which the whole town could see and understand.

"The Electric Construction and Supply Company of 18 Cortlandt street, makes an arc lamp especially designed for use on low-tension currents. On a few hours' notice, General Manager R. B. Corey placed eight of these lamps in position in front of THE SUN building, and connected them with the same circuit which operates the incandescent lamps inside the building.

"The arc lamps were lighted on Monday evening, and they have broken the gloom in Franklin Square and City Hall Park every night since. No electric light company in town can supply a better light than these lamps give. In fact their light is a little clearer, a little whiter, and a little softer, while quite as brilliant as the light of an ordinary arc lamp."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Bass, Jr., are visiting at the home of Mr. Bass' parents, on West Eighth street.

The body of the late David L. Runyon, who died at Newark, on Friday, was interred in this city, today.

Mrs. S. R. Hope of Third and Richmond streets, is confined to the house with an attack bordering on pneumonia.

Mr. Andrew Huff has gone to Upper New York State, where he will take charge of certain Railroad work, for Mr. John Cameron of this city.

Miss Florence V. Bird, who has been lying dangerously ill at her home, on West Second street, is so far recovered as to be able to go out again.

Miss Fanny Wiley, of 26 Manning avenue, North Plainfield, has returned from a three months' trip to New York State and the Adirondack mountains.

Miss Twing of New York has been engaged as drawing teacher in the public schools, to succeed Miss Burt, who has been obliged to give up her position on account of ill health.

At the residence of the bride on East Second street, Thursday Oct. 31, at four P. M., will occur the marriage of Mr. John Furnass, of Wainsville, Ohio, and Miss Ella D. Clifton, of this city.

The funeral of little Maggie McInerney, who was killed by the cars on Thursday, took place in St. Mary's church, yesterday afternoon, and was largely attended. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

At the Broadway Theatre, New York city, last evening, Mr. Geo. Thatcher of this city gave "a few minutes talk on sensible matters." The occasion was a testimonial concert and presentation of pennant to the New York base ball club.

Mrs. Dr. T. H. Tomlinson of this city, addressed a meeting in Temperance Hall, New Brunswick, yesterday afternoon. The Fredonian of that place says: "Mrs. Tomlinson is an able and eloquent lecturer, and draws large audiences wherever it is known that she is to speak."

At an extensive public exhibition that is being held in Santa Barbara, Cal., the first prize for portraits in oil was awarded Miss Ella V. Thorn, daughter of Mr. M. M. Thorn, of this city. Her picture of a "Dog's Head," painted from "Mack" who all Plainfield knows, was given Honorable mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brown, of North avenue, have the sympathy of a host of friends and acquaintances in the loss of their seven-year-old son, Harry, which occurred at his parent's residence on Saturday evening at a little after eleven o'clock, of membraneous croup. The operation successfully performed on the child's throat on Saturday, only prolonged his life for a day. Notice of funeral will be given hereafter.

More Dancing Classes.

Prof. M. Haywood, of New York, is forming dancing classes in this city and the borough, and will hold an opening reception in Turn Hall, Somerset street, Tuesday evening of next week.

The Times of Wallingford, Conn., says: "Prof. Haywood is master of his profession and a popular instructor, as his crowded classes of last Winter have testified. During the Summer he has been master of ceremonies at the 'Berkeley Arms,' a large hotel on the sea shore."

Officers to be Elected.

The Woman's Temperance Aid Society, will hold their annual and regular business meeting to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, in Reform Hall. A full attendance is requested, as officers will be elected for the coming year.

REFORM HALL.

Mr. Powell Spoke Last Night, and Prof. Dickie Will Follow.

An address of great interest was delivered by Aaron M. Powell, Esq., in Reform Hall, last evening, before a good sized audience. He commenced by detailing the enormous cost of the drink habit in England and on the Continent of Europe, and both the mighty power wielded and the terrible results produced by the manufacture, sale and use of alcoholic beverages. Then going onward with his chosen subject he enumerated many working agencies in England for advancing the cause of temperance, making special allusion to one society presided over by the Bishop of London, an outspoken and consistent total abstainer, and to others of like significance, as well as to the actual experience of an English Temperance Hospital and a Life Insurance Company, both of which proved beyond dispute the grand benefits attained through the practical prohibition of intoxicants. Mr. Powell was listened to with close attention.

President Harper was at his post of duty, as were likewise Mr. Vanderbeek and a full choir. Mr. Eden Boice offered prayer.

The following announcements were made by the President:

The Woman's Temperance Aid Society's business meeting on Tuesday of this week at 4 o'clock P. M., in Reform Hall.

A meeting in Reform Hall on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Probibition League, when Prof. Samuel Dickie, of Michigan, and others will speak.

"AUTUMNAL SERVICES."

Special Sermons by the Rev's Schenck and Mitchell—A New Soprano for Trinity Church.

Autumnal services were held in many of the churches, yesterday, that were most appropriate to the season as well as a means of pointing impressive lessons.

The Rev. Mr. Schenck took as his text a part of the sixth verse of the 64 chapter of Isaiah: "We all do fade as a leaf." The sermon was a particularly fine one. During all of it the pastor held in his hand a beautifully tinted maple leaf. Mrs. Seitz, of the Reformed church of Easton, was the soprano of the occasion. Her voice could not but give satisfaction to all who heard her.

The Rev. Charles Bayard Mitchell, of the Methodist Episcopal church, also conducted a special service appropriate to coming of the Fall season. There was responsive reading and singing by the congregation from a printed souvenir programme, on one page of which was tied with red ribbon, a bunch ofAutumn leaves. Beneath them was the scriptural quotation, "We all do fade as the leaf."

PLAINFIELD'S SUPERIOR PLAYING.

Rutgers Defeats Leal's Football Team by Only One Point.

The football game on the LaGrande avenue grounds, Saturday afternoon, showed the home team of Leal students to be the superior players in every way, but the Rutgers Grammar school eleven excelled in weight.

The first half of the game resulted in a score of 11 to 0 in favor of the Leal team. Wyckoff made a beautiful run that secured a touchdown, and Cox kicked the goal, inside of ten minutes. This was followed later by one of the finest kicks from the field for a goal by Cox, that was ever seen.

The last half of the game, however, resulted in two touchdowns and two goals for Rutgers. Such result was brought about by the visitors' greater weight, and the power to shove the whole crowd inch by inch towards their goal. Although Stewart, Murray, McGee and all the others played their hardest, time was called and the game closed with the score standing: Rutgers, 12; Leals, 11.

Trotting on Saturday.

There were three trotting events at the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, on Saturday afternoon, as follows: First, between Mr. N. Robbin's "Doctor" and Mr. M. Quinn's "Lucy." Each won a heat, "Doctor" the first in 2.55, and "Lucy" the second in 2.56½.

John Chandler's "Bambo" trotted two one-mile heats with John Hayes' "Andy," and won the first in 2.44. "Andy" won the second heat in 2.46½.

Mr. Churchill's "Selim" and John Osborne's "Marcaneer" completed the racing for the day. Each won a heat in 2.50½ and 2.49 respectively.

An Array of Clergymen.

The services at the Church of the Holy Cross, yesterday, were very interesting. At the morning service, the Rev. C. W. Camp, a former rector of the church, and now of Lockport, N. Y., and the Rev. Addison M. Sherman, of Batavia, N. Y., together with the rector, took part in the services.

The Rev. John Franklin Spalding, D. D., Bishop of Colorado, preached the sermon. The congregation filled the church. The surpliced choir of thirty-six voices rendered their part of the service in a most creditable manner.

To Tell the Children He Tolled the Bell.

The clapper of the Crescent Avenue church bell fell out yesterday, but was put back again in time to be rung for morning service. It was probably cracked in falling, however, and broke in the afternoon, so it was only possible to summon the children to school by tolling.

HIGHLY FAVORED PLAINFIELD.

The Pleasure Loving Community Offered a Rare Treat.

The serious illness of Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., prevented her fulfillment of the dates booked for her in the principal theatres of New York and other large cities, where she was to appear under the direction of Mr. Dan'l Frohman, of the Lyceum Theatre. This somewhat disarranged the booking of other of Mr. Frohman's attractions, and as "Our Flat," in consequence is to be brought out this evening at the Lyceum, Mr. E. H. Sothern's engagement as "Lord Chumley" at that theatre, is closed a week before his engagements in other cities begin.

Good to Plainfield, has this ill wind blown. Mr. Sothern will apear at Music Hall, this city, next Friday evening, with his company entire that has so ably assisted in the success of "Lord Chumley" in New York and elsewhere. Kittie Wilson will play Meg, that "Angel of the Attic;" Rowland Buckstone will fill the late Mr. Bishop's part of Adam Butterworth; Charlotte Tittell and Alice King Hamilton, will play Eleanor and Jessie Deane; and all the rest of the original favorites will favor us.

Those who have seen Mr. Sothern's Lord Chumley, will be at Music Hall, Friday evening. Those who have not, THE PRESS would earnestly urge to go. The second act alone combines the cleverest of character acting ever seen, with the most charming of comedy and most affecting of pathos.

A Bunch of Keys.

The Boston Advertiser, in speaking of "A Bunch of Keys," which will be presented at Music Hall again, on Thursday evening next, says:

"The Sparks Company presented 'A Bunch of Keys' before a very large audience at the Grand Opera house last evening. The necessary snap and life was there, largely in the person of Jones Grimes, the breakman bellboy, whose activity is phenomenal. This part was taken by J. B. Mackie, who kept the audience in a continuous roar whenever he was upon the stage. All the other parts were well sustained. Ada Bothner, Blanche Seymour and Lilla Linden, as Teddy, Rose and May, the 'bunch of keys,' captivating the audience by their dances and songs. Chas. Burke, as the hotel keeper, was very funny. William Smith was very good as the slugger, while Charles Raymond, the politician; Gus Thomas, the lightning rod agent; Bertie Conway, the servant girl, and Lillian Wade, as the spinster seeking for the faithless Snags, are excellent.

An Old Deed.

Among the old records of the Presbyterian church of Hackettstown there is an old deed for the old burying ground. It is in a good state of preservation, though the outside of the parchment is discolored with age. It is now at the parsonage, but Dr. Nott, alive to the desirability of its preservation, will have it framed and hung in the church.

The indenture is dated October 29, 1765, and its value as a church heirloom and relic is seen when we realize that it was written eleven years before the Declaration of Independence. The property was conveyed by John and Mary Bowlby (grandfather of Mrs. Frank Hornbaker) "to Thomas Van Horn and Robert Howey, elders, and the rest of the Presbyterian congregation of said place."

In the New Church.

A PRESS reporter was present at the morning service of the Unitarians, yesterday, and with the large and fashionable audience that filled the room, listened to the Rev. Mr. Tilden's remarkable sermon "The Picture Galleries of the Bible." The discourse was in itself a faultless flow of mind familiar with the avenues of Scripture and monuments of the ages, whose living characters were the morals of the preacher's subject.

An interesting feature of this new society is the Bible class, led by the pastor, who yesterday made the time interesting by the way he moulded Scripture truth to the Unitarian mind. A stranger feels welcome among the patrons of this new church.

Convention of Christian Endeavor.

The annual State Convention of all the Societies of Christian Endeavor in New Jersey will be held in the Tabernacle at Jersey City on Wednesday of this week, Oct. 23, with morning, afternoon and evening sessions. Last year there were over five hundred delegates. This year it is expected that there will be from 1,500 to 2,000 delegates present. The singing at this convention will be under the direction of Mr. George W. Cornfield, of the Bergen Baptist Society, who is arranging for a chorus of 70 to 100 voices.

The Browning Class.

The Plainfield Browning Society holds its first meeting of this season to-morrow, Tuesday evening, at the Chautauqua rooms. Plans for the work of the society during the coming Winter will be discussed. Any persons wishing to gain pleasure and profit from the study of the poetry of Robert Browning would do well to be present at this meeting.

Assembly Conventions.

On Tuesday afternoon the Republicans will nominate candidates for Assembly in the First and Second Districts. The First District convention will be held at 3:30 o'clock, in Library Hall, Elizabeth, and the Second District in the Arcade at the same hour. The Third District convention will be held at Rahway, on Thursday.

UNDERPAID SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Superintendent Chapman Explains Why There are Some Poor Ones—Much Labor to Prepare and Small Remuneration Afterwards.

The announcement that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler is to read a paper at the December meeting of the State Council of Education on the topic, "The Irregular Way in Which Teachers are Appointed in this State," will be read with interest not only by the profession of teachers, but also by those parents who are, by the force of having their children in the public schools, interested in the schools and their development. There is a general desire for progressiveness, and for the employment of teachers who have the art of imparting information readily and effectively. That there is room for improvement in other cities, though not in Plainfield, the title of Dr. Butler's coming paper implies.

To get at the condition of existing affairs with respect to this matter, Superintendent Chapman was seen recently by a Trenton True American reporter. He was asked:

"Are there other normal schools besides the State Normal School in New Jersey?"

"There is a City Normal School in Newark and a training department in the Plainfield High School, in both of which those who wish to become teachers receive special instruction in pedagogy; the students being required to take some practice in the actual work of teaching before they are certificated. Their certificates, of course, are good only in their respective cities. Some of the pupils turned out from these schools make excellent teachers."

"From the title of the paper which Dr. Butler is to read before the Council of Education at its next meeting it may be inferred that there is an irregularity in the method of appointing teachers throughout the State. Is this the case?"

"It is very difficult to answer you in a few words. I presume that Dr. Butler's view is, that sufficient care is not taken by School Boards to select well trained and well equipped teachers. That has always been true; but it is not true to the same extent today as it has been in the past. There are several good reasons why well trained teachers are not always employed. Pedagogy is comparatively a new science, involving not only a thorough knowledge of the human mind, of the order and processes of development, of its many faculties, but also a thorough mastery of the methods by which this development may be best secured. A teacher then, must not only master the theories, but must become expert in practice. The work of so fitting a teacher, of course, is greater than that which is undertaken in any of the other professional schools. In other words, it involves more work, takes more time and greater labor to become a good teacher than to become a good lawyer or a good doctor. Notwithstanding this fact, the young man who devotes three years in preparation for the legal or medical professions, expects to secure an annual income, which he names in thousands, while the teacher, who spends as many years in preparation, is fortunate if he gets as many hundreds.

"There are the two great obstacles to the securing of such teachers as we would like to secure. First, the difficulty in making such teachers, and second, our inability to pay and hold them after they are made. The law of a year ago last Winter, raising the State tax from $4 to $5 per child, was intended to raise the teachers' salaries throughout the State, and it did, in fact, effect a considerable increase. Before that time a teacher who was exceptionally successful was soon offered inducements to go elsewhere, and we were continually losing our best teachers. We are a little better able to hold them now, but it is not an uncommon thing to find a teacher working for less than $1,000 per year, who, with the same degree of ability in another profession, could earn $5,000 or $10,000.

"Our Normal schools throughout the country have been largely academic, but efforts are being made to make them more and more professional. In our examinations, too, for certificates in New Jersey, while we are exacting no lower grade of scholarship, we have lately adopted the professional subjects of Psychology, History of Pedagogy, and Theory and Practice, the last involving methods as well as theories.

"Dr. Butler is an enthusiastic student and professor of pedagogy, who has done much to put the work of the teacher upon a professional plane. His paper, I have no doubt, will be in a direct line with his other work, and will perhaps do much good in awakening public opinion to the dangers of employing unskilled teachers."

The State's Health.

The State Board of Health reports a Summer more exempt from disease than usual. Diptheria continues to be the scourge of the State. No specific is yet known for it, and even its relativeness to filth is not fully understood. It is only known that it is more malignant and spreads most amid foul surroundings. The one great remedy is early isolation of the first cases, so that it shall not spread by contact.

I have used your Salvation Oil for cracked heels, mange, and sand cracks with horses, and it gives perfect satisfaction. CHAS. W. LEE, 414 W. Baltimore street, Baltimore, Md.

The cost of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is only 25 cents. A bottle will convince all of its excellence.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Fire last night destroyed the Albany Stove Works at North Albany, N. Y.

M. Ferrari, a merchant of Genoa has failed for $400,000 and has fled to America.

The Vatican will shortly publish all the documents in its possession supporting its claims to temporal power.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

Sold only in cans, full weight.

THE TALK OF EUROPE

The Parnell Commission Will Resume Business.

AFTER THE LEAGUE'S BOOKS.

The Government Claims to Have Proof as to the Manner They Were Disposed of.

Parnell's Friends Say it is Merely a Bluff on the Part of Ireland's Enemies—Foreign Powers Jealous of the United States—An Attempt to Assassinate a Prince—The Pope's Voice Very Feeble.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—Judge Hannen, the presiding Judge of the Parnell Commission, which will resume business at the old stand next Thursday, has expressed a strong determination to unearth the missing books of the League and the first business of the Commission will be an attempt to extort something in regard to their whereabouts from Mr. Henry Campbell, Mr. Parnell's private secretary.

All similar attempts made at the last session of the Commission proved futile, and it is claimed now that the failure to elicit any evidence on the subject was due entirely to the lack of information on the part of the questioners.

During the long recess neither Judge Hannen nor the Attorney-General has been idle, and under their instruction the Secretary of the Commission, it is stated, has gathered full and complete information as to the manner in which the missing books and documents have been disposed of. This information, it is claimed, will enable the Attorney-General to question Mr. Campbell and other witnesses, who have been subpœnaed to testify, with sufficient knowledge of the facts to insure truthful and valuable evidence.

The friends of Mr. Parnell deny that any information whatever has been gathered in Paris or anywhere else bearing on the subject, and assert that the claim that such is the fact is merely a bluff on the part of the enemies of Ireland who seek in this way to scare Mr. Campbell into disclosing what they imagine to be within his knowledge, the whereabouts of certain League books and papers and to compel their production in court.

"GRASPING YANKEES."

England, Spain, Italy and France Jealous of the United States.

LONDON, Oct. 21—It is amusing to Americans here to read the great leaders in the daily papers on the dangers that threaten the South American trade. Spain, Italy and France are united in their denunciations of the grasping Yankees, and their press pour forth daily warnings of the danger to the "ascendancy of the Latin race" in South America, through the machinations of the Northern republic. Spain is impressed with the danger which threatens Cuba and additional troops are to be sent at once to the "ever faithful isle," a plausible method of increasing Sagasta's influence there.

The wailing of the English press over the danger to British trade with South America give point to the exceptional jealousy of the United States which marks British traders. The Germans have repeatedly cut into English commerce in South America, but the rivalry has been accepted philosophically, and no clamors about German greed or German conspiracies have awakened the public indignation.

It is only natural that her merchants should wish to put off as long as possible the evil day when the Western hemisphere shall cease to be simply a producer of raw material and consumer of European manufactures, but their efforts will hardly be aided by their endeavors to portray American statesmen as modern Macchiavellis, with a touch of Bismarck in their composition, and the United States as doing their utmost to blockade South American commerce.

BIG PAY NO TEMPTATION.

English Miners Refuse to Bring Up the Dead Bodies in Bentilee Colliery.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The engineers this morning pronounced the Bentilee colliery at Langton safe, and the superintendent again called for volunteers among the miners to go down for the purpose of bringing up the remaining bodies of the men killed in the recent explosion, but not a single man responded.

The stench from the decomposing bodies is so great that not one of the men could be tempted by the offers of big pay to again enter the mine.

Two rival coroners are on the ground awaiting the production of the bodies, while a disgraceful quarrel between them as to the question of jurisdiction stands in the way of any disposition of the 37 bodies already recovered. As these cannot be buried without a permit from one of these two officials and as neither will grant this until the other withdraws his claim to the right to hold the inquest, the situation is as dangerous to the health of the neighborhood as it is disgraceful. A compromise by which the fat fees of the inquest will be divided seems the only issue to the squabble.

Prince Wilhelm Fired at.

BERLIN, Oct. 21.—Prince Wilhelm of Wurtemberg, nephew of Karl I, King of Wurtemberg, and heir presumptive to the throne, while driving to church in the city of Ludwigsburg yesterday, was fired at by a man on the sidewalk. The shot did not take effect and the Prince escaped unhurt. His assailant was arrested. When asked why he sought to kill the Prince he exclaimed excitedly: "It is time Wurtemberg had a Catholic King." It is believed that the man is deranged.

The Pope's Voice Very Feeble.

ROME, Oct. 21.—The French pilgrims paid their respects at the Vatican yesterday. The Pope delivered an allocution to the pilgrims in which he strongly urged the necessity for religion for the masses. The papacy, he said, was a protection to the workers of the world. He reiterated his protests against the attitude which the Italian government assumed toward the Vatican. The Pope's voice was very feeble.

Count Okuma Attacked.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 21.—Count Okuma, the Japanese Foreign Minister, was attacked by an assassin yesterday and slightly wounded. Before the would-be murderer could be arrested he stabbed himself to the heart.

WORK OF THE EPISCOPALIANS.

The Triennial General Convention to Adjourn This Week.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The Episcopal Triennial General Convention having decided to adjourn on Thursday a tolerably clear idea may be formed regarding the scope and importance of the work accomplished as affecting the progress of this important branch of the Protestant Church in America.

Four important movements were presented to the convention, viz: Liturgical Revision of the Prayer Book, Revision of the Hymnal, Proportionate Representation in future conventions according to numerical strength of dioceses, and the creation of a Provisional System. After one day's debate on the Hymnal that question was laid over for the convention of 1892, and Proportionate Representation will probably share the same fate, as the committee has reported against its present consideration. The Provisional System has so far taken shape that the bishops have requested the lower house to appoint a committee of conference to report to the next convention. Thus have three of the important movements been temporarily laid on the shelf.

Liturgical Revision has been pushed forward by its advocates, and most of the work will be in such a shape in 1892 that there is a fair probability of its being brought to a conclusion.

The Board of Missions will meet in St. George's Church this evening at 8 o'clock. The Committee on the Report of the Woman's Auxiliary will bring in their recommendations and other business will be transacted.

THE FEDERATION CALL.

Outline of the Work Before the Coming Convention at Boston.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has issued the official call for the fourth annual convention of the American Federation, to be held in Boston, December 10. The circular, which is of some length, congratulates the American Federation on surviving the attacks of capitalists and politicians, and especially "conspirators within the very cordon of the camp of labor." Continuing, Mr. Gompers says: "The time has now arrived to openly, camly and fearlessly assert the claims of labor."

Speaking of the eight-hour movement and the demand for an eight-hour workday on May 1, 1890, Mr. Gompers says that it now becomes the mission of the Boston convention to transform the agitation, which has become world-wide, into an organized movement for its realization.

The basis of representation to the convention is one delegate for national or international unions with a membership of less than 4,000; 4,000 or more, 2 delegates; 8,000 or more, 3 delegates; 16,000 or more, 4 delegates; 32,000 or more, 5 delegates, and one delegate for each local or trades union.

AMONG THE BALL PLAYERS.

The Giants Are Given a Big Benefit—They Win the Second Game of the Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The Broadway Theatre has seldom been so crowded as it was last evening, when the benefit performance to the New York Baseball Club was given. After twenty prominent theatrical people had amused the audience by their selections, the "Giants," all in evening dress, marched upon the stage amid great applause, and stood in a semi-circle while De Wolf Hopper, the star player of the "Five A's," presented Manager Mutrie with the pennant of the League.

Mutrie received the gift with becoming grace, and turning to the audience, recounted in expressive terms the efforts of his nine and the success which had attended them. His remarks were punctuated by generous applause. The receipts were over $4,500.

New York's Take the Second Game.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 21.—The second game in the Worlds' Championship was won by New York. The game was by no means a fair contest of baseball playing and from the second inning was one-sided to the finish, as Brooklyns could not touch Crane after that time.

Fully 14,000 people were on the grounds, and good nature prevailed throughout. The score by innings is as follows:

To-Day's Contest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—The third game of the world's series between the New York and Brooklyn Clubs will take place on the Polo grounds to-day. Terry and Welch will be the pitchers, and the contest will be fought with more determination than the first two. The Brooklyns, more than likely, have regained their old-time coolness and will be in better form to do battle with their heavier opponents.

A SURE FIGHT.

Myer's Backer Puts Up $5,000 for the Cyclone.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 21.—Alf Kennedy, of Streator, backer and manager of Billy Myer, the champion lightweight prize fighter, now residing here, has written to Meyer saying that he has sent $5,000 to the "Police News," New York, the amount of Billy's forfeit to fight Jimmie Carroll, of Boston.

Billy says the fight is a sure thing, and that he never looked forward to a contest with more confidence. He will do some preliminary work here, but will go to El Paso, Tex., January 1, and do his actual training there. He thinks the fight will come off near that place.

Heir to a Million Dollars.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Oct. 21.—Cyrus P. Berry, an employee in the Water Power Machine shop, formerly a clerk in the Portland Custom House, received information of the death of an uncle in California, by which he will come into possession of a million dollars. The deceased uncle was Silas Emerson of Mountain View, Cal., who went to that State from Harrison, Me., at the time of the gold discovery. He leaves property estimated to be worth $10,000,000.

Schooner Run Down.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 21.—The schooner Stephen Morgan, from Franklin for New York with paving blocks, was run down last night off Tarpaulin Cove by an unknown vessel. Captain Mahaffy succeeded in getting his disabled craft into the cove, and he and his wife were brought here by the cutter Dexter. The captain will take back assistance to his vessel.

PEOPLE POINTED OUT.

THE only stimulant now indulged in by Prince Bismarck is tea.

SENATOR HOAR, of Massachusetts, is the finest linguist in Congress.

MRS. HENRY S. KIMBALL, of West Philadelphia, is receiving the credit of originating Memorial Day.

NAS'R EDDIN, Shah of Persia, was so pleased with Mrs. Alice Shaw, the lady whistler, that he gravely proposed to buy her and take her with him to Persia on his return.

THE owner of the finest collection of watches in the world is Sir Julian Goldschmid, a wealthy Englishman, whose riches are said to nearly equal those of the Rothschilds.

EDISON counts his minutes and picks his company. The lord mayor of London invited him to meet fifty scientific people at luncheon. Edison telegraphed him he couldn't attend.

MRS. JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN is said to be the most popular woman the United States has yet sent to England. It is said that her "manners are perfect and her bearing is like that of a Duchess."

MRS. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH, whose blood-curdling novels thrilled our grandmothers, is still living in undiminished vigor at Yonkers, N. Y., and is now writing a novel which, it is said, will surpass all her previous works.

P. T. BARNUM gave a farewell family dinner at his Bridgeport residence prior to his early departure for Europe. The party, consisting of his children and grandchildren, with their husbands and wives and three great-grandchildren, numbered seventeen.

EVERY one in Paris has been surprised at the youthfulness of Mr. Gladstone. Being asked by some one how many lines of the "Iliad" he still remembered, he replied, after a moment's hesitation: "If some one would give me the first line of any page I think I could repeat what follows to the bottom of that page."

COLONEL W. M. FULLER, of Perryopolis, Pa., is said to bear such a striking resemblance to ex-President Cleveland that he is often mistaken for him. In Baltimore three years ago Colonel Fuller was serenaded by a brass band, which played "Hail to the Chief" while the Pennsylvanian lay in his bed at midnight. At another time a play was stopped in a Washington theater to give the audience a chance to applaud Cleveland's double as he walked modestly to a seat in the orchestra.

SOMEBODY says that Mrs. Frank Leslie sleeps in black silk sheets, the top one hemstitched and run with coral ribbons to match her beautiful night-robe of ebony silk. The pillows are cased in black silk, and over the couch pendent the chandelier, hangs a cluster of Spanish rosaries carved from fragrant wood and joined with bits of jade. Her bath is a study in custard-colored tiling. The trimmings are done in plated silver, all the plumbing is open, the tub is coffin-shaped, and pictures ornament the walls.

SOME SIZABLE SUBJECTS.

A LADY at Wallula, W. T., has a rose bush that stands seventeen feet high.

A SWISS cheese which was received by an Atchison grocery firm the other day weighed 700 pounds.

FIFTEEN potatoes that weighed twenty-one pounds were raised by a farmer in Wetzel County, W. Va.

THE largest steam engine in the world is the one recently constructed for the new Italian cruiser Sardegna.

LYONS, France, is completing the world's biggest dam, begun a century ago. It is 1,000 feet long and 175 feet high, and the foundations are 100 feet deep.

THE largest piece of machinery exhibited at Paris is a large English lathe weighing 330 tons and long enough to swing a piece seventy feet long between centers and ten feet in diameter.

A SINGLE sheet of paper six feet wide and seven and three-fourths miles in length was recently made at the Watertown, N. Y., paper works. It weighed 2,207 pounds, and was made and rolled entirely without a single break.

JUDGE F. WELLHOUSE, of Tremont, Kan., is said to be the proprietor of the largest orchard in the world. He has 1,078 acres in fruit trees, and it is claimed that no other grower on the face of the globe can make a similar showing.

THE space allowed for expansion in the enormous mass of metal that is being hung over the estuary of the Forth is an average of an inch per 100 feet on the whole bridge. This gives an expanding space of nearly seven feet, the bridge being 8,098 feet long.

A COTTONSTALK walking stick, nearly four inches in diameter, is on exhibition at Montgomery, Ala. It was cut from a cottonstalk grown on the plantation of P. P. Gray, Esq., of Montgomery County, which bore 1,000 balls of cotton and grew to be twenty feet high.

THE largest advertisement in the world is that of the Glasgow News, cut in the shape of flower beds on the side of a hill back of Ardenlee, Scotland. The words Glasgow News can be seen and plainly read a distance of four miles. The length of each letter is 40 feet; the total length of the line, 223 feet; the area covered by the letters, 14,845 feet. The borders of the bed are sown with white flowers, the center with red and purple. The effect is said to be startling.

FRANKLIN'S PHILOSOPHY.

DRIVE thy business, let that not drive thee.

KEEP thy shop and thy shop will keep thee.

CREDITORS have better memories than debtors.

SLOTH makes all things difficult, industry all easy.

WHEN the well is dry they know the worth of water.

WHAT maintains one vice would bring up two children.

THE eye of the master will do more than both his hands.

IF you would have your business done, go; if not, send.

IF you would know the value of money, try to borrow some.

NOT to oversee workmen is to leave them your purse open.

WANT of care does more damage than want of knowledge.

BY diligence and perseverance the mouse eats the cable in two.

NOW I HAVE a sheep and a cow, every body bids me good-morrow.

EXPERIENCE keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other.

INDUSTRY need not wish; and he that lives upon hope will die fasting.

FOR age and want save while you may; no morning sun lasts all the day.

LYING rides upon debt's back; it is hard for an empty bag to stand upright.

WORK to-day, for you know not how much you may be hindered to-morrow.

WOMEN and wine, game and deceit, make the wealth small and the want great.

ALWAYS taking out of the meal-tub and never putting in, soon comes to the bottom.

A FUND OF INFORMATION.

THERE are in the United States 28,668 Indians enrolled as church members.

POSTAL cards were first used here in 1872. Now there are 100,000,000 per year used.

THE word "cobbler" is derived from an old French word "cobler"—to tie together.

LOTTERIES are said to have originated in Florence about 1530, and to have been legalized in France in 1539.

THERE are four statues to Christopher Columbus in the United States—one in Baltimore, one in New York, one in Boston and one in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

LONDON was first lighted in 1414 with private lanterns. In 1736 they were increased from 1,000 to 5,000. In 1744 the first Lighting Act passed. In 1820 gas was generally substituted for oil.

GUNPOWDER was used by the Chinese in the year 80 of the Christian era, but they have left no record of the name of the original discoverer. Bertholdus Schwartz, a monk, is generally credited with discovering the process of granulating this explosive, in 1330. A great deal of doubt exists concerning the origin of gunpowder, but the above are the commonly accepted data.

THE phrase "getting into a scrape" probably came down to us from the days when England was still full of forests, and the deer running wild in the woods cut sharp gullies between the trees, called "deer scrapes," which it was easier to fall into than to climb out of. Another suggested derivation takes the phrase from the driving of a ball at the game of golf into a rabbit burrow or "scrape."

ELIOT'S translation of the Bible into the Indian tongue, issued in 1663, was the first publication of the Scriptures in America. The first literary work produced in America was a translation into English of Ovid's "Metamorphoses," by George Sandys, Treasurer of Virginia, in 1724, and published with illustrations in London in 1726. Mrs. Anne Bradstreet, a daughter of Governor Dudley, of Massachusetts, published in 1640 a volume of poems, the first original work issued in New England.

THERE is no positive knowledge regarding the origin of the American Indian, because their own traditions vary widely, and the researches made into the matter have not proved as satisfactory as could be wished, a great deal depending on conjecture. One of the most plausible theories is that they originated with two great Asiatic races: the more northern tribes on our continent from the lighter Mongolians, who crossed at Behring's Strait, and the more southerly ones, in California, Central and South America, from the darker Malays, who first peopled Polynesia, in the South Pacific, and finally made their way to the western continent, gradually spreading over it from one great ocean to the other. This theory is not based on any similarity of languages with those of the Asiatics, but the traditions of the Indians, their implements and their modes of life point to a close relationship.

INGENIOUS INVENTIONS.

AN Austrian railway official has invented a portable telephone for speaking from a railway train at any point stopping to the nearest station.

A SWISS inventor has perfected a method of making artificial boards, and is advocating their use in building. They are made of a mixture of plaster of paris and reeds pressed into shape by hydraulic process. The material has the advantage of incombustibility and lightness, and will resist the warping action of atmospheric changes.

STILL another application of the "nickel in the slot" principle is reported from England. It is proposed there to utilise this method for giving the general public the benefit of the telephone at street corners and railway stations. With a closely-fitting earpiece and a tube to speak into, the telephone may thus be available for all corners at a penny a time.

AN electric fire-engine, which can be tapped for service whenever wanted, is the latest invention. The advantages claimed are that it can be started at full speed; that it is much lighter than a steam fire-engine of equal power; that it costs one-third less; that it is noiseless in its operation, makes no smoke or ashes, and that it is safer and more economical.

A PORTLAND (Me.) man has invented and constructed a bicycle locomotive, which is to be given a trial on the track of the Coney Island railroad. The engine has two cylinders, one drive wheel, and two wheels under the tender. The engine and cars are to be supported on their single track by wooden guiding beams supported fifteen feet above the track by a skeleton frame arching the track. The design is to make an ordinary track serve as a double track for the bicycle system.

A LONDON shoemaker has invented a boot to make small people appear tall. The invention is an odd and ingenious one. Instead of tacking six inches on to a person's heel, a pair of entirely false feet made of cork is put into the shoes. When the wearer gets into them he or she is raised according to the inches of cork. Of course in this invention the original foot is made to combine with the cork one under the leather in such a manner that the line of demarcation is not perceptible. The size of the foot is sacrificed, it is true, and a larger boot is necessary with the cork "elevator" than would be the case naturally.

THEATRICAL TOPICS.

"GRANDMA SARAH" is what they call the Bernhardt in Paris.

EDWIN S. CONNOR, an aged actor of Philadelphia, has acted Richelieu 1,013 times, but has never seen any one else act it.

IN the section of the Paris Exposition devoted to the Histoire du Theater there is a collection of wax models of feet of noted ballet dancers.

A NUMBER of treasurers of the New York theaters have formed an organization to protect themselves against the free pass "fiend." They propose to get a list of all the theatrical deadbeats and warn each other against their methods.

STUART ROBSON, the comedian, began his career as a page in Congress. He was fortunate in serving at the time when such men as Webster, Clay and Calhoun were in the House, and he has many interesting reminiscences to tell of those distinguished men.

MRS. KENDAL explains why she and her husband have always acted together by the statement that it was because of a vow made to her father. Mrs. Kendal's father, when his daughter wanted to marry an actor, insisted that they should always act together.

MARY ANDERSON is responsible for the popularity of English shoes among American women. Mary's feet are not small, but she had the courage to abandon French footgear for shoes in which she could walk comfortably. Her example has been widely followed.

SOL SMITH RUSSELL'S wife is a small intellectual-looking woman with a Bostonese face. She is the daughter of Mr. Adams, known to fame as "Oliver Optic." Mr. Russell is the owner of several fine buildings in Minneapolis, besides his handsome residence. He takes care of his money.

IMPORTANT DECISION.

Bearing Upon the Enforcement of Prohibition Law in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 21.—The supreme court has rendered an important decision bearing upon the enforcements of the prohibitory liquor law. An information had been filed before a justice, alleging that certain liquors owned by Con Creeden were kept in the Rock Island freight depot in Des Moines and were intended for sale in violation of the law. The railroad company was made a party, the case was tried in the district court, and the liquors were ordered to be destroyed.

The defendants appealed, claiming that the liquors were in the custody of the railroad company as a common carrier and that the matter became one of interstate commerce, over which the State courts had no jurisdiction. The decision of the Supreme Court finds that Creeden was a persistent violator of the law and had been receiving liquor in this way for some time, using the freight office as a storage room to keep the packages till needed. These liquors had been received from six to fifteen days prior to the seizure. The court holds that the interstate commerce feature of the transaction ended when the liquors had reached the freight house; that the railroad, in keeping them for several days was holding them, not as a carrier but as a warehouseman. Under the circumstances it rules that the liquor was being held for illegal purposes and was no longer a matter of interstate commerce and was properly seized and condemned.

Struck by an Italian Saloon-Keeper.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 21.—John Mulvany aged 30, was struck on the head with a brick and his skull fractured last night by an Italian saloon-keeper in a quarrel about payment for drinks. He will probably die. His assailant was arrested.

Gov. Foraker Recovering.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 21.—Gov. Foraker has passed the dangerous point in his sickness, and to-day is resting finely. His physicians say he is on the road to recovery, but will not be able to be out for three or four days.

Belford, Clarke & Co., Pay All Claims.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—A creditor of Belford, Clarke & Co., the publishers whose failure occurred recently, states that the firm have notified creditors of their readiness to pay all claims in full.

SHE WAS NOT ROBBED

Annie Green Makes a Confession to the Detectives.

SHE SPENT HER FATHER'S MONEY

The Thirteen-Year-Old Girl Deceived the Police and Physicians.

She Broke Down Under the Severe Questioning of Chief Detective Ward—The Money Spent for Clothes Which She Afterward Threw Away—She Feigned Unconsciousness for Several Hours.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 22.—Annie Green, the 13-year-old girl who said she had been assaulted and robbed of about $60 last Wendesday night near her father's house at Kearney, N. J., has confessed to the detectives that her story was a pure fabrication.

She says she spent the money in Newark, buying a watch and chain, cloak, etc., and with the balance went to New York and secured a room in a hotel. Getting scared in the hotel dining room by the advances of some men she then took the train to Harrison, N. J. Arriving there she threw her new purchases under the Erie Railroad bridge, then wet her clothes thoroughly and in that condition went to her father's house and reported the alleged robbery.

The cloak has been recovered by the police but not the watch and chain.

William H. Green, the girl's father, feels terribly over the discovery of Annie's duplicity.

Mrs. Green gave birth to a daughter on Sunday night, and her condition is serious.

That Annie completely hoodwinked Dr. Squiers by her clever pretending of unconsciousness is shown by the fact that as late as yesterday morning he said that her condition was unchanged. When he heard her admissions of shamming and fraud he was dumfounded.

ANOTHER CRONIN RUMOR.

Two Confessions in the Hands of the State that Will Make Everything Clear.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—The attorneys for the State in the Cronin case it is now reported are in possession of two confessions which probably clear up the entire plot to murder Dr. Cronin. One is from a man who belonged to the inner circle of Camp 20, John F. Beggs, Senior Guardian of the camp and consequently the head center of the infernal secret executive that ordered Dr. Cronin's murder; the other is a man at present unknown, who was connected with Coughlin, Sullivan, Burke and others in executing the order.

The latter was not indicted with the five men now on trial, and therefore could not be placed on trial with them. If his information proves correct he will save his neck.

The former knows nothing of the murder beyond the order of the inner circle of the camp, and for this information, if it proves reliable, the State's attorney will ask a nolle on his behalf, just before the case is finally given to the jury.

POLITICAL CONSPIRACY.

Russian Students Arrested for Plotting Against the Government.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 22.—A widespread conspiracy of a political nature has been discovered in Southern Russia, which, for extent and daring of scope, is about the most serious thing of the kind that has lately been brought to light.

A great number of students and others had accomplished an affiliation with certain societies whose objects are of a revolutionary character, in Austrian Galicia. Their idea was to profit by the defeat of Russia in the war which is expected to occur between this country and Austria. What they intended to do then was to obtain political consolidation and legislative independence under Austrian supremacy. Arrests are being made, and the police are trying to ferret out all the local branches of the conspiracy.

Sam Crane Goes Free.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 22.—Sam Crane, the well known baseball player, who was arrested in New York recently, charged with larceny, and Hattie Fraunfelter, charged with adultery with Crane, were arraigned in court in this city. Fraunfelter, the woman's husband and prosecutor, is wanted for receiving stolen goods and as he is hiding in New York he could not answer when called. By direction of the court the prisoners were both returned "not guilty" by the jury and the costs put upon Fraunfelter.

Flood Victims Foot the Bills.

JOHNSTON, Pa., Oct. 22.—The citizens of Johnstown have raised $5,000 to continue the search for the dead. James McMillen, of the Cambria Iron Company, and A. J. Moxham, of the Johnson Company, subscribed $1,000 each. The work of clearing out Stony Creek River, where the State forces have left off, will be commenced at once and continued as long as the weather will permit. The Flood Commission meets in Philadelphia to-day, and unless some hitch occurs at the meeting it is probable that the final distribution will be commenced on to-morrow or Thursday.

Villard Not Seriously Ill.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A rumor that Mr. Henry Villard is quite ill is denied by Mr. Villard's representative at the office of the Northern Pacific Railroad, who said that Mr. Villard had a slight cold but was otherwise in his usual good health.

On Trial for Murder.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Harry W. Spiess, who on April 14 last shot and killed Ruby Nelson, is now on trial in the Supreme Court.

AMONG THE EPISCOPALIANS.

The House of Bishops Make Nominations for the Committees of Conference.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Episcopal House of Bishops failed to concur with the lower House in regard to the issuance of a cheap edition of the prayer book and hymnal combined, as the prayer book is still in an unfinished state.

The Bishops nominated on their part to the committees of conference on the rejected division of the diocese of California, the Rt. Rev. Bishops of North Carolina, Maryland and Delaware; upon the short office of prayer rejected by them, the Bishops of Albany, New Hampshire and Virginia; upon the work among the colored race, the Bishops of Maryland and Florida; on the joint committee to prepare a new edition of the prayer book of 1892, the Bishops of Albany, Iowa and New York.

In the House of Deputies Dr. Hart resumed the presentation of numerous additions and amendments to the book of Common Prayer. A proposed change in the marriage service by the insertion of an exhortation, was defeated by a close vote.

The House of Bishops have appointed a committee to confer with a committee from the lower house upon the question of fixing a date for the final adjournment of the Convention.

A BULLET SETTLED HIM.

Desperate Attempt of a Highway Robber to Break Jail.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Warren Shipman, confined in the county jail at Herkimer on a charge of highway robbery, made a desperate attempt to break jail yesterday. Sheriff Morey heard a noise in jail, and called on the Under-Sheriff to go with him and find out the cause. They found Shipman in the corridor. He was trying to saw off the bars of a window.

In response to their orders that he return to his cell, he sprang upon the men, and having been a prize-fighter, was in a fair way of overpowering them when a bullet from the sheriff's revolver struck him in the wrist and settled the battle. It is thought that there was a preconcerted plan on the part of the prisoners to escape, as upon examination all of them were found to be dressed.

NATURAL GAS ON FIRE.

Chicago Workmen Strike a Vein Unexpectedly and are Seriously Burned.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—A vein of natural gas was opened up by the workmen engaged in sinking the shaft at the intermediate caisson of the new water tunnel yesterday.

The lamps in the hats of the men ignited the gas, and an instant later a column of flame shot up from the bottom of the shaft sixty feet below the bottom of the lake, and rose ten feet above the top of the caisson.

There were five men at work in the shaft and all of them were more or less seriously burned.

It was nearly twenty minutes before the gas burned out so the men could be rescued.

Governor Foraker Seriously Ill.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Governor Foraker's condition is still a matter of serious apprehension to his friends, although he is reported as convalescing. To-day his improvement was not so marked as yesterday, and it is reasonably certain that the Governor will not be able to fill any of his appointments for this week, and by some it is considered doubtful if he will be able to speak again during the campaign.

Destructive Fire in Larabee, Pa.

BRADFORD, Pa., Oct. 22.—A dispatch from Larabee, this county, says: Fire destroyed J. J. Newman's sawmill and 3,000,000 feet of lumber, J. C. French's store, two barns and ten tons of hay belonging to D. C. Young and Mrs. D. C. Smith's boarding house. The fire caught in a heap of sawdust near the mill furnace. The loss on the mill and lumber is covered by insurance.

Bakers' Troubles.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 22.—The bakers' fight is still in progress. The employers say the men left their work of their own accord. The latter assert that they were locked out, although they had made no demands for higher wages or fewer hours. Thus far the employers seem to have the upper hand, having secured a force of non-union bakers from New York.

Greenback Nominations.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Representatives of the Greenback party nominated Rev. Thos. K. Beecher of Elmira for Secretary of State; John K. Sullivan of Westchester for Comptroller, and Joseph Madison Hall of Hamilton for State Treasurer. The nomination for State Engineer and Surveyor will be made later.

New Jersey Synod.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 22.—Nearly four hundred delegates are in attendance at the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of the State of New Jersey. As many more are expected to-day. At to-day's meeting the election of permanent officers will take place.

Yale's Typhoid Fever Sensation.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 22.—There is nothing in connection with the two deaths from typhoid fever at Yale to justify the sensational stories of a threatened epidemic. Dr. Seaver, the college physician, says that the health of the students is fully as good as usual in the fall of the year.

A Philanthropist's Gift.

MERIDEN, Conn. Oct. 22.—Hon. Isaac C. Servis, the well known Universalist philanthropist has deeded his new block just completed at an expense of $75,000 to the City Mission, a charitable organization here represented by trustees of all denominations.

STOPPED THE TRIAL

The Wife of a Murdered Man Creates a Sensation.

A SURPRISE FOR HER COUNSEL.

She Desires to Plead Guilty of Murder in the Second Degree.

She Tells How the Murder was Committed—Her Husband Deceived by a Noise in the Chicken Coop—Shot Dead by a Man With Whom She Was Criminally Intimate—The Trial Still On.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 22.—The trial of William H. Bartholomew for the murder of Washington Dilliard was stopped suddenly yesterday by Mrs. Dilliard, who is charged with complicity in the murder, coming into court with Sheriff Miller and announcing her determination of telling all she knew about the murder of her husband, then plead guilty of murder in the second degree, and accept sentence in accordance with that grade of crime.

Her counsel objected to this proceedure, but the woman was determined in her action and the court finally adjourned in order to allow the attorneys time for consultation.

When court reconvened Mrs. Dilliard was placed on the stand. She testified that she was 32 years old; lived in Bartholomew's house two years; was criminally intimate with him there and at the last place of residence. Her husband intended to move to Mercer County and he told Bartholomew that they were going. Bartholomew was at Dilliard's house the night before the murder. He had Dilliard's gun with him and said he would take the nipple off it and come there the next night; that he would make the chickens cackle and that Mrs. Dilliard and her husband should then come out in the yard; that he would be at the big cherry tree and shoot Dilliard that night. Mrs. Dilliard awoke her husband when she heard the noise and they, accompanied by their son, went down to the yard, Dilliard carrying the gun, which his wife had handed him, and a lantern.

"When we got to the tree," Mrs. Dilliard continued, "I told him (Dilliard) to look up the tree; I then heard a noise and my husband came back and fell dead on the porch. Bartholomew wanted to rent the farm, and said we all would live togeher. We wouldn't agree to that. He then wanted me to go West and live with him. I said I would not go as long as my husband lived. I would have been ten times better off if I had never seen Bartholomew."

Here the witness broke down and began to cry. On cross-examination it was admitted that she was promised that her sentence would be changed to imprisonment for life if she went on the stand.

Mrs. Dilliard was then taken back to jail. The trial of Bartholomew is still on.

HAD FALSE BOTTOMS.

An Administrator Discovers a Small Fortune in a Dead Woman's Trunks.

WINONA, Minn., Oct. 22.—An unexpected sequel to a terrible tragedy has just occurred here. In May last Lena Weinberg, for twenty-five years housekeeper of the old Huff House, committed suicide.

Yesterday four trunks belonging to her were opened by the administrator to look up her heirs. The contents were of no value, but false bottoms were found in all four trunks containing $12,116 in gold, bank notes, English sovereigns and other foreign money. A great deal of the money is old and worth considerable premium over the face value. No heirs to this find are known.

World's Fair Subscriptions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Finance Committee of the World's Fair adopted the form of guaranty subscriptions reported by a sub committee. It consists of an agreement between the subscribers and the committee that subscriptions shall not be binding until $5,000,000 have been subscribed, and that subscribers shall not be liable for any debt or expenses incurred by the committee beyond the amount subscribed, but that they are entitled to share in any surplus that may remain after the winding up of the Exposition.

Resigned from the County Democracy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Wm. H. Hornbridge, of the 20th Assembly District, has resigned from the County Democracy in a letter wherein he alleges that that organization is conspiring to unite with the Republicans at the coming State election.

A Disobedient Girl Attempts Suicide.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Mary E. Palmer attempted suicide yesterday by shooting herself near the heart. The cause of this act was that she took exceptions to her mother's rulings forbidding her to roam the streets at night.

The Championship Series.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The baseball game scheduled yesterday between the New Yorks and Brooklyns did not take place. A big crowd went to the Polo Grounds expecting that there would be nothing to prevent the contest, but they were greatly disappointed to find a notice posted up to the effect that the grounds were not in condition and there would be no game.

Union Veterans' Association.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 22.—The third annual convention of the Department of Pennsylvania Union Veterans' Association met in the hall of the House of Representatives this morning. General R. P. Hallgreen, of Titusville, is presiding.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A. building.

—Dr. Chas. R. Thiers, the dentist, has been putting in a new safe in his office on West Front street.

—It is said that sorrel horses are less sensible to heat than horses of other colors, and that they have more endurance than others.

—While chasing a prisoner on Sunday night, Officer Flanagan had the misfortune to badly sprain one of his ankles. The injury has since confined him to the house.

—The Prohibition league of this city will hold a ratification meeting at Reform Hall, this evening. Prominent speakers will be present and address the meeting.

—Special Officer Hope on Saturday afternoon dispersed a crowd of overgrown boys on East Fourth street, who were watching two of their number engage in a fight.

—There was a continuous discharge of musketry in North Plainfield to the north of the city, between nine and ten o'clock, last evening, but the cause could not be ascertained.

—Postmaster Moore, of Elizabeth, has instituted a Sunday collection of the mail from all the letter boxes in the city, to be made between the hours of one and two o'clock P. M.

—Louis Hermance, a young man living at Netherwood, killed a flat headed adder, snake on the mountain Saturday. The snake measured four feet in length and showed fight.

—Mr. Geo. H. Cook, the fruit and vegetable dealer of Park avenue, has disposed of his entire business to Mr. F. L. Ten Broeck of Asbury Park. Mr. Ten Broeck will take possession about November 1.

—A party of insurance men from New York, came to Plainfield, yesterday, and were driven out to Dog Corners, where they viewed the debris from the recent fire which destroyed Daniel Cole's farm house, barn and other outbuildings.

—Central Engine No. 149 attached to the Somerville way train, due here at 2:30 o'clock, bursted the steam chest on the fireman's side, when nearing this city today. Engineer "Pony" McClarren started out for Somerville, a few minutes late.

—Mechanical Drawing Classes meet at the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 8 o'clock. Young men who desire to join one of these classes together with the members of the class organized last week, are requested to be at the rooms as near 7:30 o'clock as possible.

—Patrick Newell and wife of West Third street, who were arrested on Sunday night, for keeping a disorderly house, were last evening released from custody, Mr. James Muldowney having become their bondsman in the sum of $100 each to appear for trial to-morrow morning.

—If the party of four couples of young people who made the night hideous in the vicinity of Park avenue and Second Street, last evening, and later tested their lungs on the Washington avenue bridge, will send their names and address to this office they will each be presented with a chromo, and no questions asked.

—At the regular meeting of the Park Avenue Social Club, held in their rooms on East Front street, last evening, the semi-annual election of officers took place which resulted in the reelection of the following with the exception of Vice President: President—E. C. Searing; Vice President—L. C. Beekman; Secretary—J. C. Blimm; Treasurer—J. C. Martin; Sergeant-at-arms—G. S. Martin.

Runaway on Park Avenue.

Mr. Walter G. Runyon, the carpenter of East Front street, was tying his horse to a wooden beam which supports the awning in front of Justice Nash's store on Park avenue this afternoon, when a passing train frightened the animal and caused a runaway. The horse made a circuit of the D. J. Boice estate lumber yard, wrecking the shafts and a wheel on the business wagon, and the animal was subsequently caught near the freight house.

An Auspicious Beginning.

Under the direction of Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh, a chorus of 100 voices forming the Plainfield Choral Society, rehearsed in Vincent chapel last evening. The voices present promised better music even than past vocal societies. There were especially more and better tenors than ever before, and in other details the first rehearsal of the new organization was most satisfactory.

SCANDAL AMONG THE COLORED MASONS.

The Treasurer of Cypress Commandery Accused of Misappropriation of Its Funds.

Most Eminent Treasurer William Osborne, of Cypress Commandery, Colored Knights Templar, of this city, is accused by his brother Free Masons of making off with a large sum of money, to wit, seventy-one dollars and forty cents, the same being the undivided profits accruing from the recent Reception and Ball at The Crescent.

The said William Osborn is further charged to have absconded with the sum afore mentioned, and in company with a colored lady, by name Mag Henry of Dunellen, to have flown to the foreign shores of Scotch Plains and therein to have squandered the said sum in riotous living, including poker, and booze, and wantonness.

A Press reporter in an interview with members of Cypress Commandery, this morning, found them all feeling very deeply the disgrace brought upon them by their comrade. The colored Knights Templar of this city, including such estimable men as William Douglas, Abraham Wesley Brown, Benjamin Johnson, Israel Jones and others, have always stood high in honor, and will yet. The community will not judge any of them by the fault of another.

The accused Treasurer, who has a wife and childred to share the disgrace, has made a clear confession it is said. He has a contrite heart left and nine dollars of the funds. After paying all the expenses of the Ball, its music, refreshments, rent of the building, etc—the sum of $71.40 was left in the Treasurer's hands, and that money he is accused of misappropriating as outlined above. He says he was robbed of it.

Opening the Firemen's Fair.

The bazaar and fair which is to be held in Dunlap's Hall all of this week, under the auspices of Amoskeag Council, No. 25, Order of American Firemen, opened last evening. The display of goods placed on exhibition by the home merchants includes:

Furniture—Garret Q. Packer.
Druggists' supplies—L. W. Randolph.
Dry and house furnishing goods—Van Emburgh & White.
Boots and shoes—Doane & VanArsdale.
Jewelry—J. Hervey Doane.
Hardware—J. P. Laire & Co.
Gents' furnishing goods—U. B. Crane.
Tobacconist—J. E. Mosher.
Wall paper—Edward Love.

The following ladies are in attendance at the several tables:

Refreshment—Mrs. J. B. Gable, Miss Etta Connett.
Candy—Miss May Crater.
Fancy—Miss Lillie Garretson, Miss Grace Meeker.
Dry and fancy goods—Miss Della Randolph.
Lemonade booth—Miss Anna Crater.

New features will be added each evening.

Arrested for Arson, but Released for Want of Evidence.

A farmer named Johnson went before Justice Nash yesterday and made an affidavit charging a colored man, William Wallace Bellis, with setting fire to Daniel Cole's dwelling house at Dog Corners, on the morning of Wednesday, Oct. 16, thereby involving a loss of about $2,000 on the buildings and contents. Johnson lived in the house adjoining the one burned and he lost about three hundred dollars worth of tools, which he had stored in the barn. The colored man's strange actions and conversation on the night of the fire led Mr. Johnson to believe that Bellis was guilty of the crime, so he made an affidavit to that effect.

Justice Nash, accompanied by Chief Doane and Manager Sliter of the District Messenger office, drove out to Dog Corners yesterday afternoon and found the colored man husking corn for a farmer named VanNest. The accused was arrested and brought to this city, but on account of insufficient evidence Justice Nash today ordered his release.

Malicious Business.

Some time during Friday night the cover of the fire-well at the corner of Fourth and New streets was lifted off by some person or persons unknown, and replaced in such a position as to make it extremely dangerous for horses treading on it. A lady informed Mr. William Wright on Saturday of the dangerous condition of the cover, and he notified Chief Doane of the Fire Department. The Chief properly adjusted it.

This Evening.

The Prohibitionists are very much alive—more so in fact in this city, than either of the two greater political parties. This evening in Reform Hall, Mr. George Lamonte, the Prohibition candidate for Governor, and Mr. E. L. Massett, Prohibition candidate for the Assembly, will address the public.

Invitation Sociable.

The members of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein gave an invitation sociable at their hall on Somerset street, last evening. A large representation of the members and their friends were present and enjoyed the evening in dancing, etc. Refreshments were also served.

Ayer's Pills, being convenient, efficacious, and safe, are the best cathartic, whether on land or sea, in city or country. For sick headache, indigestion, and torpid liver, they never fail. Try a box of them; they are sugar-coated.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Sheriff Glasby, of Elizabeth, was in town today on business.

Mrs. J. E. Pierson and two sons of Clinton avenue, will this week remove to Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. W. A. Coddington is again at his post of duty, after a month's absence, spent pleasantly in Pennsylvania.

Judge Ulrich, of Plainfield, will be the probable Republican nominee for a third term as Assemblyman, says the Newark Advertiser, last evening.

Ex-Councilman S. P. T. Wilbur of East Third street, has been confined to the house for the past two weeks, suffering from an attack of diphtheria.

Mr. C. S. Johnson, a clerk in Mr. H. A. Pope's dry goods store, is out today for the first time in two weeks, having been confined to the house by illness.

Mrs. Geo. L. VanEmburgh of this city, and Miss M. Colwell of Long Island, returned on Saturday from Greenwood Lake, after an absence of over two weeks.

The New York Tribune today says:—"Mr. J. Wesley Johnson will give an illustrated lecture this evening on 'Ireland and Scotland,' in the East 61st Street M. E. church."

The funeral of Harry M., only son of Edwin E. and Anna L. Brown, who died on Saturday night, will take place from his parents' residence, No. 14 North avenue, to-morrow at 3 P. M.

At one o'clock this morning another little boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Simmonds, of Ninth street and Broadway. The youngest of the Miss Simmonds anxiously asked: "Are you going to keep it, Papa?" and was much pleased by an affirmative answer.

Mrs. E. S. Honeyman, widow of Dr. John Honeyman and the mother of editor A. V. D. Honeyman, of Somerville, died at her home in New Germantown on the 13th inst., from the effects of a fall about three weeks ago. She was an aged lady—79 years old—and blind, and in trying to move about from one place to another stepped off a porch.

Mr. E. H. Morey, for so many years the Manager of the Park House, this city, during its most successful seasons, is now living on St. James place, one of Brooklyn's aristocratic neighborhoods on the Hill, where he has recently purchased a handsome home. Mr. and Mrs. Morey's many friends in Plainfield will be glad to hear of the prosperity of him and his charming and hospitable wife.

After an absence of eight years in London, Eng., Mr. John Campbell, formerly of this city, returned to Plainfield on Saturday to visit his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Firman Campbell of North Plainfield. Mr. Campbell will return to Europe after settling up some business transactions here. He will be remembered as the patentee of the gutta percha wagon body, dash-board and blinders for horses.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Daft and their young son, will leave in a few days for the Adirondacks where Mr. Daft will find needed rest and seek days of entire freedom from professional and business cares. The venison still enjoying active life in the neighborhood where he will locate, had better hustle. They don't know what kind of an electric dynamite motor load of buck shot will be started on a journey through their interiors.

Who'll Pay the Jury?

After being out some hours, yesterday afternoon, the jury in the Sullivan case failed to agree, being equally divided as to the guilt of the defendant charged with selling liquor on Sunday. Shortly after the result was announced, Sullivan was taken very ill, and Dr. Carman was called to attend him. The release from the strain the defendant was under during the deliberations of the jury, is supposed to be the cause of the attack.

Mr. Charles Reed was Sullivan's counsel, and having saved his client from conviction, justly refuses to pay the jury fees or any other costs. Officer Lynch was the one who "summoned the panel," and the jurymen are looking to him for their pay. But he declines also.

Was it a Burglar?

Mr. H. S. Mason, who resides at the East corner of Sixth and Washington streets, notified the police about 9:30 o'clock last evening, that while certain members of his family were returning home during the evening they discovered a strange man lying on his stomach on the veranda of the unoccupied house on the opposite corner. The unoccupied house is owned by Mr. J. G. Cadmus, and that gentleman was also notified.

It is not known whether the man was a tramp seeking shelter or whether he was watching for an opportunity to rob a dwelling in the immediate vicinity.

Important to Housekeepers.

Edsall says he is now prepared from his large and varied stock to furnish dwellings throughout, with curtains, shades, carpets, portierres, poles, etc., at New York prices. He has in his employ a first-class upholsterer, who attends to all his work personally, and everything done is guaranteed of the very best workmanship. Old carpets made over and relaid. Curtains hung at short notice.

The Most Successful of Its Kind.

At the meeting of the Home Building and Loan Association, last evening, the Secretary gave a condensed report of the business of the last six months showing:

Outstanding loans on bond and mortgage	$22,800
On stock	600
	$23,400 00
The net earning for six months were	679 47
The value of shares as follows:
1st series $18, paid value	$19.16
2d series $12, paid value	12.47
3d series $6, paid value	6.12

The fourth series was opened with subscriptions for 334 shares by 49 new subscribers. This record of the past and present is excelled by no other like association, and equalled by but a very few.

The officers of the Home, are: Isaac W. Rushmore President; Stephen R. Struthers, Secretary; William F. Arnold, Treasurer; Wm. M. Stillman, Attorney.

Death of Rev. Mr. Sykes.

Rev. Mr. Sykes, formerly rector of All Saints Episcopal church of Scotch Plains, died suddenly at his home in that place, yesterday morning. Heart disease was the cause of death.

Success in life is the result of push and energy. If the blood is impure and sluggish, both body and mind lack vigor. To cleanse and vitalize the blood and impart new life to the system, nothing else has such a marvelous effect as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

$50,000 DAMAGES DEMANDED.

A Beautiful Young Woman Sues the P. and R. R. Company Because of Her Serious Injury.

Messrs Clark & Reed, of this city, recently brought suit in the Supreme Court against the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, for $50,000 damages. The circumstances of the case are of more than usual interest.

Abbie VanDoren, the plaintiff in the action, is a daughter of Abram VanDoren, of Bound Brook. She was a girl of more than ordinary beauty both in form and features, and a great favorite. On Sunday, June 9, last, while on her way to Sunday school with her sister, she crossed the track of the P. and R. R. Company, in Bound Brook, and in doing so passed an engine which stood upon the track close to the crossing.

Just as the girl stepped off of the track, a horse driven by a man named Washburn, and which was crossing the track immediately behind the girls, became frightened by a sudden escape of steam from the engine and ran against Abbie, knocking her down and trampling upon her, and inflicting injuries which have ever since confined the girl to her bed, and, it is feared, maimed her for life.

It is claimed by the plaintiff that the Railroad Company is liable for negligence; that the engine was carelessly run too near the crossing and left standing there while the engineer visited some friends. It is also against the law of the State to run trains on Sundays, yet the engine was waiting to take a fast express to Philadelphia.

Dr. Ketcham Preaches to the Synod

The Synod of New Jersey, which consists of all the Presbyterian ministers and a representative from each of the churches within the State, will hold its annual meeting at Educational Hall, Asbury Park, this week, beginning with a sermon yesterday at 3 P. M., by the Moderator, Rev. Kneeland P. Ketcham, D D., of this city.

There are upon the roll the names of 391 ministers and 300 churches, but the attendance does not commonly reach beyond 400 persons. Last evening the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. This evening there will be a popular service, with interesting addresses by prominent clergymen upon church work. Devotional services are held each day at 12 o'clock. All the meetings are open to the public. The business is commonly completed in about three days.

A Venture in a New Field.

(From the New Brunswick Home News.)

The first number of a new monthly magazine, published and edited by a former New Brunswicker, is soon to appear. The editor promises that each issue of the publication will be a delightful entertainment, original, sparkling, refined. The enterprise will be of peculiar interest to New Brunswickers, as it will treat particularly of New Jersey literature, scenery, characters, localities, incidents, manners. Stories, sketches and verses, history, fiction and romance, will be published from the pen of skillful writers, many of them themselves Jerseymen, and New Brunswickers. The office of publication will be Plainfield, N. J., where subscriptions may be sent to Walter I. Clarke.

A Chance to Win a Suit.

McGregor & Co., the Newark clothiers, have invented a scheme whereby the gubernatorial election will be made a more interesting event than that merely aroused by the issues of the contest. They are offering to all comers two grand prizes. The first is the choice of the most expensive garment that is made by the company to the person who guesses the nearest to the majority of the successful candidate. A $15 suit or overcoat goes to the person making the second nearest guess. It is expected that everybody will enter into the guessing match.

Elizabeth City Finances.

Wm. Calhoun of New York, the expert who for six months has been investigating the financial condition of Elizabeth for a period embracing the last ten years, reports the following condition of affairs: Outstanding debt Jan. 1, 1880, $5,390,291.33; refunded and retired to interest July 1, 1889, $4,970,215.03; balance of principal or debt unsettled, $420,076.03; interest accrued thereon, $321,496.70; commissions to New York fiscal agents, $63,605.08; present outstanding four per-cent. adjustment bonds, $3,320,505.87; profit to city on debt settlement, $2,071,995.88.

It Was a Fatal Walk.

An unknown man was struck by a fast train on the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday morning near Rahway, killing him instantly. The body on being searched was found to have $60 concealed on it. The man was evidently walking to save money.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

One juror is needed to complete the Cronin jury.

The Democrats of Brooklyn, N. Y., last night renominated Alfred C. Chapin for Mayor.

The President has appointed Oscar F. Williams, of New York, to be Consul of the United States at Havre.

A house, three barns, several sheds and a blacksmith shop owned by H. W. Nash of Lyman, N. H., were destroyed by fire.

Hon. Thos. Chattle, an ex-member of the Legislature of New Jersey, died yesterday at his summer home at Long Branch.

The case of Charles W. Palmer, late teller of the Merchants Bank at New Haven, Conn., has been postponed to November 15.

Governor Hill has granted murderer Giblin, now confined in the Tombs, New York city, an additional respite of thirty days.

The Second Parish Church of Portland, Me., last night unanimously extended a call to Rev. J. L. Merrill, D. D., of St. Louis.

Frederick L. Bray, Grand Secretary of the Independant Order of Good Templars, died yesterday at his home in Bridgeport, Conn.

Colonel Albert H. Rogers, ex-Deputy Commissioner of Street Cleaning, of New York city, has been committed to an Insane Asylum.

The body of John Dady, aged 29, an employe of the Holyoke, Mass., Water Power Company, has been found in the canal at that place.

The Buffalo, N. Y., jury in the case of Henry Speth against the New York Central Railway for $10,000 damages for having been put off a train, awarded the plaintiff $75.

George Bush, the California pugilist indicted at Portsmouth, N. H., for prize fighting, pleaded nolo contendere and was sentenced to 30 days' imprisonment and to pay costs.

Mrs. Mary J. Kline, of Bordentown, N. J., who was convicted of trying to kill her husband by giving him poison has been sentenced in the Burlington County Court to one year in State prison.

The well-known Hohenstein Manufacturing Company, of Newark, N. J., manfacturers of steam launches, have failed for $90,000. Thomas N. Bowles is the president and the largest stockholder.

All classes of people in Portugal show pronounced regret at the loss which the country has suffered in the death of King Luis. Their grief is genuine, as the old King was much loved.

The moulders of the Pittsburg, Pa., district have struck for an advance of 10 per cent. in wages. About 800 men are out. Two firms, Carnegie, Phipps & Co. and A. Speer & Co., granted the advance.

Michael Kelley, of Buffalo, N. Y., was sentenced to five years' imprisonment at Auburn by Judge Hammond. Kelley shot his wife about six weeks ago in a house of prostitution on Ellicott street.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

DAY OF JUDGMENT

Adventists Watching for the "King of Kings."

THEY EXPECT HIM SURE TO-DAY.

Forty-fifth Anniversary of the Going Out of the Church to Meet the Lord.

The Believers Are Watching To-Day—Considerable Excitement at the Meetings at Screamersville—Large Delegations Present from New England States—The Meeting to Close To-Morrow Morning.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 22.—The Adventists of Virginia have been holding a series of meetings in Spottsylvania and Orange counties for the past two years under the leadership of Elder R. C. Brown, of New Britain, Conn. These meetings have caused considerable excitement among people of limited education.

Since the 1st of September the Adventist of Virginia, with those of Massachusetts, have been holding a series of meetings at Screamersville, in Spottsylvania County, near this city, preaching to the people to prepare for the coming of the Lord. The date for the coming of Christ has been set for to-day.

The arguments used by the leaders of the Adventists Union are in many respects forcible and have their effect principally upon that class of people who know little or nothing of the Bible and who have hardly even attended any church meetings.

The wildest excitement now exists among certain classes of people in the vicinity of Screamersville over the coming Day of Judgment, which they now believe is close at hand. All day to-day and to-night the believers will assemble to watch for the coming of the "King of Kings." Should their prediction fail and the Lord not appear, the meeting will close and the members of the Union retire to their homes until called to assemble again to listen to the teachings of their leaders. This is the forty-fifth anniversary of the going out of the church to meet the Lord in October, 1844. Delegations from Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York and Virginia are now in attendance under the leadership of Elder Brown. The meeting will close at sunrise to-morrow.

DANGEROUS MORMONS.

Arizona's Governor Says They are Bothersome, Politically and Socially.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Governor Wolfley of Arizona has submitted his annual report to the Secretary of the Interior. He states that the census of 1880 gave Arizona a population of 40,440, while the territorial census of 1882, taken at the height of the mining excitement, showed a population of 82,976, with 11,262 voters.

Speaking of the Mormons, the Governor says: "Morally and politically they are an unwelcome and dangerous element. Arizona had a law disfranchising all who practiced, taught or encouraged polygamy. The first legislative act signed by my late predecessor was the repeal of that act. I request and urge that Congress repeal the repealing act and re-establish the above Territorial law.

"Politically the Mormons seem to have adopted the plan of sending colonies or 'stakes' to the surrounding Territories in sufficient numbers to form a balance of power between the two political parties. They are willing to trade with either, but remain true only so long as the interests of the Church are best served. The Church is their law, and all other law is subservient to the orders of the Church. They are, therefore, a most dangerous and unscrupulous factor in politics, without regard to party."

NOBLE NOT WORRIED.

He Says that Corporal Tanner is a Back Number Now.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 22.—Secretary Noble says he is not worried by the publication of Commissioner Tanner's last letter. He will make no reply to it.

"I have done with Tanner," he said to-day. "He is a back number with me. All that he published I have seen before and I think it doesn't need any reply. If he wants to make me a target he can do so, let him fire away all he wants to."

Assistant Secretary Bussey, whom Corporal Tanner accuses of enmity towards him, was so busy he said that he had not time to read the ex-Commissioner's letter.

"This shows just how much interest I take in what he says," said Gen. Bussey. "Some of Tanner's charges against me are foolish. For instance he makes as a strong point that I do not write all the pension decisions. Do you see that big pile of documents lying there? Well, that is my work for to-day. I have to go over them fully and make my decisions. Do you suppose one man could go all those over, and then write out voluminous decisions? Why, it takes eleven persons to get up that work alone."

A GAMBLING SUIT.

The Proprietor of a "Bank" Refuses to Pay His Losses.

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—A case of great importance to the gambling fraternity was begun in the Superior Civil Court, before Judge Barker, to-day. The plaintiff is one of the proprietors of the Savage Club, a gambling institution chartered by the State, and the defendant, who was a winner to the extent of $35,880, was one of the regular visitors at the club. It is the first time on record in which the "bank" has squealed and sued for money lost. Henry Slack, Jr., is the plaintiff and Dr. William Thornton is the defendant.

It appeared from the opening arguments that the money was won on four different occasions at roulette. On January 7 Dr. Thornton won $800; on January 31 he won $1,000; on February 4 and 5 he was a winner on each night to the extent of $2,000, and on the 6th he won $31,000. Then the bank refused to play any more. The result of this suit will be looked for with interest.

Wire Goods Manufacturers Combine.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 22.—The various wire goods companies of this city have entered into a combination with the leading Eastern manufacturers of wire goods to raise the price of their manufactures.

HE FOOLED HIS WIFE.

A New York Merchant Procures Evidence for a Divorce in Paterson, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 22.—Two men entered the Hamilton House, the largest hotel here, and registered as John W. Allen and F. Morrey, of New York. Allen appeared to be laboring under much mental excitement. Shortly after a handsome equipage drove up to the hotel, and a man and woman, both fashionably attired, alighted. They registered as William Allen and wife of Montclair. They were assigned to room 20, which adjoins the one occupied by the first-named guests. They soon came down and had supper. John W. Allen and Morrey kept their room.

About 10 o'clock the man and woman retired to their rooms. Two hours later loud voices were heard in the hall, followed by the crash of a door. A woman's screams followed, and then all was confusion. The man, who had registered as William Allen, partly dressed, rushed down stairs, leaving his valise behind, and hastily summoning his carriage, drove rapidly away. Angry voices aroused Mr. Clark, the proprietor of the hotel, who appeared and demanded the cause. He got this explanation:

The woman was the wife of John W. Allen and the man with whom she had retired was his confidential clerk, who had consented, at the husband's suggestion, to go to the hotel with the woman in pursuance, as it is said, of a plot. Before he started with the woman he telegraphed her husband, his employer, in order that the latter might be on hand and thus procure evidence for a divorce. The husband's real name is said to be Young, and he is declared to be a New York merchant. The man called Morrey was a friend of his, who was present merely as a witness. The wife, it is said, has traveled extensively through Europe. Her parents reside at Montclair, about six miles from Paterson.

The husband got a carriage, and together with his friend, Morrey, took the wife to her parents' home. At the door he said to her father:

"Here's my wife, keep her." He then went to New York. He said he had previously heard of his wife's perfidy, and waited only for an opportunity to prove the correctness of many ugly rumors.

CLAIM HE IS NOT CRAZY.

Lawyers Trying to Release Lieut. Cross from an Insane Asylum.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A suit of habeas corpus has been granted in the Supreme Court directing the superintendent of the Butler Insane Asylum at Providence, R. I., to produce the body of Second Lieutenant Amos Cross, U. S. A., in court October 25.

It is alleged by counsel for the petitioner that Lieut. Cross is and always was sane, and that his removal from this city and confinement in another State was illegal, and the result of a conspiracy; that the purpose was to enable the lieutenant's brother, Elisha W. Cross, of Wakefield, R. I., to obtain control of the lieutenant's property valued at over $200,000, and that Elisha W. Cross is now wasting the property.

The proceedings are only preliminary. The writ is not binding on a person outside this State, and the superintendent may ignore it. In that case further proceedings will be had. Lieut. Cross was pronounced insane by the Commissioners of Lunacy of this county in 1885. He owns a large amount of real estate at Ochre Point, near Newport, R. I.

The Greenwich Murder Mystery.

GREENWICH, N. Y., Oct. 22.—The excitement concerning the mysterious death of Maggie Hooligan continues unabated. Abram Cipperly, who lives on the road between where the deceased was employed and where the body was found, was in his barn attending to his horses about seven o'clock the evening of the murder, and heard a scream and some one cry, "Oh, don't!" The theory of attempted outrage, followed by murder, is the only one now entertained. The first thing looked for was a lover, but she had none, and when this was learned everything came to a standstill.

A Well-Known Lawyer Killed.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 22.—Frank J. Bowman, the well-known lawyer who has figured in so many matrimonial troubles here and in Chicago, was shot and instantly killed by B. M. Chambers last evening at Ferguson, Mo. The killing grew out of the trouble between the parties over the old "Times" newspaper.

New Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Oct 22.—The appointment of the following postmasters is announced: Pennsylvania—Potts Grove, Samuel M. Miller. Massachusetts—Oxford, William M. Willington; Wales, Charles Davis. New Hampshire—Alton Bay, Willis P. Emerson.

Hungarians Shoot a Boy.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 22.—Thomas Brennan, a 12-year-old boy living at Sturmerville, was fired upon while going home from a store yesterday by some Hungarians whom he met. A bullet entered his abdomen, and he will probably die. The Hungarians are under arrest.

Tammany Snubs the Counties.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The Tammany Hall Committee of twenty-four, after discussing the proposition from the County Democracy to join in the nomination of Senatorial and Assembly candidates, sent a reply that Tammany would go it alone.

The Montana Election Case.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 22.—A special term of the Supreme Court will be held next Monday to hear the Silver Bow county disputed election case, on the decision of which depends the complexion of the Legislature.

Seven Thousand Deaths from Cholera.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 22.—The cholera is still making frightful ravages in the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates. There have been 7,000 deaths within the past two months and there are no signs of the abatement of the scourge.

Dedicating Connecticut Monuments.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 22.—One hundred and fifty veterans of the 17th and 27th Connecticut Volunteer Infantry regiments are dedicating their monuments here to-day.

A Newspaper Man for State Senator.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Col. W. L. Brown, proprietor of the New York "Daily News," was nominated for the Senate by the Tammany organization of the Fifth District.

Dress at the Dressmakers'—Embroidered Satins and Marvelous Silks for Which Limitless Prices Can Be Paid—The Glories of the October Openings.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

There is an odor of heliotrope at the openings. Last Spring we shopped in an atmosphere of orchid flowers. The season before that it was white rose. Now, with the revival of the purples and the lavenders, we go about morning after morning breathing a drygoods air heavy with heliotrope perfume. Fashion this month spells magnificence and shopping becomes a passion, an ecstacy. Our ears drink in greedily the tinkling of jet, our eyes are dilated with gazing on the flowered gorgeousness of the brocades, our fingers long for the touch of the wonderful embroideries, and our senses to be lapped in luxury by the rich warmth of the furs. Color wraps us round and round. We are lost in a tropic delight in the sumptuous, the florid in material which consoles us for the straightness and scantness, the simplicity of cut of the gowns. To think of a winter costume is to think of a queen's robe. To choose a costume is, for the novice giddy with her foretaste of the season's pleasures, to wander from superb brocade to velvet and point lace and back again to gold spangled gauze and crepe de chine. To wear a gown is to sip the sensuous pleasure of a winter of smiles and revelry.

BODICE FOR A DEBUTANTE.

Tea gown for a tall blonde maid with classic fillet and knot of hair; China silk of a coppery sunset color with full vest of white mull edged with gold lace, overgown of blue crepe de chine, shirred at the waist line in the back, and with full flowing Athenian draperies, either tossed back from the shoulders or covering the arms and sweeping the floor. These are clasped with cameos set in coppery bronze on the shoulders where they touch the loose sleeves with under-sleeves of mull.

Robe for a matron in her forties who looks best when most adorned. Old royal purple velvet is the material made with a redingote edged down the fronts and about the bottom with narrow gold galloon. A wide and heavy cord embroidery of the same rich substance is laid about the bodice to simulate a jacket form. The cuffs, collar and deep border of the skirt front glitter with gold.

Evening dress for a rosy blonde who should be married, rich and young. Gold satin composes it, draped in front with a white gauze embroidered with Empire flower sprays in gold and crystal beads and sparkling with gold spangles. At the bottom, the gauze is caught up in round shallow scallops edged with loops of gold and crystal beads and fastened by gold and crystal butterflies. The train is gold and white brocade of an all-over pattern, and the low cut bodice is edged with gauze and beads and has butterfly spangles on the shoulders.

Gown may be for a chestnut-haired debutante's wear at an afternoon's tea. A pale blue crepe de chine is cut in simple round-waisted, straight-skirted Empire fashion with a long gold buckle gathering the loose bodice folds at the waist line.

Dancing dress for a pretty girl with a clear skin in her second or third season. A gold-colored silk makes the under-gown edged at the bottom by a band of grayish blue velvet. Two broad sash ends of gray-blue silk cover the front partially and are embroidered at the bottom with gold thread scrolls. A blue brocade forms the overgown and draperies flowered with daisies in gold.

Street gown for some good walker whose color comes when the wind blows her curls around. A dull terra cotta cloth is embroidered about the bottom with a deep border of applique work in scroll patterns of black astrakhan and chrysanthemum designs in olives, browns and old rose. With this goes a shoulder cape of astrakhan and a muff, both embroidered in the chrysanthemum patterns and tied with old rose ribbons. There is a man in New York who possesses a special knack in this couching of fur on cloth with silk threads and much of the best one sees is done by him and his workwomen. An odd street dress of heliotrope cloth is one of his latest designs. The gown has a simulated jacket front embroidered with old rose silk in conventional designs. This appears to open over a vest of black Persian astrakhan which is prolonged on the front of the skirt in half a dozen unique figure-like projections, irregularly notched like fern fronds and reaching the hem. All this is fastened down by button-hole stitching in old rose. About the bottom is a border of conventional embroidery in shades of lavender, purple and old rose.

Evening toilet for brown eyes, slim figure and dark hair. Pink crepe de chine forms the dancing skirt hung with white mull lavishly embroidered with tiny rosebuds in pale pinks and greens. Over this is worn a polonaise with an embroidered mull yoke, veiling the neck and shoulders, to which is gathered a loose-fronted corsage shirred to a point and clasped by a sash of narrow pink ribbon fastened with a bow and long ends between the shoulder blades behind and drawn downward, under the arms to tie in a bow and hang in front with more ends. The mull sleeves are gathered very full and reach to the elbow on the lower side of the arm, coming above but a few inches below the shoulder.

House dress for a clear, light, perhaps rather pale complexion. Round waist of pale crepe shirred at the throat into a standing collar of plum-colored silk reaching only half way around, like a Venetian ruff modified. At the waist it is gathered into a plum-colored silk belt feather-stitched with blue. The long, straight plum-colored skirt has not a suspicion of tournure and drapery. It hangs scant and clinging. The silk sleeves have flat epaulets and wide cuffs of blue.

Evening gown of one of those new and regal brocades which make one think of courts and tiaras of diamonds. The ground of it is green and on this are spread large flower sprays in crimson and a pale yellowish flame. The redingote has revers and sleeves of deep maroon velvet and opens over a velvet skirt, which shows dimly between two broad sash ends or hanging panels of green silk, ending in long shawl fringe shading through green, crimson and flame. At the throat is a Marie Antoinette fichu of gold and flame crepe and the same crisp ruching is gathered into the sleeves. A companion gown is of heavy olive velvet with front of pink brocade showing leaf sprays of considerable size in olive and brown. Gold tinsel passementerie forms a border ten inches deep about the bottom, and there is a brocaded court train.

Opera cloak for a piquant Red Riding Hood of a girl. Fine scarlet cloth is the fabric and it has the modified peasant shape with two capes gathered to a collar.

Opera cloak for a young yellow-haired chaperone. Yellow green velvet makes it, and it has sleeves like the Egyptian "abaya," long and flowing, and is edged about with black cocks' plumes.

Visiting gown for a call of high state and dignity. Mink fur borders the polonaise of heliotrope cloth both in front and about the bottom. The fur in its turn is edged on both sides with narrow jet trimming. Large jet passementerie ornaments loop the draperies and disclose the undergown of heliotrope armure.

Two gowns for the dowager on whom, alas, the golden gates of youth have closed forever. One is a dinner dress composed of a brocade of flowers in old rose and olive on a shaded ground. There are side panels of brown velvet partially covered with white point lace and a train of uncut velvet also in brown. The bodice is trimmed lavishly with point lace, and there is, instead of the youthful and inevitable sash, a double row of brown silk cord passementerie, which is carried round the figure, making a classic girdle. The sleeves of uncut velvet are close from waist to elbow with a puff on the shoulder caught in the middle by a slender band of the galloon.

JACKET WITH EMBROIDERED FRONTS.

The other is also a dinner dress, and shows a brocade of roses on shaded greenish black with front of green silk draped with shaded pink gauze, this in turn subued by a drapery of black lace, giving richness without too much color ostentation.

Pretty little conceits in breakfast caps and French fans in gauze and feathers are among the strongest temptation which the season offers to lovers of dainty trifles. The most beautiful and costly of these are shown framed in glass cases in the dry goods stores. There are no boas with the winter furs. Instead, the collars of the jackets are rolled with fur, and the collar ends edge the waist-coat coming to a point at the waist line. Fur shoulder capes abound. Dame Fashion is prodigal in her winter display. Nothing previously shown has ever equalled the grace of design, the fineness of fabric and the sumptuousness of the importations from every quarter of the globe. Plain rich corded silks of superb lustre, brocades of unheard of splendor of tinting and design, armures royale, figured with odd-looking splinters in silver and gold or deep copper, soft beautiful crepe-de-chine fabrics, peau de soie and fleur de cynge are used for the construction of these gorgeous costumes. The most costly passementeries, hand embroideries and tinsels are used for garniture. Belts, girdles, antique collars and cuffs, revers, peplum fronts and panels are covered with this intricate tracery. In spite of all this splendor, street dresses will continue severely plain in cut, though composed of magnificent promenade fabrics, the whims of antique and mediæval drapery being confined to the drawing room and boudoir.

One of the most unique of the fall walking suits forms two gowns in one. The skirt is a light tan-colored armure silk, embroidered in front and on the sides in leaves and wooded sprays in purple silk and gold cord. The overdress is of fine purple cloth, close-fitting in the back, the skirt reaching the ground, the front cut in loose jacket shape and separated below the waist line leaving the jacket front effect decided. The skirt front, as well as the whole front of the jacket is lined with embroidered silk like the skirt. When worn in the street the coat may be closed so that only a small part of the skirt is seen. But for a concert, church wedding, theater or calling costume the jacket fronts are rolled back disclosing an embroidered vest, the fronts of the skirt are thrown back and buttoned behind at the waist line, making a very elaborate and dressy costume.

ELLEN OSMOND.

An Insane Man Runs Amuck.

BLOOMFIELD, N. J., Oct. 22.—An insane man caused considerable excitement here last evening by running through the streets discharging a rifle and revolver. Some of the shots went through windows, and those of the National Bank were badly shattered. Several persons narrowly escaped being shot. The man was finally arrested and locked up.

Plumbers to Leave the Knights.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—By the first of January every union plumber, steam and gas, and their helpers, will drop their connection with the Knights of Labor and form a new organization. This means a loss of over 10,000 mechanics to the order. The determination to form this union was reached at a secret meeting of 350 delegates of the craft from all parts of the country held in Washington on the 7th inst. The delegates met on that day and discussed the question for five days before finally deciding.

Death of a Railroad President.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 22.—James E. Redfield, of Essex, Conn., is dead of pneumonia aged 55 years. He was president of the Saybrook bank and largely interested in railroad operation, being president of the Little Rock, Mississippi and Texas road.

Return of New York's Governor.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Governor Hill and party returned from their southern trip at 2.35 p. m. The governor was driven directly to the Executive Mansion. He expressed himself as being highly pleased with his trip.

An Old Minister Dead.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 22.—Rev. C. W. Wallace, D.D., the first settled pastor of the First Church, died last night from old age. He was born in 1805 and began preaching in 1838.

The Carson county, Wyoming, Grand Jury, which has been investigating the lynching of Jim Averill and Ella Watson, the cattle thieves, adjourned until the 24th inst without returning indictments against those accused of the lynching.

Prof. Mather, of Amherst, Mass., is dangerously ill and his friends are alarmed. Drs. Richardson and Fitz, of Boston, Cooper, of Northampton and Fish, of Amherst, are in consultation. An operation is probable, with hope of success.

TWELVE MEN FOUND

The Cronin Jury Finally Secured and Sworn In.

THE CASE TO OPEN TO-MORROW

The Suspects Will Then Face the Witnesses Brought Against Them.

Every Juror was Born in the United States The State's Attorney Will Take Up Four Weeks With His Side of the Case—A Verdict Not Expected Much Before Christmas.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—The defendants in the Cronin murder trial will be brought face to face with the witnesses against them to-morrow. The third and last panel of four jurors to try the defendants was sworn in late yesterday afternoon, thus completing the jury. The ninth and tenth jurors have been hanging on the rack for several days, and the eleventh man was practically accepted on Saturday. The lawyers for the prosecution surprised everybody by suddenly deciding to accept the twelfth juror tendered by the defense, and the court said: "They may be sworn in."

It is eight weeks and one day since the beginning of the trial. The jury is a representative American one, and in appearance and manners the members are an intelligent, fair-minded body of men, who have sworn they can and will try the defendants solely on the law and the evidence. This is the personnel of the Cronin jury:

John Culver, real estate dealer, aged 40; American born. James Pharson, farmer, aged 55; American parentage, decended from Pennsylvania Dutch. John L. Hall, draughtsman, aged 28, an ardent temperance advocate; American parentage. Charles C. Dix, cashier in insurance office, aged 23; born in Chicago. Henry D. Walker, upholsterer, aged 58; born of American parents. Frank Allison, machinist, aged 39; native of Bloomington, N. Y. George L. Corke, druggist, aged 30; born in England; lived in this country seven years; had prejudice against the Clan-na-Gael, but swore he could try the defendants fairly. William L. North, sewing machine manufacturer, aged 43; native of Cleveland, O. Edward S. Bryan, salesman, aged 35; born in the United States. Elijah W. Boutecon, salesman, aged 35; born in Troy, N. Y. Charles F. Marlor, clerk, aged 29; born in New York of English parents. Benjamin F. Clarke, real estate dealer, aged 52; American parentage.

With the exception of Corke every juror was born in the United States and all save two had American parents. The jury is also composed of men who are attached to Protestant churches. A few of them are attached to secret societies, such as the Royal League and the Royal Arcanum, but neither the State nor the defense cares about that. Veniremen to the number of 1,115 have been examined since the trial began. The State's Attorney expects to take up four weeks with his case, and it is not likely that the prisoners will know their fate before Christmas.

PEACE AND A BIG ARMY.

Kaiser Wilhelm's Speech at the Opening of the Reichstag.

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—At the formal opening of the autmun session of the Reichstag the Imperial speech was delivered by Herr von Boetricher, Imperial Minister of the Interior and Vice President of the Prussian Council, who said that the session, as had those in the past, would be directed to the security of peace at home and abroad.

The co-operation of the Reichstag in the consolidation of the defensive powers of the Fatherland, would be again claimed, in order to further develop the efficiency of the army, and its readiness for action will thereby impart to the efforts of the emperor and his allies for the preservation of peace the weight which is their due in the Council of Nations.

A bill will be presented by the governor amending the military law of May 2, 1874. It will provide for a fresh distribution of the army and is intended to readjust the existing irregularities of organization which have arisen through the strengthening of the army and the displacement of troops from time to time. From this cause and a corresponding expansion of the naval power arises the additional expenditure set forth in the Budget.

SLAVES AT AUCTION.

Buying and Selling of Human Chattels Openly Carried on at Zanzibar.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Letters from Zanzibar received at the Anti-Slavery Society here report that the buying and selling of human chattels in the streets of that city is carried on with scarcely an attempt at concealment. Weekly markets are held at which the slaves are boldly exposed to the gaze of intending buyers, and in many cases each slave carries a placard suspended from his neck upon which is written the price at which he can be bought. The women are not usually ticketed in this way but are sold for what they will fetch, the ordinary price being from £6 to £10 each if they are young.

The merchants who carry on the traffic are all Arabs, but it appears to be well understood in Zanzibar that a rich firm of traders, every member of which hails from England, furnish all the capital to conduct the business, and that by far the largest share of their immense yearly profits is derived from this traffic. All the local officials in Zanzibar are said to be in the pay of this firm, who purchase immunity by bribing the authorities from the highest to the lowest; and so complete is their influence that no complaint receives the slightest attention.

STABBED FOR A CHESTNUT.

A New York Italian Plunges a Knife Into a Young Man's Side.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—If Jeremiah Lynch, an eighteen-year-old machinist, who was taken to the Chambers Street Hospital last night with an ugly knife wound in his side, should ever recover, he may well claim the distinction that his life was attempted in a quarrel over the smallest sub-division of a cent that ever nerved a murderer's arm.

His assailant was an Italian chestnut vender, Pasquala Cetes, whose stand is on Park Row in front of the new "World" building. Lynch stopped to buy a cent's worth of chestnuts at the Italian's stand and after giving Cetes his penny, was told to take seven chestnuts. This the boy did, but Cetes suspected that he had taken eight and demanded the return of one chestnut.

Out of this demand arose a war of words in the course of which the Italian became so enraged that he drew a clasp knife and plunged it into Lynch's side, inflicting a wound three and a half inches deep and penetrating to the lung. The doctors pronounce the wound serious, but not necessarily fatal. The Italian, who is twenty-five years of age was arrested. He denies the stabbing.

STILL WAITING.

The Disappointed Adventists Now Believe the Lord is Coming This Month.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 23.—Considerable excitement still prevails in the vicinity of Screamersville, Spottsylvania county, at the Adventists' camp meeting in that place.

Those gathered there predicted that the world would come to an end last night, and to-day they say it will certainly occur before the end of the month.

A number of farmers have left their homes, turned their stock out on the commons and are living at the Adventist camp. Others refuse to work and only go home at night. Many have not sown their fall wheat on this account and say they will not put a single grain of seed in the ground as the Lord is certainly coming this year. About fifty persons are living at camp, waiting patiently and confidently for the end of the world.

FOUND IN THE WOODS.

Massachusetts Officers Discover a Family Living in Destitution and Squalor.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Oct. 23.—State Agent Anderson and Sheriff Day found a family of eight persons living in destitution and squalor in a seven by nine shanty of one room, in the woods on Brush Hill, town of Sheffield.

They are Henry and Jane Winters and six children, all under eleven years of age. All were nearly naked. There was but one bed, and no bed clothes except filthy rags. There were only a few scraps of food. The father works in the coal brush occasionally, and gets a dollar a day. The mother is shiftless and lazy. None of the children ever saw the inside of a church, and only one ever attended school.

All were brought here and arraigned in court. The cases were postponed until to-morrow, when the authorities will take charge of the children.

THE CABLE BROKE.

Frightful Ride of Three Men Down the Wilkesbarre Mountain.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 23.—While a train of coal cars and a truck were being hoisted up the Ashley Plane yesterday, the wire cable broke just as they had almost reached the top of the Wilkesbarre Mountain. Thus freed, the cars descended the plane at frightful speed, and were smashed into fragments at the bottom.

There were three men on the truck, W. H. Adams, John Boat and Hugh Ferguson, all of whom were buried in the debris. Strange to say, the men were taken out alive, but very badly injured. Adams and Boat will die, while Ferguson may recover.

Disappeared With Another Man's Wife.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 23.—Brewer Rue, a well-known contractor, has disappeared taking with him some $6,000. At the same time Mrs. Lizzie Cleary is missing and her husband is unable to tell of her whereabouts. Rue has left his wife and children without any means of support. A reward of $250 is offered for the arrest of Rue and Mrs. Cleary. Mrs. Cleary is a pretty blond. She formerly lived in Pittsburg. It is thought the couple have gone there.

No Advance in Coal Rates.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—There will be no advance in coal rates for the present. The Western agents at their meeting decided that an advance would not be proper, and the Eastern agents decided the same way. Some of the influences were in favor of an advance, but the weight of the opinion was the other way.

Geologist of Rutgers College.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 23.—Dr. W. A. Atwater, head of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Washington, D. C., has been elected as successor to the late Dr. Cook, the eminent geologist, of Rutgers College. Dr. Atwater was the first to advocate the experimental system.

The Great American Doctor Dead.

PARIS, Oct. 23.—Dr. Phillippe Ricord, the celebrated French Surgeon, who was for many years known in Paris as "The great American Doctor," is dead. Dr. Ricord was born in Baltimore, Md., December 10, 1800.

Bartholomew Convicted of Murder.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 23.—The jury in the case of Wm. H. Bartholomew, charged with the murder of Aaron W. Dilliard, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree.

CLEVELAND'S VIEWS

He Writes a Letter to the Democratic Club Delegates.

GOV. HILL MAKES A SPEECH

They Believe the Party's Principles Certain to Prevail in the Future.

Strong Tariff Reform Resolutions Adopted by the League—New York Republicans Hold a Mass Meeting—Senator Hiscock Speaks on American Shipping—Gov Hill's State Administration Denounced

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The conventies of the State League of Democratic Clubs at the Hoffman House yesterday called together delegates in great numbers from all sections of the State, among whom were John Boyd Thatcher, of Albany; Major J. R. McNulty, Norton Chase, of Troy; W. P. O'Malley, of Ontario, and D. G. Griffin, of St. Lawsence. Organizations from every important section of the State were represented. President Thatcher opened the proceedings and the address of welcome was delivered by Mr. J. H. V. Arnold, president of the Young Men's Democratic Club, of this city, and also president of the Board of Aldermen. He urged that Democrats should strain every nerve to carry the Senate this year.

When Governor Hill appeared he was received with cheers, and in the course of a brief speech he dwelt upon the policy of the Republican party, and said that President Harrison had failed to fulfil his promises. The Democrats, he said, were never so right on the questions of the State and nation as they were to-day.

Delegate Weeks read the following communication from ex-President Cleveland:

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.

Bartow S. Weeks, Esq., Chairman, etc.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your invitation to attend the Convention of New York State Democratic Clubs to be held at the Hoffman House in this city on the 22d inst.

I am glad that you were considerate enough of my situation and feeling to give me an opportunity to infer from your note that my failure to accept your invitation would neither cause great disappointment nor be construed as indicating any lack of interest in the work which the clubs represented in the League have undertaken.

These organizations had their origin in the heat and activity of a Presidential election which furnishes plenty of that enthusiasm upon which political organizations subsist. While they are certainly very useful at such time, it must be conceded that the noise and excitement of a campaign are not conducive to the accomplishment of missionary work or the effective dissemination of political truth. This most important work can better be done in more quiet surroundings, though usually it is not then so easy to maintain political association.

It has been too often the case, if it may not be said to be the rule, that political clubs, whatever their declaration of perpetuity may have been, have only lived during the campaign in which they had their birth, and only for performing temporary campaign work.

I am very much pleased to learn that the League of New York Democratic Clubs intends to make the organizations of which it is composed permanent agencies for spreading and illustrating the doctrines of the Democratic party, at all times and in all circumstances. In making this effort the League is to be congratulated upon the fact that the principles of Democracy occupy at this time a larger place than they lately have in the consideration of the party. The study and propagation of these principles afford strong inducements to associated effort and, what is better, these efforts are invested with a value and importance as great as the prosperity of our land, and as broad in their beneficence as the welfare of all our people.

I look to the ascendancy of the principles upon which true Democracy rests, which will be greatly aided by the activity of Leagues such as yours, to secure us from wasting extravagance, from demagogic pretence, from sectional bitterness and from the widespread corruption of our suffrage.

Could labor or effort have greater or higher incentives than the accomplishment of these results? Yours very truly,

GROVER CLEVELAND.

The Committee on Resolutions made a report in favor of electoral reform and tariff reform, and ratifying the State nominations and endorsing the administration of Gov. Hill.

John Boyd Thacher, of Albany, was elected president for the ensuing year. A general committee was chosen and the convention adjourned.

REPUBLICAN MASS MEETING.

Senator Hiscock Makes a Speech on American Shipping.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—A mass meeting to ratify the Republican State ticket was held last night in the Cooper Union. Hon. Elihu Root presided, and Senator Hiscock was the principal speaker.

The Senator declared in favor of encouraging American shipping. He did not care whether it was called subsidy, or what epithet was applied to it, he wanted American goods carried in American vessels to whatever advantageous markets existed. Most of the Senator's speech was devoted to an arraignment of the Democratic State administration.

Hon. Mr. Cook, of Rochester, nominee for Comptroller, next spoke, and commented on Gov. Hill's official acts in a very unfavorable manner.

HAMBURG'S SECOND HORROR.

A Young Girl the Victim of "Jack the Ripper" or His Imitator.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—The body of another murdered girl has been found at Hamburg. The victim in this instance was only 10 years old. She had been assaulted and the body was horribly mutilated. No trace of the murderer has been discovered.

It is suspected that he is the same man who killed and mutilated the Henden girl. While it may not be that the fiend of Whitechapel, called "Jack the Ripper," has done this work, one as terrible has evidently begun operations at Hamburg.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—Dissatisfied mothers and fathers are addressed in Doane & VanArsdale's adv. today.

—The first snow of the season in this city fell last evening. There was another squall this morning.

—In the midst of the snow storm of this morning, a bunch of pear blossoms were picked and laid on the writer's desk.

—The Hon. John R. McPherson, U. S., Senator from this State, will speak in this city Wednesday evening of next week.

—Too much precaution cannot be taken at this season of the year, when the dry leaves are raked up into heaps and burned.

—The Newark Advertiser says yesterday: "The editor of the Plainfield news classed among recent wedding gifts a baptismal font."

—Election day is coming along lively and every effort will be put forth to corner the independent voter and get him to vote the straight ticket.

—Mr. Charles Hand resumed work on his new building on West Second street, yesterday, and the work will be pushed rapidly forward to completion.

—Grover Cleveland, David B. Hill and Leon Abbett are announced to speak from the same platform at the Democratic meeting to be held at New Brunswick, N. J., on Nov. 1.

—The telephone Company yesterday erected a large sixty foot pole at the intersection of Park and North avenues, to replace the crooked pole which was first located there.

—People are beginning to think of the holidays and consider what they will buy for presents. Consult our advertising columns; trade with those who advertise and you will be happy.

—The Classis of New Brunswick has arranged for the installation of Rev. Mr. Blauvelt, at Franklin Park; Allan Campbell, at the Fourth church, New Brunswick, and J. T. Shack, at Bound Brook.

—Wife—"I'll take the $20 you gave me and buy my bonnet this morning, dear, as you want what's left to get your hat." Husband—"All right, dearest, I'll go down at once and order a 60 cent hat for myself."

—All interested in the organization of a Co-operative Association, will please attend a meeting to be held at Laing's Hall, on Front street, this evening, at 7:45 o'clock. A prompt and full attendance is requested.

—The Crescent Circle, of New Brunswick, are making all efforts to have their first ball successful. Societies from Plainfield, Elizabeth, Newark, Perth Amboy and Jersey City, have been invited, and will send delegations.

—The subject for Bible study, at the Young People's meeting, at the Crescent Avenue church, Friday evening, will be—"Promised Results, Promised Rewards." The leader will be Mr. F. H. Andrews. All are invited, and are requested to bring their own Bibles.

—The first grand ball under the auspices of the Park Avenue and Oriental Social Clubs, will be held at The Crescent, Thanksgiving Eve., Wednesday evening, November 27. The music will be furnished by Prof. Boswald, of New York. Tickets 25 cents, can be had of the members.

—The Central Railrond of New Jersey has created the office of general storekeeper and placed in charge H. S. Montgomery, who used to be on the Philadelphia and Reading Road. Heretofore the road has got along with local storekeepers. Mr. Montgomery will have charge of all the stores, with headquarters probably at Elizabethport.

—In spite of so strong a competitor as electricity, the business of the Plainfield Gas Light Company at present is larger than ever before. There has been a steady and increased private consumption for the past many months, and even where electricity has been introduced, there has been no decrease in the use of gas except in one or two cases only.

Bid me discourse, I will enchant thy ear with remarkable tales of astounding cures of all sorts of suffering by Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain. Price 25 cents a bottle.

It is asserted that Booth and Salvini keep their voices clear by the use of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

RATS!

Chief Carey Had Better Call off His Dog.

According to our shabby contemporary, the ragged news, Chief Carey thinks "he might as well resign" if he can't have everybody he chooses to arrest convicted whether there is a case against the accused or not.

Carey's organ goes on to say with its usual disregard for grammar, that "he don't propose to be made a fool of or to be a party to such a farce as Justice is as at present administered, corrupted by our Democratic rulers acting in collusion with the saloons."

THE PRESS and other admirers of Judge Stillman, will wonder how even the news is permitted to accuse the City Court of adminstering justice that is corrupted and in collusion with the saloons.

Chief Carey still possesses the respect of a number of Plainfield's citizens, but much of such barking will drive the rest of these away from his support. Call off the dog!

A Double Quartette Will Sing.

The twenty-second anniversary exercises of the Young Men's Christian Association, will be held in the First Presbyterian church, to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. An address will be delivered by Merrill E. Gates, LL., D., President of Rutgers College; and a report of the work of the year will be given by President W. D. Murray.

The programme in full is as below. The vocal selections will be by a double quartette consisting of: Miss Addie Mc Gee and Mrs. David Titsworth, sopranos; Miss Alice Holmes and Miss Annie Petrie, contraltos; Mr. L. H. Biglow, Jr., and Mr. M. C. VanArsdale, tenors; Mr. B. T. Barnes and Mr. Francis Runyon, bassos.

Their Silver Wedding.

The Rev. J. W. Mitchell, pastor of Mount Olive Baptist church, and his hospitable wife, entertained a gathering of seventy-five friends at their home on Liberty street, last evening. The occasion was the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. There were a number of costly presents from a host of well wishers, and the entire affair was most enjoyable to the guests and gratifying to Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell. The collation was by Mr. E. B. Maynard, and the heavily laden table was a work of art and good taste.

Among those present were the Rev. Dr. Yerkes, Mr. A. M. Vanderbeek, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Douglas, Miss Knapp, Miss Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson and Mr. Walker; Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Walley, of Fanwood; Mr. and Mrs. Middlesworth, or Orange; Mrs. Pierson and Miss Mitchell, of New Market.

State Teachers' Association.

The State Teachers' Association will meet in Trenton in December. The Council of Education will meet on Dec. 26, in the office of the principal of the Normal school. The Council is a select body, consisting of some of the most prominent educators in the State, and is limited in number to 48. Superintendent Wm. N. Barringer of Newark, President Supervising Principal Gregory of Trenton, Secretary, and Principal James N. Green of the Normal school, Treasurer.

The subject for discussion at the meeting will be the report presented by the Special Committee on School Organization at the June meeting, and discussed at some length at that time. It deals with the methods by which Boards of Education are constituted all over the United States.

Trial Postponed.

The case of the City against Patrick Newell and wife charged with keeping a disorderly house, was adjourned this morning by Judge Stillman, on motion of Counsellor Fay, of Elizabeth, who appeared for the defence.

Mr. Fay requested the dismissal of the complaint so far as Mrs. Newell was concerned, holding that a married woman could not be held for trial for such an offence, as her husband was alone responsible. Judge Stillman said he would hear argument on the point when the Corporation Counsel could be present. The trial was set down for Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

The Firemen's Fair.

There was a good attendance at the bazaar and fair which is being held by the firemen in Dunlap Hall, last evening. The various displays made by the merchants attracted considerable attention, and during the evening many articles were disposed of from the several tables and booths. The fair will continue up to and including Saturday, the 26th inst.

Saturday's Trotting Card.

Among the races already arranged for Saturday next at the Gentlemen's Driving Park Track is one between Mr. M. Quinn's "Lucy" and Nate Robbin's "Doctor;" also between Mr. Churchill's "Selim" and John Osborne's "Marcanear." Other races will also take place on the track at that time.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. Henry VanMiddlesworth, of 3 Elmwood place, is sojourning at Jersey City and Harlem for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kirkner will tomorrow take up their residence on 72d street, New York city, for the Winter.

An evening sociable was held at the residence of Mr. V. Randolph, at New Market, last evening. Invitations were sent out and accepted by many friends in this city.

Mr. Wm H. Egbert, formerly of this city, and for years past a prominent cowboy in the far West, is in Plainfield again after having been searched for months ago in vain, and given up as dead.

The funeral of the late Rev. Chas. L. Sykes who died on Monday, will take place from All Saints church at Scotch Plains, to-morrow at 2:15 P. M. Interment will be made in the Baptist cemetery at Scotch Plains.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Temperance Aid Society, announced to take place in Reform Hall, yesterday afternoon, was postponed for one week, on account of the small attendance. On Tuesday next officers will be elected and other important business transacted.

Miss Susie Varney, of Boston, Mass., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. E. C. Varney, of 38 Somerset street Although Miss Varney is a resident of ultra cultured Boston, she is most expressive and sincere in her admiration of Plainfield, and thinks as all others do, that it is one of the garden spots of America.

Just before ten o'clock this morning, the death occurred at her home on La Grande avenue, of Mrs. Gurdon S. Coit, in her 75th year. She had been seriously ill for some time, but the cause of death was old age. The funeral will be held at 23 LaGrande avenue, Friday afternoon, at four o'clock. Interment at Greenwood, Saturday morning, at eleven o'clock. Mrs. Coit is a sister of Mr. Charles S. Guion.

Merrill Edwards Gates, who will speak at the First Presbyterian church, Thursday night, at the Y. M. C. A., Anniversary, is a gentleman of unusual ability. Since he was called to the presidency of Rutgers a few years ago, that college has grown rapidly in wealth and members. Dr. Gates is still a young man, but he has a wide reputation not only as an educator but as a writer and a speaker of unusual force and brilliancy.

Temperance Councilmen the Liquor Sellers' Friends.

What the people want this Fall to vote for, is a Common Sense Ticket with men of common sense nominated on it. Such a ticket would be elected entire except possibly in the Third Ward. Not but what Messrs Marsh and Dunham make good Councilmen, and possess good sense, but they and the other intemperate "temperance men," smother their good judgment with sentiment, and legislate for free rum by following a policy on the license question that is directly responsible for the Sixty-three unlicensed saloons now open days, nights and Sundays in Plainfield.

If saloons cannot be suppressed entirely in Plainfield—and the past few months have emphatically proven that they cannot—do the next best thing—restrict them. THE PRESS is for as few saloons as possible, and high license has always accomplished just that desideratum. Those who have advocated and voted against all license, are proven to have advocated free rum and brought about an unrestricted sale of liquor in scores of "dives" and illicit "holes." Who fights the more effective fight against the sale of liquor in Plainfield—THE PRESS or the "temperance Councilmen?"

Comparison's the Thing.

THE PRESS exclusively published yesterday, accounts of:

Miss VanDoren's $50,000 suit against the P. & R. railroad company;

Treasurer Osborne's misappropriation of the funds of Cypress Commandery;

Dr. Ketcham's preaching to the Synod of New Jersey;

The record of the Young Crescents and their scores for the past season;

The new magazine that is being established in Plainfield;

Death of the Rev. Mr. Sykes, late pastor of All Saints church of Scotch Plains;

Mr. Walter G. Runyon's runaway;

Mr. Mason's discovery of a burglar on a stoop;

How Louis Hermance killed a flat-headed adder;

The return of Mr. John Campbell after an absence of eight years in Europe;

The intended departure of Mr. Leo Daft for the Adirondacks;

The birth of young Master Simmonds;

The death of Mrs. E. S. Honeyman,

And a score of other interesting items occurring in Plainfield, but published only in these columns

The Construction of a Will.

Vice Chancellor VanFleet heard testimony in his Chambers in Newark, yesterday, in the suit between Calvin Carle, one of the executors of the will of the late Peter W. Young, formerly of Hillsborough township, Somerset county, complainant, and the heirs of the estate, defendants.

The estate consists of three valuable farms in Somerset county, and stocks and bonds, in all valued at $43,000. As there is a conflict of opinion between the executors and heirs in regard to the provisions of the will, this suit was brought to have the will construed by the Court. No decision was reached.

PROHIBITION MASS MEETING.

An Eloquent Address by Prof. Samuel Dickie of Michigan.

The members of the Prohibition League of this city held a ratification meeting in Reform Hall, last evening, but unfortunately for the league, the attendance was small. Mr. Geo. H. Fountain presided and led the singing. He also offered prayer, and after a few preliminary remarks he introduced Prof. Samuel Dickie, of Michigan, Chairman of the National Prohibition Committee.

The learned speaker prefaced his remarks by stating that he would feel more like consuming the time if he had a larger audience. He openly confessed that the Prohibitionists did not expect to elect their ticket this time. Prof. Dickie discussed "Is it wise, expedient, necessary and patriotic to organize and sustain the Prohibition party." He thought that the temperance question was of vast more importance to the people than all the other great issues combined; financially considered, he said, it is larger than the tariff revenues. The money spent in the grog shops in one year will rebuild all the educational halls in the country, and in fifteen months' time the money gathered in by the brewers and liquor dealers would wipe out the National debt, interest and all. The speaker said he was sure that Prohibition would not prohibit, unless there was a dominant political party which believes in the doctrines of a prohibitory law.

The speaker occupied nearly an hour and a-half in delivering his address and he was frequently interrupted with applause. At the close Prof. Dickie hastened to the depot and boarded a train for Jersey City.

The next speaker introduced was Mr. E. L. Massett, the Third Assembly District (Union county) Prohibition nominee, who made a short address.

"CAREY TALKS OF RESIGNING."

How Prohibition Prohibits in Plainfield.

(From The World.)

Joseph Sullivan was tried at Plainfield yesterday for illegal liquor selling. There was great indignation among the temperance people when it became known that six of the jury stood for acquittal to six for conviction. Chief of Police Carey talks of resigning. Temperance men threaten to smash the Common Council for failing to back the Chief.

The town has been having farcical prohibition several months. The saloons are closed, but plenty of dives are open in the worst parts of the city. The saloons of North Plainfield, which is under another government, are licensed and are doing a big business. The breweries have established agencies in the city, and any amount of liquor can be bought by the quart.

Several temperance men say they would prefer a return to high license, if only for the satisfaction of seeing liquor sold honestly and openly instead of the underhanded manner in which the business is now conducted. Chief Carey has been indefatigable in persecuting the liquor sellers, but the Common Council refuses to give him money to hire detectives to gather direct and unimpeachable evidence.

The Young Crescents Off Their Base.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS—I see by your paper of last night that the blooming, blustering Young Crescents have played two games with the Green Brooks and won one. The only game they ever won was once that the Green Brooks did not appear on the grounds owing to a misunderstanding. If the Captain of the Young Crescents will put on his thinking cap I guess he will remember the following games.

June 22, Young Crescents vs. Picked Nine, the latter captained by H. Woolston, on Blatz's field, score 20 to 5 in favor of the Picked Nine; and the following with the Green Brooks to add to their list:

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Church Choir Entertainment.

An entertainment will be given by the choir of the Church of the Holy Cross, in the Sunday School building, on Thursday evening, October 31. A most attractive programme will be presented consisting chiefly of tableaux, with Roger's groups of statuary for their subjects, interspersed with music, vocal and instrumental. The price of admission will be fifty cents and tickets may be obtained from any of the young men of the choir.

To Tea Drinkers.

To enjoy a refreshing cup of tea, prepare it in an earthen or china pot, have the water fresh and boiling before steeping, and use Blend's cut leaf teas. They are specially selected by expert tasters of China, India and Japan, and are sold in the original ½ pound and larger packages unopened as imported. Messrs Barkalew & Dunn, 18 North avenue, are offering these teas at 50 cents a pound to introduce them into Plainfield's families.

The Last Day of Registry.

Every voter should bear in mind the fact that unless their names are properly registered in their respective wards, that on election day which occurs two weeks from yesterday, they will be debarred from casting a vote. The last day of registry will be Thursday, Oct. 31.

STIRLING'S "GRAND JUBILEE."

Men, Women and Children Have a Happy Time.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Cole & Knett, Stirling's new owners, gave their employees and friends a big treat last Saturday night. It was the grandest time Stirling ever had.

Two months ago Stirling, it was thought, would be a deserted town in a short time. But it does not look much like it now. In the new building that has just been erected by C. B. Moffett, for Cole & Knett, the great silk manufacturers of Paterson, N. J., the jubilee was held. There were about 700 people present and not one of them was intoxicated at eleven o'clock, the time for closing. The new owners of the silk mill with their wives, were present, and enjoyed a waltz with a number from the neighboring towns.

Everything was free, and all everybody could eat and drink was set on tables decorated with flowers and attended to by waiters. One end of the building—which is 100 feet long—was used for dancing. The music was by Prof. Melee. There were six pieces. There was also a brass band that played between the dances.

The Rev. A. C. Dill, of the Stirling chapel, gave an address, and while he was delivering it one could hear a pin drop, and when he had finished it one could not have heard an earth quake so great was the applause. The Stirling German Singing club, sang a piece in German which was well applauded. The employes of Cole & Knett made up about $40, and bought a horseshoe of roses with the words "Cole & Knett" in the center, and presented it to them. At eleven o'clock it closed and everybody went home feeling that Stirling was not the place it had had the name of so long.

That "Bunch of Keys" Again.

When a theatrical company makes a return date in a one-night city, it speaks creditably for its merits. Sparks company in Hoyt's "Bunch of Keys" is coming to Plainfield again, Thursday night, and it has with it all its attractive people and its attractive qualities.

It is as hilarious as ever, and the audience is kept in roars of laughter throughout the evening. There are new songs, dances and jokes, though the old "two dollar" joke seems to keep its hold on the people as ever. Ada Bothner, as Teddy Keys, sings and kicks up her heels in clever style, and is especially good in her impersonation as the drummer. As Dolly Dobbs, the domestic, Bertie Conway is graceful and sprightly, and Blanche Seymour and Lilla Linden, as Rose Keys and May Keys, respectively, sing and act in good style. James B. Mackie, as Grimes, is undoubtedly the funny man of the show, besides being a good dancer. His grimaces and contortions are ludicrous in the extreme.

A Dunellen Man Robbed at Elizabeth.

About half-past ten o'clock on Monday evening, Officer Walsh, of Elizabeth, was informed that a man had snatched a two dollar bill from the hand of John R Severs, a resident of Dunellen, who was on the the station platform in Elizabeth The officer found the accused at Union street, and arrested him, taking Severs to police headquarters also as complainant. The prisoner gave the name of John M. Gaffney and said he lived in Boston Severs refused to make a complaint and Gaffney was discharged. He denied his guilt.—Elizabeth Journal.

A Bridge Abandoned.

The Board of Freeholders held a meeting at South Plainfield on Monday to consider what should be done about a bridge which was recently swept away near there. The bridge spans a small stream which issues from the mill pond, and it was the overflow from this pond during the recent freshets that swept it away. The Board decided to abandon the bridge. There remains yet to be settled the dispute as to who shall repair the washout on the road near the bridge, the county, township, or the owner of the mill. This matter is to be settled in the courts.

Demanding Our Freeholders Attention.

There is considerable grumbling among those who of late have had occasion to drive over the Union county roads now being paved at an expense of $130,000, because of the alleged bad condition in which the highways have been left.

Especial objection is made concerning the thoroughfares near Westfield, where, in spite of deep excavations which, it is said, have wrecked carriage springs and pitched occupants of vehicles out into mud puddles, no signals warn travelers by either day or night, of their danger.

A Very Faithful Priest.

St. John the Evangelist's parish, at Dunellen, is now attended by the Rev. Father Bogaard, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Somerville. The church at Millstone which had been attended by Father Bogaard will hereafter be in charge of the clergy of St. Peter's church, New Brunswick. During the thirteen years which Father Bogaard had attended Millstone he missed celebrating mass only three Sundays. Besides making many improvements in the church he paid off its debt of $1,000.—New Brunswick Times.

—James M. Dunn, the grocer of Park avenue, advertises sweet cider at 30 cts. a gallon. The boys in THE PRESS office can attest its excellence through the generosity of Mr. Dunn, and anyone in need of a first-class article is requested to call at 36 Park avenue.

HER DEAD BABE IN HER ARMS.

A Sixteen-Year-Old Girl's Husband Runs Off With Her Mother.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 23.—A young Portuguese woman, giving her name as Maggie Simmons, arrived in this city yesterday, on the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio road with the body of a dead babe in her arms. When questioned she told this story:

"I will be sixteen years old next Thanksgiving and have lived in Providence, R. I. I had been married to a young man in that place and just before my babe was born he went away in company with my mother and left me. I started for California where I have relatives as soon as I could after the birth of my child. This morning the babe seemed perfectly well and only half an hour before reaching Jamestown I found it was dead."

The girl is without money or friends. A local undertaker took charge of the body of the child and will have it interred here. The woman and an acquaintance whom she met on the train, and who stopped off here with her, will start for California this evening.

TWO FOR BROOKLYN

The Grooms Win Another Game from the Giants.

6,000 PEOPLE SEE THE SPORT

It Was a Slugging Match in Which the Pitchers on Both Sides Had to Retire.

The Game Called on Account of Darkness. Spalding of Chicago on the Warpath—He Will Try to Force His Players to Sign. The Brotherhood Secure Grounds in Cleveland—Baseball Gossip.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—About 6,000 persons assembled at the Polo Grounds to witness the third game for the world's championship between the present champions and the Brooklyns. The weather, with the exception of a little chilliness, was all that could be desired for ball playing.

"Mickey" Hughes, who held the New Yorks down to two hits and then shut them out without runs during the spring series for the local championship, was in the box for Brooklyn, while "Mickey" Welch did the honors for the Giants.

The contest from the start was one of slugging, and both pitchers were compelled to retire, Welch in the fifth in favor of O'Day, and Hughes in the seventh, giving way to Caruthers. The great Ewing was behind the bat for New York and besides handling the pitching of Welch and O'Day in great shape, he made the Brooklyn lads hug the bases. Clarke wore the mask for the Brooklyns, and his work after the first inning, when two men stole second on him, compared favorably with that of Ewing.

New York started the run-getting in the first, scoring two runs on hits by Tiernan, Ewing, Crane and Richardson. Brooklyn tied the score in the second on a base on balls, a two-bagger, an error and a sacrifice. In the third Brooklyn took the lead, getting three runs on Hughes' base on balls, Collins' single, a muff and wild throw by Gore, Foutz's two-bagger and a sacrifice.

The Grooms increased their lead in the fourth, Corkhill leading off with a home run hit over the left field fence. The Brooklyns made three more hits in this inning, two two-baggers and a single, but fine fielding kept them from scoring. New York again took a hand in the slugging in the fifth. Connor hit safely and moved up to second on Richardson's base on balls. O'Rourke then lifted the ball over the left field fence, clearing the bases. In the last half of the fifth Brooklyn tallied twice on two two-baggers and making the score eight to five in favor of Brooklyn. New York reduced the lead in the sixth by making two runs on a three-bagger two singles and a double.

This ended the run getting, though New York would probably have tied the score, and perhaps have won, had not darkness put a stop to the game. The ninth inning had been started and New York had three men on bases and only one man out when the umpires decided to call the game. The following is the score:

New York	2	0	0	0	3	2	0	0	—7
Brooklyn	0	2	3	1	2	0	0	0	—8

SPALDING WILL FIGHT.

The Chicago Baseball Magnate Says He Will Force His Players to Sign.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Unless all of Spalding's reserved players sign contracts by Saturday writs of injunction will be sued out to prevent their playing with any other team. Spalding is on the warpath, has half a dozen attorneys and will fight the Brotherhood to the bitter end.

All the reserved players received in their mail a notice, couched in legal terms, to the effect that a contract is awaiting their signature under the eighteenth section of their last year's agreement which gives President Spalding the right to reserve them for the season.

The Situation in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct 23.—The officials of the Cleveland League Baseball Club have obtained a charter for the "Cleveland Baseball Company" and will apply to the courts for injunctions to restrain all the players now under reserve contracts from playing with any other club next season. Albert L. Johnson, whose name has been frequently mentioned in connection with the League presidency, has secured a two-years' lease of a tract of land situated on the line of his street railway, and workmen will at once commence the erection of grand stands to accommodate 6,000 people. The new park, Johnson says, is to be used by the Brotherhood.

Hustling Horace All Right Again.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 23.—Dr. W. S. Foster of this city has returned from the East. He says: "I had a long talk with ex-Manager Horace B. Phillips yesterday. Mr. Phillips is now as well mentally as ever he was, and to-morrow he will be released from the insane asylum in Merchantville, N. J. Mr. Phillips' ailment was acute mania, not paranoia, as reported.

Indianapolis Signs a Green Pitcher.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 23.—The Indianapolis base-ball club has signed Eiteljorg, a young pitcher who has been on trial since the close of the season. None of the regular and reserved players have signed, nor were they requested to do so. President Brush says he thinks in spite of all talk to the contrary that the Indianapolis club will be essentially the same next year as it was during the past season.

New York Players Not Signed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—None of the New York players, as far as known, have signed contracts for next season, and it is said that they will not sign. The men say they have too large a contract on hand at present, "downing" the Brooklyns, to talk about any others.

Offers for Lowell Players.

LOWELL, Mass., Oct. 23.—The management of the Lowell Baseball club have received an offer, stated to be $1500, for the release of Morgan Murphy, catcher and Henry Burns, pitcher, to the Rochester, N. Y., club.

New Blood for Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 23.—The Cincinnati Baseball Club to-day signed Knight of the Toronto team and Harrington of the Northwestern League to play next season.

FIGHTING FOR A CHURCH.

Police Batter Down the Doors of a Parsonage and a General Fight Ensues.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 23.—Three months ago Bishop O'Hara deposed Father Warnegari from the Polish Catholic Church at Plymouth and afterward unfrocked him for unbecoming conduct. The congregation split into two factions, one forcibly keeping possession of the church and parsonage buildings.

Yesterday the Bishop appeared at Plymouth to take possession of the property. He deputized Father Mack to act for him. Police protection was secured, and the party went to the parsonage. On being refused admittance the police battered down the doors and arrested six of the inmates.

While the prisoners were being removed, a fierce fight occurred, the leader of the prisoners being Martin Welch, a saloon-keeper. In the struggle Chief of Police Michael Melvin had his leg broken and back injured, and a number of other persons were hurt, none, however, fatally.

TERRYS WIDOW.

She Will be Tried Next Month for Resisting the Authorities.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The late Judge Terry's widow, Sarah Althea Hill, will be tried next month before Judge Matthew P. Deady, of the Oregon Federal Circuit and District Court, before whom the famous Sharon-Hill case was brought to a hearing.

Judge Deady is a delegate to the Episcopal Convention in this city. In an interview about Judge Terry he said: "The fact is, that woman was merely his mistress. He gave her five hundred dollars a month, furnished magnificent quarters, and spent money on her lavishly. Her influence on Judge Terry was undoubtedly bad. She urged him to acts beyond even his own inclination. "It is very likely that she may at some favorable opportunity attempt the lives of Justice Field, Judge Sawyer or myself. I predict she will die a violent death."

NEW YORK KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

A Big Gathering at Hornellsville for the Seventy-Sixth Annual Conclave.

HORNELLSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 23.—This city presents a scene of animation and chivalry, the occasion being the seventy-sixth annual conclave of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of the State of New York. Commanderies from Rochester, Troy, Binghamton, Elmira, Ithaca and Dunkirk are present in a body and the remainder of the State commanderies are represented by delegates. The public buildings and business and private houses are beautifully decorated.

The Grand Conclave opened in the asylum of DeMalay Commandery where the delegates were greeted with an address of welcome by Eminent Commander F. H. Robinson. A response was made by Right Eminent Grand Commander Sir Austin A. Wood of Syracuse.

BOLD FORGERIES.

Several Prominent People in New York State Victimized by a Sharper.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Edward J. Riddle, who recently dissappeared from Wayfield, N. Y., obtained discounts on forged endorsements of prominent Fulton and Montgomery county people, including Congressman Sanford and Assemblyman Brownell.

The forgeries are said to aggregate nearly $4,000, a part of the amount being obtained at the following banks: $200 Johnstown; $400 People's, Gloversville, and $1,000 Farmers', Amsterdam. Daniel Lawton and son, Charles and Truman Whitman, Northorlee, are said to hold valueless paper made by Riddle to the amount of nearly $600.

SICKNESS AND DEATH.

An Ohio Town Paralyzed from Diphtheria and Typhoid Fever.

FREMONT, O., Oct. 23.—The village of Woodville, this county, is a terribly ravaged place. Nearly one-third of the 800 people in the town are victims of typhoid fever and diphtheria. Last week there were ten deaths from typhoid fever alone, and nearly that number from diphtheria. Dr. Bush, the leading physician of the place, has some fifty cases under his care.

Great excitement prevails in the village and business is entirely suspended. Woodville having no Board of Health the State Board was not notified of the scourge until last week.

Connecticut Day at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 23.—In dedicating the monument of the 17th Connecticut Regiment on Cemetery Hill Rev. B. F. Warner, of Bridgeport, offered prayer, Sergeant Patrick Wade, of Bridgeport, presented the monument, Miss Henrietta Huss, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., unveiled it, and Gen. W. H. Noble accepted it. Rev. A. H. Thompson, of New York, delivered the oration. The sarcophagus stone of the 27th Connecticut Regiment was dedicated in the wheat field, Hon. Lynde Harrison delivering the oration. Rev. B. F. Warner offered prayer and Gen. F. B. Sloat of New Haven, read the report of the regimental committee.

Burt & Snow's Creditors.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 23.—The plan for a settlement with the creditors of Burt & Snow, wholesale woolen goods dealers, who failed about a month ago, has fallen through. Directly after the suspension claims were advanced by several creditors, who asserted that they had been deceived by the firm's representative o, the firm's standing, and that they had been induced to sell them goods which they notified the assignees were theirs. Suits of replevin have been issued for these goods on behalf of Hault & Luquis, and others.

More Yellow Fever at Key West.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—Dr Surgeon General Hamilton, of the Marine Hospital service, has received a telegram from Dr. Leiter at Key West, reporting another case of yellow fever at that place, and that quarantine restrictions have been resumed. The patient in this case is E. Ellinger, who left Havana September 21st, bound for New York.

Mangled on the Rail.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 23.—Sailor J. Feil, aged 23, of London, England, belonging to a steamer plying on Lake Erie, and a young man, name unknown, were instantly killed yesterday by the Boston express train at Metuchen. Their bodies were terribly mangled and thrown a long distance.

ITEMIZED INTELLIGENCE.

TENNIS teaching is now opening a new branch of employment for women.

ONE Johnstown girl has counted thirty-two relatives who perished in the flood.

THERE are 1,600 central electric light stations in various parts of this country.

GUM-CHEWERS' paralysis is the latest form of professional neurosis recorded in medical literature.

LENAWEE COUNTY, Mich., is at present paying out something like twelve dollars a day in bounties on dead sparrows.

THERE are sixty paper towns in Southern California, comprising 79,850 town lots, and the whole sixty have only 235 inhabitants.

IT is said that the great oil fields of New York and Pennsylvania are rapidly becoming exhausted. The supply has fallen from 100,000 to 43,000 barrels per day. Search is being made for new fields.

THE railroad car on which Lincoln rode to Washington at the time of his first inauguration is now used as a smoking car on the New York Central railroad and runs between Wellsboro and Antrim, Pa.

A NEW gem, the pierre Tonguinoise, is in the market. When cut like diamonds it is said to be very beautiful. Its color is a dark blue, more brilliant than sapphire, though some varieties have a purple or red tinge.

THE great mining enterprise of uncovering the bed of Feather River, in California, at Big Bend, has proved a failure. The stream was successfully diverted, but the gold expected to be found at the bottom was not there. It is said $2,000,000 was expended on the project.

THE longest uninterrupted debate on record was brought to a close by the New Zealand House of Representatives the other day. It had caused a continuous sitting of seventy-six hours, entirely given up to the discussion of a representation bill. Yet the debate was not finished.

THE female clerks who have obtained positions in the Treasury Department within four or five years are mostly young women who have just passed through the normal schools and have entered the Government service through the civil service examination test. They are a bright lot of young women.

A CHINESS banking house is soon to be opened in New York City, and it will be the first of its kind in the United States. A small rate of interest is to be paid to each regular depositor, and the money is to be let out on a larger interest to legitimate business houses in Mott street, where the present rate of interest is between ten and fifteen per cent. for small loans on good security. This banking scheme indicates that the Chinese population is increasing rapidly.

THE largest drawbridge in the world is across the Thames at New London, Conn., and the draw was swung for the first time recently. It shot into place exactly, the double-rail tracks fitting as perfectly as if they had always been doing that sort of thing. The draw had, of course, been built up and down stream, and this was the first opportunity to discover whether any errors had been made. The draw is 502 feet long and weighs 2,500,000 pounds.

A BLOCK of coal weighing five tons, ten hundredweight, was cut at the Abercarne Coal Company's Abercarne colliery and sent to the Paris Exposition as a specimen of Welsh mining industry. The block, which was cut from the nine-foot black-vein seam, measures seven feet six inches high, five feet six inches wide and three feet six inches deep. It had to be hauled about a mile in the workings to the pit's shaft, where it was found necessary to trim it before it could be sent up to the bank.

HINTS ABOUT HORSES.

DO NOT be in too much of a hurry to break and work the colt. Give the animal a chance to develop.

HALTER-BREAK the colt early. It is a good deal less trouble to manage a little thing than a big one, unless the little thing is a wasp.

THE imperfections, blemishes and diseases of many young animals, which induce their owners to ask for medical treatment to remove, will often disappear with the growth of the animal.

GIVE more attention to the feet of your horses. If your shoer is not an intelligent man find one that is. There is much more to shoeing a horse than simply fitting and nailing a shoe to the foot.

OVERFED horses means sick horses sooner or later. There is no sense in overfeeding any animal, but there would seem to be less in overfeeding the horse than in overfeeding any other animal on the farm.

IT is the duty of every farmer, the Auburn (N. Y.) Gazette claims, to keep one horse that is safe for the women folks to handle. If farmers would teach their wives and daughters how to manage a horse there would not be so many accidents.

A WRITER on equine subjects gives what he says is an Arab test: "Observe your horse when he is drinking out of a brook; if, in bringing down his head, he remains square, without bending his limbs, he possesses sterling qualities and all parts of his body are built symmetrically."

NEVER whip a horse when he is frightened or nervous, or try to force him up to the object that has caused the alarm; draw in on the reins, suddenly speak out with assurance that you are not afraid, then turn the animal a little way from the unpleasant sight and bid it go. A blow of a whip upon a frightened horse gives it double cause for violent action.

PICTURES AND PAINTERS.

ALMA TADEMA is described as the least imposing object in his studio. He looks and is a little over fifty. He is short and strongly built, and most energetic in his movements.

A SMALL picture was recently sold at the Hotel Drouot, in Paris, for 100 francs, which, on being verified as his work by M. Meissonier, was immediately resold for 18,000 francs.

ROSA BONHEUR, who is over seventy years of age, is making studies of Buffalo Bill's Indians and ponies for a large painting. Parisian art is willing to give the wild West a show.

A PICTURE painted over a thousand years ago (A. D. 859) by Kanaoka, the father of Japanese pictorial art, is reported to have been discovered in a pawnshop in Tokio. It is said to be a masterpiece, and in a wonderful state of preservation. It is a figure about two feet high, representing a priest.

AT a sale in London the other day an early work of Mlle. Rosa Bonheur, painted in 1847, and formerly belonging to the famous engineer Brunel, was bought in at 2,500 guineas, the last bid being from Messrs. Agnew at 2,400 guineas. The picture measured seventy inches by fifty inches and is a landscape with a group of six red Breton oxen.

M. J. TISSOT, the French artist, is engaged upon a series of water colors representing the Life of Christ. They will number three hundred, of which a third are already finished. The painter, who has made two journeys to Palestine for local color, reckons that they will all be off his hands in two years' time. The series will be published in a sumptuous volume. Each drawing is about eighteen by twelve inches.

RACE PECULIARITIES.

A STRIKING salutation of the South Sea Islands is to fling a jar of water over the head of a friend.

IT is death to any person in Siam to mention the King's name. This is a custom that many other tribes rigidly adhere to.

AT a marriage ceremony in Japan neither the bride nor the groom wears any clothing of a purple color lest their marriage should be soon dissolved, purple being a color most liable to fade.

THE Burmese believe that the ruby ripens like fruit. They say that a ruby in its crude state is colorless, and, as it matures, changes first to yellow, then to green, then to blue, and lastly to a brilliant red, its highest state of perfection and ripeness.

THE Maoris of New Zealand, while at war with the English, invariably sent a notice when they were going to make an attack, as if they were coming on a friendly visit and desired things to be ready for them. They thought it very strange that the English did not give them simular notice.

WE are informed by an English journalist that in Paraguay "the lady of the house, as she comes, clothed in soft raiment and flashing gems, to meet the stranger traveller with mouth upheld for the formal kiss of greeting, removes from her cheek the quid she spends her days in chewing."

ONE who has been strolling about the streets of Honolulu writes of the native Sandwich islanders that they have the brown skin of the Indian—not the black of the negro—bright, intelligent faces, and straight, black hair; generally with good forms, easy gait, and graceful in movement. The men have generally adopted the usual English style of dress. The wahines, or women, dress with the loose holoku, or, as it would be called in this country, the Mother Hubbard, but close-fitting around the throat. They generally prefer light colors in dress and wear flowers in profusion.

THE Indians of British Guiana have a game which resembles the civilized college rush or an old-time "hold-in." It was witnessed by the author of "Canoe and Camp Life." In the afternoon the youths and boys of the place played a game over which they made a good deal of noise, and which they evidently enjoyed, as boys of any race do. They formed a line across one of the wide approaches to the village, while one of the strongest of the number made an effort to break through, by rushing against it at his greatest speed. Any man who approached the village had likewise to break through before he could enter the place.

ACCORDING to the customs of Chinese society, the wife of the Chinese Minister to this country will comb her hair up from her forehead to show that she is married. Her tresses reach to her feet, and so difficult is the task of dressing them that one arrangement lasts several days. For the preservation of the coiffure she lies while asleep on a willow pillow as finely woven as an imported bonnet, shaped like a loaf of baker's bread. The maids dress their back hair in a cue and arrange a bang one and a half inches deep from ear to ear. A bit of coquetry is displayed by allowing a single lock to float loosely in front of the face and over the shoulder. The hair of the Chinese girl is never cut, and as a result of the splendid care bestowed it grows luxuriantly.

PERSONALITIES OF WRITERS.

EMILE ZOLA is one year this side of fifty. Short as to stature, thick-set as to build and parched as to face, he wears eye-glasses and a painfully sheepish expression before strangers.

GEORGE EBERS, the Egyptologist and novelist, is said to be a hopeless invalid. He is paralyzed and very rarely moves out of his rolling chair. His spirits, however, never flag and he still continues to work.

MISS KATHERINE TYNAN, the Irish poetess, whose work is familiar to American readers, is described as a blonde of medium height, with an exquisite complexion, and abundance of golden hair, and small, beautiful hands.

EDGAR FAWCETT, the novelist, is a small, clean-shaven man, with a large head and a deprecatory, almost piteous manner. He is high priest of the Union Club, is pathetic on the subject of growing fat and parts his hair in the middle.

THE poet and critic, Richard Henry Stoddard, is no longer the robust man of a few years ago. Few men of equal age have of late years done so much continuous work. The announcement is made that Stoddard will shortly lay aside the critic's scalpel.

MISS GRACE KING, the clever New Orleans novelist, is a stately woman, twenty-seven years old, with brown hair and eyes and striking features. Miss King, although having an English name, belongs to a proud old creole family on her mother's side—a family that was by no means pleased with Cable's description of creole life in New Orleans.

MRS. ARTHUR STANNARD, who is better known by her nom de plume of "John Strange Winter," is thirty-three years old, tall and handsome, with dark, brilliant eyes; her hair is also dark and curls closely all over her head. She dresses elegantly, rich, heavy velvets and handsome silks being her favorites. She is very fond of society and attends all the fashionable receptions during the London season.

LORD LYTTON, British Minister to France, is said to resemble his father, the novelist, in personal appearance, having the same long face, sad-looking eyes, full and straight beard and prominent nose. While literature has been his avocation, he has made diplomacy his vocation and has served at many of the courts of Europe. His most important positions have been that of Viceroy of India and his present one. As Minister to France he receives $60,000 salary and a palace to live in.

LITERARY INCOMES.

MARK TWAIN'S income is $80,000 a year.

EDGAR SALTUS makes from $2,500 to $3,000 a year.

W. D. HOWELLS receives from the Harpers $10,000 a year.

R. W. GILDER receives $20,000 a year from the Century.

JOSEPH PULITZER'S income for 1888 was, it is said, $1,000,000.

MRS. CHANLER (Amelie Rives) makes about $10,000 a year.

WALT WHITMAN of late years has earned about $300 a year.

ONCE A WEEK gave Frank Stockton $10,000 for his latest story.

EDGAR W. FAWCETT receives about $4,000 a year from his writings.

COLONEL JOHN COCKERILL is paid $20,000 a year by the New York World.

MATO W. HAZELTINE receives $175 a week from the New York Sun.

THE late E. P. Roe found no difficulty in writing $50,000 worth a year.

BRANDER MATTHEWS averages an annual income from literature of about $3,000.

CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER is paid $1,200 for his department in Harper's Magazine.

MISS MURFREE'S (Charles Egbert Craddock's) novels yield her about $3,000 a year.

FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT is getting rich at the rate of from $20,000 to $25,000 a year.

The Waterloo Church Trouble.

WATERLOO, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Jas. Talbot and Michael Boyle, the Auburn constables, were not tried yesterday for causing the disturbance in St. Mary's Church on October 13 because Judge Dwight granted an order that their cases should go to the Grand Jury. They gave bail in the sum of $500 each.

Verdict of Manslaughter.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 23.—The trial of Gustav Willinghaus, charged with the murder of Philip Daly, ended last evening. After being out three hours the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter. The extreme penalty is 25 years.

Endorsed by Republicans.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 23.—D. M. Kane, who was nominated last week as an independent Democratic candidate for the Assembly, has been endorsed by the Democratic Convention of the Third District.

Will Send Back the Poor Hebrews.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—It is proposed by wealthy Hebrews in London to raise funds to send back to Poland and Russia the poor Jewish tailors who were lured here from those countries during the strike of the London tailors recently by promises of steady work and high wages. There is absolutely nothing for these people to do here now that the strike is over, and as they have incurred the enmity of those of their fellow countrymen whose places they took, they are left utterly friendless in a strange land. It is also said that these unfortunates will be all shipped to the United States as has been proposed. The American law being evaded by taking them to some Canadian port first and then sending them over the border into the States.

Sale of a Railroad.

SENECA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 23.—The Seneca Falls and Waterloo Railroad was sold to S. L. Phillips for $6,700. Immediately upon the completion of the sale work will be commenced upon the road, which will be operated by electricity

Bernard Blancy and William Tash, of New Brunswick, N. J., were convicted of assault upon one Weismiller last May at Franklin Park. Sentence was suspended. They assaulted Weismiller and a man named Acker in a dispute over a horse trade. Acker afterward shot and killed Tash's brother at Princeton and is now in State's prison at Trenton.

GROOMS WIN AGAIN
The New York Giants Lose Another Game in the Series.
BROOKLYN NOW TWO AHEAD.
Decisions by Umpire Gaffney Delay the Game and Cause Trouble.

Only Six Innings Were Played—Clarkson Pitched for the Giants and Terry for the Grooms—The Playing was Not Brilliant. A Small Attendance on Account of the Cold Weather.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A dark, lowering sky and a decidedly cold day greeted the champions of the League and of the Association on the event of their fourth meeting for the World's Championship yesterday.

In consequence of the cold but 2,500 people had the hardihood to dare pneumonia to witness the game, and they sat with overcoats buttoned to the chin, and kept up a continual tramping in the stands to warm up.

Crane and Terry were on the cards to pitch, and in view of the former's fine work of last Saturday, an easy thing for New York was confidently expected. This proved to be a mistake, however, for the Brooklyns took kindly to his pitching when hits were needed, and with the assistance of some very "yellow" fielding, piled up runs in almost every inning.

The New York's were not "in it" up to the sixth inning. In the latter inning they began to bat very hard. O'Rourke led off with a two-bagger and was advanced to third on Whitney's safe bunt. Crane's hit sent O'Rourke and Whitney across the rubber and earned the batter third. Gore followed with another three-bagger, scoring Crane. Tiernan struck out. Ewing hit to the pitcher who threw to the plate to catch Gore, who had started for home. Gore turned back and Clarke's throw to Pinkney to catch the runner struck Gore in the back and bounded into the field. Gaffney, to the surprise of the New Yorkers, and the delight of the Brooklynites, called Gore out for interference. After a lengthy kick this decision went. Ewing on the play got first and went to third on Ward's single. Ward started for second and Clarke made a bluff by throwing down to head him off. Instead he threw to third to catch Ewing but the throw was wild and Ewing scored. Ward started in from second on the error, and O'Brien fielded the ball from left to head him off. His throw in hit O'Rourke, who stood on the coacher's lines, and Ward reached home. Gaffney decided that Ward must return to third.

A prolonged kick followed. Ewing claimed that O'Rourke, as coacher, had a right to stand where he did, that the throw was wild, and that O'Rourke, or no O'Rourke, the ball would not have reached home in time to cause Ward's out. Ewing rather than obey Gaffney and order Ward back to third, said he would take his men from the field. Gaffney then tacitly admitted that he was in error by allowing Ward's run. This gave Brooklyn a chance to delay the game for darkness, and this they did, gathering around Gaffney and arguing for 25 minutes. He, however, held to his last decision, counting Ward's run, which tied the score.

It was now almost too dark to play, but the game was resumed. Connor the next batter for New York, struck out, retiring the side.

Crane, taking advantage of the darkness, began shooting them over the plate for Brooklyns' first batter, Corkhill, and he retired on strikes. Richardson fumbled Smith's grounder, and Crane sent Collins to first base on balls. O'Brien couldn't see the ball and fanned out, but Burns, the following batter, did. He lined out a single and the game was won for Brooklyn. He was allowed to make the circuit of the bases on his hit, no one fielding the ball. The following is the score:

New York	0 0 1 1 0 5	—7
Brooklyn	2 0 2 0 3 3	—10

Mr. Day says he will not play any more games under Gaffney unless he is more fair in his decisions.

A Baseball League for Pennsylvania.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 24.—There is every probability that Pennsylvania will have a strong State baseball league next year. The matter is already being strongly talked up in this city and Scranton. The Williamsport baseball enthusiasts are dead set for a State league, and Harrisburg will be one of the first teams to enter. Eight clubs will compose the league—Scranton, Wilkesbarre, Williamsport, Harrisburg, Lancaster, York, Easton and Allentown.

The Murderer Escaped.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—Roderick McKinnon was stabbed in Bendall's Lane by a man with whom he had an altercation over a small sum of money. His jugular vein was severed and he died soon afterward. The murderer, whose name is unknown, escaped. The dispute is said to have begun in a pool room in the vicinity, and it is hoped that the murderer may be traced through having frequented this pool room.

Reported Case of Yellow Fever.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The British steamer Horache, from Greytown and Beliza, has arrived here and is detained at quarantine for disinfection. William Bruns, bound from Livingston for Bremen, died on board and it is suspected his malady was yellow fever. The health authorities will investigate, and in the meantime the body has been enclosed in a metallic coffin and quarantined in the vessel.

Striking Switchmen Return to Work.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—The switchmens' strike on the Wisconsin Central has ended. The man on account or whose discharge the strike was brought about resigned, and the strikers, on request, returned to work.

THE BIG RAILWAY DEAL.
Twelve Thousand Miles of Railroad to be Controlled by One System.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A very important railroad deal has been consummated without Wall street obtaining anything like an adequate idea of its magnitude. Negotiations have been pending for some time between the Chicago and Northwestern and the Union Pacific Railroad companies for a close traffic arrangement that would enable the first named to reach the Pacific coast and bring the Union Pacific to Chicago and other terminal ports on the great lakes. These negotiations were definitely concluded yesterday, when a contract that had previously been ratified by the directory of each company was executed by their respective executive officers.

The contract provides for the running of through passenger and freight trains from Chicago to Portland, Oregon, over the lines of the two systems. All through traffic from points on one system to points on the other will be handled by the two as if by a single system. Under this arrangement the Northwestern road will go into the market for business to all points in the Pacific Northwest, while the Union Pacific, in its territory, will receive traffic for Chicago and other points reached by the Northwestern road. So far as the patrons of the two companies are concerned, they will deal upon the basis and be served as if by one concern. The contract is to run for ten years from Nov. 1 next, and it is now expected that all of the facilities necessary to carry it out will be in readiness on that date. The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad Company, a majority of whose stock is owned by the Chicago and Northwestern Company, is a party to the contract. That gives the Union Pacific a direct line to St. Paul, Minneapolis, and to Duluth. The Union Pacific is thus enabled to compete at every important centre east of the Missouri River that is touched by the Northern Pacific-Wisconsin Central combination.

FIFTY YEARS A PRIEST.
The Golden Jubilee of Monsignor McColgan at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24.—The celebration of Monsignor McColgan's golden jubilee in commemoration of his 50th anniversary as a priest took place in St. Peter's Catholic Church. The aged ecclesiastic celebrated mass at 6 o'clock, and at 10:30 Cardinal Gibbons officiated as celebrant in a Pontifical High Mass. The sermon was delivered by Bishop Foley of Detroit. There were fifty or more priests in attendance, and the occasion was very interesting.

Dinner was served at the parish residence, at which 200 guests were entertained. The monsignor was presented with a purse of $10000 and a set of gold vestments from the parish. He also received a set of gold vestments from the Sisters of Mercy, a set of purple robes from the Lithonian Poles of St. John the Baptist Church; a $600 gold chalice and a purse of $500 from the clergy of the Archdiocese of Baltimore.

The recipient has been connected with St. Peter's since ordination, and has gathered there a congregation of from twelve families at the outset to now 8,000 communicants, and has been instrumental in the establishment of several Catholic institutions.

FOOLED THE CASHIER.
Bold Daylight Robbery in a Newark, N. J., Bank.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—While Cashier George C. Werner of the German Savings Bank was counting his cash, two men entered the bank and told him that a lady who was seated in a carriage outside wanted to see him. He went out, followed by one of the men.

The woman engaged him in conversation about a proposed deposit of some trusts funds. At the conclusion of the parley Werner returned to the bank, meeting on the way the second of the two men. On reaching his desk Werner found that $2,000 in bills had disappeared. A package of $5,000 had been overlooked. The two men and the woman had driven off and escaped before the loss was discovered.

The Universalist Convention.

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 24.—In the General Convention of the Universalist Church the reception of reports show a steady increase in membership, funds, buildings and missions. Greeting was received from the Unitarian Convention in session at Chicago, and the matter of reply was referred to a special committee. It was shown by the roll call of states that the attendance was good from New England, but that the representation fell off after reaching the Hudson river. Committees were then appointed on Elections and on Religious Services. Rev. B. G. Russell, of New Hampshire, and Rev. J. B. Corley, of New York, and Rev. H. S. Whitman of Maine were appointed monitors, and Rev. A. W. Bingham, of Illinois, and Rev. W. A Start, of Massachusetts, were appointed assistant secretaries.

Rumors About the Stallion Race.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A prominent horseman who has just returned from Kentucky announces that the president of the National Trotting Association will investigate rumors regarding the crookedness of the Balch $10,000 National Stallion Race, trotted at Beacon Park, Boston, last month and won by Nelson. The rumors that Alcryon did not try to win the race have been gathering force, and his driver, Geo. Robins, has since been fined $300 for pulling Roy Wilkes.

Trying to Defeat Tammany.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—A mass meeting of independent citizens in the Grand Opera House nominated last night a citizens' ticket, and adopted resolutions condemning Tammany Hall for its many political short-comings. Three Republicans and three County Democrats were placed on the ticket.

THE CRONIN TRIAL.
Opening the Great Case in Chicago To-Day.
SEVERAL SURPRISES COMING.
Evidence Will be Produced to Show that Four Men Took Part in the Murder.

Witnesses to Prove that the Butchery Took Place in the Carlson Cottage—The Medical Experts Will be the First Witnesses Placed Upon the Stand by the State. Judge Longenecker Threatened.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Either in State's Attorney Longenecker's opening speech in the Cronin case to-day or in the evidence to be introduced later on, there will be several surprises. The evidence showing Dr. Cronin's entrance into the Carlson cottage on the night of the murder will be conclusive. On the night of May 4 two men, one an Irish-American and a member of the Clan-na-Gael organization, walked by the Carlson cottage. As they passed the scene of the murder they saw a buggy drive up. In it were seated two men, and as they passed by one of the pedestrians said to the other as the buggy drove past, "See that man on the far side of that buggy; that is Dr. Cronin, the Irish Nationalist." As he spoke the words the buggy pulled up in front of the Carlson cottage and Cronin sprang out and rushed up the steps as if he had been summoned on a case of great emergency.

Evidence will be produced by Longenecker to show that four men took part in the murder of Dr. Cronin in the cottage. These four men were Coughlin, Cooney, Burke and a man who has not yet been either arrested or indicted in the case. There are three witnesses who will swear that O'Sullivan stood watch on the outside of the cottage while Burke, Coughlin, Cooney and another man were committing the butchery inside. That Kunze, one of the five now on trial, was the man who drove Coughlin to the scene of the tragedy, and that he got there about 8 o'clock there is ample evidence. The medical experts, with Dr. Cronin's brother John, will be the first witnesses placed upon the stand by the State.

Joseph Neville tried to force his way into the Criminal Court building last night and was arrested. He was intoxicated and very boisterous, declaring that he and his friends were members of the Clan-na-Gael, and that Judge Longenecker would not live to finish the prosecution of the men charged with the murder of Dr. Cronin. He said he did not value his own life and before a week passed away Judge Longenecker would disappear mysteriously. Neville was sober when arraigned in court and very penitent. He was fined $50.

RETURN OF THE FISH HAWK.
The Commission's Investigation of the Destruction of Oyster Beds.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The United States Fish Commission steamer Fish Hawk has returned to Washington from the New England coast and Long Island Sound, where she has been engaged for the past three months in investigating the destruction of the oyster beds by the depredations of star fishes. She brought a large variety of salt-water species of fishes for stocking the aquarians of the Commission at Washington.

On the way she visited the principal lighthouse stations, with a view of making a comparison of thermometers employed by the lighthouse keepers in taking water temperatures, and correcting them if necessary; this work was done under the direction of Prof. Wm. Libby, Jr., of Princeton College, who accompanied the steamer for that purpose. The messengers of the Commission employed in collecting and distributing trout to the waters of the Yellowstone Park have returned to Washington, bringing for the aquaria here representatives of the fishes of that region, including the white fish, grayling and black-spotted trout.

An Aristocratic Wedding.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Annie Bigelow, of Highland Falls, and Butler Harding, of Philadelphia, were married at the Church of the Holy Innocents, Highland Falls, by Bishop Davies, of Wisconsin, last evening. The ceremony was witnessed by 250 persons, principally members of the family. It was a very aristocratic affair.

She Was Emma Jurgensen.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The young girl who tried to kill herself with chloroform in Central Park Tuesday night, and who is now under treatment at a hospital, has been identified as Emma Jurgensen, of College Point, L. I. She recently left home on account of her parents' objection to the attentions of a traveling salesman.

Race on the Schuylkill.

WORCESTER, Mass., Oct. 24.—James A. Ten Eyck, the Worcester oarsman, has made a match with Henry Vail, of Toronto, to row a three mile single scull race on the Schuylkill course at Philadelphia on November 2, for $500 a side.

THE DAILY PRESS

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The "Bunch of Keys" at Music Hall, to-night.

—President Gates—First Presbyterian church—To-night—Go!

—The gathering up of holiday gifts is already setting in in a casual way.

—Did Mr. Lynch say, Sullivan's jury he'd pay, when the freight house moved away?

—A Metuchen hen with Eiffelesque ambitions has been trying to hatch out an egg plant.

—Supt. Olhausen of the C. R., has had a new car built at the Elizabethport shops for his personal use.

—Messrs John H. Tier & Son this morning received a consignment of pure ice from White Haven, Pa.

—R. Thorn, No. 2 Park avenue, has a number of second-hand parlor and cook stoves, which he will sell cheap for cash.

—Those thirty-cent books, (standard works) can still be purchased at Rand's stationery store. The assortment is still large. Call at once.

—Wise turkeys are now cultivating a thin and scraggy appearance, that they may be overlooked when the Thanksgiving picking takes place.

—The entries for the Bicycle Club Tournament are coming in very rapidly. All of the events are already so full that exciting contests are assured.

—Tramps have established a rendezvous in the Fanwood cut, and during the day time they can be seen basking in the sun along the Central railroad tracks.

—The State Prison at Trenton has 700 cells and 977 convicts. About one-third of the men now have no work in the shops and are compelled to be idle.

—Keep your eye on our advertising columns. The active and successful merchants will now have something to say about new goods for the Fall season, both for the inner and outer man.

—Mr. John Tier, Jr., was at White Haven, Pa., Tuesday morning, inspecting the enormous ice houses there. He found that ice had formed an inch thick in the Lake during the night before.

—The New Jersey Division of the Sons of Temperance met in convention at Paterson yesterday. The greater part of the session was consumed in receiving the reports of the officers. A mass meeting was held at Apollo Hall in the evening.

Rev. Mr. Dilts' Brother Married.

The Raritan correspondent to the Somerville Messenger, in yesterday's issue, writes as follows:

"George A. Dilts, of Dilts Bros., was married Thursday afrernoon, to Miss Marion V. Bonnell, of White House Station. Rev. Asa R. Dilts, Jr., of Plainfield, a brother of the groom, performed the ceremony at the house of the bride's brother, John Bonnell. The bride and groom went to Philadelphia on their wedding trip. This is the first wedding among four sons, that A. R. Dilts, Sr., the father, has had the pleasure of attending. The ceremony was private, none but relatives being present.

Foot Ball.

The Leal's second foot ball team will play the First foot ball team of Pingry's school of Elizabeth. Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, admission 15 cents.

Leal's team—Moore, Van Boskerck, Finch, Gebergis, Cooley, Saltzman, Edsall, Rushers Lovell, Quarter-back. Erickson, Waring, Half-backs. West, Full back.

Pingry's team—O'Hasted, Jones, Moore, Hedges, Tucker, Olhausen, Knapp, Rushers. McGee, Quarter-back. English and Lukens, Half-backs. Thomas, Full-back.

The People Are Getting Very Tired.

The news also says that the Plainfield police love Chief Carey so much, that they work night and day for him and don't charge a cent.

The next arrest Carey makes, should be the news. If he doesn't arrest that mouth-organ of his, he may have to resign.

Wanted.

Plainfield now wants a Common Sense Ticket of municipal officers, and the freight house moved away.

Ayer's Pills, being convenient, efficacious, and safe, are the best cathartic, whether on land or sea, in city or country. For sick headache, indigestion, and torpid liver, they never fail. Try a box of them; they are sugar-coated.

BUT ONE QUESTION AND ONE ANSWER.

Is No License and 62 Saloons Better Than High License and 13 Saloons?

From the Central Times.

We are surprised to find our "get up and get there" newsy little daily, the Press, showing so much opposition to the wishes of the mass of temperance people in Plainfield to banish the dram shops from the town. It says in its last reference to the subject, "Prohibition has been tried in Plainfield and found wanting." We think that paper will find it difficult to show when prohibition has been "tried" in Plainfield, in any fair interpretation of that word. The Press perhaps refers to the anomalous condition of affairs this year when the license council has refused to grant licenses because of the baby play of certain democratic members, who would not vote for any licenses for the reason that the license republicans of the council would not vote for all licenses.

In a sense, to be sure, that dead lock among license members of the council resulted in the prohibition of the liquor traffic, and the city has presented the spectacle of having sent a license majority to the council who have, by the silly attitude of the democrats of that body, refused to do the bidding of the majority of the voters. In other words, the city has technical prohibition when the people, as indicated by their votes, declared against prohibition.

Now, no one who wishes to be perfectly fair in his statements will say that under such circumstances prohibition can have a genuine trial in any community. The majority whose will has been disregarded by the council, will naturally wink at any attempt of the liquor seller to violate the law, and the dram seller, in turn, knowing that the majority of voters has sanctioned his traffic, will not feel under much compulsion to rigidly keep the law, as, we understand, is the fact in Plainfield to-day.

If licenses had been refused because the people had risen up and elected an anti-license council, then prohibition would be fairly on trial, for it would then have behind it the moral force of the majority of voters who would be active in their endeavors to have their will, as expressed at the ballot box, properly respected by the dram seller. Then we should have a test of the success or failure of prohibition that would be worth something, provided that the test was continued long enough.

One year, however, under the best tests, would not be sufficient time to prove the success of prohibition in Plainfield. For a hundred years the liquor traffic has been licensed here, and it is not possible that it should be completely overthrown by prohibition in one year or two years. But give Plainfield five consecutive years of prohibition, and dram selling will never be known again in this community after that time.

We hope the Press will reconsider its decision to oppose prohibition in our fair city, and throw its influence on the side of those who wish to banish the saloon and the bar room from the place.

[Even after reading the above which would impel anyone to despair of ever pulling the blinders of fanaticism off the eyes of the Times, we will make yet another effort to help our contemporary see straight.

[The Times, we understand, is in favor of as few saloons in Plainfield as is possible. So is THE PRESS. But the Times accuses us of opposing such a result because we cry go back to high license and thirteen saloons, while our contemporary is in favor of continuing as the city now is—with no license and sixty-three saloons.

[Is such a policy banishing the saloon and the barroom from the place? The article we quote above is 10 inches long, yet it doesn't contain an able bodied argument or reason, nor a leg to stand on that isn't suffering from paralysis. There is only one question in this matter, and it has only one answer. Do we have less liquor-selling under high license, or under no license? ED.]

Harris—Graves.

George B. Harris, of the firm of George W. Harris & Sons, of Allston, Mass., and Miss F. Adelaide Graves, youngest daughter of Edmund S. Graves, of Brooklyn, were married at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 134 Reid avenue, yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the bride's uncle, Rev. L. O. Grenelle, of Dunellen, N. J. Only relatives of the family and intimate friends of the bride were present. Mr. and Mrs. Harris will reside in the suburbs of Boston.

Pay That Jury.

The jury in the Sullivan case are still waiting for their fee. It is not creditable to the Plainfield authorities that so insignificant an indebtedness and one of such a nature, should remain a moment outstanding.

It is not the amount but the principle of the thing. A jury was summoned once before in the same case, and they also think there is something due them. But they probably will go without.

A Job for the Pound Keeper.

The shabby news says now that Officer Lynch is going to resign. If Chief Carey and Officer Lynch don't muzzle their friend on Somerset street, they will be made the laughing stock of the community.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Master Irving Smith of Grant avenue shot a large brown eagle near his home on Monday.

Mr. R. B. Rogers, of West Second street, is the latest happy dad. Its a boy, born this morning.

Yesterday's snow storm did not amount to much in this locality, but in the Northern portion of the State, the ground was whitened by the fall of snow.

Hon. John Ulrich was nominated this afternoon, at Rahway, for a third term in the Assembly of New Jersey, at the Republican Convention of the Third District of Union county.

Joshua Martin, formerly of Somerset county, where he was a politician and a candidate for the office of Sheriff, some years ago, died at his home on West Fourth street, shortly after seven o'clock, last evening.

At the residence of the groom's sister, Mrs. Annie Weigel, East 66th street, New York city, by Rev. J. F. Elder, on Monday evening, occurred the marriage of Mr. Bartley Cahill of New York and Miss Jennie Watts of this city. A reception followed.

Rev. A. V. V. Raymond of Albany, N. Y., formerly pastor of the Trinity Reformed church in this city, called at THE PRESS office. The report recently circulated to the effect that Mr. Raymond had been troubled with his head, is denied by that gentleman.

Mr. J. Fred MacDonald has been expending a great deal of money lately in the improvement of his property at Front and Peace streets. Steam heat has been carried all through the house and store, and other costly appurtenances of modern home comforts have been added.

A Trenton paper says of a well-known Plainfielder: "T. Keller, who shoots under the name of 'Tee Kay,' is the trap-shoot correspondent of the New York Sun and Times. He usually hits the mark, whether with the pen or shot gun. He has attended every big shoot this season East of Chicago."

An evening sociable was held at the residence of Mr. H. C. Reynolds, 19 Linden avenue, North Plainfield, last evening. There were a large number of young and old people present. Dancing and other attractions were indulged in, refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was had by all present. The committee consisted of: Messrs William Pangborn, William Sharp and Joseph Whycoff. The music was furnished by Prof. O'Rilley.

Target Excursion.

A fine looking body of men representing the John Campbell Catholic Young Men's Literary Union, of Elizabeth, and the St. Mary's Young Men's Catholic Association, of Morristown, arrived in town this morning on a target excursion. The visitors formed a line on North avenue and preceded by Drake's Band of Elizabeth, made a short street parade, after which they went direct to Keller's Grove, in North Plainfield, where they engaged in rifle practice.

In the procession there were about two hundred men, besides the members of Drake's and Voss' bands. Fathers Smyth and Stafford accompanied the excursionists in the parade. The following members of the local Union escorted the visitors to the grove: Messrs E. B. Daly, M. Whalen, G. Tobin, and J. Hibbitts.

During the afternoon the visitors sat down to a sumptuous collation at Caspar's Hotel on East Front street.

Refunded.

Wm. Osborne, who misappropriated the funds of Cypress Commandery, as told exclusively in THE PRESS, refunded most of the money to the officers of the society last evening.

The Henry girl who was seen in his company just before his disappearance, says she did leave the city with him. Osborne expresses himself as very sorry that her name has been published in connection with the affair, but he has not yet said anything about being sorry for his wife.

Y. M. C. A. Anniversary Tonight.

All the people of Plainfield have a right to hear the report of the Young Men's Christian Association. It is to give them an idea of the condition and work of the Association that the anniversary exercises of this evening have been planned. The exercises will be held in the First Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

Just Escaped an Injection.

From eleven o'clock last night until two o'clock this morning, a mysterious man hung about Sycamore and Sixth streets. He changed his overcoat and hat twice, and otherwise conducted himself in a suspicious manner. Just as Dr. Berg was thinking of giving him an allopathic dose of lead pills, he left the neighborhood.

Success in life is the result of push and energy. If the blood is impure and sluggish, both body and mind lack vigor. To cleanse and vitalize the blood and impart new life to the system, nothing else has such a marvelous effect as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

PLAINFIELD STREET RAILWAY.

Some Figures and Facts Regarding the Proposed Electric System.

In an advertisement elsewhere it is announced that today in the City National Bank, will be opened books for subscriptions to the stock and bonds of the Plainfield Electric Street Railway company. A few figures in relation thereto will be interesting and instructive.

The cost of the plant for the route shown on the map published exclusively in THE PRESS a few weeks ago, is estimated as follows:

Cost of track	$28,356
Cost of seven cars, equipped with motors and storage batteries	28,000
Real estate	1,500
Building	1,500
Dynamo	2,500
Wiring from station	750
Preliminary expenses	500
Legal expenses	1,500
	$64,606

It is proposed to capitalize the company at $70,000, divided into 1,400 shares of $50 each, and to bond the road in like amount in 5 per cent. bearing bonds of $500 each, each purchaser of a $500 bond to be entitled to five shares of stock, thus leaving 700 shares of stock in the Treasury, when all the bonds shall have been sold, to be disposed of as the Directors may see fit.

The estimated patronage of the road, based upon comparison with a large number of similar instances, is 1,200 passengers per diem, $60, and deducting the estimated expenses, as follows:

DAILY EXPENSES.

Power	$10 00
Conductors and drivers, 8 at $1.75	14 00
2 tenders at car house	3 00
Superintendent	3 00
Oil, waste, etc	1 50
Repairs	3 00
	$34 50
10 per cent. depreciation on rolling stock $2,800, or per day	7 67
5 per cent. depreciation and repairs on track, $1,450, or per day	3 80

RECEIPTS.

1,200 passengers at 5c	$60 00
Expenses	45 97
Earnings	$14 03

or 7.3 per cent on capital stock.

The daily earnings would be $14.03, or $5,120.65 per annum, which would pay the bond interest of 5 per cent., and enable the company to declare a dividend on the stock at the rate of 2.3 per cent. per annum.

METHOD OF OPERATING.

The track will be nearly four miles long, and it is proposed to keep four cars running, so as to ensure a ten minute schedule from 6 A. M. to 8 P. M.; after which two cars will be withdrawn and the intervals increased to twenty minutes until 11 P. M., when the service ceases.

The other three cars are for relays and to obviate the necessity for frequently transferring the batteries. The cars are thoroughly lighted by electric lights and warmed in Winter.

Mr. Leo Daft says in relation to certain reports that have been circulated: "Rumors of threatened injunctions to restrain the company from the use of the storage batteries, having been freely circulated by a few hostile persons who seem to lack the courage to let their names appear, it should be added that the batteries it is proposed to use are in daily service in almost all the important cities of the Union and are sold with an ample guarantee by entirely responsible parties against loss or interference in their use. There are cars in commercial operation every day using these batteries exclusively, and they are not enjoined simply because there is no ground for an injunction. Any further threats of this kind will be traced to their source and promptly disposed of as the law provides."

Over the Bound Brook Dam.

Four men in a row boat went over the dam in the Raritan River, a mile below Bound Brook, on Tuesday afternoon. One of them reached the shore safely unaided, but the three others were tossed helplesly about in the foaming waters amid the jagged rocks. Their boat was dashed to pieces, and they themselves were well nigh exhausted when two men rescued them with a rope.

An hour later Ayres Coddington, of Bound Brook, was fishing from a scow below the dam when his craft was drawn under the falls and was swamped. He was roughly beaten by the waters, and was with difficulty dragged into a boat. He was all but drowned, and the villagers toiled over him an hour before he was wholly resuscitated.

A Warning to Gunners.

Gunners are warned not to violate the game laws by shooting game out of season. Section one of the supplement to an act entitled "An act to consolidate the several acts relating to game and fish in this State," reads as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That hereafter it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to capture, kill, or have unlawfully in possession after the same has been taken or killed, any quail, commonly called partridge, or any ruffed grouse, commonly called pheasant, or any rabbit, except only between the last day of Oct., and the 16th day of December in any year, under a penalty of twenty dollars for each quail, grouse or rabbit so taken, killed or had unlawfully in possession.

Although many remedies are pushed into the market by spicy advertisements, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup takes the lead and druggists sell more than ever before. Price only 25 cents.

Mrs. Crow. "Chile, buy a bottle de Salvation Oil, it cure your rheumatis, sart'in." 25 cents.

THE APPROACH OF WINTER.

Snow in Plainfield and Other Parts of New Jersey.

It was uniformly cold all over the Northern States, yesterday, especially over the lake region. In the Northwest the mercury sank to 18°, and was nowhere higher than 40° yesterday morning.

The feature of yesterday was a slight flurry of snow at Sandy Hook, which made a streak across New Jersey, and in this city, New Brunswick and Bordentown there was a considerable fall. In Mohmouth county rabbits were tracked.

It was overcoat weather here in the morning, the mercury sinking to 39°. It rose to 43° in the afternoon, with a cold Northerly wind, and dropped at night to 39° again. The promises that yesterday would be warmer were thus not fulfilled, and the indications are that today the weather will continue cool. To-morrow, however, the weather promises to be warmer. It will be clear today.

Speaks Well for Father Freeman.

Rev. N. M. Freeman, who has lately been relieved of the charge of attending to the parish of St. John the Evangelist's church, Dunellen, in order that he may devote more time to St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, gave the following gratifying report, with his farewell address to the catholics of Dunellen on last Sunday.

Father Freeman leaves this mission with a small surplus in the treasury, although one year ago when he took charge it had over five hundred dollars of debt.

Rev. Father Bogaard of Somerville who will succeed Father Freeman, was the first pastor of Dunellen to which he now returns and will no doubt be received with joy by his old friends there. In future Father Freeman will have two masses in St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, every Sunday, as announced to his people on Sunday last, the first at 8 A. M., the second at 10:30 A. M., Sunday school at 3 P. M., and Vespers at 8 P. M.

Financial report of St. John's church of Dunellen, from Jan. 1, 1889, to Oct. 20, 1889:

REV. NICHOLAS M. FREEMAN, Rector.

Give Him a Creditable Reception.

The play that E. H. Sothern has made such a hit in all over the country, is "Lord Chumley." The part assumed by Mr. Sothern is that of a young aristocrat, who, though a straightforward, honorable fellow, impresses his friends with the belief that he is not mentally strong. He sacrifices himself for his friend, the brother of his sweetheart, estranges her affections by his apparently unworthy actions, and is pursued by a matrimonially inclined old maid who mistakes the meaning of his attentions. He frustrates the villain of the play, and at last secures the happiness of all who deserve it.

The company supporting Mr. Sothern at Music Hall, to-morow evening, will include Walter Craven, Charlotte Tittell, Rowland Buckstone, W. Wittlesey, Kittie Wilson and other well known actors from the Lyceum Theatre, New York. The play is from the pen of those clever playwrights, Messrs Belasco and DeMille, authors of "The Wife."

Killed on the Bay Bridge.

The brick-laden schooner William E. Peck, from Hackensack, scudded smartly down Newark Bay with wind and tide at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. As she approached the N. J. Central Railroad's long bridge between Bergen Point and Elizabethport she failed properly to answer her helm, and instead of passing safely through the draw she crashed into the bridge West of the draw.

In the collision her jibboom was thrust through a small tool house jutting out from the bridge. Michael Finley, a bridge inspector, was seated in the tool house. The structure was wrecked and he was pinned beneath the timbers, his head alone projecting. He lived only a few hours after being extricated. He was 57 years old. He had worked upon the bridge for twenty-three years. He leaves a widow and five grown children. His home was in Orient street, Bergen Point.

The Versailles Woollen Mill Sale.

NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 24.—The equity in the Versailles woollen mill was sold at auction for $1,520 to L. W. Carroll, of Norwich, for the second mortgage bondholders. The personal property was bid off by him to the same interest for $15,000. The mortgages on the plant aggregate $150,000.

Oarsman Hosmer Seriously Ill.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 24.—George Hosmer, the oarsman, is sick with typhoid fever. It is feared that the illness will be aggravated by a fall into the water which occured last night while he was performing in "The Dark Secret." His physician had advised him not to leave his bed.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

CAPITAL—$70,000, in 1,400 Shares of $50 Each.

It is intended to open the books for subscriptions to the stock and bonds of the proposed Company, on Thursday, the 24th of October,

at the CITY NATIONAL BANK, where a printed statement of the cost of Plant, probable earnings, and other particulars may be obtained.

As it is important that the matter should be taken up at once, those who are interested will greatly facilitate the work by a prompt response.

Rumors of threatened injunctions to restrain the Company from the use of the storage batteries, having been freely circulated by a few hostile persons who seem to lack the courage to let their names appear, it should be added that the batteries it is proposed to use are in daily service in almost all the important cities of the Union, and are sold with an ample guarantee by entirely responsible parties against loss or interference in their use. There are cars in commercial operation every day using these batteries exclusively, and they are not enjoined simply because there is no ground for an injunction. Any further threats of this kind will be traced to their source and promptly disposed of as the law provides.

THE GRAND OLD MAN

Gladstone Delivers a Great Speech at Southport.

HE TALKS ON MANY TOPICS.

Confident that Home Rule Would Win the Day in a General Election.

He Spoke of the Condition of Affairs on the Continent—A Crisis was Imminent. The Recent Dock Strike and Irish Wrongs Compared—He Spoke for Seventy Minutes.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The meeting of the Liberal electors of Southport yesterday afternoon, who gathered to listen to the great speech of Mr. Gladstone, proved the most enthusiastic and successful political event held in England for a long time. Mr. Gladstone was at his best and for an hour and ten minutes he spoke to his auditors with all his old time vim and eloquence.

The hall was beautifully decorated and amid the profusion of flags and banners tastefully draped from the walls and pillars were scattered placards bearing pithy and striking patriotic mottoes and party war cries. Upon the large flag behind the speakers' desk, were blazoned in letters of heroic proportions the words "Gladstone lives," while on the opposite side of the hall a huge banner bore the inscription "We win with the flowing tide."

A Great Ovation.

The hall was crowded to suffocation fully two hours before the great Liberal statesman arrived. On entering he was greeted with a storm of cheers and shouts in which every member of the large and enthusiastic audience joined, and which was prolonged until the "grand old man" had reached the platform and waved his hand as a signal for quiet.

After feelingly thanking his audience for the warm welcome accorded him, Mr. Gladstone at once plunged into the business in hand by presenting to his hearers an exhaustive review of the work for the past twenty-one years of the great Liberal party, whose candidate he had come there to support. He spoke of the condition of affairs on the Continent at the present time and expressed the belief that the one formidable menace to the peace of Europe was the complications growing out of the Turkish misrule in Crete and in Armenia. He could not deny that a crisis in European affairs was imminent, and paid a high tribute to the laudable anxiety of all the powers concerned to postpone it.

Justice for Ireland.

Passing to a consideration of affairs in Ireland, Mr. Gladstone pointed out that the principles for which the dockmen in their recent strike contended were precisely the same as those for which the Irish tradesmen and tenantry sought recognition at the hands of a British Parliament. It was absurd to give our sympathies to the one and deny them to the other for the two must stand or fall together. But this was precisely what the Tory Government had done. While conceding the justice of the dockmen's claims to a decent living as the fruits of their labor, they crowded the Irish prisons with tenants who made the same claims. He believed that an appeal to the people, if it could be made to-morrow, would result in a verdict overwhelmingly in favor of the Liberal policy of justice to Ireland. The policy of coercion, he insisted, had proved a miserable failure, and if any proof were needed of the fact it would only be necessary to point out that after all these years of coercion with which it was proposed to pacify Ireland, the Tory Government found it necessary less than a fortnight ago to proclaim new districts in Ireland. The crime rate to-day was the same as it was in 1884 when the Tories declared that coercion was no longer necessary, and yet that policy remained the corner-stone of the Government programme.

The Liberal Policy.

Mr. Gladstone in concluding stated that it was impossible at this time to map out the Liberal policy of the future within the outlines already well known to the electors. When the proper time arrived the Liberal party would be found prepared to formulate their proposals with a due regard for the necessity of attention to details. At this time it was only necessary to present to the electors for their approval or rejection the living principle for which the Liberal party contended.

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS.

The Election of Officers Postponed Until Monday—Cavener Withdraws.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 24.—The Locomotive Engineers have concluded their investigation of the charges against one of the grand officers. It is understood that the lodge adopted resolutions reprimanding him.

The election of officers has been postponed until Monday. Cavener, the Chicago candidate for Grand Chief, has withdrawn to-day and the only candidates now in the field are P. M. Arthur, G. W. Vrooman, of North Platte, Neb.; and B. W. Vedder, of Sedalia, Mo. Predictions have been made that Vrooman will be elected.

A resolution providing for the location of the permanent headquarters of the Brotherhood at Chicago was defeated. Cleveland will probably be selected. A resolution introduced favoring the World's Fair in Chicago was adopted unanimously.

Master Workman Coffee Deposed.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—The trouble between the members of D. A. 149, Green Glass Blowers, K. of L., and their employers, is learned to have been due to dereliction of duty on the part of Master Workman John Coffee. The manufacturers complained that Coffee stood between them and the workmen in a settlement of grievances. The Executive Council investigated the complaint and Coffee was deposed and suspended, and G. M. W. Powderly authorized Louis Harrington, M. W. of D. A. 143, to act also as M. W. of D. A. 149.

Result of the Great Ocean Race.

QUEENSTOWN, Oct. 24.—The great ocean race between the City of New York, the Inman line flyer, and the White Star's crack steamship Teutonic, from New York to this port, has ended in the defeat of the latter by the small margin of one hour and a half. The time of the City of New York's arrival here was 6:50 a. m., and that of the Teutonic 8:29 a. m.

THE POLES SURRENDER.

The Church Trouble at Plymouth, Pa., Settled by the Sheriff.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 24.—The armed Polanders who have been holding possession of the Polish priest's house at Plymouth have surrendered to the authorities.

Sheriff Burgess and a large posse went to the house armed and were ready for aggressive work. When they reached the house one of the Polanders looked out of a window and said: "We give up." They threw their revolvers out of the window and came down and gave themselves up to the Sheriff.

Father Busba, the new priest, then took possession of the house.

The Polanders are very bitter and say they will prevent the priest from saying mass on Sunday.

Martin Wilkes, who led the rioters in the fight, was fined $28 and three of his companions $10 each for assaulting officers. Wilkes was afterward rearrested and held in $1000 bail on a charge of assault with intent to kill the chief-of-police.

The High Sheriff of the County went to Plymouth to-day with a picked posse to take possession of the church.

COPPER AND SILVER.

A Pennsylvanian Offered $80,000 for Mining Privileges.

CARBONDALE, Pa., Oct. 24.—Sylvester Delaney and five other owners of land in South Canaan have received an offer from a Newark smelting company of $80,000 for the privilege of mining whatever mineral may underlie their properties

Not long ago Michael Brady, a Colorado miner, visited friends in South Canaan, and discovered indications of copper. He urged Mr. Delaney to uncover the rock and have the ore assayed. The work was undertaken at once, and ten feet from the surface oxide of copper was found. The prospectors continued to tunnel the hill until the metalliferous stratum was reached. Specimens were assayed and reported to be rich in copper and silver.

This report encouraged Mr. Delaney to prosecute the work which he had commenced and the tunnelling was continued until, at seventy-five feet, eighteen inches of the pay rock was found. William N. Arnold caught the fever and begun operations upon his land, which adjoins Mr. Delaney's farm. Lyman Kennedy was next to uncover the surface, and he too found what proved to be paying copper ore. An attempt was made to organize a company and develop the property, but the scheme was not approved by the land owners, as the arrangement would compel them to transfer their rights to a syndicate of managers.

SKIPPED TO CANADA.

A Sunday School Teacher Charged With Horse Stealing.

WARE, Mass., Oct 24.—The announcement that Eugene L. Knox, assistant Sunday-School Superintendent in the Congregational Church, was charged with horse stealing, has created a sensation.

Knox was formerly an overseer in the Otis Company's mill here. He has left town and is believed to have gone to Canada. It is said that his method was to hire teams from out of town stablemen, drive some distance away and dispose of the horses. He is said to have shipped three horses to Boston.

Struck by a Train.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Horace Hubbell and Daniel Moynihan, of Harrisena, while driving home from this place yesterday were struck by a Delaware and Hudson train. Hubbell was caught on the pilot of the engine and carried a quarter of a mile. Moynihan is fatally injured, but Hubbell will recover.

Murder of a Farm Hand.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 24.—John Weyland, a farm hand, was found murdered at Benedict's Corners, Fulton County. His throat was cut from ear to ear and there were several contusions on his head. There is great excitement in the neighborhood over the tragedy, but no clue to the murderer has been discovered.

An Appeal From Mayor Grant.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Mayor Grant has issued an appeal to the citizens of New York for subscriptions to the World's Fair fund. He declares that every day's delay endangers the success of the project, and points out the advantages to accrue to the city from the exposition.

Newburg Nominations.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The Democratic County Convention at Goshen made the following nominations: For District-Attorney, J. C. Lyon; Surrogate, R. H. Coleman; Special Surrogate, Geo. M. Bush; Superintendent of Poor, J. P. Monell; Coroners, W. M. Vail and Jas. E. Brennan.

Schooner Attached by the Government.

AUGUSTA, Me., Oct. 24.—Deputy Marshal Smith, in behalf of the Government, has attached at Iceboro the schooner Loring C. Ballard, of Gardiner for the sum of $3,000 to cover the damage to a United States training vessel with which the Ballard collided in New York harbor two years ago.

The Long Deadlock Broken.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 24.—The long drawn out contest of the 23rd District Republican Senatorial Convention ended last night. On the 781st ballot the Madison county delegates went over to Sheard, giving him with the Herkimer delegates 12 votes and the nomination. Otsego voted for Arnold to the last.

Farnsworth Art Building Dedicated.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The formal dedication of the new Farnsworth Art Building at Wellesly College brought many visitors to the college. Rev. Alexander McKenzie made an address detailing the history of Isaac Danforth Farnsworth, the donor of the building.

McIlvaine Convicted of Murder.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 24.—The jury in the trial of Charles McIlvaine for the killing of Grocer Luca while committing a burglary, returned a verdict last night of murder in the first degree. Sentence was deferred.

Declared a Dividend.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company has declared a dividend of 75 cents per share. The quarterly statement shows an increase of $202,847 in gross receipts.

FASHIONS FAVORS.

Notes of the Season that Will Interest the Women Folk.

The sealskin cloak is still the perfection of elegance in winter street garments, and this season there are several new features which especially commend it to the shopper who seeks comfort and protection from wintry blasts, combined with rich and handsome appearance.

All sealskin garments are now shaped to follow the lines of the figure, yet are not tight-fitting.

Liberty's silks are firmer than India silks, more like India pongee, and trim effectively with lace or velvet.

The Directoire styles are less used this season for misses and children, but the Empire fashions still remain in high favor.

Ulsters of sealskin are in shape a lengthened sacque, reacing to within four or six inches of the floor.

Dressy frocks for misses are made of Nile-green or ox-blood red cashmere, with Figaro jackets of black velvet and rows of velvet ribbon on the plain skirts.

The better class of sealskin garments the present season, of whatever shape, have invisible fastenings, consisting of loops and "olives," the latter with sealskin or crochet coverings.

Bands of velvet, straight at the lower edge and cut in vandykes at the top, are an effective finish for straight skirts of cashmere and cloth for little girls.

The notched or coat collar upon sealskin garments is a thing of the past. Ulsters, jackets, capes and sacques all have high-standing collars, in some cases lined with the fur and rolling slightly outward, to be turnd down when extra protection for the throat is not necessary.

Now that the tournure has been reduced to graceful proportions, we are threatened with a revival of crinoline.

The universal high collar is a feature of the fur collar, as well as of all other fur garments, the present season. The new collars are of medium depth, rounded at the back, and the right side of the front is extended in a long tab, which is carried diagonally to the left hip.

Tortoise-shell combs are now made so that the jewelled tops may be removed and worn as brooches.

Bandeaux and ornaments of brilliant faceted jet, and also of various colors, are a conspicuous feature of the new millinery.

Sealskin jackets are somewhat changed in shape, being of equal length front and back, instead of sloping toward the front, as last season.

The new fans are somewhat smaller than for several seasons past, and in coloring and design are very artistic.

A few sealskin wraps are shown by the leading furriers, but the demand for them is light. In shape they follow the leading models in cloth wraps, and sea otter and other rich furs are used as trimmings.

The large lace cravats now so fashionable are fastened with jeweled safety-pins, which are put in carelessly, to avoid a set effect.

The number of long slender pins which are thrust carelessly through the trimmings of many of the new hats, suggest the possibility of a reserve supply, to be used in case of high wind or other accident.

A new idea is to attach the hem to the skirt of a dress by a row of herring-bone stitching, or the effect may be produced by a row of knitted silk trimming, made by this formula: Cast on six stitches, slip one, knit two, bring silk forward and knit two together, knit one. Every row is the same. It may be used for other portions of the dress, but it must be made in the exact lengths required, as it cannot be satisfactorily cut.

The seal sleighing cape is a novelty which will doubtless find favor with those for whom it is intended. It is a shoulder cape with the addition of a broad collar of Persiana or other contrasting fur, which is carried across the back of the neck, and tapers thence to the lower edge of the cape. The fur of the cape proper is extended to form the lining of the collar, which may be turned up and fastened by a single loop in front, forming a perfect protection for the back of the head and the ears—a fact which those fond of sleighing will appreciate—and at the same time producing a jaunty and becoming effect.

Party dresses for little girls are made of Liberty's silks in æsthetic hues.

Many plaid frocks for misses and children are cut entirely on the bias, with pleasing effect.

Dress skirts for misses just in their teens should extend to within two inches of the boot tops.

A charming novelty in sealskin garments is an open roll jacket, twenty-four to twenty-six inches in length, which is worn over a vest of the same or a contrasting fur. The jacket, as its name implies, has a rolling collar, which is extended to the lower edge of the garment in front, somewhat in the fashion of a gentleman's light overcoat, and is faced with Persiana or other fur. The sleeves are finished with cuffs of the trimming fur. The jacket is provided, with a single loop and olive, and when extra protection is required, it may be drawn together and fastened once across the chest, completely changing the effect, the result being a cut-away jacket with coat collar.

A jaunty article of headgear, of Parisian origin, shown at a recent opening in Boston was a cap of black velvet, with large, soft, puffed crown, and smooth, turban-like brim, the latter carried to a point at the left side, the crown drooping over the front somewhat after the manner of a Tam o' Shanter. A bandeau of brilliant jet and dagger-like ornaments completed this really effective bit of millinery.

Natural Scent of Flowers.

The modest looking mignonette flower, as is well known, is one of the most deliciously fragrant, with a fragrance of that class that is not overpowering, and that few can be found to object to. The same is true of the sweet briar, lemon-verbena and its class. With the old white lily, lily of the valley and Cape jasmine this is not so. Too much of either of these easily becomes nauseating, and, in some cases, causes sickness; but the former class, probably rarely. It may not be known of the three former that the fragrance is so persistent and continuous that a sprig plucked and put in the pocket with a handkerchief, or among the clothes, like the lavender of our grandmother's days, will leave a pleasant fragrance for many days. The next time you pass a bed of mignonette, try it. Pluck half a dozen heads and put in the pocket below the handkerchief, and, our word for it, the delightful scent will be there for some time.

HUMOROUS YARNS.

WHEN Wilberforce was a candidate for Parliament his brilliant sister offered a new gown to the wife of every freeman who would vote for her brother, on which a cry was raised: "Miss Wilberforce for ever." She replied: "I thank you, gentlemen, but I can not agree with you. I do not wish to be Miss Wilberforce for ever."

DRS. PARR, Homer and Abthorpe once met at old Frank Smith's coffee-house, in Garrick Fair lane, Cambridge. Homer on the occasion was in a very grumpy and retiring mood. At length Parr broke out with: "Homer's odd, I see" (Odyssey). Abthorpe quickly followed with: "Homer's ill, I add" (Iliad). Homer grumpily observed: "That's above par" (Parr).

DR. A. T. PIERSON, in some pithy practical hints on pulpit oratory, says that to be winning is to be wise, but it must not be overdone. He has a friend, an evangelist, who got into the habit of calling his audience "dear souls." Inadvertently he would say, as he passed from place to place, "dear Belfast souls," "dear Dublin souls"—and before he knew it he was saying, "dear Cork souls!" which convulsed his Irish audience.

THERE is a story told of a lady who one day went to call on Fuseli, a painter, who, when there was need for it, could express himself with emphasis. Her ceaseless chatter did not allow him to get in even a word edgeways. At last a pause to take breath gave him time to say: "We had boiled mutton and turnips for dinner to-day." "What a strange observation, Mr. Fuseli!" exclaimed the lady. "Why," he said, "it is as good as any thing you have been saying for the last two hours."

HANDEL'S most faithful friend and admirer of his music was George II.; who more than once advanced him sums of one thousand pounds sterling to carry on his unfortunate undertakings. An habitue met Lord Chesterfield coming out of Covent Garden Theater one evening in the middle of a performance. "What, my Lord," said the dilettante, "is there not an oratorio?" "Yes," replied his Lordship; "they are now performing, but I thought it best to retire lest I should disturb the King in his privacy."

DANIEL PURCELL, the Hibernian punster, happening to pass when a great mob of spectators were assembled to see a culprit on his way to his execution at Tyburn, asked a gentleman who was standing in the crowd what was the name of the person about to be hanged? He answered: "One Vowel." "Ah!" said Purcell. "Do you know which of them it is, for there are several of that name?" "No," returned the other, "I do not." "Well," said the wag, "this, however, is certain, and I am very glad of it, that it is neither U nor I."

A STORY is told about one of the members of the Flint Union Blues while the Michigan State troops were in camp. The story is also vouched for for its veracity. One of the members of the F. U. B.'s was doing guard duty, and while at his post a gentleman came along, and the boys along the line did their best at saluting the passer-by. Noticing that the Flint youth gave no salute, the man asked him why he did not salute as the other soldiers had done. "Didn't have to," came the unsatisfactory reply. "But you saw your comrades did?" "Well, I don't salute every gol darned farmer that passes along these parts, sir, if they do," came the reply. "Do you know whom you are addressing that way? I am Governor Luce." "Eh! oh! gosh! Excuse me, Governor, just once."

ADMIRABLE ADVICE.

TO AVOID confusion and secure efficiency, do but one thing at a time.

BE patient. An impatient man breaks the boughs to gather the fruit before it is ripe.

DON'T judge a man by the house he lives in, for the lizard and the rat often inhabit the largest structure.

WHEN worried ask yourself: What is there in this thing that it should so disturb my peace and tranquility?

BE moderate in your pleasures, that your relish for them may continue. Always to indulge our appetites is to extinguish them.

FIGHT vice before it gets within your trenches by avoiding thoughts leading to it, and your victory will then be comparatively easy.

NEVER neglect an opportunity to be of service to others, even in a small way, for a time may come when they may be of service to you.

WHATEVER your work, concentrate your faculties on it. The weakest living creature by concentrating his powers can accomplish something.

LIMIT your wants; make them few and inexpensive. To do this requires but little effort; it is mostly a matter of habit. We require more or are satisfied with less just as we have accustomed ourselves to one or the other.

BE diligent, or love your work. Unlike pleasure, work never palls on us. No man can follow pleasure long continually. When he strives to do so, he turns pleasure into business and works at that. It is labor only which gives relish to pleasure.

DO EVERY thing well. Be accurate in observation; be accurate in speech; be accurate in the transaction of affairs. What is done in business must be done well, for it is better to accomplish a small amount of work than to half do ten times as much. With character, good conduct and ability in every other respect, the man who is habitually inaccurate can not be trusted. His work has to be gone over again and he thus causes annoyance, vexation and trouble.

THE TIDE OF EVENTS.

A LEADVILLE (Col.) man has invented a device which, he claims, will do away wholly with buttons and buttonholes.

A CANAL two hundred and fifty miles long is to be built for navigating purposes in New Mexico. It will be thirty feet wide.

A CHURCH wedding, where the groom was eighty and the bride thirty-five years old, astonished a quiet Connecticut village recently.

NORTH DAKOTA will be the first State, as a State, to make provision for a system of manual training. Forty thousand acres of land are set apart for that purpose.

TRAINS will soon be running to the summit of Pike's Peak if the winter is not too severe. Contracts have been signed for building a cog-wheel road up the mountain.

A WEST VIRGINIAN got a marriage license the other day and gave the lady's last name wrong. When notified of his mistake he said he really didn't know what her name was.

TWO MEN recently completed their long horseback ride across the continent. They reached San Francisco four months and about four days from the time they left New York.

A ST. LOUIS coal company recently mined at Danville, Ill., a lump of coal that weighed 87,000 pounds. It was shipped to Chicago, and the timbers in the mine had to be taken down for its removal.

A YOUNG woman of Southport, Me., the other day committed the most deliberate suicide on record. She walked into the water and sat down. After awhile she lay down, and the tide rose and carried her off.

DIED WHILE STITCHING.

An Aged Seamstress Found Dead With Her Needle in Her Hand.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24. — Bridget Welch aged 75 years, a lone seamstress living in one room of Charles Turbett's house, at No. 14 Congress street, disappeared, as it was thought, last Saturday and all efforts to find her proved fruitless until last night. The Turbetts thought she had gone to visit a sister, as she some times did, but inquiry at the sister's home elicted the information that the old lady had not been seen there.

All this time the door of her room had been locked, and only yesterday evening did it occur to Mr. Turbett that the missing woman might be in her room. Officer Barnett was called, and he burst open the door. On the floor in the dim light was seen the old lady sitting in a corner, tailor fashion, with a pair of half-completed trousers on her knee, with the needle drawn half through the cloth, and her thin fingers clasping it. She was dead. Spots of blood on the cloth and on the dress made it evident that she had died of a hemorrhage of the lungs, and had passed away without being able to call any of the inmates of the house.

Friends have taken charge of the body, and will give it a decent burial.

Pension Agent Thompson Receives a Sharp Note.

HIS SERVICES NOT REQUIRED.

Secretary Noble Will Not Accept a Resignation Tendered Through a Deputy.

Thompson Called a Slanderer and Unfit for the Service of the United States—The Pension Agent Sends a Quick Reply—He Says the Secretary's Letter Lacks Dignity and Respectability.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Secretary Noble, in a letter to Mr. W. W. Thompson, Pension Agent for the District of Maine, refuses to accept that gentleman's resignation, but dismisses him in the following language:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.

William W. Thompson, Esq., Albany, N. Y.

SIR—I have received a letter addressed by you to Hon. Hiram Smith, Jr., Deputy Commissioner of Pensions. In this document you endeavor to resign; but inasmuch as you have not had the intelligence to direct your paper to the only person who can accept your resignation, and it is handed to me by Mr. Smith, I beg leave to inform you that your intended resignation is not accepted; but as you are thereby shown to be both a slanderer and one wholly unfit for the service of the United States, you are dismissed, and your services are no longer required. Very respectfully,

JOHN W. NOBLE, Secretary.

Mr. Thompson replied to the Secretary as follows:

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 24.

The Hon. John W. Noble, Secretary, etc.

SIR: Your letter under date of October 23, 1889, just received. It lacks dignity, respectability, and exhibits the writer in his true character.

I am free to say that personally you are a puppet, officially a sycophant and lickspittle, and individually a coward and craven. I dislike to waste postage on you, but I simply desire to say I will place my letter and all my relations with you before the President. If he sustains you, as I suppose he will, I shall only be confirmed in the general conclusion that he has selected you, and some others of your caliber, to misrepresent the men who made it possible for Benjamin Harrison to insult the nation by putting you in a place and power which neither your character or services could justify, and which your whole personality is proof positive that a violence to every sense of decency and propriety was attended by your selection.

Any effort on your part to torture your brief authority to injure any respectable citizen will be in keeping with your vindictive and pusillanimous nature, and will surprise no one who has gauged your lack of manliness. Yours with contempt, WM. M. THOMPSON.

THE CRONIN TRIAL.

The Court House Thronged With People at an Early Hour.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—There was a great throng in Judge McConnell's court room this morning. The crowd filled the room and overflowed through the doorways long before the jury which is to try the men charged with Dr. Cronin's death took their seats. When the prisoners were brought in they looked anxiously at the crowd. They showed none of the levity which marked the tedious days of the jury seeking, and seemed to realize the terrible importance of the ordeal they have entered upon.

The examination of witnesses for the State was conducted by George C. Ingham, and the cross-examing for the defense was done by W. S. Forrest. Lawyers Ames and Forster, who are guarding the interests of Beggs, sit apart from the other attorneys, and do their own examining, which proves that the Senior Guardian has cut loose from his fellow-defendants.

The principal evidence taken to-day was in regard to finding the body of Dr. Cronin in the catch-basin.

WASHTUB EXPLOSION.

The Concussion Cut the Back Wall of a House Like a Knife.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 25.—A peculiar accident happened at No. 1,716 East Eager street, the home of Mrs. Bailey. She has been in the habit of putting a little benzine in the washtub to save muscle.

This morning her husband, William Bailey, prepared the washtub for her. After filling it with hot water he poured the benzine into it, and immediately there was a terrific explosion. The concussion cut the back wall of the house like a knife, and tumbled it into the yard, and split the side walls. Bailey was severely scalded and knocked senseless.

A Murderer's Plea Not Accepted.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Harvey Hodge, the Salem, Washington county, murderer, was arraigned in court at Sandy Hill and pleaded guilty. Judge Tappan, however, refused to accept the plea and ordered the clerk to enter a plea of not guilty. The date of his trial was fixed for Oct. 26, at a special Court of Oyer and Terminer, to be held by Judge Tappan. S. W. Russell, of Salem, and Hon. A. D. Wait, of Fort Edward, have been assigned to his defense by the court.

Slate Works in the Sheriff's Hands.

READING, Pa., Oct. 25.—An execution for $5,000 has been issued and the Sheriff directed to sell the real estate of the Quaker City Slate Company, which made extensive land purchases in Albany township, this county, several years ago and opened large slate quarries. The company lost money, not finding slate in paying quantities.

Trinity Defeated by Yale.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 25.—In the foot ball game between Yale and Trinity, Yale won, making 64 points and preventing Trinity from scoring. It was a poor game, Yale's victory being wholly due to superior weight, Trinity displaying whatever skill there was.

THE ONTARIO DISASTER.

Six Passengers on the Steamer Die in the Flames and Several Badly Injured.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 25.—The origin of the fire which burned the steamer Quinte to the water's edge near Deseronto, Wednesday night, is not known.

Six lives were lost and probably more. A large number of persons were injured.

Details of the disaster show that the fire originated in the engine room, so far as can be ascertained, and spread with inconceivable rapidity, the steamer burning like timber and being ablaze in a very few minutes.

The engineer managed to climb out of the engine room, though not until he had been severely burned. Crazy with pain he threw himself into the water. He managed to catch a piece of wreckage and was picked up later by a passing steamer.

Later reports say his condition is dangerous, the probabilites not being in favor of his recovery. The rescued man is unable to talk and his story cannot be learned further than given. There must have been at least two or three hands on the steamer, and as nothing has been heard from them they can hardly have escaped.

The vessel which picked up the engineer was attracted to the spot by the light from the burning Quinte, but shortly before the would-be rescuers reached her she sank.

The steamer was burned about three miles from Deseronto, she being on her way to Picton at the time. As far as can be ascertained the passengers were all saved, though three or four were severely burned. All were badly chilled by being in the water. The survivors were all taken to Deseronto and are being cared for.

MEETING OF MILKMEN.

A Scheme to Deliver Milk in New York City Direct to the Consumers.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 25.—An important convention of representative milk dealers of this and adjoining States has been in session here for two days. The convention was called under the auspices of the Milk Dealers' Union, an association recently set on foot for the purpose of combining the whole body of dairymen in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, who are engaged in supplying milk to the New York city market for mutual protection and advantage.

The plan is to form a branch union at every shipping station, subordinate to the central organization, which central body shall be composed of delegates from the branches, and shall fix the prices of the product of the members of the union, and otherwise direct and regulate the traffic. It is complained by the producers that as matters now stand the New York Milk Exchange, an association of middlemen, has assumed absolute control of the traffic and is accustomed to fix prices and terms that are ruinously inadequate and oppressive to the producers.

It was stated at the convention that the number of dealers engaged in shipping milk to New York and suburbs is about 10,000, who ship about 17,000 cans of forty quarts each a day and realize therefore at present prices about $5,000,000. About forty branch unions of shippers have been organized at that number of stations, and the principal work of the convention has been to take measures for expediting the organization of new branch unions with all possible energy.

RAILROAD ALLIANCE.

A Connection to be Built Between Two Important Lines.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—An agreement has been entered into by which a connection will be built between the New York & New England at Danbury and the New York & Northern at Brewsters, shortening the distance considerably between New York and Boston by the New England road. The 5,000 tons of steel rails to be used in making the connection have been purchased and paid for.

It is reported that a close alliance has been made between the two roads, and that an arrangement has also been made with the Manhattan Elevated Railway Company of this city to facilitate the passenger traffic by this route. The Elevated road connects with the New York & Northern at 155th street.

A Double Wedding.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Oct. 25.—Miss Annie M. Wills and John A. McCurdy of Steelton, Pa., and Miss Jennie W. Wills and William P. Quimby, Burgess of this town, were married last evening at the residence of the father of the brides, the Hon. David Wills, ex-Judge of this district and President of the Western Extension of the Baltimore and Harrisburg Division of the Western Maryland Railroad and of the Baltimore and Cumberland Valley Railroad.

A Village Devastated by Fire.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 25.—The total loss of the fire at Felts Mills is considerably larger than was figured in the first reports. Among the places burned were an axe helve factory, a glove factory, and seven dwellings. The principal losers are Roberts, Stack and Howland, axe factory, $150,000; Nathan Gregory, grist mill, $2,200. The other losses foot up $8,000. The post-office and telephone office were burned out.

He May be Lynched.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 25.—Napoleon Normandeau, a laborer, induced two school-girls whom he met on the road near here yesterday, to ride into the woods on a wagon he was driving. He then assaulted one of them, Clementine Abelle, aged eleven, threatening to kill her if she made an outcry. The child is now under a doctor's care. Normandeau has been arrested and identified. There is so much excitement that a lynching is possible.

ONE FOR THE GIANTS

They Defeat the Brooklyns by a Score of 11 to 3.

GREAT PITCHING BY CRANE

The Game Was a Procession, the New Yorks Winning as They Pleased.

Only 5,000 Persons Witnessed the Game—Catcher Clark Injured and Had to Retire—Both Clubs Attend a Banquet Given to the Grooms—Von der Ahe Opposed to the Brotherhood.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 25.—The fifth contest for the world's championship was witnessed by less than 5,000 persons. The weather was raw and chilly, and to this cause was the small attendance responsible. Caruthers and Clarke were in the points for Brooklyn and Crane, backed up by Bill Brown, again essayed to do the twirling for the Giants.

The game at first looked as if it would be a pitchers' battle, the batsmen being quickly retired in the first two innings. New York started the run-getting in the third, scoring four runs on Whitney's three-bagger, Gore's base on balls, Tiernan's and Brown's singles, Burns' error in missing Ward's high fly and Smith's slow return of Richardson's liner to deep short.

The Giants again scored four runs in the fifth on Tiernan's base on balls, Brown's single, Connors' three-bagger and Richardson's home-run drive to the carriages. After this inning the game was a procession, the New Yorks winning as they pleased. Brooklyn earned but one run, Collins making a two-bagger and Burns a single in the fifth inning.

Catcher Clark hurt himself in the sixth inning while running to first base and gave way to Bushong. Crane as usual proved too much for the Grooms. The following is the score:

New York	0	0	4	0	4	0	0	2	1	—11

Last night the two clubs attended the banquet given at the Academy of Music in honor of the Association champions.

Will Fight the Brotherhood.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—From Von der Ahe's conference with President Spalding yesterday and his subsequent hot talk, it may be considered settled that the Association will join the League in fighting the Brotherhood. Although Von der Ahe is president of the Association he can not, of course, speak officially until action is taken by the board, but it is an open secret that he gave Spalding his pledge of support to the bitter end.

MRS. WILBUR'S MILLIONS.

Her Heirs Willing to Comply With the Conditions of Her Will.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 25.—By a lucky stroke of fortune William Fornoff, a painter employed in the Buffalo Fire Department, is likely to become one of Buffalo's millionaires.

About two months ago Mrs. Sarah Harvey Wilbur of Orange, N. J., died and left a fortune of $3,000,000 to her niece, Miss Sarah of Newport, R. I., believing that young lady to be her only surviving relative. Fornoff saw the despatch announcing these facts and began a correspondence with Miss Harvey, stating that he was her cousin. He went to Newport, met Miss Harvey, proved his relationship and she generously agreed to divide the property with him, half and half.

Attached to Mrs. Wilbour's will were some curious conditions. Miss Harvey is not to acquire title to the property until she is twenty-two years of age, some three years hence; must attend Roman Catholic service at least once every Sunday; her first female child, should she have one, shall take the testator's name and be brought up a Catholic, and she must endow various Catholic institutions.

Mr. Fornoff says his cousin is quite willing to comply with the conditions.

THE MONTREAL EXPLOSION.

Many People Lifted Out of Their Beds by the Dynamite Shock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 25.—Later particulars about the dynamite explosion in this city say the shock was terrible. Houses tottered, windows crashed, ceilings fell, walls cracked and the roofs above were detached and many people were lifted out of their beds.

The explosion was caused by the city authorities who were making a sewer in Panthalem street and blasting rock with dynamite cartridges, each containing three-quarter of a pound of the explosive. Before beginning work Jules Chartrand, twenty-one years old, lighted a fire in the forge. Four of the primed cartridges were ignited by the fire and exploded. The shock also exploded two boxes of the cartridges which stood near by.

Chartrand was instantly killed and a number of people injured. The contents of stores in the vicinity were damaged by the breaking down of shelves.

McKinnon's Murderer Gives Himself Up.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 25.—John J. Toner, alias Jack Behan, has surrendered himself to the police as the man who stabbed and killed Roderick McKinnon Wednesday. He says he acted in self-defence, and his small stature seems to justify the statement. He is well known to the police and has served a term in the House of Correction for larceny. He will be arraigned to-morrow charged with murder.

The Plymouth Church Trouble.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 25.—Up to a late hour everything has been quiet at the disputed church and parsonage in Plymouth. The sheriff has not yet made a move in the matter of obtaining possession. The breach between the two nationalities apparently cannot be healed so that they can ever again worship harmoniously together.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The same frost that tints the forests is not to blame for all red noses.

—Silence is sometimes golden, but when it falls upon a business house that doesn't advertise, then it is not.

—The Third District Democratic Assembly Convention will be held at Westfield on Thursday evening next.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., request a full attendance of members to-night, when new by-laws will be presented for adoption.

—At this time of the year the very cute young man quarrels with his best girl, and he will absolutely refuse to be reconciled until after Christmas.

—Leaves are falling from the trees much earlier than usual, and the extremely wet weather during the season is thought to be accountable for it.

—The firemen's fair now in progress in Dunlap's Hall, continues to attract many visitors. New and additional features will be introduced both this and to-morrow evenings.

—"Guns are down," is the announcement made by A. M. Vanderbeek & Co., of 33 Park avenue. They are also selling 100 loaded shells for $1.75, and a good hunting coat for $1.00.

—An entertainment will be given in Vincent Chapel on Tuesday evening next, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church, consisting of music and readings by Miss Stella King of New York.

—Mr. Jesse B. Hatfield, manager of the "People's Market" at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, announces that he is prepared to devote a portion of his time to auctioneering. He guarantees satisfaction.

—The target excursionists who came to this city from Morristown and Elizabeth, yesterday, devoured 203 pounds of turkey and a hind quarter of beef at Caspar's Hotel, where they had dinner, yet the proprietor never said a word.

—One of the hind wheels on Mr. Halsey Compon's two-seated phaeton refused to perform its duty in front of THE PRESS office, yesterday afternoon, and it became necessary to oil the axle, before the ladies who occupied the vehicle could proceed on their journey.

—The New York Market on North avenue, next door to the corner of Peace street, though open but a few days, has already attracted a large trade by the prime meats and oysters offered at New York prices. Mr. B. F. Moore, the proprietor, studys to please in every way.

—A large quantity of extra fine Early Rose potatoes, has just been received by R. W. Rice & Co., the leading grocers, corner of Emily and Duer streets, North Plainfield. Although a choice and selected lot, yet they are offered at 80 cents a bushel, or in greater quantities at 75 cts.

—A stage load of young people, representing the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Trinity Reformed church, went to Metuchen last evening and participated in the second anniversary exercises of the Young People's Society of the Presbyterian church of that place.

—A large number of the Hudson County Wheelmen will visit Elizabeth to-morrow evening to take part in the annual parade of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, which promises to be a grand success, as all of the most prominent clubs in the State, including the Plainfield Club, will be represented.

—Messrs Gavett & Co., of 15 East Front street, are the appointed agents of the New York Gas Fixture Company. Besides a large assortment of such goods, they offer an unequalled line of hanging and standing lamps, and an elegant lot of pressed and cut glass, plain and decorated china.

—"Lord Chumley," that excellent comedy just closed to full houses at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, will be at Music Hall, to-night. The play was written to suit Mr. Sothern's peculiar style of acting. He will be supported by Walter Craven, W. Wittlesey, T. C. Valentine, Rowland Buckstone, Charlotte Tittell, Kittie Wilson and other well known Lyceum Theatre actors.

I have found out a gift for my fair. It is not a ring of gold, nor flowers for her hair, nor pearls for her white neck, but Salvation Oil for her sore throat. She's a singing bird.

Loss of life.—Thousands sink into an early grave for want of a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Bartholomew's Horses.

Next Monday evening Prof. George Bartholomew and his twenty-four handsome and intelligent horses will commence a week's engagement at Music Hall and the indications are they will attract immense audiences.

The Philadelphia Times says: "While Bartholomew's horses do many wonderful acts it is the manner in which they do them that makes his performance superior and different from all other animal exhibitors. In the circus horses are directed from one thing to another, they are sighted from point to point and the trainer is constantly by their side. The moment they are left alone they either run away or will not act. Bartholomew's horses perform with an understanding of what is expected of them and they know that their teacher has an Arab-like fondness for them. The entertainment is of such a character as to confuse, startle, perplex and break up all existing ideas of animal docility. It is a performance that makes all men, women and children feel better for having seen them and we contend that it causes the better treatment of horses generally."

The sale of reserved seats at 50 cents will commence to-morrow morning.

Fine Music.

An enjoyable feature of the programme last evening, in the First Presbyterian church, was the singing by a double quartette consisting of: Miss Addie Mc Gee and Mrs. David Titsworth, sopranos; Miss Alice Holmes and Miss Annie Petrie, contraltos; Mr. L. H. Biglow, Jr., and Mr. M. C. VanArsdale, tenors; Mr. B. T. Barnes and Mr. Francis Runyon, bassos.

The selections were an anthem by Marsh, "Praise the Lord"; and Dudley Buck's "Hark! Hark! My Soul." Miss McGee's solos parts were charmingly rendered. The absence of Mr. E. W. Hedges from the organ, was regretted.

Busy Times With the Farmers.

Our farmers are busy at the last of their harvest work, that of husking and housing their corn crop, which by the way is a very good one. After this has been completed the pressure of work will be pretty well over, and there will be a season of comparative rest for our rural friends, although the good farmer will always find something to do, even in the dull winter months. It is a busy life, and even what he may call his season of rest has plenty of toil and care mixed in with it. But, after all, who is so independent as the farmer, and who enjoys life better.

Wedding at Westfield.

Wednesday evening Miss Lulu May Flemming, stepdaughter of L. M. Whittaker, of Westfield, was married to N. Carroll Downs, Secretary of Historian Bancroft. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents. Rev. Dr. Downs, a brother of the groom, officiated, assisted by the Rev. J. Owens, of the Methodist church. There was a large gathering of friends and the wedding was quite a brilliant affair. After a repast and reception the young couple started for Boston.—Elizabeth Journal.

Inspected by the Grand King.

Grand King of the Grand Chapter, M. C. Dodd, of Newark, paid a fraternal visit to Jerusalem Chapter of this city, last evening. He made a pleasing address, as did also Companion J. B. Probasco.

A collation was served subsequently in the banquet room, and thoroughly enjoyed by all because High Priest Joseph G. Miller was the caterer.

Another Team Scared.

Mr. Wm. B. Wadsworth's team hitched to a light buggy in which were the owner and his brother, turned the corner of Park and North avenues, yesterday afternoon, just as a fast train rushed across the bridge. The startled animals turned so short that one fell and dragged the other down. The pole was broken, but otherwise there was no damage as the Messrs Wadsworth jumped out and the horses were seized at once.

Wedding Anniversaries.

The wedding anniversaries are named as follows: First year, cotton wedding; second, paper; third, leather; fifth, wooden; seventh, woolen; tenth, tin; twelfth, silk and fine linen; fifteenth, crystal; twentieth, china; twenty-fifth, silver; thirtieth, pearl; fortieth, ruby; fiftieth, golden; seventy-fifth, diamond.

Like Old Times, Again.

A correspondent writes: "Last evening the regular Reform Club meeting was a reminder of the first meetings when the spirit of reform flowed at its highest ebb. Short and spirited speeches interchanged with the sweet voice of Mrs. King, made the old Hall a place of pleasure and a prophet of the future."

Broke One of His Ribs.

Jacob Myer, of Elizabeth, while at work cutting down a tree on the old Bronck property on Grove street, met with a painful accident yesterday afternoon. When the tree fell one of the limbs struck Mr. Myer on the side, fracturing a rib. The injured man was taken to his home in Elizabeth.

Prisoners Sentenced.

At Somerville, Tuesday morning, in the Quarter Sessions, Judges Bartine, Jameson and Ten Eyck on the bench, sentences were passed as follows: Ernest Nodak for larceny, one year in State Prison in one case, suspended in second; George Ewing, for forgery, pleaded guilty, six months in State Prison.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. Wm. A. Lord has returned after a two months' trip to Europe.

Dr. K. P. Ketcham and the Rev. C. B. Mitchell, will exchange pulpits Sunday morning.

Mr. W. U. Mundy, janitor of the Fifth street school, is confined to the house by pneumonia.

Mr. Harry Yarnell has returned from Wisconsin and is spending a few days with friends here.

Miss Massett of Crescent avenue, gave a reception to a select few of her most intimate friends, last evening.

Mr. George B. Titsworth of the Potter Press Works, is confined to his home suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia.

"Harry," one of No. 2 engine company's horses, is laid up from the effects of injuries caused by running a nail in the hoof.

Mrs. Stanton Clark of Westerly, R. I., returned home this morning after an enjoyable stay with her brother, Mr. Wm. H. Williams.

Mrs. Joseph Brown and infant of West Third street, sail to-morrow morning on the Steamer "Devonia" for her home in Ayrshire, Scotland, where she will spend the Winter.

Councilman Francis E. Marsh has been summoned to Denver, Col., by the alarming illness of his wife. If possible Mrs. Marsh will be brought to her home in this city, by easy stages.

Mrs. Irving Maxson and Mrs. Bert Maxson, of Westerly, R. I., have been visiting their mother, Mrs. Thomas Randolph, at her home on Central avenue. They married brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Knight have given up their home on East Ninth street, and will remove to Brooklyn. Mrs. Knight has just lost her mother who was buried in Baltimore, a few days ago.

Among the distinguished guests who accompanied the Young Men's Catholic Associations to this city, yesterday, were ex-Collector P. Sheridan, ex-Surrogate J. J. Gerber and Mr. Chas. Ryan, of Elizabeth, and Mr. Louis A. Vogt of the Morristown Banner.

The address of Dr. Merrell Gates, President of Rutgers College, at the 22d anniversary of the Y. M. C. A., of this city, last evening, was a masterpiece of common sense and good logic. His arguments in favor of the Associations of this country, were endorsed by Mr. Murray's report of the work done for the young men of this city.

Rev. Chas. L. Sykes Funeral.

The funeral services of the late Rev. Chas. L. Sykes of Scotch Plains, took place on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Church of All Saints. The following clergymen were present and took part in the services: The Rector, Rev. Mr. Riley, and Revs. Marion F. McAllister, of Trinity church, Elizabeth; Erskine M. Rodman, of Grace church, this city; T. Logan Murphy, of Holy Cross church, North Plainfield; J. P. Taylor, of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Evona; A. R. Taylor, of Grace church, Westfield, and Wm. R. Earle. After the service at the church the body was interred in the Baptist burying ground at Scotch Plains. A goodly representation of the citizens of the place attended the funeral. The bells of the churches tolled during the burial service in the churchyard.

For many years Mr. Sykes was Rector of the Episcopal parish in Scotch Plains. For several years past he has been in very poor health and finally resigned his charge, but continued to reside there. His death, however, was quite sudden, and resulted from heart disease on last Mouday morning. His family has the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

Spilled Milk.

A horse attached to a milk wagon belonging to Wm. Rutman, started off just as the owner was getting in the wagon this morning. Mr. Rutman caught hold of the lines and was thrown to the ground, the hind wheel passing over him. The horse ran down Manning avenue to Somerset street, up that thoroughfare to Johnston Drive, and then to the summit of the mountain, where he was caught by Mr. Charles Willis. The milk was all spilled by the time the horse was caught.

Saturday's Trotting Card.

Among the races already arranged for to-morrow at the Gentlemen's Driving Park Track is one between Mr. M. Quinn's "Lucy" and Nate Robbin's "Doctor;" also between Mr. Churchill's "Selim" and John Osborne's "Marcanear." Other races will also take place on the track at that time.

To-night.

E. H. Sothern, in "Lord Chumley," appears to-night at Music Hall. You can depend on a very good performance, as everything that comes from the Lyceum Theatre, New York, is first-class. This is the first time that E. H. Sothern has visited this city. He is a worthy son of a remarkable father.

—An exchange remarks that people who love buckwheat cakes, and are annoyed by what is popularly known as "buckwheat itch," are advised that a teaspoonful of Rochelle salts, dissolved in the batter for the use of a family of several persons, will prevent annoyance. The quantity may be diminished for a small family.

Ayer's Pills, being convenient, efficacious, and safe, are the best cathartic, whether on land or sea, in city or country. For sick headache, indigestion, and torpid liver, they never fail. Try a box of them; they are sugar-coated.

FUR MUFFS AND CAPES.

WE have just received three cases of Muffs, Capes and Fur Trimmings from three of the best Fur Houses in New York, which are now being displayed. The large assortment comprises everything desirable in this line, and we can confidently say that no such exhibition of these goods have ever been made in this city before. THIS WEEK will be the best opportunity to get the choice selections, as later on they will be sold. "A word to the wise," etc., you know.

LACE CURTAINS!—Is another specialty with us this week. We have purchased several "closing out" lots from the Importers, and offer EXTRA BARGAINS in these goods.

WINDOW SHADES!—We have been very agreeably surprised at the increased demand made upon us in this department. Everybody is pleased with the excellent and prompt manner in which our work is done.

TWENTY-SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

President Wm. D. Murray's Address to a Large Audience of Friends of the Y. M. C. A.

A large, intelligent and representative audience gathered last evening in the new First Presbyterian church, to show their interest in the Young Men's Christian Association of this city. After the preliminary exercises of good singing by a double quartette, Scripture reading and prayer by the Rev. Dr. Ketcham they listened to the annual report of President Murray and an address by Merrell E. Gates of Rutgers College.

President Murray's report was eloquent with facts and figures more powerful indeed than mere words or glowing generalities. It showed clearly and plainly what the Young Men's Christian Association is doing in Plainfield. In opening, he referred to the fact that the Association is 22 years old this month, and that he saw before him many of the men who helped to organize it, that the Association has, during all the years of its existence, enjoyed the sympathy and support of the people of Plainfield, and that the Association was more fortunate than many Associations of neighboring towns, in that the people of the city recognized it as a public institution worthy of support, and while thanking the people for their generosity he assured them that the Association did not appear before them as suppliants for charity, but as fellow laborers in the Master's vineyard. The fiscal year of the Association ends with May of each year. For the year ending May, 1889, the expenses were $2,517.33, and the income $2,525.44. For the current year ending May, 1890, the expenses and income are estimated to be about $2,450.

The membership at present is over 500 of whom only about 180 are Sustaining members—that is paying $10 annually. He observed that the revenue of the Association is derived entirely from membership dues, and thought that to carry on the aggressive work of the Association the number of sustaining members should be materially increased.

He illustrated the value of the work of the Association by giving the conversation of two of the wealthiest citizens of Boston after listening to an address from Horace Mann in which he said that all the money spent for reformatory institutions and so forth was well spent if it resulted in the saving of one young man. "Do you believe that?" said one to the other. "Yes, I do if it was my boy," was the reply. Following this came the telling facts and figures, 15,000 visits to the rooms during the year, 2,200 attended the Young Men's meetings, an average of 44, and 32 were benefited by the Workers' Training classes and meetings were held held each week at two outposts. Four young men went to Mr. Moody's school at Northfield, last June, and four boys attended the Boys camp at Lake Wawayanda.

Thirteen receptions and popular talks were given on travel, astronomy, postage stamps and ranch life.

The Building fund amounts to $29,560, not including the bequest of $2,000 by Mrs. Latimer. Six sets of plans have already been made by six competing architects, one of which will be selected for the building, some changes will, however, need to be made on account of the removal of the Chautauqua headquarters to Buffalo. It was expected that they would occupy a portion of the building. The Association now occupies four rented rooms, parlor, game room, reading room and hall, which are used to the best possible advantage, although inadequate to the needs of the work.

There are three Educational classes in Mechanical Drawing and talks will be given during the Fall and Winter.

The great work of the Association is the religious work and it is prosperous—large and interesting meetings being held every Monday evening. President Murray read a stranger's letter to the effect "that he wrote to us inasmuch as the Young Men's Christian Association was the only institution of which he could think to write concerning information about boarding houses under good moral influences and other matters of interest to his son who was about to make his home in this city."

It is needless to say that the young man was cared for. Another instance was given of a father in the West Indies who wrote concerning a son who, before the first letter was received was cared for by the Association here, and upon his removal to New Brunswick the Association being notified, exercised its good offices in his behalf. In closing Mr. Murray urged a deeper and more abiding consecration on the part of those engaged in the work of leading young men from the kingdom of darkness to the kingdom of peace.

After more singing President Gates of Rutgers College delivered an inspiring address. He emphasized at the outset that the work of the Associations was that of Christian young men for non-Christian young men. He dwelt upon the idea of co-operation so greatly developed in business operations of the day as being taken hold of by Christian young men in the religious sphere. He eulogized the Training class work of Associations and illustrated the practical result of it. He spoke of conviction of the truth of God's word which Association men held as like to that of the locomotive engineer in the expansive power of steam, of the telegraph operator in a current of electricity to carry a message, or of a farmer that there is life in seed. Their faith is confirmed by the evidence of the power of the word of God in the regeneration of men. He referred to the inauguration of the great work for young men of India and Japan undertaken by the Associations of America and under the direction of the International Committtee. Altogether it was a most instructive and interesting address.

A NEW PLAN.

November Simultaneous Meetings by the 300 Churches, 400 Ministers, 1,300 Elders and 56,000 Presbyterian Communicants of New Jersey.

Next month New Jersey will see a religious movement of a somewhat novel character. Missionary meetings of some kind are as old as the century; but the Presbyterian Synod proposes a series of meetings for the week, Nov. 3-9, with several new features. The plan is in the hands of a large central committee, a co-operating committee in each of the eight Presbyteries, aided by a body of laymen formed by the appointment of one Elder in each of the three hundred churches of the Synod. This carefully selected and well distributed band of workers has arranged for special services in every village, town and city in the State where there is a Presbyterian church.

On Sunday there will be sermons in the morning, and popular addresses in the evening. For the Sunday school a uniform order of exercises has been printed and will be distributed to all the schools in the Synod. Then, on a day locally convenient there will be a popular meeting, with special speakers appointed by the Presbytery or invited by the church. The central committee is preparing pamphlets for the exclusive use of the speakers These meetings will vary in size, doubtless; but all will have one purpose, and will be held in one and the same week.

It is expected that women's missionary societies, mission bands, young people's associations, will arrange for special meetings in connection with the larger meetings, and thus make the seven days a season of united and earnest effort for the deepening of interest in the work to which the church is called by Him who said: "Go ye into all the word and preach the Gospel." This novel plan of simultaneous meetings has no denominational purpose. There will be no collections. Members of all denominations are invited to share in the services; for all are alike responsible for sending the Gospel to the heathen world. More particular notice will be given from the pulpits next Sunday.

Christian Endeavor.

The third annual State Convention of the Society of Christian Endeavor was held in Tabernacle, in Jersey City, on Wednesday. Rev. John T. Kerr presided and the Rev. Mr. Skellenger, of Dunellen, was Secretary. The State Secretary's report showed that there are 298 societies in New Jersey, of which thirty-four are in Essex county and twenty-nine in Hudson. Of this total ninety-nine are Presbyterians, seventy-six are Baptist, forty-two are Reformed, thirty-six are Methodist, and twenty-one are Congregational.

The report also shows that in Atlantic county there is 1 society; in Bergen, 11; Burlington, 8; Camden, 15; Cape May, 5; Cumberland, 24; Essex, 34; Gloucester, 9; Hunterdon, 13; Hudson, 29; Mercer, 15; Middlesex, 26; Monmouth, 25; Morris, 15; Ocean, 2; Passaic, 17; Salem, 5; Somerset, 9; Sussex, 4; Union, 20; Warren, 9; unkown, 3. There are 298 societies, divided into 13 unions, with an aggregate membership of 15,000.

The treasurer's report shows that the receipts of the State Union during the year were $126.33; disbursements, $123.20; leaving a balance of $3 13.

With the exception of Miss M. S. Young, of Dunellen, who succeeds Miss Ada Thomas on the Executive Committee, the officers are the same as those who served last year. They are: President—Rev. John T. Kerr, Elizabeth; Vice Presidents—Rev. William Hopaugh, Springfield; Mrs. J. L. Scudder, Jersey City; Rev. John Handley, Bridgeton; Secretary and Treasurer—Frank B. Everitt, Jamesburg; Executive Committee—George Leary, Elizabeth; Howard Butler, New Brunswick; Miss M. S. Young, Dunellen; Rev. W. W. Halloway, Jr., Dover, and F. O. Foxcroft, Newark.

An Important Question.

The Episcopal Convention, at New York on Wednesday, with closed doors, took up one of the most momentous sections of the canonical law, that of marriage and divorce. Dr. Benjamin Franklin, of New Jersey, chairman of the committee, opened the proceedings by reading the appended canon, comprising the ground work of the existing canon with the proposed amendments:

Section 1. If any persons be joined together otherwise than as God's Word doth allow their marriage is not lawful.

Section 2. Marriage is prohibited by the Word of God and by His Church within the degrees of consanguinity and affinity specified in Leviticus XIII, 6. 18.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of ministers to admonish the people from time to time that the Church forbids clandestine marriage, and that its public solemnization ought not to be dispensed with, except for good cause and under special circumstances.

2. No minister shall solemnize the marriage of any person under the age of eighteen years except the parent having legal charge of such person, or the guardian, be present, or having given written consent to the marriage.

A motion to adopt the above was amended and passed.

Success in life is the result of push and energy. If the blood is impure and sluggish, both body and mind lack vigor. To cleanse and vitalize the blood and impart new life to the system, nothing else has such a marvelous effect as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Springfield, Mass., Bicycle Company of Boston has failed. Liabilities, $54,453.

A general strike of miners throughout Belgium will probably take place on Monday next.

The 150th anniversary of the settlement of the town of Peterborough, N. H., was celebrated yesterday.

The brewery of McGrath Brothers in West Troy, N. Y., was entirely destroyed by fire. Loss, $10,000; insurance, $2,000.

President Harrison has appointed Edward J. Green, of New Jersey, United States District Judge for the district of New Jersey.

Sister Outropia died of consumption at the Mauinckrodt Convent at Wilkesbarre, Pa., yesterday. Her original name was Caroline Helfrich.

The trial of Assemblyman Charles Smith, of New York city, charged with bribery at the last election, resulted in a disagreement of the jury.

The steamer San Diego sailed yesterday from New York, carrying with her priests and nuns who intend establishing a Catholic mission at Nassau.

The insane monarch of Bavaria, King Otto, is in a precarious condition. He is unconscious, and only at intervals are his physicians able to administer nourishment.

The famous sulphur mine in Colcasieu Parish, Louisiana, including 3,500 acres of land, has been sold to the American Sulphur Company of West Virginia for $200,000.

The will of the late B. T. Babbitt leaves the entire fortune of the testator to his wife and two daughters, and directs that the soap business be continued.

Rev. Father Thomas, a Roman Catholic priest of Coopersville, N. Y., was struck by a train on the Delaware and Hudson Railroad near West Chasey and dangerously injured.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

DAVITT'S LONG TALK

The Irish Leader Before the Parnell Commission.

HE WILL SPEAK SEVERAL DAYS.

His Address for the Sake of Ireland and Justice.

The London "Times" Bitterly Denounced. He Would be a Fenian Again if the Circumstances Called for It—Parnell and Other Irish Leaders Revised His Speech. Tory Statements Denied.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Michael Davitt's speech before the Parnell Commission was very bitter against the "Times" newspaper. No agent, Mr. Davitt declared, had done more to keep alive the national antipathy of the American Irish to Great Britain than the "Times," whose brutal language extended back to the comments of the paper on the extermination of Irish peasantry following the great famine.

The Irish leader, in addressing the Commission, said he was running contrary to popular opinion in Ireland, which had unqualifiedly endorsed the action of his colleagues in withdrawing from the case before the Commission, but he was impelled to defend the character of the Irish peasantry, which had been wantonly and gratuitously assaulted. Although he was no longer a Fenian, he said, he would become one again if the conditions in Ireland were similar to those of twenty-five years ago. The aims of the Fenians, however, had been partly fulfilled and the Land League, which was based upon the same patriotic spirit that had actuated the Fenian organization, was fast securing justice to Ireland. Unable to resist the steady march of progress, Dublin Castle would soon quietly submit to the fate of the Irish Church.

Mr. Davitt said he believed he had converted Patrick Ford of the New York "Irish World" to a belief in constitutional methods. The assertion made by Le Caron that there were 300,000 men in readiness to invade Canada from the United States was an underestimate, as the Fenians alone numbered a million. He denied the allegation that he had started the Land League with money subscribed in America with the distinct understanding that it was to be used to further outrages in England. The money used for the purpose was such as had been subscribed in America and elsewhere to continue the fight against landlordism.

Will Talk Several Days.

Mr. Davitt will probably occupy the time of the Commission for several days as he proposes to enter into an exhaustive review of the events which led up to the peculiar political situation in which Ireland is placed to-day.

Although it is given out, that Mr. Davitt, in appearing before the Commission at all, is acting counter to the wishes of Mr. Parnell, the man of all others most concerned in the decision which the Commission may reach, and is acting against the advice of the other Irish leaders, there is reason to believe that in the preparation of his speech Mr. Davitt had the assistance of Mr. Parnell and many of his followers.

Parnell's Approval.

The Tories charge that Mr. Davitt is guilty of a piece of wilful deception in stating in the opening of his speech that his appearance before the Commission was without the approval of his colleagues. As a matter of fact, however, his statement is literally true. Mr. Parnell and his entire following have all along insisted that the Commission should be permitted to conclude its labors without any further assistance or advice from the Irish leaders, and they earnestly attempted to dissuade Mr. Davitt from his determination to address the Commission. Finding, however, that he was resolute, they concluded that if Mr. Davitt must defend the Irish in a speech they might as well do what they could to see that the speech was a good one. It was only in this way that Mr. Davitt obtained the assistance of his colleagues and the charge of bad faith against him for his statement is groundless.

Austria Will Favor France.

PARIS, Oct. 25.—The "Figaro" publishes what purports to be an account of an interview which recently took place between Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, and Prince John, of Lichtenstein. In the course of the interview the Emperor is said to have remarked that as General Boulanger had been defeated in France, Austria no longer had reason to oppose that country. This remark led the Prince to remind the Emperor of the treaty of alliance between Italy and Austria, whereupon the Emperor replied that the alliance was merely temporary, adding that the future had many surprises in store.

Miss Caldwell's Marriage to Prince Murat.

PARIS, Oct. 25—The marriage of Miss Gwendoline Caldwell to Prince Murat will be solemnized here next Tuesday, the Papal Nuncio officiating assisted by Archbishop Satolli, rector of the Ecclesiastical Academy at Rome. The latter will sail on November 2 for America to represent the Pope at the opening of the new Catholic University in Washington, founded by Miss Caldwell and her sister.

German Orders to Count Dillon.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Count Dillon, who has taken up a temporary abode in the little town of Lieuze in Lorraine, has been notified by the German police to quit that place at once, or he will be arrested and expelled from Germany.

HE HAD FOUR WIVES.

The Bigamist Could Not be Held Under the Laws of Pennsylvania.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 25.—Chester W. Gould, an eccentric character of Moscow, this county, was tried here for bigamy. He is 57 years old, and has four wives, whom he acquired respectively in 1869, 1879, 1884 and 1888, the last at Waterbury, Conn.

The judge dismissed the case, stating that under the law of this State no prosecution for bigamy can be maintained unless brought within two years of the offense. This outlaws the first two cases, and the last was committed outside the jurisdiction of the Pennsylvania courts.

Donovan Knocked Out.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 25.—In the prize fight for $300 between Bell Layton and Jack Donovan on Camp Island, Layton knocked Donavan out in the third round.

JACK HOPPER WINS.

He Defeats Jack Hanley of Buffalo in a Twenty-five Round Fight.

BUFFALO, Oct. 25.—The glove contest between Jack Hopper, of New York and Jack Hanley of Buffalo, formerly of Wilmington, Del., for a purse of $500, took place last night at the Buffalo Athletic Club, and was won by Hopper. Hanley refused to fight after the twenty-fifth round.

Hanley stripped at 129½ pounds and Hooper at 126½. The former was seconded by Jim Wilson and Billy Baker, and the latter by Jim Costello and his brothar. Marquis of Queensberry rules governed.

In the twenty-fifth round a sharp rally resulted in Hopper getting in a terrific swing on Hanley's neck Hanley went down on the ropes. Hopper rushed him and landed several more on the face and neck. Hanley was very groggy but kept his feet and Hopper pounded him around the ring. The round closed with Hanley badly used up.

When the next round was called Hanley claimed foul but it was not allowed. He then refused to continue the fight and Hopper was declared victor.

Hopper's friends intend having him meet Billy Dacey at the California Athletic Club before the end of the year.

RECOVERING BODIES.

Johnstown Citizens Take Thirty-five from Stoney Creek Channel.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 25.—A force of 100 men are at work in Stoney Creek channel, searching for the dead and removing debris. So far thirty-five bodies have been removed from the trench and taken to Grand View Cemetery, eleven of them being identified. The work is in charge of a local contractor and everything will be done by Johnstown people.

The relief work of the American National Red Cross in the Conemaugh Valley is ended. To-day Miss Clara Barton, the president, and her corps of assistants will leave for their respective homes. The task of supplementary relief has been confided to the Conemaugh Valley Benevolent Union.

A largely attended farewell reception was tendered Miss Barton in Morrell Institute by the women's branch of the union last night. Miss Barton was the recipient of a handsome testimonial commemorative of the assistance and encouragement which she brought with her into the stricken valley.

AN INHUMAN FATHER.

While Drunk He Kicks His Dead Child's Body Around the Room.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.—John Banderfeldt, a laborer of No. 22 Monroe street, was arrested yesterday while in the act of kicking the lifeless body of his young child about the room at his home.

The child died the previous night, and Banderfeldt went on a spree, leaving his wife and little children in the house of mourning. He returned shortly before noon, abused his wife and children, and finally turned them out of doors. He then locked the doors, and, seizing the dead body of his child, kicked it about the floor. The neighbors notified the police, and the latter had to force open the door before they could place Banderfeldt under arrest.

Endorsed the Citizens' Ticket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The Republican County Convention last night endorsed the nominees of the recent Citizens' Convention for county and city officers. There was very little opposition. The County Democracy County Convention was also held last night and endorsed the Citizens' ticket. Police Commissioner Voorhis and one or two others opposed the endorsement, but the vote was almost unanimous. The Labor Union party also endorsed the Citizens' ticket.

DETECTIVES GUILTY.

The Bauder Agency at Pittsburg Convicted of Conspiracy.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—The jury in the case of the Commonwealth against J. D. Bauder, L. J. Bender, James Doyle, F. B. Stoner, James Dougherty and Wm. Nagle, known as the Bauder Detective Agency, charged with conspiracy and coercing unlicensed liquor sellers into paying large sums of money to prevent information being made against them, returned a verdict of guilty against all of the defendants.

The prisoners will be sentenced to-morrow. Several Aldermen, charged with being implicated in the transaction, are now on trial.

Opposed to Factory Girls.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 25.—A rumor that factory girls would not be admitted to a certain dancing class caused a sensation a few days ago, but was denied by the class. To-day a boycott was threatened against Prall Bros., dry goods dealers, unless they discharged a young woman clerk belonging to the class. The clerk was immediately discharged.

He Robbed the Orphans.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 25.—John W. Lonnegren, ex-treasurer of the Swedish Orphanage of this city, was convicted in the Court of Sessions at Mayville of appropriating $1,050 of the institution's money to his own use. This was one of many indictments which had been found against him for larceny. The jury were out but half an hour.

Death from a Runaway Accident.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 25.—While Mrs. Robert D. Dickey and her mother, Mrs. Murray, of Milton, Ulster County, were out riding near that place their horses ran away, and both ladies were thrown from the carriage. Mrs. Dickey was injured so badly that she has since died, and it is not believed that Mrs. Murray can recover.

Is it a Crime to be a Woman?

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—The nineteenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association began in this city last night. The feature of the session was Lillie Devereaux Blake's address on "Is it a crime to be a woman?" Rev. Annie Shaw, of Evanston, Ill., also spoke.

Poor Health Caused His Suicide.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Silas O. Allen, Jr., aged 28, shot himself dead last night. He had been out of health for some time, and his physician told him yesterday that nothing could be done to improve his condition. He then bought a revolver and ended his life. He leaves a wife and a six-year-old child.

TRANSPIRING OF LATE:

A PETRIFIED alligator was recently found on the beach at Cutler, Me.

THE grand cross of a Commander of the Legion of Honor has been bestowed upon Thomas A. Edison.

THE international congress of shorthand writers recommended the introduction of shorthand into primary schools.

WORKMEN taking out sawed lumber on Ransom's island, near Williamsport, came upon a petrified log sixty feet long, which they could not lift.

A LIQUOR officer, in searching a house in Boston, found behind a large picture an opening in the wall which concealed fifty bottles of lager beer.

A PITTSBURGH miss in London is said to have written to the Princess Louise, Duchess of Fife, offering to buy one of the numerous sets of bracelets presented to her on her recent marriage.

A SACRAMENTO (Cal.) business man used a phonograph cylinder in transmitting important messages to Chicago, sending the novel machine (which the postal authorities have decided must be paid for at first-class postage rate) by mail.

A TORONTO (Ont.) man was in Philadelphia and bought a ticket for home, stating that he wanted to go via Lewiston. He meant Lewiston, N. Y., and when he awoke in Lewiston, Me., next day he was the maddest man that down-East city has seen for a month.

A BASHFUL young man of Wellsville, N. Y., offers a five-dollar silk umbrella to the young lady sending the best proposal of marriage. Points to be considered are composition, spelling, writing, brevity and reasons for wishing to be married. Maiden ladies over seventy-five are barred out.

THE largest sailing ship in the world, the Palgrave, left Sandy Hook recently for Java with a cargo of one hundred and thirty-two thousand cases of refined petroleum, or about one million three hundred and twenty thousand gallons. It is the largest cargo ever exported in any one vessel.

FIVE sergeants, three corporals and seven patrolmen of the San Francisco police force have been retired on pensions as a reward for their long and faithful services. The sergeants are to receive sixty-one dollars and fifty cents, the corporals fifty-seven dollars and fifty cents and the patrolmen fifty dollars a month.

WHILE some laborers were engaged in chopping timber in a big woods near Decatur, Ind., they accidentally discovered what is supposed to have been a counterfeiters' rendezvous. Beneath the earth surface was found a brick furnace, several half dollars dated 1845, and some of the metal from which the spurious coins were made.

IN order to get the best account of a recent execution there, a Minnesota editor had one of his reporters arrested and lodged in jail it is related. The reporter, however, was made to scrub floors and perform other menial services during his incarceration, and when the hour of execution came he was removed to a distant part of the jail.

A VOTE was taken at the St. Louis Exposition recently on the National-flower question, resulting in favor of the golden rod by a vote of 6,347 to 4,743 for the sunflower. Sixty-one different flowers were voted for, but those running the highest were: Rose, 3,241; daisy, 1,342; violet, 951; pansy, 842; lily, 741; tuberose, 643; pink, 556; morning glory, 451. The violets, pinks, pansies, daisies and other modest flowers of beauty drew ballots largely from ladies.

FROM FOREIGN FIELDS.

THERE is a growing demand in England for human skin leather.

MORE deaths occur in England from bronchitis than from any other disease.

THE residents of Hawarden have decided to erect a statue to Mr. Gladstone in commemoration of his golden wedding.

THERE is a large body of English Mussulmans at Cape Town, the descendants of Malay seamen. Their language is English, but they are provided with mollahs and Arabic teachers from Constantinople.

THE Empress Frederick, in fulfillment of a wish of her late illustrious consort, sent, on the anniversary of the battle of Sedan, sums of money to a great number of needy soldiers who were wounded in that engagement.

THE heir to the Brazilian throne, the Conde d' Eu, in a reply to a republican manifesto said that when the people signified by their votes that the Imperial family is a hindrance to the progress of the Nation they would retire.

THERE is a place in the Paris exhibition plan marked "Panama," and in the grounds a little building bearing that name; but there is no plan and no exhibit. Just as the exhibition opened the Panama Company went into the hands of the liquidators.

THE French authorities undertook to employ a German specialist to check the spread of cholera in Tonquin, but the French medicos preferred the disease to the German doctor and recorded so vigorous a protest that his appointment was canceled.

THE Forth bridge has stirred the engineering world so that Schneider & Co., the great French iron makers, have prepared a design for a channel bridge from Dover to Calais. The length is twenty-four miles, and the number of piers proposed to be built in the sea is 120.

A BALL and concert were gotten up by an English clergyman in order to provide the parish with a hearse. This has been outdone by a ball which was held at Dingwall, in Rosshire, Scotland, in order to provide an operating table for the Ross Memorial Hospital in the town.

KING OTTO, of Bavaria, narrowly escaped being killed a short time ago in his castle of Fursteureid. While passing through the dining-room the chandelier fell from the ceiling and just grazed the head of his Majesty. An attendant who stood near by was badly wounded. The rooms of the castle have since been examined, and, with two exceptions, declared unsafe and unfit for habitation. The King is now confined to these two rooms.

A LONDON paper announces that a Worcestershire village, from the fact of its being called Broadway, first attracted the attention and then the visits of Americans, and now there is quite an American season and a small artist colony, which is six miles from a railway station. The American artists have established a Broadway school at this spot, which, with its ivy and creeper-covered Worcestershire houses, is regarded by them as the most typical of English villages.

THE admirers of Prince Bismarck in Germany are developing plans to found a Bismarck Museum in Berlin on the next birthday anniversary of the Chancellor. Collections have been made already and requests sent out for all relics pertaining to the Prince or his family. It will, in all probability, be arranged somewhat after the style of the well-known Hohenzollern Museum, which is in one of the palaces of Frederick the Great. The Chancellor is flattered by the idea.

PRESS PLUNDER.

OYSTERS are very self-possessed creatures. They never turn red when they get into a stew.

THE book that tells how a person may live on $150 a year was probably meant for a camp in the back woods, or it may be read as one of the thrilling romances of the year.

THE sons of Adam have always wanted the world to take them at their own valuation and pay them every Saturday night; but the world has always declined to do that.

A YOUNG woman who had just returned from Europe says that while she was in Southern France she visited a town called Nephew, or Cousin, or Niece, or something like that.

A VEGETARIAN crank in Columbus refuses even to eat vegetables that have been in the same refrigerator with meat, but the same fellow was once caught kissing a butcher's daughter.

THEY say they have discovered a wonderful salt lake in the interior of Africa. This is good news. They can now pack some of the stories they send from there and possibly they won't spoil before they reach us.

ONE day recently, not having any thing particular to do, the captain of a schooner lying in Tampa bay counted the number of sharks in sight, and he made the figures 700. As he is cross-eyed and near-sighted he allows that some of the fish must have got away while he was counting, and are to be lumped in at about fifty.

AT the foot of Sand mountain, Ala., there is a large box bearing the inscription: "Drop a coin in the slot and draw out whisky at the rate of two dollars a gallon." This automatic bar is known as a "blind tiger." The man who was arraigned for running this box bar-room escaped conviction, as it was impossible to prove his ownership.

OUT in Ohio they want "style" even in housework, as the following letter received lately by the Castle Garden superintendent from Youngstown, O., will show: "M. Superintendence Castle Garden—Dear Sir: I would ask this favor of you. Air they ane gerls thair that would like to get a good plase to live in a family of 3 grown persons too doo house work it would hafter be one with some stile and not under teenty years old and one that iSe ones and can be trusted at all times. We have never kep a girl. Nothen but nise and good looken one will file the bil. Pleas answer."

A LETTER just received from London says that the other day a thief broke into a mansion in Belgravia early in the morning and found himself in a music-room. Hearing footsteps approaching he hid behind a screen. From 7 to 8 o'clock the eldest daughter had a lesson on the piano. From 8 to 9 o'clock the second daughter took a singing lesson. From 9 to 10 o'clock the eldest son had a violin lesson. From 10 to 11 o'clock the other son took a lesson on the flute. At 11 all the brothers and sisters assembled and studied the ear-splitting piece for piano, violin, flute and voice. The thief staggered out from behind the screen at 11:30, and, falling at their feet, cried out: "For heaven's sake, have me took to the station, but cheese that bloomin' band!"

JOCUND JOTTINGS.

IN a good speech there are two important things. One is the beginning and the other is the end. The nearer the beginning is to the end, as a general thing, the better and more satisfactory the speech.

"SAY, mister, is there a circus here to-day?" "No, what made you think so?" "Ain't them clowns comin' up the street?" "Those? Why, they are the students in lawn tennis suits."

A SCARECROW in a New Jersey corn-field not only scared every crow that saw it, but one crow was so frightened that he brought back the corn he had carried to his nest three days before.

FIRST BOSTON GIRL—"Got any pickles in your pocket?" Second Boston Girl—"Yes, and some gum." First Boston Girl—"That's all right. I've got some cold beans and two slate pencils. Let's lunch."

WHEN a dog gets after a rabbit he makes the hare fly. Sometimes, when a woman gets after her derelict husband she, too, makes the hair fly. And when a mother finds her only son at the jam she also makes the heir fly.

CONDUCTOR—"Here, my good fellow! Don't you know that if you pull that strap in the middle you will ring both bells." Mike—"Faith, an' Oi know that as well as yerself. But it's both ends of the car I want ter stop."

THEY say the patient waiter is no loser. That depends on whether he has any thing in his apple-cart to lose or gain, or whether he wears a white apron in a restaurant. It also depends on whether it is a sit-down or stand-up waiting.

WIFE OF AUTHOR—"Don't disturb my husband. He is in the midst of a critical scene." Visitor—"Is he at work on a critical scene in his new comedy?" "No; it's worse than that. His landlord is talking to him about the back rent."

CITY MAN—"I should think that you would find life here very dreary." Villager—"Here! I can assure you this is a pretty lively place for its size." "I should not suppose from the looks of things any thing ever happened here." "That's where you're mistaken. Why, it ain't two weeks since we had an eclipse of the moon."

"MY wife is the most ingenious woman who ever lived," said Jones. "I believe you," returned Smith, politely. "But you don't know why you believe me," intimated Jones. "To tell the truth, I don't," replied Smith, looking bored. "Well, I'll tell you. We've been married twelve years, and lived in the same house all the time; and this morning she found a new place to hide my slippers."

MUSICAL MATTERS.

THE baton used by conductors of concerts is said to have been introduced into England by Spohr in 1820.

IT is said that a new tenor of extraordinary ability, named Henri Beltram, has created a vast impression at Barcelona in the part of Don Jose in "Carmen."

JOHANNES WOLFF recently played eleven pieces on his violin for Queen Victoria and she gave him a diamond pin and wrote him an autograph letter.

IN a recent interview Sir Arthur Sullivan confessed that his sacred song, "The Lost Chord," had already paid him $15,000, and still had a very large sale.

MAX STRAKOSCH, who brought some of the most brilliant singers to this country that ever left the other side of the Atlantic, is in the Home for Incurables at Fordham, N. Y., a paralytic.

AN English tenor who gets about $100 for singing at a concert at home asked $5,000 to sing in five concerts in Boston. He explains why he asks such an exorbitant price by saying that it is worth that to sing in an American provincial city.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S music seems to find as much favor at the seraglio as in the operatic auditoriums of Britain. A selection was recently sent to the Sultan at his imperial request by the Duke of Edinburgh, and Abdul Hamid was so delighted that he conferred the Medjidie order on the composer.

A SHIP CANAL.

Gov. Beaver's Scheme by Connecting the Ohio River and Lake Erie.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 25.—The Pennsylvania and Lake Erie Ship Canal Commission met in this city yesterday. Gov. Beaver was present and presided. Col. T. P. Roberts, of Pittsburg, was appointed on the Commission in the place of Reuben Miller, Esq., who declined to serve. The permanent officers elected were John A. Wood, Pittsburg, president; W. S. Shallenberger, of Rochester, Pa., treasurer; E. Brewer, of Erie, Pa., secretary.

The advantages to be derived from a ship canal connecting Lake Erie with the Ohio River were discussed at length and maps and charts of old surveys examined. The amount appropriated for the use of the Commission is only $10,000, and is not sufficient to meet the expense of a thorough survey of the proposed route. John W. Goodwin and Col. Roberts will, however, give their personal attention to the matter, and the Commission will be able to accomplish the duty for which it was appointed.

Gov. Beaver's idea is to make a continuous water-way from New York to New Orleans entirely inland by connecting the Ohio river and Lake Erie and to enlarge the Erie Canal from Buffalo to Albany. He believes that it would be advantageous from both a commercial and military point of view. No committees were appointed, and the commission adjourned to meet in Pittsburg at the call of the president.

Suicide of a Child.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 25.—The body of Richard Todd, the eight-year-old son of Mrs. Annie Todd of West Manchester, who had been missing since Saturday, has been found in the Piscataquog river. The indications are that he committed suicide. He made a pretext to get away from the companion who was with him, and his jacket was found neatly folded on the bank of the river.

Episcopalians Adjourn.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The Episcopal General Convention of 1889 came to an end last evening after completing the revision of the Prayer Book without action by the House of Deputies on the transfer of the Prayer of Humble Access from its present place in the Communion Service to the proposed position after the Prayer of Consecration. The Committee of Conference recommended letting this proposed revision drop.

THREE AND THREE
Brooklyn and New York Tie for the Championship.

SIX MORE GAMES TO BE PLAYED.

A Twelve Inning Game Which was Saved and Won by Ward.

It Was the Most Exciting Contest of the Season—Terry and O'Day Both Pitched a Fine Game—3,000 Spectators Present. The League's Scheme for Fighting the Brotherhood Made Public.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Another sunless afternoon greeted the players and spectators of the sixth game in the World's Championship series at the Polo Grounds. The cool weather evidently had the same depressing effect on the attendance, and when play was called there were only about 3,000 persons present.

The game was the best and most exciting one thus far played and was anybody's game until Ward's hit sent Slattery home in the eleventh inning.

Brooklyn scored their first and only run in the second inning, earning it on hits by Pinkney, Visner, Terry and Corkhill.

After this, and until the tieing run in the ninth, both teams settled down to work, and some of the prettiest fielding and pitching ever seen here followed.

The New York "rooters" had about given up hope after Tiernan and Ewing had been retired in the ninth, but dying hope revived when Ward hit safely to centre, and by fine running and sliding, safely stole second and third. Big Roger Connor stood at the plate and with a mighty swipe of his muscular arms, sent the ball hissing past second, sending Ward in with the tieing run. Such cheering as followed has seldom been equalled, the crowd actually going crazy with excitement. After ten minutes of this the game was resumed. Connor stole second and third, but was left, Richardson going out to Foutz.

The tenth inning was quickly played, the batters being retired in order. The Brooklyns were blanked in the eleventh, but Slattery, the first up for New York, hit safely to left. Ewing sacrificed and Slattery reached second. Ward again came to the rescue, this time with a liner to left, which sent Slattery home with the winning run. The following is the score:

Each club has now won three games.

THE BASEBALL FIGHT.

How the League Intends to Fight the Brotherhood Players.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 26.—The "Sporting News" of this city, contains to-day, a rather startling article on how the League intends to fight the Brotherhood baseball players.

The scheme is to consolidate the National League and American Association into one organization of ten or twelve clubs. Each club is to contribute a large sum toward a guarantee fund, the money to be used in aiding the League club found to be suffering from competition with Brotherhood teams. Attempts will also be made to cripple the Brotherhood organization by offering large sums for the services of its players.

The statement is made that Von der Ahe has been offered a place in the organization and is willing to sacrifice Sunday games if the League contemplated can be formed.

NO RELIEF FOR TRAIN.

George Francis Refused a Writ of Habeas Corpus by Four Judges.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—A habeas corpus has been refused George Francis Train, held on mesne process in the Suffolk county jail. The petition was made by Lawyer E. A. Snow, asking for a hearing on Mr. Train's mental condition.

Judge Devens of the Supreme Judicial Court said: "Let him take the oath," while Mr. Snow maintained that an insane person is disqualified from taking an oath. The petition was also refused by Judge Bishop of the Superior Court on the ground that he would not issue a writ to bring the prisoner before Judge Devens after he had refused one himself, and Judge Aldrich of the same court to-day said he would not issue a writ since Judge Devens would dismiss it, and Judge Thompson said it could not properly come before him, as he was sitting on the Superior Criminal bench on jury trials. But a hearing is to be had on an order returnable to the Probable Court on October 28.

Six-day Walking Match.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 26.—A six days' race will open at the Gem Rink in this city on Monday afternoon. It will be the most interesting contest of pedestrains ever seen in this vicinity. Manager Bancroft has secured some of the most noted walkers in the country, who will enter the race and fight to the finish for a record.

Gompers for Senator.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Samuel Gompers, the well known labor advocate, was nominated last night for State Senator by the County Democrats of the Seventh District.

McIlvaine's Appeal.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 26.—When sentence of death by electricity was passed upon murderer McIlvaine, his counsel excepted to the sentence as unconstitutional, and gave notice of appeal. The appeal will operate as a stay of execution until it is decided.

THE JUROR WAS EXCUSED.

He Wished to Get Married and So Declared to the Court.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Oct. 26—Judge Dreher, of Carbon county, was trying an important case in the Mauch Chunk court house when one of the jurors, Leopold Becker, arose and said he would like to talk to the judge privately for a minute.

The judge said that the juror could address him from his seat. Mr. Becker said he had had every reason to believe that the case being tried would be ended before Wednesday evening; but it had not been. He was therefore compelled to ask the court to excuse him.

"Pray, what for?" asked the Judge. "You are not sick, or is there a death in your family?"

"No, worse than that," was the reply. "I am to be married this evening. I must travel forty miles and unless I leave the court now I cannot reach my bride in time, and you know how queer the women folks are. They will take no excuse."

The Judge didn't see how he could excuse the juror under the circumstances, but Becker made such a strong appeal that the attorneys on both sides of the case put their heads together and finally got their clients to consent to the decision of the remaining eleven jurors. Becker then left the court a happy man. In the evening he was joined in wedlock to Miss Mary Russ, daughter of Hotelkeeper Russ of Nesquehoning.

MURDERERS JAILED.

Ringleaders of the Navassa Riot Brought to Baltimore on the Galena.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—Seven sullen and desperate-looking negroes were last night landed from a United States man-of-war in Baltimore. They are now in jail.

They are the ringleaders of the riot at Navassa on September 14, when T. N. Foster, Joseph Falls, Stacey Foster, William Malone and William T. Shea, three of the white overseers of the Guano Island were butchered in cold blood by three negro workmen.

The chief conspirator of the massacre is George S. Key, a brutal looking negro, who is known to have killed Fales and to have shot another white man named Mahon.

The seven men now in jail were arrested by the marines of the United States ship Galena on the island, together with 113 of their follow conspirators.

Key and his six companions, who instigated the murders, were placed in irons on the man-of-war, and the other prisoners were confined in the holds of the brigs Romance and Alice, which are expected to arrive here within a week.

THE BOMB EXPLODED.

Terrible Accident to a Party of School Boys in a Pennsylvania Town.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 26.—A terrible accident happened on the Galloway farm near here last night. A party of school boys found a bomb loaded with giant powder, which they attempted to open when it exploded.

Ten of the boys were terribly hurt. John Fitzgerald's arm was blown off and his body horribly mutilated. He will die. Four others named Patterson, O'Conner, Rogers and Hudson are in a very precarious condition. The others will recover.

ARRESTED FOR ABDUCTION.

A Chinese Laundryman Lures Children Into His Den.

BUFFALO, Oct. 26.—Chung Lee, a Chinese laundryman, has been arrested at the instance of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children charged with abduction.

The first little girl that got into the grip of the Celestial was 13-year-old Annie King, of 108 Tupper street. He bribed the child to bring her companions with her. It has been ascertained that some eight or nine children whose ages range from 8 to 14 years, have visited the Chinaman's den at various times. Chung Lee is locked up for examination.

Scandinavians in New Hampshire.

CONTOOCOOKA, N. H., Oct. 26.—Merrimac County, Pomona Grange, held a public meeting at Bedford to discuss the repopulation by Scandinavians of the abandoned New Hampshire farms. Governor Goodal, Secretary Batchelder of the State Agricultural Board, Charles McDaniel, Master of the State Grange, C. W. Emery, Master of Pomona Grange, and others were present. The prevailing sentiment was in favor of encouraging the work of repopulating the farms.

The Colored Student Objects.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 26.—C. C. Cook, the colored student who was chosen as prize orator at Cornell, has declined the honor, on the ground that he was nominated by a faction, and that no choice of candidates was offered. He appreciates the compliment sought to be paid him, but does not court notoriety, and in fact forbade the use of his name as soon as he learned what was contemplated, but it was then too late to stop the election.

Bowman's Will and His Wives.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 26.—The will of the St. Louis lawyer, Frank J. Bowman, who was recently killed by B. M. Chambers, was filed in the Kings County Surrogate's office to-day. It is dated a few days after Bowman's marriage to Estelle Platt of this city, and leaves all his property to her. It will probably be contested by Bowman's other wives.

Executive Clemency.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The President has commuted to one year's actual imprisonment the sentence in the case of Palmer B. Wells, Jr., convicted of violating the postal laws, and sentenced February 7th last to eighteen months' imprisonment at hard labor in the Erie County Penitentiary, Buffalo, N. Y.

FED ON HUMAN FLESH
Shocking Case of Cannibalism by Earnmore Survivors.

ATE TWO OF THEIR COMRADES.

Twenty Days in an Open Boat Without Water and No Food.

The Cook Stripped the Flesh from the Ribs of the Men—Every One Had Murder in His Soul—Fighting to Suck the Blood After a Comrade Was Killed—Poisoned from the Human Flesh.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26.—Carl Graves, fireman, and Ludwig Loder, seaman, two survivors of the crew of the steamship Earnmoor, tell a story, horrible in its details, of the way they sustained life by canibalism for days. Loder said:

"The only food we had the first fifteen days in the boat was a flying fish and a few raw small sea birds divided among eleven men. On the sixteenth day out William Davis, a seaman, caught me by the throat and made a dash at my head with a knife. He cut me on the right cheek, the scar from which still remains, as you will see. He was told to kill me by August Plagge, a fireman. When Davis began to cut me, some of my companions caught him, but others shouted: Kill him! We want something to eat. We are starved.

"It seems that Plagg, Davis and others in one and of the boat had decided that I should die, as I suppose be pretty fat, I looked inviting. Plagg was placed in watch that night, but he was missing next morning. No one saw him go overboard.

"On the seventeenth day, William Robinson lay down to sleep. When they tried to call him, they found him dead. It was determined to eat his flesh, and William Wright the cook, was ordered to carve the body. The first thing done was to smash in Robinson's skull and from the fracture each one sucked the blood as long as it would last, which was but a little while. Then the cook siripped the flesh from the ribs. The next day this flesh in strips was placed on top of the water-tight compartments and dried in the sun. After taking out Robinson's liver, heart and other parts which would furnish blood to be sucked they threw his mutilated body into the sea.

"Two days after Robinson's death, the third engineer, Thomas Hunt died. His body was also cut up for food.

"In about three days," said Loder, "the limbs and feet of all began to swell and several have since broken out in ugly sores. We think it is poison from the human flesh and blood."

Both Grave and Loder say that they have no recollection of the taste of human flesh so great was their mental anguish at the time. Their only recollection of taking the food is feeling their own blood quicken as it coursed through their veins.

A MURDERER BAFFLED.

He Attempts Suicide but is Soon Restored by the Jailer.

EASTON, Pa., Oct. 24.—There was a decided sensation when the news reached the street that William H. Bartholomew, in jail here for the murder of Aaron W. Dilliard, made an unsuccessful attempt to hang himself. Thursday night. He tied a towel about his throat and fastened one end to his cell door. He did not tie the towel to the door fast enough and when he put his weight upon it he fell to the floor. The noise brought the jailer to his cell who found Bartholomew on the floor breathing heavily. He was soon restored. In the morning he asked to be taken to the cell occupied by Mrs. Dilliard, but the latter refused to see him.

The Confederates Can't Understand It.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26.—The despatch from Pittsburg with referenre to the action of the Paterson Post No. 88, G. A. R., in objecting to the erecting of Confederate monuments by the Maryland regiments, has caused considerable comment among Confederates in this city. They say that thea cannot understand how the Pittsburgers could have been led into such action. General Bradley T. Johnston said that the monument erected by the Second Maryland regiment at Gettysburg was the result of a pressing invitation from General Batcheller, the Federal historian of the Gettysburg Memoaial Association. There was certainly nothing objectionable in the monument, and Confederates had no apologies to make.

Tanner Still Popular.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Corporal Tanner appears to retain his popularity with the Grand Army of the Republic. At a special meeting of the Burnside Post last night an eager watch was kept for Corporal Tanner and Commissioner Raum, but neither put in an appearance. When Post Commander Hendricks inquired whether the ex-Commissioner was in the hall, with a request that he make himself "manifest in the flesh" if so, the popularity of the deposed Commissioner with the audience was manifested by a long round of applause, which did not contribute to his visibility in the least.

New Yorkers Subscribing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Additional subscriptions to the World's Fair guarantee fund have been received as follows: Drexel, Morgan & Co., $100,000; August Belmont $50,000; R. P. Flower $25,000; Tiffany & Co., $25,000; E. F. Shepard $25,000; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., $10,000; J. J. Little & Co., $5,000; Proprietors of "Puck" $5,000; also a large number of smaller sums.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—The people want the freight house moved away. Whether it goes towards Netherwood or Grant avenue stations, doesn't matter, so long as it is moved.

—After the present green two-cent postage stamps are used up, the public will be given smaller ones of a carmine color and different design. There will be less for the money, but they'll go just as far.

—Wetumpka Lodge, 3,401, will visit Alpha Lodge, 209, K. of H., Monday evening, Oct. 28. Hall No. 683 Broad street, Newark, N. J. Members wishing to attend will take the 6:54 P. M. train from Plainfield.

—Tickets can now be purchased at the station here, for Boston, via., Fall River and Stonington lines, at $3.60, on which baggage can be checked direct from Plainfield without any further care by the passenger.

—The meeting this evening at 73 West Front street, will commence with a service of song at 7:30. These meetings are steadily growing in attendance and interest, and souls are being saved. All are welcome.

—As Mr. Fosher, the well-known horse dealer, expects to return West in a few days, he intends to dispose of the remainder of his stock at auction to the highest bidders, next Monday afternoon, at two o'clock, at 58 West Front street.

—Business is booming at the Scott Printing Press Works. Casts are now made every day, whereas four weeks ago they were made only every other day, or three times a week. New men are also being taken on, to "rush" the work.

—The Woman's Temperance Aid Society will hold their adjourned annual business meeting on Tuesday afternoon next at 3 o'clock, in Reform Hall. It is important that every member be present, as the officers will be elected for the coming year.

—One of the finest audiences ever gathered in Plainfield filled the parquet and dress circle at Music Hall, last evening. All the swells were there, and Mr. Southern showed his appreciation by playing Lord Cholmondeley to the best of his ability.

—The Plainfield Crescent League expect to open their Club House on East Second street, Monday evening, Nov. 4. Applications for admission to the Association are being presented almost every day, and probably in another month the membership will reach 100.

—Quite a revival spirit was manifest at the W. C. T. U., four o'clock evangelistic meeting at 73 West Front street, last Sunday afternoon, when three persons were converted. These meetings furnish an excellent opportunity for Christian workers of all denominations to do practical work. All are cordially invited.

Too Much Water Works.

The water-main in Communipaw avenue, near Pacific avenue, Jersey City, burst yesterday morning and the streets were soon flooded. The water poured into the basement of W. L. Kopido's dry goods store and he estimates the damage to his stock to have been $2,000 or $3,000.

He claims the break was due to the negligence of the Street and Water Board and threatens to sue the city. The roadway has been damaged in spots and vehicles are kept off. It is feared that the foundations of the new building occupied by Mr. Kopido have been seriously undermined by the rush of water.

Embarking in the Water Business.

It was reliably reported last night at Elizabeth that ex-Congressman John Kean, Jr., had bought from Joseph Battin a controlling interest in the Elizabeth Water Company, which has a monopoly of furnishing water to the city and is a very wealthy corporation.

Mr. Battin, who has been President of the Company for years, is a millionaire, over 80 years of age, and, it is said, wants to retire from active business. Ex-Congressman Kean will probably assume the Presidency of the Company and be the virtual manager. It is hinted that a rival company will be organized.

Sleeplessness.

DR. FLINT'S REMEDY is the best remedy known for insomonia, or sleeplessness, which afflicts so many persons, and which leads to so many serious nervous diseases, particularly to insanity. Descriptive treatise with each bottle; or address Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

SHOT IN THE DARK.

An Unknown Person Puts a Bullet in a Central Railroad Fireman's Arm.

Engine No. 320, attached to a train of empty coal cars, went through this city bound East about 2 30 o'clock this morning. Just after passing Somerville and while running through what is known as the "VanDerveer Cut," the report of a pistol or gun was heard and the fireman on the engine felt a sharp pain through his arm.

Examination showed he had been shot. It would have been impossible in the dark to discover who fired, so no effort was made to capture the miscreant. The train proceeded on its way, and the victim received surgical attention as soon as it could be procured.

It is supposed that some tramp, who had been put off of that or another train on which he had been stealing a ride, fired the shot in revenge. He will probably never be apprehended.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. Thomas Armstrong, of Reynolds' pharmacy, has been confined to his home for the past week with a severe cold.

United States Senator John R. McPherson and Gov. Green, are announced to speak in Reform Hall, Wednesday evening of next week.

Dr. Ketcham will preach in the M. E. church to-morrow morning, and the Rev. C. B. Mitchell will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church during the same service.

Mme. Alberti presents a paper before the Ingham Alumnæ Association in New York city next Wednesday. Her subject is the one she handles so ably: "Delsarte Principles; Application in Society and in the Home."

The attention of all the young woman readers of THE PRESS, is called to the poem in another column entitled "Too Many Irons in the Fire." It is written by a talented woman seventy years of age, the mother of Mrs. George Richardson, of LaGrande avenue.

The testimony in the action to eject the Scotch Plains church from possession of the real estate left it by Frazee Lee, is all in at Elizabeth, and ex-Chancellor Runyon will sum up for the defendant Monday morning. A large audience will undoubtedly be present to hear him.

The many friends of Captain and Mrs. George M. Phillips will be much saddened to hear of the former's alarming illness. The Captain is lying seriously sick of a dangerous heart trouble, and great anxiety is felt by those in attendance. Mrs. Phillips is without a blood relative in this country.

A Clever Young Manager.

Mr. Erwin M. Young, for so many years a resident of this city, and whose wife is the daughter of Mr. Calvin Neighbor, of East Front street, recently returned from Europe where he has been looking after the interests at the Paris Exposition of a Western sewing machine company with which he is connected as New York Manager.

That he served his employers well is shown by the following extract from a New York paper:

"Mr. E. M. Young has just got back from Paris to the New York headquarters on Union Square. He was yesterday seen by a reporter of this paper, and in answer to various questions said that his company had maintained a regular branch in Paris for three years past, and that they were doing by far the largest business of any American sewing machine company in France. The company have also a branch in London, and do a big business among the English people, in spite of their conservative ways. The London office is headquarters for all European trade of the company. Mr. Young also says that the prospects for the company's business, both at home and abroad, could hardly be better than they are."

A Runaway on Peace Street.

An accident of a serious nature occurred on Peace street, yesterday afternoon, which, although lucky as it was, resulted in doing considerable damage. The wife of Gen. Schwenk, who occupies what is known as the Holly Farm, was driving to the station to meet her husband. A passing train frightened the animal she was driving, and the horse ran away. At the corner of Peace and Second streets, the runaway rig went on the sidewalk, and knocked down a panel of fence. The horse was captured before doing further damage.

Mrs. Schwenk was considerably injured, but she was able to be taken home in a carriage.

The many friends of Mrs. Schwenk will be pained to hear of her misfortune, and will be glad to learn of her ultimate recovery.

Special to Young Men.

Rev. D. W. Skellenger of Dunellen will conduct the Young Men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Monday evening. Those who have heard Mr. Skellenger on former occasions need not be reminded that he is an earnest and magnetic speaker. Let every one of the members of the Association strive to bring some young men with him to this service. Every man is invited to be present and to join heartily in the singing.

Walking advertisements. Every man, woman and child who has once tried Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cannot say enough in its praise.

The wonderful cure by Salvation Oil of Mr. M. S. Culp, a chronic rheumatic, 229 George street, Baltimore, Md., has awakened wide-spread interest.

"TOO MANY IRONS IN THE FIRE."

For The Press.

Whenever I see a beautiful girl
With rosy lips and teeth like pearl,
And witching smile which she tries on all
As she seeks in turn each one to enthrall;
Laughing aloud in her scornful glee,
Thinking to choose from all, she's free;
I long to whisper these words in her ear—
"Too many irons to heat my dear."
One will cool off—another be gone
Before to the welding heat they'll come.
Others flash up like worthless bone
Or lie in the ashes as cold as a stone.
She may blow, and blow, till she's fairly tired,
Alas! the dead embers can never be fired;
And she sees, too late, she has played her game
And lost forever her chance for a flame;
And will find ere the last faint sparks expire—
That "too many irons she's had in the fire."

—Ellen C. VanDeusen.

A Three Base Hit.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—In an out of the way corner of the news I found the following lines:

In a communication the Young Crescents deny that they were defeated by the Green Brooks by a score of 9 to 0 in a game of ball and say that they defeated the the club who claim the victory.

If the Y. C. do not know when they were defeated by the Greenbrooks 9 to 0, I'll tell them.

It was when we started a game of ball on the Washington street grounds, and after we finished 5 innings (with the score 18 to 8 in favor of the Greenbrooks) they refused to play and would not give any reason (I believe the rules are that the score should be 9 to 0 in such a case) and one of their number said he'd go home and get a seven shooter. This so terrified the Greenbrooks that they left the field in terror but at last the Y. C's relented and let us live.

We thanked them very much (so much that the bricks started from the ground and sang hymns through the air).

Now I guess they'll remember the occasion. Last night I met their valiant Captain, M. Sutphen, and said I would like to satisfy his wounded honor. But strange to say he did not have the time. Never mind my hearties, next season I'll play you a series of 11 games, and if you succeed in winning the odd one, I'll present you with a leather medal suitably inscribed with the center cut out. Now the Y. C's are indeed shining lights, but they are hid under bushel baskets.

Take an old man's advice Young Crescents, and tell the truth.

ROOSTER, (alias One who Knows.)

Owning Up.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Young Crescents admit that they made a mistake in the games put in the paper, and what the Green Brooks say is all right. The Young Crescents also admit that they were defeated by the Green Brooks, by a score of 9 to 0, but say that the Young Crescents also defeated the Green Brooks by the same score. Let Master Ford turn back the leaf of his book and look and see the time his catcher hit the Young Crescents pitcher in the head with a ball.

ANOTHER WHO KNOWS.

A Mission in Grace Church.

The Rev. G. A. Carstensen, the General Missioner of the Parochial Missions Society proposes to conduct a mission in Grace church, beginning on Nov. 17 and and continuing until the 24th inclusive.

Seats will be free, and a cordial welcome is extended to Christians of every name. The services will be: Sundays—An early celebration of the Holy Communion, at 7:30 A. M. Morning Prayer, etc., at 10:30 A. M. Children's Service, at 4:30 P. M. Evening Prayer, at 8 o'clock, for men only.

Other days—Morning Prayer, at 10 A. M. Instruction in the Christian Life, 10:30 A. M. Evening Prayer at 4 o'clock. Mission Service—Sermon and "after Meeting," at 7:45 P. M. Thursday Morning—Holy Communion. Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 18 and 19, Question Box, at 4 P. M.

Fond Recollections.

How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood
When fond recollection presents them to view!
The horse-chestnut necklace we made in the wildwood,
The diamonds the dew-laden leaves did accrue;
The vapory rings from the hearth-fire's renewals,
The spider-wrought chains in the emerald dell—
But lovelier still are the beautiful jewels
And presents at Collier's that none can excel.
The dear, dainty, delicate, deftly-wrought jewels
That fit both our tastes and our purses so well.

Notice.

Those interested in the organization of a Co-operative Association in this city, will please meet at Laing's Hall on Monday evening, Oct. 28, at 7:45 P. M. The committee appointed at the first meeting will present their report for consideration and approval.

Grapes for Health.

The use of ripe grapes for dinner is of incalculable benefit to the human system, and the Pure Grape Juice, properly preserved, is invaluable for weakly persons and invalids. The Port Grape Wine and the Grape Juice preserved from his own vineyards, by Alfred Speer of New Jersey, is pronounced by the leading medical experts to be the most reliable to be obtained. To use the Unfermented Grape Juice is just like eating the ripe sweet grape.

—Again the adventists prepared for the end of the World, yesterday, and as usual they were left.

Dangerous Trifling.

It is not only foolish, but dangerous, to trifle with indigestion or liver derangement. Take the proper remedy as soon as possible, and avoid all danger incident to delay. HAMBURG FIGS are a specific for these affections. 25c. Dose, one fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

FUR MUFFS AND CAPES.

WE have just received three cases of Muffs, Capes and Fur Trimmings from three of the best Fur Houses in New York, which are now being displayed. The large assortment comprises everything desirable in this line, and we can confidently say that no such exhibition of these goods have ever been made in this city before. THIS WEEK will be the best opportunity to get the choice selections, as later on they will be sold. "A word to the wise," etc., you know.

LACE CURTAINS!—Is another specialty with us this week. We have purchased several "closing out" lots from the Importers, and offer EXTRA BARGAINS in these goods.

WINDOW SHADES!—We have been very agreeably surprised at the increased demand made upon us in this department. Everybody is pleased with the excellent and prompt manner in which our work is done.

PARTIES having houses to Shade or Carpet, will do well to get our "estimate" before ordering elsewhere.

Proposed Railroad Connections.

A party of New York and Pennsylvania coal men and railroad officials, representing the Jersey Central Company, the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, the Lehigh and Hudson River Company, F. A. Potts & Co, and two New Orleans bankers, visited Springfield and Holyoke, Mass., on Thursday, to study the terminus of the Connecticut Western Railroad. The party started from Phillipsburg, N. J., and inspected the extension of the Lehigh and Hudson River Railroad, which is under the control of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, from Greycourt to Campbell Hall, N. Y., connecting at the latter place with the Pougkeepsie Bridge route. The Connecticut Western will be completed next Summer, and opens a direct route from the Pennsylvania mines to the New England seaboard via Poughkeepsie Bridge. The Central of New Jersey is understood to be bidding against the Pensylvania for control of the Connecticut Western Railroad's eastern outlet. The latter system, it is said, has the inside track. The visitors occupied the General Superintendent's car of the Jersey Central and the special observation car of the Lehigh Coal Navigation Company.

The Union County Roads.

The Committee on County Roads inspected the roads a few days ago. In a recent interview with Freeholder James T. Pierson, concerning the character of the work, the latter said the committee was well pleased with it, as it was being done in a thorough manner. He further said that the roads which are being constructed by the Freeholders will, when complete, be models. The officers, after examining the roads, organized, so that at least one Freeholder will make an examination of the work every day until it is completed. Freeholder Pierson said the Board feels the responsibility resting ing upon them, and will not neglect the important work with the oversight of which they have been entrusted. They invite all citizens to visit the road under construction, and see for themselves how their money is being spent, and also to get a practical knowledge of road making. He wisely suggests that our road overseers especially should avail themselves of the opportunity for getting points.

Two Mammoth Cars.

The largest cars in the world are owned by Prof. Geo. Bartholomew. The one car is 76 feet long and the other 70 feet. The two cost over twenty thousand dollars. They are of original and novel design. The two cars will arrive from Philadelphia on the passenger train to-morrow morning at 11:30 and will be side tracked at the Central Railroad passenger depot for one week. Bartholomew and members of his company occupy the palace car and the twenty-four horses occupy the other car.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER

THE PUREST AND BEST

Is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, and a small portion of flour as a preservative, nothing else whatever, and is warranted entirely free from alum, ammonia, phosphates, lime, and all the adulterants frequently found in baking powders. The character of materials used, their purity, and the nicety of their combination, render Cleveland's superior baking powder the most healthful and most economical in use, and it always affords wholesome, nutritious, and delicious food.

It is recommended for purity, healthfulness and efficiency by Government and State chemists, chemists of Boards of Health, and professors in institutions of learning throughout the country.

THE GREAT FAITH CURE.

Afflicted Persons are Annointed and Restored to Bodily Health.

READING, Oct. 26.—Strange and unusual scenes were witnessed at the Faith Cure Convention held here for the cure of bodily ailment by the Mennonite Brethren in Christ. About a dozen persons who claimed to be afflicted with various ailments knelt at the altar, and, after being anointed, they jumped to their feet and cried aloud that they had been cured. Revs. C. W. Rulb, of Indianapolis, Ind.; R. J. Trumbower, of Chester county; R. Kaufman, of Lancaster county; Frank Hass, of Philadelphia; Edwin L. Hyde, Conshohocken, Oswin Hilleges and J. Addison Kutz, of Reading, were among the officiating ministers.

United States War College.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 26.—The Board of Officers, with Captain Pythian as President, is here under instructions from Secretary Tracy to arrange for the consolidation of the United States War College, the torpedo station and the naval training station. Each station will have an executive officer and there will also be an officer in charge of the consolidated station.

ELECTRIC STREET RAILWAY

CAPITAL—$70,000, in 1,400 Shares of $50 Each.

It is intended to open the books for subscriptions to the stock and bonds of the proposed Company, on Thursday, the 24th of October,

at the CITY NATIONAL BANK, where a printed statement of the cost of Plant, probable earnings, and other particulars may be obtained.

As it is important that the matter should be taken up at once, those who are interested will greatly facilitate the work by a prompt response.

Rumors of threatened injunctions to restrain the Company from the use of the storage batteries, having been freely circulated by a few hostile persons who seem to lack the courage to let their names appear, it should be added that the batteries it is proposed to use are in daily service in almost all the important cities of the Union, and are sold with an ample guarantee by entirely responsible parties against loss or interference in their use. There are cars in commercial operation every day using these batteries exclusively, and they are not enjoined simply because there is no ground for an injunction. Any further threats of this kind will be traced to their source and promptly disposed of as the law provides.

"THE CUNNING FOX"

Pat Cooney to Testify Against the Cronin Suspects.

HE WILL REVEAL THE PLOT.

It is Said His Evidence Will Clear Up the Great Mystery.

He Turns State's Evidence to Save His Neck—Negotiations Made Through Chief Hubbard—The Prosecution Prepared to Tell the Jury How Dr. Cronin Was Removed.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—The prosecution's trump card in the Cronin case, nothing of which has yet been published, will be played toward the close of the State's evidence. This will be the production on the stand of Pat Cooney to testify against the suspects and lay bare every missing link in the great conspiracy and to tell just how and by whom Cronin was murdered.

Cooney, "the fox," was indicted with the others. He was arrested before he was suspected of connection with the case, but was released and disappeared.

It has always been thought that Coughlin, Burke and Cooney, one or all of them, were the actual assassins. As the evidence became public Cooney, safe for the time at least in his refuge, saw that his capture meant a serious thing, and to save his own neck decided to make overtures to the prosecution.

The latter needed direct evidence to prove the actual murder, and though Cooney was wanted badly to stand trial, it was decided to accept his offer. Without it the State feared that a conviction would not follow. With it they thought five men would be found guilty, while but one would escape punishment.

Cooney was in Missouri at the time and made his offer to Longenecker through a friend. Being guaranteed protection in the State Attorney's own handwriting he consented to see and speak with Longenecker's representative. The latter was Sheriff Matoon, who consulted with Cooney near Sedalia, Mo., and brought back Cooney's terms to the State Attorney.

Another wait was made, all the details were arranged and the cunning "fox" reached Chicago several weeks ago in custody of a trusted officer, said to have been Chief Hubbard. He has told Longenecker everything, and by so doing has cleared up many vacant spots in the State's case.

The prosecution is now prepared to tell the jury how the Irish doctor was butchered, and lay bare the "removal" in all its hideous details, and on Cooney's testimony Longenecker is confident that the five men now on trial can be convicted.

Most unusual interest was manifested by the public in the trial yesterday. Half a dozen witnesses were examined, but nothing of vital importance was developed.

DAVITT'S SPEECH.

He Tells the Commission Something About the League in America.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Mr. Davitt, in his speech to the Commission, pointed out that it was not he but Mr. Parnell who formed the Land League in America. It was untrue, as asserted by LeCaron, that Parnell's tour in America at that time was managed by the Clan-na-Gael. No money collected in America, Mr. Davitt said, was ever intended to assist armed rebellion in Ireland. He declared that the landlord system ought to be abolished and the land vested in the State. The money raised in America for the benefit of the Irish cause, he said, was mainly contributed by Irish working men and women.

He denied the existence of an alliance between the National League, or the Land League, and any other revolutionary organization in Ireland. He knew, he declared, that Pigott had confessed that the alleged Parnell letters were forgeries before that person testified. Presiding Justice Hannon said he could not accept such a statement without evidence to support it.

Mr. Davitt said he would not press it now, but the allegations would be proved later.

Circulars issued by the "Times" were those produced to show that the document purporting to prove an alliance between the League and revolutionary organizations were forgeries.

KILRAIN WILLING.

He Is His Earnest Hope that He May Meet Sullivan Again.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 26.—Jake Kilrain was seen at his home to-day in regard to Sullivan's challenge. He said he had not heard of it. "It is very foolish," he continued, "for either one of us to talk fight until the Mississippi affair has been amicably settled, as such business will do us great harm when our trials come up. It is my earnest hope that I may be permitted to meet Sullivan again, and, after the Mississippi affair has been settled to our satisfaction, I will be ready to meet him in glove or knuckle fight, any kind of condition and any kind of purse. Sullivan's challenge will not go unnoticed, for when the boards are cleared he'll find me after him hot and fast."

Kilrain looks the perfect picture of health, and is getting stout. He has been at work, however, the past month reducing his flesh.

Believed to be Tascott.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—A man who is known as Charles Harris, who was arrested at Reading for forging the name of General Passenger Agent Wood of the Pennsylvania Railroad to checks, and who admits his guilt, is believed to be Tascott, the Chicago murderer. He has all the scars and wounds, the bad teeth, facial characteristics, habits, etc., mentioned in the descriptions of Tascott. Tascott is described as a guitar and mandolin player, and among the prisoner's effects are a guitar and some zither strings.

Peel Defeated but a Liberal Gain.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—In the election for member of Parliament for Brighton, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sir William Tindal Robertson, who recently committed suicide, Gerold Loder the Unionist candidate was elected, receiving 7,182 votes. Sir Robert Peel, Gladstonian, received 4,625. The Conservative majority at the last election was 3,242, so to-day's result shows a Liberal gain of 735 votes.

LOUISE LAWSON SCULPTOR

An Artist Whose Work Shows Growing Power.

An Ohio Woman Who Studied in Paris Under Rhodin and Whose Marbles Stand Beside Those of Harriet Hosmer and Anne Whitney.

COPYRIGHT 1889.

Women sculptors can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Vinnie Ream's abortive statues did not advance their reputation, but Harriet Hosmer's work has strength, if at times it lacks freedom, and Anne Whitney's model for the Sumner statue in Boston, which now belongs to the Union League Club's collection, and the controversy about which has been revived recently in the newspapers, was undoubtedly the best one offered to the committee and was rejected because designed by a woman. To these two names must be added that of Louise Lawson, whose studio is in East Fifty-ninth Street, New York, whose work has won for her the friendship of Story and of Sir Frederick Leighton, and whose figures bear the distinct impress of originality and imagination.

Miss Lawson is an Ohio woman. She modelled figures in clay in her play hours instead of making mud pies like other children, she entered the Cincinnati Art School with the clearly defined purpose of bending all her efforts in the direction of sculpture; she studied in New York and Boston, and then she went to Paris and became a pupil of Rhodin. From Paris she went to Italy, and in Rome and the Etruscan city, Perugia, she studied and worked three years. Then she returned to America and for a year and a half, or thereabouts, her studio, with its warm-colored Roman hangings, has been the resort of artists and connoisseurs.

The sculptor herself is a piquant figure of a woman standing just five feet high. Her face is strongly and clearly, indeed nobly, modelled, but made gracefully feminine by curly brown hair. Like Rosa Bonheur she finds the feminine burden of skirts an incumbrance about her daily occupations, and wears, when climbing about a life size statue, a fencing costume of blouse, long stockings, knee trousers and short skirt, not quite reaching the knees. This is for modelling in clay. When finishing the marble she wears simple, flowing white gowns.

Sculpture is somewhat arduous work for a woman, but Miss Lawson sets up the iron for the clay figure and trusts less of the marble work to mechanics than is usual, doing in some cases most even of the rougher work, the pointing out of her statues. She works from life always and finds good models very hard to procure.

Her method of finishing flesh is decidedly original. Instead of the smooth polish given to the surface by so many Italian workers in marble, Miss Lawson uses a rasp, which gives a lifelike texture not unlike the skin. Her knowledge of the proportions of the human figure is excellent, and her study of anatomy, as shown in the poise and vigor of her figures and the workings of the muscles thorough. Her work is clean and straightforward without side issues or meretricious tricks of drapery to distract attention from the figures.

The "Rhodian Boy," which was shown at Tiffany's a year or two ago, is an excellent example of her delicacy of conception and artistic workmanship. It excited much attention while on exhibition. The slim, boyish figure is that of a "swallow lad" of the City of Roses in the days of its splendor, 2,000 years ago, when Rhodes was the gayest capital of the world, and the Rhodian harvest festival a revel not unlike the Carnival of Rome. It was celebrated by gangs of frolicsome boys who went from one rich house to another, singing songs, bearing festoon of roses, the emblem of the island, and carrying swallows, whose twittering they mimicked, and in whose name they demanded bread and wine, fruit and wheat, just as New York and Brooklyn gamins, blowing horns and wearing masks and fantastic clothes, go about in begging bands on Thanksgiving day. The swallows were to the Rhodians birds of good omen, and the statue is an inimitably graceful figure of a beautiful boy with a swallow in his hand, waiting with a wistful look for the opening of the rich man's door. The tender curves of childhood passing into the young vigor of the lad have seldom had such a portrayal. The pedestal completes the idea of the statue. It is carved in low relief with dancing boys twined with rose garlands.

Miss Lawson has a special gift for setting forth the graces of childhood. A recent commission is a large bas relief for Stephen B. Elkins' new house. It is to be set in the wall and shows the heads of his four boys, Stephen, Blaine and two other little fellows, charming in plaster, whose names I have forgotten. It is to be cast, I believe, in bronze, and makes a spirited composition. Two of the most attractive things in the studio, beautiful with an idyllic charm, are heads of children, one the bust of a curly-haired girl the other that of a boy.

"Ayacanora" is regarded by many critics as the best work Miss Lawson has yet done. It is a woman's figure, of the Diana type, full of the deep-bosomed strength and abounding maidenly vigor of the antique models. Ayacanora is the heroine of Canon Kingsley's "Westward Ho," and the statute was undertaken at the suggestion of some of Kingsley's English admirers and friends. It was modeled at Perugia, and on its completion the oldest academy of fine arts in Italy, founded by Perugino and the early school at Raphael, conferred on her a medal and a diploma of honor and placed her portrait in its gallery. Ayacanora is represented in the story as a Spanish girl, daughter of one of the early explorers, who was carried off in babyhood by a tribe of Indians and became their queen. The figure shows her at the moment when she is surprised by the English adventurers under Amyas Leigh, while she is fishing on the banks of the Meta, and when, "quick as light, she caught up from the ground a bow and held it fiercely toward him." The face is a strong Spanish face full of defiance and surprise. Heavy braids of hair fall upon the shoulders, a quiver with arrows is slung behind and the lithe figure instinct with determined energy is in the attitude which Mme. Bola the ballet dancer, called the most graceful possible to a woman, that of the archer just discharging an arrow. The flesh finish of this statute is noteworthy. The marble itself when struck is as musical as a bell. The block from which the statue was cut cost $800 before a flake had been chipped from it, and was taken from the little Seravessa quarry which was discovered by Michael Angelo. Ayacanora stands on a pedestal representing two dormant tigers.

"Why do the tigers sleep, Signorina?" asked a little Italian boy who wandered in one day.

"It would be a sorry day if they waked for Ayacanora," was the laughing reply.

The boldest flight of the sculptor's imagination is a figure called "The Origin of the Harp," which is intended to realize in marble Tom Moore's ideal in his ode of that name. The allegory is that of a sea maiden transformed to a harp, and the statue tries to sieze on the passion of disappointed love which caused the metamorphosis. The siren's head and bosom are those of a beautiful woman. The heavy strands of her hair are changing to the chords of the harp, the form of which already appears. The lower part of the body is that of a mermaid. The conception is a bold one and it is not possible to say that the realization is wholly satisfactory. The theme demands mystical handling which it is difficult to suggest in so clean cut and definite a material as marble. The figure, however, is beautiful in detail and not without its charm. So many tumbles result from losing the cautious grip on mother earth that it is much to say of this daring flight that its results are at least creditable and interesting. The pedestal is a beautiful piece of workmanship carved in the form of dolphins.

Miss Lawson is probably the only modern sculpter who has gone to the antique for that form of the portrait bust which the Latins called Terminus and the Greeks Hermes. The Greeks used boundary posts to mark the junction of highways which took the shape of heads of Hermes or Mercury on the top of quadrangular stone pillars. At a later date rich Romans often gave commissions to sculptors to execute busts in the same style for the decoration of their halls or libraries. Miss Lawson has employed the Hermes for the bust of a relative, and it has certainly this advantage that it obviates entirely the sculptor's difficulties with modern costume.

One of her latest pieces of work is a panel to be cast in bronze showing in relief the profile of a Shoshone Indian maiden. This is still in clay and so lifelike that it recalls Thorwaldsen's saying: "Clay is life, plaster is death, marble is resurrection." Only those who have been much about a sculptor's workshop quite appreciate this dictum. The Indian is a favorite subject with Miss Lawson. She is now busy with a life size statute of a fencer which promises to be as spirited a portrayal of the masculine figure as "Ayacanora" is of the feminine. Her model is a young Hebrew who is a splendid specimen of athletic development. After the usual sculptor's practice she sets up her clay figure nude to bring out the muscles and then puts on the clay clothes. The head is left as bald as Bill Nye's for a season, but at a later date it gets its growth of hair. The sculptor is herself a clever fencer and enters upon her subject con amore.

In reply to a question she said that she could not understand the life of a woman who had not some absorbing object, some work to which all her energies were devoted. For herself there had never been any hesitation, any groping in the dark to find what she could do. As a child she wished to be a sculptor, and when she opened her own studio in Rome she had been studying fourteen years. This is a different preparation from that of Vinnie Ream, who drifted into a sculptor's studio, looked around, said "I guess I can do that," and proceeded to cast a hand and stick it on a Lincoln. The first thing Miss Lawson did in Rome was to sign a petition circulated by Story for the removal of the tariff from the works of foreign artists, and she gives her influence to the same cause now that she is at home. She believes in dress reform, and thinks that the day of more convenient attire for women is at hand. She believes in the future of women artists, and that the woman's vivid imagination when aided by proper training will carry her far. She impresses one first and foremost as a thouroughly happy woman to whom the world through her devotion to her art has turned a sunshiny side.

ELIZA PUTNAM HEATON.

THE DOINGS OF WOMEN FOLK

In Crisp October, When the Winds Blow and the Leaves Fall.

The two Vassar girls who have been running the Atlantic Highlands "Independent" have given up their journalistic venture. It is a pity because they showed themselves possessed of genuine business energy. They bought out the paper when one of them had a year and the other had two years more to remain in school, and when the sheet was on its last legs, being the property of a man who got it out regularly for a few months at a time until he had eaten and drank up the cash subscriptions, when he allowed it to lapse until he had a fresh spasm of energy and could get a fresh lot of people to subscribe. They conducted it from Vassar, and the one who sooner received her degree made haste to sit on the editorial tripod in person to deliver the oracles until the other should arrive. They put up a substantial brick building, bought improved presses, ran their own engine and made practical printers of themselves, improving the paper so materially that the report spread among the Highlanders that there was plenty of money backing the girl editors and that it wouldn't be of the least use for anybody to start in opposition. In reality Miss Ella S. Leonard and Miss Caroline T. Lingle had no support but their own enterprise. This, however, served them in good stead, even when it came to doing battle with so redoubtable a body as the Association for the Advancement of Women. This excellent organization has some unbusinesslike members, and one of these happened two or three years ago to be chairman of a committee on printing the papers read at the preceding annual Congress. The work was offered to the job office of the college girls in Jersey, but not a line of copy was furnished until a month after the date on which it had been stipulated the bulky published volumes should be ready for distribution. Nevertheless, the chairman, in apologizing in convention for the delay in its issue, saw fit to throw the blame on the printers and to make a virtue of having placed the commission with "a struggling firm of women." Miss Leonard happened to be one of the chairman's auditors and much to that lady's surprise very quietly but firmly vindicated the business reputation of Leonard & Lingle. The "Independent" flourished and was expected to graduate in a year or two from a weekly into a daily, at least during the summer season. But Miss Lingle's health has been poor of late; she was quite ill and was obliged to take a long vacation during the summer, and it seemed best that the partnership should be dissolved. It is a pity. When so many women are teaching and type-writing for next to nothing a successful venture in another field was a wholesome example.

Some one was saying the other day that the reason why Harriet Hosmer, who is now in this country, has produced nothing noteworthy in sculpture for a long time past is that she has given herself over for years to the pursuit of something perilously like that ignis fatuous, perpetual motion. She devoted herself while in England, at the house of Lady Ashburton, to the invention or some mechanical contrivance which always was to be perfect in the course of the next week or two. Meeting Story, the sculptor, one afternoon she told him that in a fortnight her machine would be ready for exhibition. The time passed, but her mechanic had disappointed her, something was not quite as it should be. Most of her fortune, this informant surmised, was eaten up by the machine. When Miss Hosmer came to America her machine was to follow by the next steamer. It did not come and she took ship again and went back after it to England. What has become of it since was a point not elucidated. Miss Hosmer has been staying much with Mrs. Carr, of Boston, who is a daughter of the rich Mr. Crow, of St. Louis, another of whose daughters now has Charlotte Cushman's villa.

Would it not have been funny if John Lawrence Sullivan had been made a drawing-room attraction by the elite of Beacon Hill and the Back Bay? That same wealthy and eccentric social leader whose religious enthusiasm caused her to do penance last Lent by driving to church, going down on her knees and scrubbing the steps and then driving home, has been using her best efforts to pare the lion's claws, draw his teeth and put him through his tricks in a parlor. It seems that on one occasion, memorable to the lady, John L.'s carriage stopped the way. The street was crowded with admirers pressing for a sight of the champion, and her carriage was caught in the block and could not proceed. When Sullivan heard that he was inconveniencing a lady he left his triumphal car, came to her horses' heads and forced a passage by main strength through the throng. The lady's fancy was captured by this bit of chivalry, and being rich enough to do as she pleases without question she sent forthwith an invitation to her house to the big fellow. Sullivan was puzzled as to his line of action. Perhaps he felt as equal to a drawing room as to the halls of Congress, but Boyle O'Reilly told him not to go and he stayed away. If instead he had accepted and the blue blood of Boston had been asked to meet him it would have been decidedly an interesting occasion.

The Woman's Medical College of the New York Infirmary has a larger entering class than usual, no fewer than thirty-five. This is the school which was founded by Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell, the first regularly graduated woman physician in the country, and of which her sister, Dr. Emily Blackwell, is now Dean. One of the students is a woman who lives up the Hudson at Newburgh and gets up long before daylight, leaving twin children 3 years old, to pursue her studies. Many of the women who go in for medicine nowadays graduate first as trained nurses. At Bellevue they receive $10 a month the first year for their services and $14 for the rest of the course. This supports them while they are acquiring a business which will pay from $30 to $50 weekly, wages out of which they can lay by money to enter a medical college in a third the time it would take if, for instance, they were teaching. The knowledge they gain is of direct use in the new profession, and in some schools, notably that at Ann Arbor, the diploma takes a year off the time required for the medical course.

To all appearances we are going to have an Ibsen craze this winter. The Tolstoi craze of last season in a sense paved the way for enthusiasm over the Swedish realist, and Ibsen classes and possibly Ibsen clubs will shortly be the order of the day. Ibsen's plays have not been put on the stage in New York yet in an English dress, so that no such controversy has been awakened as arose among the critics last winter in London, but they are being played in German at the Amberg, and that small-sized house of amusement is crowded every evening. An Ibsen drama is by no means exciting. It has no situations. It introduces only three or four characters and nothing much ever happens to any of these. They simply talk and talk garrulously like Howell's people, if only Howells were a Swede. They are a new style of realistic drama, totally unlike anything that has been staged before, and while the taste for them would seem to be an acquired one like that for olives it is the fashion to praise them and there is already a small but growing Ibsen school, composed mostly, it is needless to say, of women who foster every literary fad and are ready to pet an author who deals with social problems and has his doubts about marriage.

This is dressmaking season, and it is not to be supposed that all women, even those who have millions in their own right, have all their gowns made by expensive dressmakers. Mrs. Goldbug has her own economies. She does not, indeed, instruct her coachman to pull up at a second or third-rate modiste's door, but she takes, for instance, a defunct dinner robe that in its heyday of youth served her well. The lady's-maid—useful functionary—is instructed to rip out the lining carefully without pulling or stretching the seams, and on this well-fitting foundation a new toilet is constructed, rising phœnix-like from the ruins of the old, a home-made dress thus getting the benefit of a Parisian foundation. It is a great mistake to suppose, however, that all dressmakers who charge $100 or $200 for their services invariably send home well-fitting gowns. No long time ago I assisted in the lamentations of a pretty girl who was in a state of great disgust over an evening dress which she was putting on for the first time and which was cut too low in the back and wrinkled in an ugly manner. Eternal vigilance is the price of pretty toilets, and the heretical opinion must here be ventured that it is not worth the paying. Shades of generations of women, do not avenge.

Catches a Fossil Trout.

William G. Dillingham, while fishing in Gordon Creek, Oregon, a few days since, discovered a beautiful fossil trout, fifteen inches in length, in a huge bowlder. Every fin and scale of the fish was as plainly marked in the rock as if cut by a skilled artist. Many people wonder how trout get in streams above high falls. They were doubtless there before the falls were made, as from this fossil it is evident that there were trout in the streams of Oregon in prehistorical ages. Mr. Dillingham intends to go out some day and catch that fossil trout with a hammer and chisel.

Cures Quickly.
Pleasant, Pure.
A POWERFUL TONIC
A Specific for Malaria, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration.
THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PURIFIER. Superior to quinine.
Mr. Lode Hoornbeck, of the U. S. Ship Kearsarge, writes that he meets people almost daily who have used or are using Kaskine, and who affirm from experience that it is superior to quinine in tonic and curative properties, and produces no subsequent bad effects.
Mr. John C. Scarborough, Selma, N. C., writes: "I got malaria in the Southern army, and for a dozen years suffered from its debilitating effects. I was terribly run down when I heard of Kaskine, the new quinine. It helped me at once. I gained 35 pounds."
Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists or sent by mail on receipt of price.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Mr. Morgan in No Hurry to Remove Democrats.

SENATOR MANDERSON IS ANGRY.

Prominent Republicans May Oppose the Confirmation of the Commissioner.

Secretary Blaine Speaks About Congressman Reed's Chances for the Speakership—Mr. Wanamaker to Favor Postoffices on Ocean Steamers—Miss Clara Barton Returns from Johnstown.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—There was a lively interview between Senator Manderson and Indian Commissioner Morgan, in the office of the latter. Senator Manderson, it seems, had a candidate for appointment to a position under the Commissioner, but he failed to secure decisive action upon his recommendation. When the Senator made a final bluff for his man, the Commissioner was affable, but there was no indication that he intended to appoint the Senator's constituent.

As an excuse for the delay, the Commissioner announced that he was not in any hurry to remove Democrats who were performing their work satisfactorily, merely to find places for Republicans. This caused Senator Manderson to warm up, and he said, sarcastically: "I am in favor of that system, too, if it is applied all around. No one had any objections to Oberly as Commissioner, and if you are not going to remove any Democrats I am in favor of calling Oberly back and putting him in as Commissioner. The President had to remove Oberly to make a place for you, and I am putting my man on just the same footing as yourself when you were a candidate for Indian Commissioner."

Commissioner Morgan did not agree with the logic of the Senator, but asked him if he intended to vote for his (Morgan's) confirmation when it came before the Senate this winter. The Senator replied that it would depend upon whether or not the Commissioner discovered in the meanwhile that it was the Republican party that carried the election last fall. In the subsequent conversation it was disclosed that Senator Plumb, on the occasion of his last visit here, had privately notified the Commissioner that he would oppose his confirmation when Congrss convened.

Postoffices on Ocean Steamers.

WASHINGTON, Oct 28.—Post-master-General Wanamaker, in his forthcoming annual report, will recommend that postoffices be established on the principal steamers that ply between the ports of the United States and Europe, similar to the postal service on railway trains. This would greatly facilitate the delivery of mail matter in countries on both sides of the Atlantic. When the steamers arrive, packages could be made up for all the principal distributing points in the country of destination. The German Government has been in correspondence with the Postmaster-General on the subject, and he will ask Congress for an appropriation to carry his recommendation into effect.

The Speakership Race.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—In a letter received here to-day Representative Thomas B. Reed says that while his intention was to be in Washington this week he finds that his private business will not permit him to be here until November 5. As McKinley, Cannon and Burrons will not be here until after that, Reed's will probably be the first permanent headquarters opened. Blaine is quoted by a friend as having said when asked about the Speakership race last week that Reed seemed to be ahead, but that he (Blaine) was not taking enough interest in it to know accurately its condition. Reed's friends say Blaine will keep his hands off.

PHILADELPHIA'S PRISONER.

The Mysterious Individual Still Denies that He is Not Tascott.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—The check forger known as Albert Sutherland, the murderer of Millionaire Snell, passed the day quietly. The man stoutly declares that he will not go to Chicago if he can help it, giving as a reason that public sentiment would convict him, whether he be Tascot or not. Sutherland's trunk reached here from Reading this afternoon. The most significant article contained therein was a 32-calibre revolver. It will be remembered that in the description given of Tascott, it was said that he was in the habit of carrying an ivory-handled revolver.

G. A. Ring, a traveling man of Chicago, who said he had a slight acquaintance with Tascott, saw the prisoner today. He said afterward that the man resembled Tascott, but as his recollection of the latter was rather dim, he was not prepared to say positively that he recognized him. He says the prisoner is heavier and fuller in the face than Tascott, but his general bearing, manner of carrying himself, and facial characteristics make him look very much like Snell's murderer.

Boom in Coal Land.

MASONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 28.—There is quite a boom in coal land in this section, with a view of the extension of the Southwest Pennsylvania Railroad from Uniontown to the West Virginia line, which has been surveyed from Uniontown to West Virginia, via Masontown, to the Monongahela River, and then up the finest and wealthiest mineral valley in the State.

Eight Stores Burned.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 28.—Fire broke out in a barn at Dunmore, a suburb of this city, yesterday, and raged for four hours, destroying eight stores and one dwelling. Loss, $40,000.

SULLIVAN TALKS FIGHT.

The Pugilist Anxious to Meet Some of the Would-be Champions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—John L. Sullivan, after waiting patiently for some one to accept his challenge to fight, has sent the following letter to the papers:

"It is two weeks since I issued my challenge to fight, under Queensberry rules, any man in the world, giving Jem Smith, the present champion of England, the preference and no response has come to hand.

"Where are all the would-be champions? I am certain no man could have offered better inducements than I have offered to Smith. As for the others, if they are anxious to meet me, as they claim they are, this was their opportunity, but yet when I show my good faith by challenging any or all of them they manage to keep silent. Well, I have nothing further to add except that I am still open for engagements and just as anxious as I was when I issued the challenge to have either Smith, Mitchell, Slavin, McAuliffe, or Kilrain toe the scratch."

PUT HIM IN IRONS.

An American Ship Put Into New York With a Russian Sailor Under Arrest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The American ship, Landseer, from the Phillipine Islands, with sugar for Boston, put into this port yesterday flying signals of distress. The police steamboat, Patrol, upon boarding the vessel, found a Russian sailor, named Wilham Matson, in irons, and First Officer Shipps asked for Matson's arrest upon a charge of attempted felonious assault.

The prisoner was brought ashore and placed in custody to await a hearing. Captain Smith of the Landseen, died at sea on September 28 and First Officer Shipps took charge of the vessel. He claimes that Matson became mutinous and made an attack upon him with a knife and that it required the assistance of the entire crew to overpower him, and place him in irons.

Matson claims that he made no attack upon the first officer until the latter threatened him with a belaying pin, and that then he was compelled to draw his knife in self defense.

The Landseer reports that on October 15th, when off Cape Hatteras, she picked Captain Godfrey and crew of eight men of the schooner Jacob H. Hackett, bound from Savannah for Boston, which vessel was wrecked in a hurricane on October 13th. The Hackett is a total loss.

WAR VESSELS AT HONOLULU.

The American Fleet Will Remain Until After the Kingdom Election.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—According to advices received to-day from Honolulu, there are four American war vessels there—the Iroquis, Mohican, Napsic and Alert. Admiral Kimberly will probably remain there with the vessels until after the coming election in the Hawaiian Kingdom.

Two of the men who recently attempted to overthrow the Government have been found guilty. Wilcox, the leader, has not yet been tried. He testified in behalf of the two convicted men—a Belgian named Loomens, and a Chinaman—and declared that he had not engaged in rebellion, but was trying to protect the King.

MURDERED BY HUNS.

A Popular Hotel Keeper Stabbed in the Breast With a Stiletto.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 28.—Jacob Sontag, a well-known and popular hotel keeper here, was murdered last evening by three Hungarians who had applied for admission to the hotel.

Being refused admission, the Hungarians attempted to force their way in, Sontag tried to close the door upon them, but before he could do so one of the men drew a stiletto and stabbed Sontag in the breast, causing almost instant death.

The men then fled, but one of them, who has been identified as the murderer, has since been captured.

Funeral of the Giantess.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The funeral of Annie Price, the Irish giantess, who died on Friday night, took place yesterday from the undertaking rooms of James Naughton, 37 Mott street. The coffin was of rosewood, with silver trimmings. The burial clothes were the same that the deceased wore when she appeared before the public in the dime museum, and consisted of a dark maroon plush dress, elaborately trimmed with white lace. In the coffin was placed her family Bible, in accordance with her request. Her husband, Edward Price, the Albino, and the undertaker and his assistants, were all the mourners who followed the remains to Evergreen Cemetery, where the interment took place.

Dr. McGlynn on Election Reform.

NEW YORK, Oct 28.—A large audience greeted Dr. McGlynn at the meeting of the Anti-Poverty Society in the main hall of Cooper Union last night. The subject of his lecture was "The Ballot Box, and How to Guard It." The only remedy, he said, was to protect its secrecy. He held that all ballots should be printed and distributed at the public expense, as, besides preventing fraud, this plan would give poor candidates an equal chance with richer rivals. It would also tend to do away with political assessments.

Mass-Meeting of Socialists.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The socialists have called a mass-meeting for this evening at Cooper Union, where S. E. Shevitch, Otto Reimer, Johann Grill and others will speak upon the subject of the "Red Flag and the Star-Spangled Banner." The meeting was called for the purpose of denying the assertion that at the socialist convention held on October 12 at Chicago, the Stars and Stripes were hissed by some of the delegates.

SUNDAY SCHOOL ROW

A Superintendent's Bitter Attack on Scandal Mongers.

THE TEACHERS VERY EXCITED.

They Confront Their Accuser and Demand That He Name the Parties.

One Young Lady Faints Away and the Scholars are Quickly Dismissed—The Pastor and Superintendent Indulge in a War of Words—Jealousy at the Bottom of the Trouble.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—There was a highly exciting time in the Reformed Sunday school at South Orange yesterday afternoon.

Superintendent Ferris, when he entered the Sunday school room, went up to the Rev. G. B. Ferraday and held an excited interview with him. The pastor and the superintendent argued in the rear of the room for twenty minutes after the usual time for opening the school.

Finally Miss Ferraday, the pastor's elderly sister, who is one of the Sunday school teachers, went up to the two men and notified them that the school was waiting for the session to be opened. The pastor went forward and delivered the usual opening prayer.

Then Superintendent Ferris mounted the platform to make his usual monthly address to the scholars. Instead of addressing his remarks to them he directed them pointedly at the Sunday-school teachers and spoke vigorously on scandal-mongers and hypocrites. He declared that there were women present who defiled the edifice by their presence and who were no more fit to teach Sunday-school than they were to be angels.

At this point there was a stifled scream, and Miss Emmeline Hasbrouck, one of the Sunday-school teachers, fell fainting from her seat to the floor.

The superintendent was hurrying toward where Miss Hasbrouck had been carried when he was stopped by Miss Ferraday and Miss Carlos. The two women were highly excited and demanded if his remarks from the platform were intended for them. The superintendent deigned no reply, but waved the women away, but they would not go. He attempted to pass them, but they stood in the aisle and insisted upon an explanation. The pastor came up and increased the excitement by saying: "Mr. Ferris, you are neither a gentleman nor a Christian. Your remarks are an insult to every lady in this room, and I command you to leave at once."

"I have as much right here as you have. I was here before you came, and I will be here after you leave," replied the superintendent. Then he hastened to find out the condition of Miss Hasbrouck, who had been carried into an anteroom.

The scholars were dismissed and they soon spread the report of what had happened. Jealousy seemed to be at the bottom of the trouble. Mr. Ferris had paid some attention to Miss Ferraday, but transferred his affections to Miss Hasbrouck when she came into the church.

Mr. Ferris says certain members of the society have been circulating stories about him for some time, and he does not propose to stand it longer.

SHEA WILL LIVE.

A Disposition to Lay the Blame of the Affray on Pugilist Sullivan.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—Tom Shea, the man whose throat was cut Saturday night while he was trying to pick a row with John L. Sullivan, passed a comfortable night, and to-day the hospital physicians say he will probably live. There is a disposition on the part of the straight-laced people in this town to place more blame for the affray on Sullivan's shoulders than properly belongs there.

As far as can be learned, Sullivan's only offense was in being on a spree with such a man. He did not assume the aggressive at any time. The "Journal" says editorially to-day under the caption, "Rowdyism Rampant:"

"There is law enough on the statute book, if enforced, to put a stop forthwith to the violations of the peace now being practiced by John L. Sullivan and his crowd. If it is possible for a man and his cronies to go about disturbing the quiet of the community, taking almost absolute possession of a hotel by brute force, and being the cause of a riot and bloodshed in barber shops, without feeling the hand of the law, then it is time that we had a special law to crush our such rowdyism. The District Attorney could, no doubt, procure an indictment from the Grand Jury under the law against common brawlers. Will he do it?"

Brooklyn's New Tabernacle.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The ceremonies attending the breaking of ground for the new Tabernacle this afternoon will be very elaborate. Rev. Edward P. Terhune, D. D., Rev. Lyman Abbott, D. D., and Rev. John D. Wells, D. D., will assist in the services after which Dr. Talmage, surrounded by the members of his congregation will go through the form of breaking ground on the site selected for the new edifice, at Greene and Gates avenues. The subscriptions thus far amount to about $5,000. Dr. Talmage starts for the Holy Land on Wednesday.

Killed by an Express Train.

NEWARK, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Ensign Ellenwood, formerly a prominent lawyer of Wolcott and later a resident of Lyons, was struck by an express train on the New York Central Railroad near the station here and instantly killed. He was 71 years of age and leaves a widow.

—Two women known as "Kate Kinney" and "Mag" Clark were arrested in Pruden's alley, on Saturday night for quarreling and fighting.

—The Plainfield Building and Loan Association shareholders meet in Cutter's Hall this evening, at 7:30 o'clock, for payment of dues, etc.

—Consecration meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E., of Trinity Reformed church, in the lecture room at eight o'clock. Strangers are always welcome.

—Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will hold a regular meeting this evening. There will be important matters presented by the Regent.

—$1,955,633 was reported as the increase in value of Y. M. C. A. buildings and Building Funds in the United States and Canada for the year 1888.

—Reform Hall will not hold the crowds that will gather to hear Senator McPherson, Wednesday evening. Governor Green has also been invited to be present.

—The Seventh Day Baptists of Dunellen are about forming a Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor among themselves. This is a new departure for their denomination.

—Black and fox squirrels may be killed in this State during the last four months of the year, but there is a penalty of $20 for each gray squirrel killed, except between November 1st and December 15th.

—The Woman's Temperance Aid Society will hold their adjourned annual business meeting to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, in Reform Hall. It is important that every member be present, as the officers will be elected for the coming year.

—The Central Railroad of New Jersey is giving Dr. Geo. H. Kirwin's electric station indicator a trial on two of its trains, between Jersey City and Wilkesbarre. There is a scroll in the front of each car containing the names of the stations in plain black letters, and these are regulated by the baggage master, who simply presses an electric button in the baggage car, where the battery is. An electric bell attracts the attention of the passengers to the signs.

Not Chief Carey's Fault.

It is said that the temperance people of this city have promised to back Chief Carey in his fight against the Plainfield liquor sellers, to the amount of $10,000 if necessary.

As such statement is made by the news, it is undoubtedly untrue. But unless Chief Carey is given some such financial backing, he can do nothing. THE PRESS is told—and believes it—that Chief Carey has already spent about $300 out of his own pocket, yet he finds it impossible to make a case strong enough to convince a jury of honest minded men.

The Chief seems to be doing all he can, but lacks backing. He has plenty of sand, but needs soap.

Plainfield Cyclers at a "Smoker."

Owing to the inclemency of the weather the lantern parade that was to have been given by the Elizabeth wheelmen, Saturday evening last, had to be postponed, but in place of it a "Smoker" was given in their club house, to which the Plainfield Bicycle Club was invited, and which they attended in a body. About 150 wheelmen were present, representing nearly all the New Jersey clubs. All had a royal good time.

Most Attractive Features.

The entertainment which will be given by the choir of the Church of the Holy Cross, in their Sunday school building, Thursday evening, promises to be a rare treat. Besides the tableaux, representing Rogers' groups of statuary, there will be vocal and instrumental music in great variety, the whole forming a most entertaining and attractive programme. Tickets are for sale by the young men of the choir, at 50 cents each.

A Lucky Escape.

A workman in the employ of Mr. Chas. Graves, the slate roofer, while at work on Justice T. R. Crossley's house on Duer street, at noon today, had an ugly fall, but fortunately he escaped without serious injury.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. Walter C. Dobbins begins today a collegiate course at the Peddie Institute, Hightstown, N. J.

Mr. John Taylor Johnston and family, with their household servants, left their country seat, Saturday, and are now in their Fifth Avenue residence for the Winter.

The Chautauqua Union of New York city, gave a reception to Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, of this city, at the Church of the Disciples, New York, on Thursday evening of last week.

Captain George M. Phillips has recovered from his recent serious attack of heart trouble. His hosts of friends will be glad to grasp his cordial hand and see his genial face again.

If newspapers like THE PRESS told half of all they know, a social revolution would ensue in short order. It is what is kept out of such papers, not what goes in, that keeps the world running smoothly.

Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Robbins, of New Germantown, N. J., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. Q. Doliver, of Manning avenue. Mr. Robbins is Principal of the Public School at New Germantown.

Mr. A. J. Winckler, the contractor, has purchased of the heirs of Jacob Adams, deceased, the very desirable plot of ground corner of Somerset street and Linden avenue, and will build two or more houses on it at once.

A surprise sociable was tendered to Miss Annie Kingston, at her residence East Second street, Friday evening, Oct. 25. A most enjoyable time was spent. The committee consisted of F. Kesselring, A. Adams, S. C Terry, Jr.

Judge John D. Bartine, as special master, sold the Bartle property at Scotch Plains, Saturday afternoon, to Mr. Thos. Cleaver, of that place. The price paid was $2,275. Mr. Cleaver is a brother of Mr. J. B. Cleaver, of this city.

The Rev. W. R. Richards, of this city, exchanged pulpits with the Rev. E. B. Cobb of Elizabeth, yesterday. The congregation of the Crescent Avenue church were much pleased with the morning and evening sermons preached them by the latter.

The second of the Seminary Lectures will be delivered on the evening of Nov. 9., by John Ward Stimson, of this city, founder and Gen'l Superintendent of the New York Institute of Artist-Artisans. Mr. Stimson's subject will be: "General Art Principles."

Messrs Randolph Stelle, Halstead Compton and Lebeus Manning, left Plainfield today for Perry county, Pa. They took with them a pointer, a setter, lots of ammunition and fishing tackle. Deer and wild turkey are their special game. They will be gone at least two weeks.

Ex-Councilman E L. Morris, of this city, who made the speech at Rahway, last week, nominating the Hon. John Ulrich for a third term in the New Jersey Legislature, is the New York sales agent for both the Davis Coal and Coke Co., and the coal department of the West Virginia Central and Pittsburg Railway company. Mr. Morris places hundreds of thousands of tons of coal a year.

Christian Instruction for All.

In relation to the Mission to be conducted by the Rev. G. A. Carstensen, in Grace church, Nov. 17 to 24, inclusive, the pastor has addressed the following to his own congregation and the people of every other denomination:

"The services will be as indicated. Their object is to enlighten the conscience, and invigorate the spiritual life of those who attend them. They are not intended solely for my parishioners, but for the benefit of all who will come to them And all will be welcome. Sermons will be preached and instruction given by the Missioner at these services, on subjects of personal religion and Christian belief and practice.

"There may be some in your household or in your neighborhood who have become weary in God's service, and are neglecting the church's privileges and Christian duty. Some, like those who had been followers of Christ, when He was here on the Earth, and afterwards forsook Him, may have gone away and are walking no more with Him. Let us seek to bring them back to Jesus.

"We all of us need at times a special call to awaken our sleeping conscience to 'stir up the gift that is in us,' and to keep us steadfast in our Christian purpose. Such a mission comes to us laden with richest blessings.

"If we come to it with due preparation, with prayer and fasting, God, our Father, will surely keep and perform His promise to meet with us and bless us. If we are hindered we are hindered in ourselves.

"Your friend and pastor,

"E. M. BODMAN."

A Possible Speaker.

Assemblyman Ulrich is just now confined to his home with a very severe cold, but he will probably be able to be out during Tuesday night of next week and receive the customary news of his election for another term. If the Legislature should be captured by the Republicans, what's the matter with Mr. Ulrich for Speaker? It is due him for every reason, and he can fill the chair with dignity and ability.

He "Got."

Justice Hardy, of North Plainfield, had three tramps before him this morning, charged with begging from house to house in the Borough. He gave one ten days and another thirty days in Somerville jail. The third was given twenty minutes to "git up and git." He got.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

That and Other Matters Before the Board of Education.

The Board of Education having just received a bill from the City for over $300 as their proportion of the cost of assessing and collecting the city's taxes, have referred the matter to School Trustees Murray and Wadsworth with instruction that legal advice be procured as to whether the Board can be required, in the future, to pay any part of the salaries of the City's Assessor and Collector, or any of the costs of the delinquent tax collections.

At the same meeting when such action was taken—Saturday evening last—it was suggested that inquiry be made to discover if the Board was receiving its share of the $6,000 that has been collected of back taxes by Justice Nash. THE PRESS is told by Collector Johnson, that one-fifth of the amount was set apart for the Board.

Mrs. Thyng has been appointed teacher of drawing in place of Miss Burt who has been so ill and is now being cared for in Albany hospital, by her relatives. Miss Thyng is a specialist in the system of instruction that Miss Bulkley particularly favors, and Acting Principal Lincoln B. Goodrich reports to the Board that she thoroughly fills the place in every respect.

The matter of evening schools has been taken in hand by the Board, under a resolution adopted to the effect that the evening schools for both men and women shall during this term be under the exclusive control of the Board of Education, with the teachers now employed by them. Dr. Hurlbut questioned whether the Board had the right to establish schools for those beyond the age prescribed by law. President Kirkner did not believe that such a charge would be brought against the Board when the schools were such a benefit to the city intellectually and morally. The expense will be limited, as the teachers are the regular ones.

The Committee on Teachers—Trustees Kirkner, Babcock and Hurlburt—were given entire charge of the details. They were empowered by resolution to employ what teachers they deemed necessary, to decide on the dates of beginning and to fix the evenings of the week that the schools will be open.

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell Away From Home.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a large number attended the service of the First Presbyterian church, yesterday morning, to hear the Rev. Charles B. Mitchell who exchanged with the pastor, Dr. Ketcham.

Mr. Mitchell's sermon was not confined to the exclusive privilege and work of his hearers, but to the general work of the entire Christian community. The text—Heb. X: 24—he made the base of a broad scope for united effort in the cause of Christ. The preacher illustrated the abundance of life God came to give, by the life of a rose-plant which must develope in the beauty and fragrance of a blooming flower if permitted to live—otherwise it would die. Excellency in work and love for fellow man is the privilege of all Christians. The field is the World; plans may be denominational, but it was one cause, one church, one end; a flower in the Celestial Kingdom, or death.

During his discourse Mr. Mitchell paid a merited compliment to the fortunate possessors of the new edifice, saying that he felt quite at home, not because the builder and architect were of his own people, but he was surrounded with the beautiful and in his Father's house.

Miss King, at Vincent Chapel, To-morrow Evening.

Of Miss Stella King—who is to read in Vincent chapel, to-morrow evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church—the New York Sun says: she is "charmingly natural;" and the Chautauqua Herald said:

"Miss Stella King attracted large audiences to the Readings which she gave in the amphitheater during the second week of the Assembly. Miss King is a Shakesperian reader of unusual talent. She understands fully how to invest the poet's pages with new life and beauty, and her excellent rendering of the Statue scene in the "Winter's Tale" was especially notable for the fascination it exercised over her hearers. She is equally at home with pieces written in a lighter vein. Her voice is admirably controlled and equally adapted for the declamatory and the pathetic."

Democratic Primaries.

The Democratic Electors of the City of Plainfield will meet at the Democratic headquarters, No. 28 West Front street, to elect delegates to the Democratic Third District Assembly Convention to be held at Westfield on Thursday, the 31st day of October, as follows:

FUR MUFFS AND CAPES.

WE have just received three cases of Muffs, Capes and Fur Trimmings from three of the best Fur Houses in New York, which are now being displayed. The large assortment comprises everything desirable in this line, and we can confidently say that no such exhibition of these goods have ever been made in this city before. THIS WEEK will be the best opportunity to get the choice selections, as later on they will be sold. "A word to the wise," etc., you know.

LACE CURTAINS!—Is another specialty with us this week. We have purchased several "closing out" lots from the Importers, and offer EXTRA BARGAINS in these goods.

WINDOW SHADES!—We have been very agreeably surprised at the increased demand made upon us in this department. Everybody is pleased with the excellent and prompt manner in which our work is done.

PARTIES having houses to Shade or Carpet, will do well to get our "estimate" before ordering elsewhere.

COUNCILMAN MOFFETT ANSWERS.

He Says Truthfully, the G. A. R. Has No Politics.

(From Sunday's World.)

The following correspondence which passed between the President of the Veteran State League and the Commander of a Grand Army Post in Plainfield is both timely and significant:

HEADQUARTERS VETERAN STATE LEAGUE OF N. J., CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 11, 1889.

Mr Elmore D. Moffett, Plainfield, N. J.

DEAR SIR: We solicit your co-operation with us in distributing printed matter in the interest of Gen. Edward Burd Grubb, our candidate for Governor of New Jersey.

We want to send you something for the voters of your locality to read. We want them to know the manner of man our candidate is, and we ask you, as a comrade of 1861-65, to see that our old commander, Edward Burd Grubb, in the coming fight, can count on those whom it has always been his pleasure to serve.

We appeal to you, by the memories of the weary march, bivouac and battle, to honor and support a soldier and an honored son of New Jersey by work and votes on the day of election, Nov. 5, 1889.

We want you to use your best efforts in this fight, as we are in to win. We want you to see every man who wore the blue within your reach. See that he stands right and, with lines dressed, eyes front, colors flying, as the column advances to victory.

Let us know by return mail if you will help us elect Edward Burd Grubb Governor of New Jersey.

With every regard, I am,

Yours very truly,
H. L. HARTSHORN,
President.

GEO. BARRETT, Secretary.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 16, 1889.

H. L. Hartshorn, Esq.

DEAR SIR: On the 13th inst., I received a circular letter purporting to be issued by the Veteran State League, asking me to help elect E. Burd Grubb Governor of this State, stating that he was our candidate, and signed by you as President. It seems to me you must have made some mistake, as I never heard of his receiving any other nomination than the Republican, nor is the Veteran State League composed solely of Republicans. If so, I have been misinformed. If not, I do not think you have any right to call him our candidate, as the Grand Army of the Republic is an association in which there are no politics.

I would be most happy to further the interests of Gen. E. B. Grubb, but as a Democrat I cannot support or help elect him Governor of the State.

Respectfully yours,
E. D. MOFFETT.

A little over a year ago Gen. Grubb was chosen as elector on the Republican ticket. He declined to serve and gave as his reason that the Grand Army was not a political organization, and, being Commander, he could not accept the honor. It would be interesting to know whether his position on this point has changed. He must be aware that the officers of the League are trying to use the Grand Army to assist the Republican candidate, and he himself has encouraged the idea in his speeches I fear it will strike many people that the General has placed himself in the unenviable light of one who would subvert the principles of a great organization only when he may be personally benefited thereby. One may pardon much in a candidate who is extremely anxious to be elected, but whether his anxiety can be considered sufficient excuse for involving an association whose mainstay is its non-partisanship, in a purely partisan contest, is a very grave question.

Other post commanders who have received this letter will do well to consider seriously the propositions advanced by Mr. Moffett before engaging thoughtlessly in work which could not fail to estrange many of their old comrades in arms.

Arrival of the Horses.

Bartholomew's two cars, with 24 horses, 15 persons, baggage, etc., arrived yesterday noon, and a very large number of persons visited the cars during the day. They will appear at Music Hall each evening this week and Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.

The New York Herald of June 4, last, says: "Prof. George Bartholomew has developed in the twenty-four horses comprising his show, which opened at the Academy of Music yesterday afternoon, a degree of equine intelligence barely credible on simple recital and without ocular proof. I witnessed the performance of his 'Equine Paradox' and admit myself a converted skeptic. Despite the enthusiastic laudations of that recognized authority on horse education, Charles Railey, of Kentucky, I went to the show at the Academy of Music with a feeling that I was about to witness a desecration of the temple wherein the divine Patti had sung, and came away possessed of deep-rooted belief in the propriety of companionship between horse and man."

Reform Hall.

Considering the unfavorable weather the attendance in Reform Hall last evening was good President Harper occupied the chair, and Mr. Vanderbeek and a full choir discoursed music in their usual superior manner. Mr. Neis read the XIXth Psalm and offered prayer.

The speakers were Messrs Neis, Harper and Angleman, each of whom recounted the fearful ravages wrought by intoxicating liquor, in the way of broken hearts and desolated homes, and urged battling for its total extinguishment to be an imperative duty on behalf of God and Humanity.

The President announced the adjourned annual meeting of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society, to be held in Reform Hall, on Tuesday at 3 o'clock P. M. He also gave notice of the Reform Club's next Thursday evening meeting, at 8 o'clock, and desired a full attendance as there would be extra exercises.

—The Democratic voters of Westfield will hold their primaries on Wednesday evening of this week.

Mr. Burdick to Coming

And from the testimonials of his wonderful success in other places, (one of which is given below) it is hoped that much good may result to Plainfield from his labors here. A mass meeting will be held in Music Hall, on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, on November 10.

From the Malone, (N. Y.) Palladium: "The temperance meetings at Malone, under the leadership of P. A. Burdick, are developing even a larger and intenser interest than was anticipated. They have been held nightly, and occasionally in the afternoon besides. A choral service of song, conducted by a considerable number of singers, precedes them. Mr. Burdick proves to be a speaker of great power before a mixed audience, and evinces rare capacity for continuous discussion of his subject without repeating himself. New anecdotes and presentation of his case in different phases occur at each meeting. He is tremendously in earnest, and, though extreme in many things, impresses his hearers, on the whole, as a fair and temperate advocate. There is no ranting, no irrelevant or alienating matter in what he says, and no conduct such as often weakens temperance revivals under injudicious leadership. The audiences are limited only by the capacity of the hall, and at more than one meeting scores have gone away because they could not find even standing room. Nearly a thousand signatures to a cast-iron total abstinence pledge have already been secured."

A Word to Voters.

Next Thursday is the last day on which voters can register previous to the election which takes place one week from Tuesday. Since the election of a year ago the election districts have been materially changed, and those who reside in the wards affected by the change must register in person or they will be deprived of a vote.

This is an important matter for the consideration of everyone, and should be attended to on Thursday, or it will be too late. There are very many who did not register their names on the first day. This has been caused by neglect more than from any other reason. Remember to have your name registered on Thursday next, and blame no one but yourself if you lose your vote.

Ransacked the House.

On Sunday morning a week ago, Mr. Chas. J. Reeve, living on the Feltville road, went to church and left a hired man named Frank Doll in charge of his house. Mr. Reeve probably had not gone far when the man conceived the idea to go "through" the house. In his search he found a roll of bills amounting to eighty dollars, and a very fine suit of clothes belonging to another employee of Mr. Reeve, but who was off for a few days on a vacation. With these Mr. Doll put out and has not been heard from. This Doll came from Block's intelligence office on Greenwich street, New York city, and had been in the employ of Mr. Reeve about one week.

W. C. T. U. Notes.

Although the change of hour from 4 to 3 o'clock seems still to be forgotten by some, there was a goodly number at the meeting on last Thursday afternoon to enjoy the instructive paper which was read—followed by reports from the delegates to the State Convention, which were very interesting.

The next meeting will be a social gathering of the W. C. T. U. members and their friends, at their rooms 73 West Front street, from 3 to 6 o'clock Thursday, at which the Kitchen Garden girls will be represented. It is hoped that—as at the last one—very many will enjoy the reunion.

A Disease Among Horses.

A horse disease, similar in many respects to the cerebro-spinal meningitis, has broken out in central New Jersey, and many valuable horses and mules have died this month in the vicinity of Harlingen, Rocky Hill, Blawenburg, Hopewell and Princeton. The animals affected lose all appetite, become paralyzed and inflamed and die in a very short time. Richard Hart has lost eight head up to the present time on his farm near Princeton. The Hopewell veterinary surgeon had fifteen cases of the disease under treatment at one time.

Union County's Greatest Lawyer.

R. V. Lindabury, Esq., the brilliant lawyer who became so well known in connection with the celebrated Toms River murder case, will sum up for the plaintiffs in the ejectment suit against the Scotch Plains church, at Elizabeth, tomorrow morning.

Mr. Lindabury has held his own, and more, against ex-Chancellor Williamson, during the trial, and has made so strong a case that if the jury does not disagree it will probably find for the plaintiffs.

Who'll Pay the Damage.

The contractors engaged in building the county roads say they are not required to hang out lights by night where they have made dangerous excavations. In consequence many a horse's legs and its driver's neck, run the risk of being broken by a sudden upset. In such an event should suit be brought against the Freeholders for damages?

Upon a fair trial I find Salvation Oil the best cure for rheumatism I have ever known. It gives relief more quickly, and always does its work. JOSHUA ZIMMERMAN, Wetheredville, Md.

Chronic coughers are bores to the community, and should be forced to use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

TWO MEN LYNCHED.

Hatfield Sympathizers Take Two of the McCoy Gang from Jail.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Information was brought by courier from Hamlin, Lincoln County, that a mob surrounded the Lincoln County jail, forced an entrance after a short resistance by the authorities, took two of the prisoners, Green McCoy and Milton Haley, and hung them to a tree a short distance from the jail building.

Haley and McCoy were natives of Kentucky and are allied to the McCoy faction of outlaws, whose murderous feud with the Hatfields is generally familiar to the public. McCoy was engaged in a shooting scrape with Paris Brumfield about a year ago, and about a month ago, he, in company with Haley, ambushed and attempted to murder Al Brumfield and his wife. The shooting occurred on a Sunday night, and both victims were badly wounded. Mrs. Brumfield being shot in the breast and her husband in the leg. For a time it was thought the woman would die, but she finally recovered.

McCoy and Haley escaped to Kentucky, but not until they had made two more attempts at assassination in the county, in one of which a man named Adkins was wounded. The two would-be murderers were arrested at Ben Postoffice, Martin county, Ky., and were confined in jail there. Friday they were locked up in the Lincoln county, W. Va., jail, and in the absence of definite information it is supposed they were lynched by some of the Hatfield sympathizers.

BASEBALL TALK.

New Manager for the Bostons and Gossip About the Brotherhood.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—Frank G. Selee has signed a contract to manage the Boston Baseball Club next season. It is stated that the alleged purchase by the Cincinnati club of the release of pitcher Nichols of the Omahas has fallen through, and that Nichols will sign with Boston.

John F. Morrill, as agent for the Brotherhood, has secured a sixty days refusal of a four-acre lot on Huntington avenue for a new baseball park.

President Soden says the Boston "Triumvirs" are not backing the Brotherhood; that he is not at all worried by Brotherhood schemes: that he would like to see Brooklyn and Cincinnati in the league, but no other Association cities: that he is inclined to think that the Brotherhood players can be legally held by the "reserve" rule, and that the Boston club will do business at the old stand next season with a strong club, Brotherhood or no Brotherhood.

The Giants One Ahead.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—In the World's Championship baseball contest, the seventh game was won by the New Yorks by the following score:

New York	1	2	0	0	0	1	1	0	5	—11
Brooklyn	0	0	4	0	3	0	0	0	0	—7

This is four games for the Giants and three for the Grooms.

A Big Lumber Firm Embarrassed.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—Some notes of the great lumber firm of Wainwright & Bryant have gone to protest, and judgments have been entered aggregating $515,000. They have extensive saw mills and timber lands in Jefferson county. Some reports placed the liabilities at $900,000. It is asserted, however, by friends of the firm that the total indebtedness will not exceed $200,000, and that all obligations will be met.

Large Box Factory Burned.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 28.—The large box and shook manufactory on Bridge street was burned last night. Loss, estimated at $20,000; insurance, $7,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

PEERLESS DYES Are the BEST. SOLDBY DRUGGISTS.

A ROYAL WEDDING

Marriage of Princess Sophie to the Crown Prince of Greece.

A GORGEOUS PROCESSION

Brilliant Scenes at the Church and at the King's Palace.

Three Reigning Sovereigns Witness the Ceremony — Several Hundred Persons Driven from Their Beds by a Fire at Glasgow—The Pope Sends Miss Caldwell a Present—Bradlaugh Convalescent.

ATHENS, Oct. 28.—Yesterday was a most beautiful day, the sun shining as it shines only in Greece, and all the elements seeming to concur in happy auspices of the wedding of the Princess Sophie of Germany to the Duke of Sparta.

A gorgeous procession, escorted by an imposing array of cavalry, left the Royal Palace at 11 o'clock. The guests occupying the carriages comprised the Emperor and Empress of Germany, the Empress Frederick, the King and Queen of Denmark, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princesses Victoria and Maude of Wales, Marie of Greece and Victoria and Margaret of Wales; Prince Victor of Wales, the Prince of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, the hereditary Prince and Princess of Saxe-Meiningen, and other members of royal families, besides a goodly number of people of only less exalted rank.

Following the carriages came a magnificent State carriage, drawn by six prancing black chargers, and containing Duke Olga of Greece and the blushing bride.

The most brilliant of all the brilliant uniforms adoring the persons of royalty was that of the Emperor William, which, as well as the robes of the Empress, fairly blazed with diamonds. There was great enthusiasm among the people who thickly crowded the route of the procession. The wedding service was elaborate, and occupied an entire hour. Afterward the cortege returned by a different route amid scenes of unabated demonstrativeness on the part of the populace. The marriage was then solemnized again according to the simple Lutheran rite, in the King's private chapel.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the Duke of Sparta brought his wife from the royal palace to his own palace amid the cheers of the people. The bride, pale, but smiling graciously, acknowledged the greeting of the throng with becoming grace.

All the diplomats present in Athens were invited to the banquet in honor of the occasion last night at the Duke's palace. It was a brilliant affair, and the display of wedding presents was a dazzling one. Chief among these were the gifts of the Czar, consisting of a set of brilliants, a silver and crystal tea set and a captain's uniform of the Neva regiment for the Duke.

MONSTER MASS MEETING.

Socialist Tillett Talks to 60,000 Workingmen at Bristol.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Mr. Tillett, the able lieutenant of John Burns, in the recent London dockmen's strike, is carrying on a vigorous Socialist propaganda and work of organization in the large cities of the United Kingdom.

His latest and most successful efforts have been at Bristol. Yesterday he addressed a monster mass meeting of workingmen in that city. Competent observers place the number of his listeners at 60,000.

Tillett urged the benefits of combination, and held out glowing prospects of success, based on the result of the case of the dockers. His remarks were not addressed to any particular class of workers, but applied equally to all trades.

It is noteworthy that the regular radical Socialists do not give a hearty support to the movement initiated by Burns and Tillett. A slight increase in wages, involving a greater contentment on the part of the worker with the wage system, has no charms for the out-and-out Socialist, who would, on the contrary, so arouse discontent with the whole existing social fabric as to hasten its total overthrow, and the establishment of universal co-operation. Burns and Tillett have, therefore, been read almost out of the Socialist party by reason of their having descended to practical methods.

PANIC AT A FIRE.

Three Hundred Persons Rush Into the Street in Their Night Clothing.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—There was an exciting fire at Glasgow yesterday morning. The wool market was destroyed, and the flames spread to a number of thickly peopled lodging houses surrounding the market building. There was an extensive panic among the thousands of inmates, and at least 300 people rushed into the street clad only in their night clothing, and without saving any of their effects. A number of the fugitives were more or less bruised or hurt, but no serious casualty is reported. The loss on the market building and dwellings is heavy, but the exact figures are not learned.

Miss Huntington Marries a Prince.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—This morning at 11 o'clock Miss Clara Huntington, daughter of America's great railroad magnate, was married to Prince Hatzfeldt. The ceremony was preformed at Kensington Oratory.

Bradlaugh Convalescent.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Mr. Bradlaugh, who has been quite ill, is now convalescent. He expects shortly to take a sea voyage, which will, no doubt, fully restore his health.

A Present From the Pope.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The Pope sent Miss Caldwell a valuable present and an autograph letter on the occasion of her approaching marriage to Prince Murat.

Eloped With a Female Compositor.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Alfred E. Mitchell, a barber, deserted his wife and three children yesterday, and eloped with Miss Frankie Austin, a compositor in the office of the "Independent," a weekly paper published in this city. Mitchell has been parading the streets very boldly with the Austin girl for some time, but his wife knew nothing about his attentions to the girl. Miss Austin is the daughter of the late William Austin, who was a newspaper man here for many years.

HOPELESSLY INSANE.

Driven to an Insane Asylum by a Fortune Told by an Old Woman.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Rebecca Schilling of Harrisburg, Berks county, was brought to the State Insane Asylum here Saturday. In August last she visited Reading, where she had her fortune told by an old woman. She was told, among other things, that she would receive a letter very soon which would contain bad news. Mrs. Schilling, who is a nervous and excitable woman, became agitated at once and went home grieving. A few days subsequently she received a letter announcing the dangerous illness of a near relative. She then became violently insane and locked herself in a room, nailing the shutters and doors and refused to take food.

For five days she fasted, and during that time she loudly called for help, saying that she was being murdered. The physicans advised her husband to have her removed to the State asylum. He hesitated until she began to pull her hair out and otherwise injure herself. Her case is considered hopeless

A SOMNAMBULIST'S DEATH.

She Fell from the Roof of a New York Tenement House.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Sarah Dean, aged 45, a somnambulist, was found in the courtyard at No. 544 Hudson street yesterday morning in a dying condition, and lived but a few hours after being removed to the hospital.

She had evidently gone to the roof of the house while asleep and fallen to the ground. Her husband awoke about 4 o'clock and missed her from the bed, but did not ascertain her sad fate until she had been removed to the hospital.

The husband found about $50 in his shoes, evidently placed there by Mrs. Dean before she left the room. There is a suspicion that the woman jumped from the roof with suicidal intent, but the public believe that her death is due entirely to somnambulism.

LOST IN THE STORM.

Four Vessels Go Down With Nearly All the Crews.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 28.—A dispatch from Kittyhawk reports the following vessels lost in last Wednesday's storm in that vicinity:

The schooner Francis S. Walters of Baltimore was found floating bottom up at Nag's Head, and her entire crew were drowned.

The schooner Frank M. McGear was wrecked near Whale's Head, but her crew were saved.

Five of the crew of the Lizzie S. Haynes, wrecked near Body's Island, were drowned, but the captain and steward were saved. Two of the dead bodies were washed ashore and buried.

The schooner A. E. Blackman capsized two miles off shore, and the only men saved was Captain Charles Edwards, who swam to New Inlet.

ANOTHER SUSPECT.

The Chicago Police Think They Have the Man Who Drove Cronin to His Death.

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Deputy Sheriff Kennedy, of this city, made an arrest in St. Joseph, Mich., last night which is believed to have an important bearing in the Cronin case. The man arrested is Martin Duane, and it is believed that he is the man who drove Cronin to his death on the night of May 4th. Mr. Hynes was seen at the Palmer House last night, and he acknowledged that Duane had been arrested. "I consider it an important arrest," said Mr. Hines, "but I am not at liberty to talk about it at present."

Crushed to Death While Playing Cards.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 28.—While some men were playing cards under a freight car on a siding at Irwin, thirty miles east of here on the Pennsylvania Railroad, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, an engine backed up against the train of cars, crushing to death James Thompson, Thomas Thompson, Robert Robinson and Sampson Emmons, and fatally injuring Ben Stubbs. Thomas Thompson was aged forty and leaves a widow. The others were unmarried and about thirty years of age.

Railway Brakemen Adjourn.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 28.—The convention of the Brotherhood of Railway Brakemen has adjourned. The name of the order was changed to the "Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen," and the next place of meeting fixed at Los Angeles, Cala. Beyond changing the name, the constitution remains substantially the same.

Clara Barton in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Miss Clara Barton has returned here from Johnstown, Pa. Arrangements have been made for a public reception in her honor to be given next Saturday night. After the reception about two hundred friends have been invited to partake of a banquet at which Commissioner Hine will be present.

Diptheria and Scarlet Fever.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 28.—Diptheria and scarlet fever are alarmingly prevalent in this city. The priests in all the Catholic churches yesterday warned the people not to visit from house to house more than is necessary. It is stated that no funerals of victims of those diseases will be allowed from churches.

Ten Years for Manslaughter.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 28.—Gustave Weillringhaus, who was convicted of manslaughter in having caused the death of James Daly, will probably be taken to Trenton to-morrow to begin a term of ten years in the State Prison. Weillringhaus was sentenced on Saturday by Judge Depue. The prisoner has a wife and several young children.

Services in Honor of Mrs. Hayes.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 28.—Memorial services were held last night in the Centenary M. E. Church in honor of the late Mrs. R. B. Hayes, who was prominent in the work of establishing woman's missions among the colored people in the South. The congregations of all the other colored M. E. Churches joined in the services.

Johnstown Under Water Again.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 28.—The prospects of Johnstown being again under water are very good. Rain has been falling almost continuously for the past thirty-six hours, and a great many of the streets are already almost impassable to pedestrians.

HELPS IN THE HOUSEHOLD.

THE best way to mend torn leaves of books is pasting them with white tissue-paper. The print will show through it.

TO REMOVE the shiny look from black clothes wash well, then dip black cloth in hot tea and coffee, equal parts of each, and sponge clothes.

PEACH COBBLER.—Line a dripping pan with paste; fill with fruit, sugar and flour in correct proportion; make fast the cover and bake one hour.

MUSK-MELON SAUCE.—Remove the seeds and skins and cut in small, square pieces. Cover with sweet cream, add a little sugar, and serve at once.

ENTIRE wheat flour is said to require less shortening than ordinary flour. It is a wholesome food, makes good hasty pudding, gems, bread, cakes and even pie-crust.

IF soft-wood unpainted floors are mopped with a small quantity of very hot water, and thoroughly wiped, they will be far whiter than if soaked and vigorously scrubbed.

IF an ordinary glass fruit jar be set on a towel which has been thoroughly wet with cold water, hot fruit may be poured into it without any danger of its breaking. The jar needs no further preparation.

IT is worth while to paste light manilla paper over the back of every picture frame not already so protected, as it effectually prevents dust from reaching the pictures. It is always done nowadays by first-class framers.

A KNIFE-CLEANER.—Take two boards about eighteen inches long by six inches wide. Nail a belt of leather over these boards and fasten them together by hinges. Lay the knife between the boards, which have been sprinkled with bath brick, and rub the knife rapidly between them. A paste made with emery powder and sweet oil is excellent for fine knives.

HARTSHORN LINIMENT.—Two parts sweet oil and one part water of ammonia, spirits of hartshorn. Shake it up and you have a thick white mixture, which for sprains, bruises, sore throat, etc., is unsurpassed. If you want to use it for rheumatism, neuralgia, etc., add to half a pint of the liniment one-half ounce tincture of iodine and one ounce spirits of camphor.

WHEN there is a shrinkage in canned fruit jars it is a sure test that the fruit has been put up properly and will keep. The fruit and glass are both put up hot and consequently expanded; when cold, the glass, and more especially the sirup, contract and leave a vacuum, showing it is air-tight. On opening such cans the covers will cling with a resistance equal to the vacuum.

MAPLE SUGAR CAKE.—Take a pound of maple sugar, rolled or scraped fine, half a pound of butter and four or five tablespoonfuls of milk. Cook the whole till the butter melts. Stir very thoroughly, then add a scant tablespoonful of ginger and half a pound of flour. Beat well. Sift a heaping tablespoonful of baking-powder in half a cup of flour and stir into the cake, beating vigorously again. Bake the cake in thin sheets.

SCIENTIFIC SUMMARY.

M. PASTEUR recently declared with much emphasis that rabies is never spontaneous. The microbe producing it, he says, is invariably transmitted.

IT is reported that a German scientist has invented an incandescent lamp arrangement by which the interior of a boiler may be inspected while still under steam.

THE reason of the greater mortality of male children than of female is supposed to be the greater demands on the system caused by their more rapid rate of growth.

ENTOMOLOGISTS state that there is reasonable hope that a scientific plan will be devised whereby whole tribes of noxious insects may be exterminated by the artificial multiplication of their innoxious enemies.

THE phonograph has been turned to a new use, to record the sounds given by the heart and lungs under ausultation. This should be invaluable in consultation, as a true account of a patient's condition can be sent to a doctor at a distance.

IT is a mistake to suppose that water, because it contains animalculæ or confervæ, is necessarily unwholesome. However repugnant to our feelings it may be to use water containing these foreign bodies, it is only when they are dead that danger arises from their presence.

A VEGETABLE cartridge shell, which is entirely consumed in firing, is a French novelty. With this shell the cartridge has scarcely half the weight of a metal cartridge, the cost is considerably less and the inconvenience of removing the shell after each shot is avoided.

THERE are only two royal scientists living at the present time worthy of the name. One is Prince Albert, of Monaco, well known for his deep sea researches, and the other is the Archduke Ludwig Salvator, of Austria, a courageous traveler, and a by no means contemptible naturalist.

SINCE warm, dry air is carried into the cyclone from the anti-cyclone, the clouds formed at the edge of the cyclone are subsequently absorbed; thus the clouds are more dense in the center, where the pressure is a minimum, and are progressively less dense toward the periphery.

IT has been estimated that we get an entire new outfit of brains every two months. The duration of a nerve's life is about sixty days. Each nerve cell has its independent functions, subordinate to the whole brain as a mass; and the latter acts as an overseer to the individual actions and life of each separate cell. Every cell is destroyed and renewed every two months, so we each get six brand new brains per year.

COMETS may fall into the sun, though there is no record of any ever having done so. Several comets, however, have gone very close to the sun, so that they may almost be said to have grazed its surface. One of these was the great comet of 1843. Comets do go into remote regions of space, but not all of them. Some comets revolve around the sun in elliptical orbits of such dimensions that at their greatest distance they are not as far from the sun as several of the planets are.

PLAINFIELD ELECTRIC STREET RAILWAY

CAPITAL—$70,000, in 1,400 Shares of $50 Each.

It is intended to open the books for subscriptions to the stock and bonds of the proposed Company, on Thursday, the 24th of October,

at the CITY NATIONAL BANK, where a printed statement of the cost of Plant, probable earnings, and other particulars may be obtained.

As it is important that the matter should be taken up at once, those who are interested will greatly facilitate the work by a prompt response.

Rumors of threatened injunctions to restrain the Company from the use of the storage batteries, having been freely circulated by a few hostile persons who seem to lack the courage to let their names appear, it should be added that the batteries it is proposed to use are in daily service in almost all the important cities of the Union, and are sold with an ample guarantee by entirely responsible parties against loss or interference in their use. There are cars in commercial operation every day using these batteries exclusively, and they are not enjoined simply because there is no ground for an injunction. Any further threats of this kind will be traced to their source and promptly disposed of as the law provides.

TERRIFIC SLUGGING
The Giants Capture Five Games in the Series.
CRANE RATTLED THE GROOMS.
The Association Champions Could Do Nothing With His Wonderful Delivery.

Terry Was Hit Hard and Had to Retire—The New York's Took a Big Lead at the Beginning—If They Win To-Day it Will Close the Series as the Brooklyns Have Only Taken Three Games.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 29.—New York won its fifth game in the world's championship series by heavy batting, knocking Terry, the star pitcher for the Brooklyns, out of the box, and pounding his relief, Foutz, pretty freely.

Rain was imminent all the morning, and the fact decided hundreds against going to Washington Park. It cleared up a trifle after 1 o'clock, but not enough to entice the fair weather cranks out of their safe and comfortable seclusion. The army of confirmed cranks, however, put in an appearance, as usual, and the customary 2,500 were on hand when the game opened.

The Giants were first at the bat. Slattery hit safely and went to second on Tiernan's single to left. Ewing followed with a sacrifice which advanced both runners a base. Then Ward bunted safely and the bases were filled. Connor drove a two-baser into right field and Slattery and Tiernan scored. Richardson's smashing single to left brought both Ward and Connor home and Danny himself scored a few minutes later on O'Rourke's long fly out to O'Brien. The Giants increased their lead four runs in the second on Slattery's base on balls, Tiernan's hit, Ewing's two-baser, Ward's bunt, and Connor's single.

Brooklyn scored two in the first inning on Collin's base on balls and Foutz's home run drive to deep centre, but after this inning Crane had them at his mercy and not a Groom crossed the plate until the "cyclone" let up in the eighth inning, at which stage of the game New York had a lead of thirteen runs. The score:

Brooklyn	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	2	3—7

HOW CRONIN WAS TRAPPED.
Weaving the Web of Evidence Tightly Around the Conspirators.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Public interest in the Cronin case intensifies as the trial progresses. The line of evidence now being introduced by the State is a continuation of the proof of identity, after which it is intended to take up the details of the execution of the plot.

Napier Moreland, Pat Dinan's hostler, testified as to the hiring of the horse and buggy on the night Cronin was killed, and discribed the stranger who came for the rig.

Mrs. Conklin identified the card of O'Sullivan, the iceman, that had been presented by the man. The latter's eyes, she said, were the most villainous she had ever seen. When she taxed O'Sullivan with the seeming connection between himself and Cronin's disappearance he said he could not explain it. He was very nervous and could not look witness in the face.

In cross-examination Mr. Forrest sought to involve the witness in contradictions, but failed utterly.

Dr. McCahey's letter has caused great excitement among his friends. John Devoy and John F. Scanlan say that the McCahey letter will force the hands of the State and injure the case. The letter is bitter against Alexander Sullivan, but it is chiefly of importance because it makes public the telegrams and cablegrams between Sullivan and Patrick Egan, concerning which the Grand Jury had placed Sullivan under bail. That Grand Jury, it will be remembered, returned no indictment and made no official mention whatever of Alexander Sullivan; but Dr. McCahey, with the same set of facts and the same telegraphic messages before him, seems to see farther than the Grand Jurors did, and in his letter inveighs strongly against Sullivan, accusing him of furnishing convincing proofs for his words and actions that Dr. Cronin had been "removed" long before the body was found.

A TRAIN IN THE PARLOR.
Several Persons Injured in a Railway Accident in Rahway, N. J.

RAHWAY, N. J., Oct. 29.—A fast freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad jumped the track at Main street here last night. Several persons who were waiting in the street for the train to pass were injured by flying debris, three of them, it is thought, mortally. One car ran down Main street and into the residence of John Weldon, tearing its way into the parlor. Mr. Weldon's family narrowly escaped.

Fifteen loaded cars were wrecked. The track and roadbed were torn up, and the accident delayed travel twelve hours. The accident occurred about 100 feet from the scene of the passenger train wreck two weeks ago.

A Jury's Verdict Reversed.
PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Judge Butler, of the United States Circuit Court, has filed an opinion in which he reverses the verdict of the jury in the suit of the city against the Western Union Telegraph Company. The suit was to recover $13,005, with interest, as license fees for the years 1885, '86, '87, and '88, at the rate of $1 per pole per mile, and $2.50 for every mile of wire. The case went to the jury upon the evidence as a question of fact with the point of law reserved as to whether the ordinance of Councils is illegal on the ground that the license fees are excessive.

GOULD'S COLOSSAL PLANS.
All the Elevated Roads in New York to be Rebuilt.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Jay Gould has returned from his Western trip, and before many days he will announce himself to the world as a great railroad contractor. His pet scheme is now crystalized, so that the details cannot longer be withheld.

The Manhattan Railway is to be completely reconstructed. It will not be the mere tinkering process that has been going on for years. The entire structure will be rebuilt. Engineers have frequently assured Mr. Gould that in the course of a few years the Third, Sixth and Ninth avenue elevated roads would have to be torn down. He has made up his mind to accept the suggestion. It will be utilized in rather an unexpected way, so as to increase the revenue of the Manhattan.

It will require an expenditure of $20,000,000 and the money has all been pledged. Drexel, Morgan & Co. have floated the bonds, after George J. Gould had explained to foreign banks the full outline of the plan while he was in London a month ago, presumably on a pleasure trip.

Of the $20,000,000 to be placed at Mr. Gould's disposal, one-half will be used in liquidating claims for damages, extending depot platforms, building heavier engines and adding to the present equipment of passenger cars. The curves on the Sixth avenue line are to be shortened, and the speed of the trains increased. Mr. Gould contemplates taking an equally important step in disposing of the remaining $10,000,000.

With the prospect of the World's Fair being located in New York, he will make a proposition to the city for the acquisition of terminal property, on which are to be built extensive repair shops and depots for cars not in use. In return he expects to obtain the franchise for running certain crosstown branches, as well as the building of extensions to the World's Fair site. Should he obtain all he asks, he is prepared to personally advance a sufficient sum for the amalgamation of the New York & Northern and New England in connection with the Manhattan system, a project he has contemplated for some time. This would give him an independent outlet to Boston, and it is claimed that the franchises which he seeks to obtain will warrant such an undertaking.

NATIONAL REFORM.
A Public Meeting to Discuss Reformation of the Divorce Laws.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29.—Under the leadership of the National Reform Association a public meeting to discuss a needed reformation of the divorce laws in the United States was called together in Association Hall. The call for the meeting was signed by Felix R. Brunot of Pittsburg, the President of the National Reform Association.

This body has been organized to promote the influence of christianity in the government of this country. Among its vice-presidents whose names are attached to the call are many clergymen of note, the presidents of several of the largest institutions of learning in this State and a number of Supreme Court justices.

The National Reform Association urges all clergymen to impart sound instruction from the pulpit regarding the moral laws underlying the family relation. Steps are also urged to secure meanwhile moral and beneficial laws by the State Legislatures to purify the social atmosphere in their respective States by bringing the present lax laws to a better standard of morality and endeavoring to attain greater uniformity in them.

Another Advance in Window Glass.
PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 29.—The price of window glass has been put up 5 per cent. by Pittsburg manufacturers, who have an organization of their own, and the action has been agreed to by almost all the firms in the country. This advance makes the increase 10 per cent. within a month. A glass manufacturer said to-day the advance was partially due to the advance in the price of chemicals, which has gone up $4, per ton within a few weeks and the brisk demand for window glass. But little foreign glass is sold on this side of the water.

The Chinaman's Story Believed.
BUFFALO, Oct. 29.—The case of Quong Shee, the Chinese laundryman charged with abducting two little girls named Susie King and Rose Griffith, was considered in the Police Court. The stories of both girls were very conflicting and Justice King said, after listening to the evidence, that the King girl had been in court before on a similar case and he thought she was a pretty bad girl. The Chinaman told a straightforward story and flatly denied the charge. He was discharged from custody.

Chased by Bloodhounds.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 29.—Twenty picked men and a fresh lot of bloodhounds have been sent to help the Sheriff of Blount County in his search for the outlaw Burrows. The two fugitives supposed to be Burrows and his partner are making toward the Tennessee river. They travel by the high road and stop at houses to ask the way. Burrows has never done this before, and some people suspect that the men are moonshiners who have been doing bloody work in Bibb County. One of them lives in Jackson County, which is in the direction in which the pair are going.

Stabbed His Wife Fourteen Times.
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Frank Cava, boss of a gang of Italian laborers, at New Hamburgh, stabbed his wife fourteen times. The woman, who was about to become a mother, is dying. She is being cared for by her mother in the box car occupied by the family. Cava is in jail.

WASHINGTON TOPICS
The New States Anxious for the President's Proclamation.
HE AWAITS THE OFFICIAL COUNT
The Blaine "Secret" Pronounced False and Ridiculous.

Walker Blaine Says the Publication of the Story Was Unjustifiable—Secretary Halford to Return to the Capital To-Night—Minister Ryan Talks About Mexico's Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The proclamation of the President admitting the four States into the Union will not be issued from the White House until the official results of the vote on the constitution has been certified to the President. No certificate has yet been received and consequently it is not known at the White House just when the proclamation will be promulgated.

Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, said to-day that he had just seen the President and talked with him about the proclamation. He said he expected it to be issued very soon now. The cause of the delay, he said, was that the returns were not all in. He himself had just brought with him the returns for South Dakota. They were all in now except Montana, where there is a contest, and he thought there would be but little delay. "I asked the President what he thought of the situation in Montana," he said, "but he had no opinion to give." It is being urged upon the President to issue the proclamation for the States that are now ready, letting Montana come in under a supplementary proclamation.

THE BLAINE "SECRET."
The Secretary's Friends Say the Story is False and Ridiculous.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—"So many false and ridiculous statements have been made about my father's health," said Walker Blaine, "that the only comment I desire to make, is that neither Mr. Blaine nor any of his family or friends will take further notice of any such sensational and unjustifiable publications."

Some of the friends of the Secretary however, are not quite reticent. It is stated with positiveness that R. R. Hitt, formerly Assistant Secretary under Mr. Blaine, and other gentlemen now in Washington, as well as Mr. Phelps, now representing the United States in Germany, have in their possession bright, clear and coherent letters written by Mr. Blaine during the period when he is represented as being paralyzed, and vainly struggling to write his own name intelligently and claiming to a stranger physician, a foreigner in no way interested in his career, that he was "done for."

The inconsistencies of the alleged statements of the doctors, one of them speaking of paresis, and the other of some mysterious functional disorder; the gross breach of all the unknown observances of the medical profession, which are more respected than in Italy, in regard to speaking of a patient's case to third persons—all these facts are pointed out by Mr. Blaine's friends here as conclusively establishing the falsity of the publication.

It is further pointed out that Mr. Blaine's own letter to Chairman Jones, quoted in the article itself, refutes the statement made because therein Mr. Blaine speaks of reasons given to Mr. Jones more than a year previously for declining the nomination, and the whole text of the letter, instead of being tinged by the gloomy forebodings of the hypochondriac, was bouyant with hope and confidence which few Republicans in this country felt at the time it was written.

Mexican Import Taxes.
WASHINGTON, October 29.—In an interview to-day on Mexican import taxes Hon. Thomas Ryan, Minister of the United States to Mexico, said:

"A decree has been issued, to take effect the first of the month, removing live stock and fresh meats from the free list and imposing a heavy tariff. The tariff on fresh meats will be five cents a pound, which is practically prohibitory. The tariff on live stock is scarcely less. There are no statistics showing the value of exports from the United States into Mexico, but their volume is large, and to the best of my judgment the balance of trade has been several millions in our favor.

"The result of removing live stock and fresh meats from the free list will be injurious to the Mexican railroads. It is to be regretted that no figures are available to show our Mexican exports. The law provides merely for collecting figures of maritime commerce and is antiquated. It should be amended by Congress at an early day."

The European Squadron in Boston Harbor.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—John W. Rychman, President of the International Marine Exhibition called on Secretary Tracy and obtained from him an assurance that the European Squadron would be sent into Boston harbor for three days, Probably the 13th, 14th and 15th of November, on the occasion of the inauguration of the Marine Exhibition.

Awarded the Contract for the Cruisers.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 29.—Secretary Tracy awarded the contract for building of the new 2,000-ton cruiser to the Columbia Iron Works and Dry Dock Company, of Baltimore, at their bid of $1,226,000. They were the lowest bidders. The contract for the third cruiser was not awarded.

Secretary Halford better.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 29.—It is expected that Private Secretary Halford will leave Old Point Comfort for Washington to-night. He is much improved in health.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—Mechanical Drawing Classes meet at the Y. M. C. A., to-night.

—The horses at Music Hall are the talk of the town. Reserved seats were sold this morning as far ahead as next Friday evening.

—The music of Prof. Prouty's orchestra at Music Hall, last evening, was an unusual treat to a Plainfield audience that hears about the worst lot of music during the season that falls on the unfortunate ears of anyone.

—"They can do every thing but talk," is what one of our clergymen said of the horses, as he was coming out of Music Hall, last evening. He did not watch the animals closely, as many of the audience noticed them frequently whisper to one another.

A Father and Son Hurled From Their Wagon.

Saturday evening, about 5:30 o'clock, as Mr. Michael Ryan, of Roselle, and his son, Michael, were driving over the West Grand street crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad, the wagon in which they were sitting, was struck in the rear by an East-bound train and both father and son hurled with terrible force to the crossing

Mr. Ryan struck heavily on his face and was cut badly over his right eye, the fall rendering him senseless.

The boy escaped with slight bruises. Mr. Ryan was taken to the office of Dr. Pettit, where his injuries were attended to.

The wagon was a complete wreck, but the horse escaped without any injury. At the time the accident happened the boy was driving. Several by-standers saw the danger they were in and called loudly for him to stop, but their warning was evidently unheard.—Elizabeth Herald.

Death of "Catherine Owens."

In her little cottage home situated in the midst of an orchard now stripped of its leaves and with the Autumn winds soughing through its bare branches, occurred the death shortly after nine o'clock, last night, of Mrs. Helen Alice Nitsch, known throughout the literary World as "Catherine Owens."

The cause of death was consumption, from which she has been sick and suffering for many weeks. She was 45 years old, and leaves a daughter. Funeral services will be held at the house, 13 Orchard place, North Plainfield, to-morrow afternoon at five o'clock.

Mrs. Nitsch's best known works were: "Ten Dollars Enough," "Gentle Breadwinners," "Progressive Housekeeping," and "Choice Cookery."

Mr. Kaufman's Big Bowl.

The Olympia alleys are leased on Monday evenings by a select coterie of well known society people, consisting of Messrs H. G. Runkle, George Wharton Edwards, Pliny Fisk, Wm. B Wadsworth, Charles E Brooks, Dewitt C. Ivins, William Bloodgood, Charles E. Fisk, Wm. T. Kaufmrn, Charles D. Wadsworth with their wives, and Mr. Dexter O. Tiffany.

During their bowling of last evening, some very commendable scores were rolled. Mr. Kaufman was the highest with 200, and Mr. Bloodgood's total was 185.

Full Yet More Coming.

The Choral Society at its second rehearsal in Vincent chapel, last evening, ontinued the practice of the two part-songs already commenced and started another. The chorus is already an unusually full and fine one, yet a number of new applicants for membership had their voices tried last evening.

SUDDEN DEATH OF ISAAC OVERTON.

A Former Resident of This City Stricken With Apoplexy.

All the old residents of this city remember geinal "Ike" Overton who almost twenty years ago lived on Park avenue, then Cherry street, in the house now occupied by Mr. Morgan Bird. He was then connected with the Central Railroad but left its employ in 1873, said good bye to his friends here, and moved with his family to Colorado. From there he went to Omaha in 1877; subsequently to St. Louis, and then to Newark where the family lived until moving to Holden, Mo., in March 1888, where his sudden death occurred on Sunday the 12th inst.

The Holden Herald says: "Mr. Isaac L. Overton, General Foreman of the Bridge Department of the Western Division of the Missouri Pacific, was the perfect picture of health and physical strength Sunday morning. His friends who saw him transacting his usual business, sending dispatches, etc., detected nothing wrong, and it was not until Dr. Jones was called that anything of a serious nature was suspected. Mr. Overton had, we are told, suspected for years that he would be a victim of apoplexy, and when a symptom of approaching danger was felt a physician was summoned. About 10 o'clock Mr. Overton felt faint, and started home. Before reaching home he became unable to walk without assistance. Dr Jones was summoned and reached his patient in time to assist him to his bed. While ministering to the fast sinking man, he looked up in the face of the physician with a look that betokened a full realization that the end was near, and whispered: 'Doctor I know what all this means.' In a few moments his two daughters who were at Sunday school returned, and approached the bed side of their dying father Noticing the grief on their countenances, he mustered sufficient strength to say, while the tears came to his eyes: 'Daughters you could always make me weep.' These were the last words that escaped his lips, and in a few moments the man who a few hours before gave promise of a long existence was rigid in death. The family's grief was uncontrolable. The husband and father's life had flickered and gone out before the very eyes of his family without scarcely a note of warning.

"Isaac Lafever Overton, was born in Morris county, New Jersey, March 4, 1825, and died very suddenly of apoplexy, Oct., 13, 1889, at his home in North Holden, Mo. On Oct. 19, 1843, he was married to Miss Martha B. Clark, who became a very efficient helpmate. To them six children have been born, two sons and four daughters. The oldest daughter died at 12 years of age. The other five are living and were present at their father's funeral."

Mr. S. H. Overton, the oldest son, is passenger conductor on the U. P. C. R. R., between Sioux City, Iowa, and Lincoln, Neb.

Mr. E. B. Overton, the other son, is express messenger on the same run.

The daughters, Misses Emma and Bell, and Mrs. Ida Fowler, were living with their parents.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Jr., are at home on Crescent avenue.

Mr. J. P. Laire is quite ill and confined to his rooms in Force's hotel.

Mr. John A. Kriney of Evona, has been confined to the house the past week, suffering from a severe cold.

Senator John R. McPherson will address the people at Reform Hall, to-morrow evening. Those who have never heard New Jersey's honored Senator, should not miss another opportunity.

At the "Smoker" held in the Elizabeth Wheelmen's club rooms, Saturday evening, Mr. W H Simmonds, of the Plainfield Bicycle club, recited "Patsy and the Owl," greatly to the entertainment of the congenial party assembled.

Mrs. Harriett C. Monson, aged 58 years, died this morning at 7.30 o'clock, of apoplexy after an illness of only twelve hours. Death occurred at the home of Mrs. Ellen O Disbrough, 60 East Front street. Mrs. Monson is a sister of Miss C. E. Clarke.

Mr. Edward Milliken, the elder son of Samuel Milliken, Esq., of Central avenue, will spend the Winter at the home of his parents in this city. Young Milliken and his brother Foster, compose the firm of Milliken Bros., iron merchants of New York, who furnished the trusses and girders for the roof of the Central railroad station at Communipaw at a cost of $98,000, and are now turning out the iron work for the new million-dollar World building.

PLAINFIELD'S CHORAL SOCIETY.

Its Intention to Give Three Concerts if Sufficient Subscribers are Secured.

The following circular letter which is being sent all over the city, speaks for itself, and should meet with the response desired.

The Plainfield Choral Society, composed of one hundred of our best vocalists, with Mr. E. J. Fitzhugh as conductor, has been organized and confidently appeals to lovers of music for support. The chorus will contain many new voices; and if sufficient encouragement is offered, the society will endeavor to give such musical entertainments as will merit the approval of its subscribers.

It is proposed to give three subscription concerts during the present season, at each of which the chorus will be assisted by eminent soloists. Subscribing members, upon the payment of ten dollars, are entitled to four reserved seats at each concert and free admission to rehearsals.

No tickets of admission will be sold, and only those holding members' tickets will be admitted to concerts. The number of subscribers must necessarily be limited to one hundred and seventy-five. Your name having been mentioned as one interested in music, you are requested, if agreeable, to sign the enclosed subscribing member's slip, inserting the amount of your subscription, and to mail the same at once to Mr. Wm. T. Kaufman, Treasurer, No. 65 West Seventh street, Plainfield.

By the character of the music to be rendered, and the assiduous work of the members, the managers hope to make the coming season a notable one in the musical annals of our community. W. W. Howland, President; C. W. McCutchen, Wm. T. Kaufman, Nelson Runyon, H. A. McGee, D. E. Davis, H. O. Newman, Trustees.

DIED WITHIN THE PRISON WALLS.

Consumption Kills Firebug Jackson Just Before His Pardon Was Expected.

John M. Jackson, the Plainfield incendiary, died of consumption in the State Prison at Trenton, last night, after a lingering illness. His wife, who still lives in this city, with a family of two boys and three girls, all under ten years of age, had been hoping that when the Board of Pardons met next Monday, the efforts of those interested would secure her husband's release, as his health was such the Prison physician had given up all hope of saving his life. Death came, however, a week before the Board met, and Jackson died within the walls of his jail.

A Plainfield undertaker left by the 11:30 train this morning for Trenton, and expects to return with the body tonight. Mrs. Jackson will receive $108 from an insurance company in which she had a policy on her husband's life, taken since he was committed. The funeral services are not yet arranged. Of the five children left, an infant boy and girl are twins.

Jackson was captured almost in the act of setting fire to a house on Union ave., just after midnight, Sunday morning, August 28, 1887, by Councilman Carey, now Chief of Police, of this city. He was found guilty in the County Court on three charges of incendiarism—although supposed to be guilty of many other like acts from which Plainfield had suffered for a number of years—and sentenced by Judge McCormick on November 30, 1887, to fifteen years in State Prison.

Of that time he had served less than two years when he died. The development of consumption in his case had been very speedy, and his death has been expected every day for a few weeks past, by the prison doctors.

The Potter Benefit Society.

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Potter Press Works Mutual Aid Society, took place on Saturday night in Democratic Hall, Front street, with the following result:

President—Thomas Chamberlain.
Secretary—John L. Duckworth.
Treasurer—Geo. B. Titsworth.

Reports read showed the Society to be in a healthy financial condition. Over $2,000 in sick benefits have been paid since it started some years ago. It is exclusively for the workmen, most of whom belong to it, and where, by a monthly payment of 25cts, they get a weekly benefit of five dollars so long as their sickness continues.

Probably Not So.

A report was current on Front street at 10:30 o'clock this morning, that the police had all resigned. Officers McCue and Lynch, however, were found at their accustomed posts of duty, and both denied the rumor. But up to the hour of publication today, THE PRESS has been unable to interview Chief Carey on the subject.

ARC LIGHTS ON LOW TENSION.

A Plainfield Electrical Engineer Praises a Plainfield Inventor's Lamps.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—With your kind permission I would like, through the columns of your paper, to add a few remarks to what has already been said to your readers in regard to the all-absorbing topic of electric lighting, and the dangers attached thereto.

Whether or not—as Mr. Edison says—"the high tension must go," one thing is certain, and that is, a good deal of it ought to "go," and the sooner the better. An experience of nearly eight years of every-day service in running low tension electric dynamos for electric lighting and for the transmission of power, places me in a position—as I believe—to safely "observe" that I believe that it is almost (if not altogether) criminal to use the deadly high-tension current where the low tension will answer the same purpose; and no manufactory, business house or place of amusement of any kind whatever, should have within its walls an electric light plant of high tension current for the purpose of furnishing either incandescent or arc lights. It is dangerous and absolutely unnecessary.

"Low tension" arc lights are now budding out all over the country, and are, of course, to a certain extent, taking the place of the high tension system. The New York Sun, with pardonable pride, as told in THE PRESS, announced to the public that they have erected eight "low tension" arc lights in front of the Sun building, the current of which is furnished by their own plant, which also furnishes current for their incandescent lamps. The brilliant arc lamps in front of the theatres of H. C. Miner, Esq., in New York, are of the low tension character, and manufactured by Mr. Kinsman of your city. The current for them as well as for 1,400 incandescent lamps, is furnished by Mr. Miner's own Edison plant, which is considered by many persons eminent in their profession, who have traveled extensively throughout the United States and Canada, and who have inspected the plant, its machinery and its wonderful scenic effects—flooding the stage in an instant with any color of the rainbow—as the most complete and best working electric light plant in the United States.

One dynamo of the plant is used exclusively for furnishing the 800 incandescent lamps for the People's Theatre. The other (there are two in the plant) furnishes all the current necessary for the Bowery Theatre as well as for the two arc lamps in front of "The Bowery," and the three in front of "The People's." As to the condition of the last named dynamo, it may be of interest to state that although it has been running 5 "arcs" and 450 "incandescents" for nearly a year, the "wear" of the commutators is absolutely imperceptible, no "turning off" or filing being necessary, the "brushes" have not worn one-sixteenth of an inch, and such a thing as a spark of electric current is not allowed to appear.

I mention this to show the practicability of running arc and incandescent lights from the same dynamo and from the same wires, and a dozen more "arcs" may be added to the five spoken of with as equally satisfactory result. "Exciters" are unknown with the system; neither are "converters" necessary; and such a thing as a man being "converted" into a corpse with the system, is unknown.

As an old Plainfielder I have been prompted to trespass on your valuable space—perhaps too much—from reading the articles which have lately appeared in THE PRESS bearing upon the subject of electric lighting, and from the fact that many thoughtful people have arrived at the conclusion that any electric current which admits of the probability or possibility of roasting a man to death in mid-air should "go."

PAUL SYMONS,
Chief Engineer H. C. Miner's Edison Electric Light Plant, New York.

A Peculiar Audience.

Music Hall never before ntained an audience like the one that assembled there last evening. It consisted of about eight hundred men, women and children, from the street Arab to the municipal dignitary. Noticeable among the number were nine clergymen, His Honor the Mayor, a large representation of old ladies and old gentlemen who are rarely seen in Music Hall, a good many regular theatre patrons and a lot of happy boys and girls. All vied with one another in paying homage to equine sagacity.

At first there were a few smiles, here and there a little applause and by the time the twelve horses had played on bells to remarkable music time, "The Last Rose of Summer," all settled the fact with themselves that Bartholomew's horses are indeed worth seeing, and all were proud that they had come. Who can now recall an audience in Music Hall that was so unanimous in their opinion of approval and delight, as the one of last evening?

What the twenty-four handsome and intelligent horses do cannot be enumerated, as it would take more space than can be spared today; suffice it to say that nothing like it has ever before been seen here and it may be many years before another entertainment like it will be presented here. The horses will give two afternoon performances, Wednesday and Saturday. To-morrow afternoon the horses will hold a reception on the stage after the performance and each lady will be presented with a handsome souvenir picture of "Nellie" surrounded with a garland of roses.

THE NATION'S RELIGIOUS BODIES.

Statistics That Dr. Carroll Will Gather for the 11th Census.

Work has already commenced in the office located in this city of the 6th Division, 11th Census of the United States—or, in other words, the Bureau of Statistics of Religious Bodies. Henry K. Carroll, LL. D., of North Plainfield, editor of the New York Independent, is the Special Agent in charge of the work of the Division. He was appointed by Robert P. Porter, Superintendent of the United States Census. Something over $6,000,000 has been appropriated for the work, and it is intended if possible to complete it by the close of 1891.

Dr. Carroll is preeminently fitted in very many ways to organize, direct, and also to personally assist in the important work of securing complete and accurate statistics of the one hundred and seventy-eight thousand congregations and their churches, and the many thousands of ecclesiastical divisions within the length and breadth of the nation. He is known already throughout the country, and so universally and personally esteemed, that a request from him will be met at once with a satisfactory response that another solicitor might plead for in vain for months.

There has never before been a systematic work carried on in the direction of procuring possibly the most interesting and probably the most important of statistics—that concerning religious bodies. Dr. Carroll will spread his correspondence from ocean to ocean, and into the remotest corners of every State and Territory. He will seek out every knot of worshipers who have reached the form of a denomination, no matter what they worship or what they believe. All he asks is their numbers, and information regarding their organizations or societies, church edifices, seating capacity, and value of church property if they have any.

The Chief Clerk of the office here is Mr. Charles E. Buell, a gentlemen possessed of enough experience in census methods to supply a score of clerks. He was first the auditor of the reports of railway corporations in the Census of 1880, and afterwards appointed to gather the statistics of telegraph and telephone companies. He will begin for Dr. Carroll the long search that, in the latter's own words, "will be broad enough in scope to embrace every religious body of whatever name or creed, however few or many its churches and members." All will receive the same attention and the same solicitous care, that entire truth and justice may be done all alike. Whether Reformed Mormons, Latter Day Saints, just Plain Mormons or any other kind of Mormons; whether Millerites or Seventh Day Adventists; whether Roman Catholics or Armenians; Greeks, Methodists, Hebrews, Baptists, Mohammedans, Presbyterians or nothing at all except in name; each will be found set forth as honestly and prominently as the other, in Dr. Carroll's report when printed by order of the United States Government.

THE TEACHER WHIPS A SCHOLAR

And the Latter's Parent Threatens to Prosecute the Former.

Quite an excitement exists as to the action of the Principal of the New Market school in administering punishment to a boy for disobedience. The parent threatens a prosecution. It is well known that corporal punishment is against the law and it is never inflicted unless with express authority of the parent. But had no such authority been given in the case in point, the fact of a teacher being attacked by a scholar would warrant defense in any case.

That order must be maintained in a public school and that the teacher must have control over her pupils is a conceded fact, and the Trustees are determined to thus control the school if it becomes necessary to expel a number of refractory scholars. The parents should aid and not oppose such efforts in behalf of good order and discipline.

All Kinds of Political Doses.

(From the Elizabeth Herald.)

Grand Democratic mass meeting at the Temple to-night, which will be addressed by Governor R. S. Green and Hon. Leon Abbett, the next governor of New Jersey. Those who would secure a good seat should go early, as the house will probably be filled to its utmost capacity.

There will be a Republican rally on Wednesday night, which will be addressed by General E. Burd Grubb, the Republican candidate for governor, and others.

Henry George, the labor agitator, will speak in this city at no distant date.

The first successful blood-purifier ever offered to the public was Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Imitators have had their day, but soon abandoned the field, while the demand for this incomparable medicine increases year by year, and was never so great as at present.

—The Young Crescents and Greenbrooks are to have it out, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, on the North Plainfield grounds of the latter.

ARTHUR IS CHIEF.

His Re-Election Caused Great Enthusiasm in the Convention.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 29.—P. M. Arthur was re-elected Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, receiving 351 votes, to 64 for Vrooman, of North Platte, and 3 for T. B. Fellows, of Mississippi.

On the result being announced the convention went almost wild, and for over an hour hundreds of men clamored around the old leader, and shed tears of joy on his re-election; for the second Grand Engineer six ballots were taken without any result. The fight is between the present incumbent, Hays, of California, and Hedrick, of Pennsylvania, with the chances in favor of the former. Joseph Sprague, of Canada the present incumbent, was re-elected third Grand Engineer.

No action was taken on the federation scheme to-day, but it will be adopted before adjournment on next Friday. Cleveland, Ohio, has been chosen as the national headquarters.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Frederick Merrill, of Bridgeport, Conn., while intoxicated, beat his wife so brutally that she died in a hospital in that city. The couple had been married only six months. Merrill is held on a charge of murder.

Over two thousand names of colored voters in Lynchburg, Va., have been stricken from the colored poll books of this city, on the claim that the individuals had died, had removed from the city or were improperly registered.

Sick Headache

IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

IS THE WEDDING OFF

Rumors About Miss Caldwell's Marriage to Prince Murat.

TALK OF FINANCIAL TROUBLES

The Princess Hatzfeldt Receives Numerous Diamond Presents From Her Relatives.

Fifteen Killed and Forty Injured in a Railway Accident at Agra—Dr. Tanner Released from Prison—Thirty-three Persons Drowned by the Foundering of a British Ship.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—It is now reported that there is a hitch in the Murat-Caldwell wedding, and all on account of some pecuniary settlements. It is even hinted that it is barely possible that the wedding of the American heiress to Prince Murat may not take place at all.

Miss Caldwell had engaged a private salon at Worth's for the purpose of trying on the bridal dress yesterday. She, however, failed to appear at the appointed time and only towards nightfall despatched a message to Worth saying that she was ill.

Prince Murat was interviewed about the report. He laughed at the idea, but was extremely nervous and showed that the rumors caused him considerable annoyance.

GIFTS TO PRINCESS HATZFELT.

Mr. Huntington Gave His Daughter a Necklace Containing Eighty Diamonds.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Prince Francis Hatzfeldt and his bride are now in Italy enjoying their honeymoon. The father of the bride, Mr. Huntington, sailed for New York to-day. The presents received by the young couple were of great value, the father's gift to the bride being a necklace containing eighty diamonds, none less than two and some over three carats in weight, and all of the finest quality. He also gave her a magnificent diamond brooch.

Mrs. Huntington's present was a diamond star, the central gem of which weighed nearly twenty carats.

The Prince's parents gave the bride a diamond necklace of a single row of gems, all of them of large size and of the most curious design.

The Prince's present consisted of a beautiful pearl ornament, designed for the hair or dress, the large pearl in the center being surrounded by a forest of small diamonds.

There were other presents, mostly diamonds of the most artistic and costly character.

Emperor William to Bismarck.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The "North German Gazette" prints a telegram sent from Athens by King William to Prince Bismarck which reads as follows: "I have arrived in glorious old Athens after a voyage of intoxicating beauty. After a splendid reception from the Crown Prince and the people your telegram was my first greeting from home. Hearty thanks for it. My first word back to the Fatherland is a salutation to you sent from the city of Pericles and from the pillars of Parthenon, the sublime aspect of which deeply impresses me."

Dr. Tanner Out of Prison.

DUBLIN, Oct. 29.—Dr. Tanner, M. P. for the middle division of Cork, who was sentenced in August last to one months' imprisonment under the Crimes Act and immediately after sentenced to three months' further imprisonment for contempt of court, has been released.

Fifteen Dead—Forty Injured.

CALCUTTA, Oct. 29.—A terrible railway disaster is reported to have occurred at Agra, on the line between Lucknow and Delhi. Two passenger trains collided and fifteen passengers were killed and forty injured.

A Mayborough Jury Disagrees.

DUBLIN, Oct. 29.—In the case of Farmer Gallagher, on trial at Mayborough, County Donegal, for participation in the killing of Police Inspector Martin, the jury were unable to agree and were discharged.

Thirty-three Persons Drowned.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 29.—News is received here that the British ship Bolan, from Calcutta for Liverpool, has foundered at sea and her crew of thirty-five persons were drowned.

Nearer to Heaven.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 29.—A young girl of Pittstown, Hunterdon county, has become insane on religion to such an extent that she persists in living among the limbs of large trees so that she may be nearer heaven. She is frequently removed from the trees which she has climbed. She will be sent to the Morris County Insane Asylum.

He Arranged His Funeral.

CLAREMONT, N. H., Oct. 29.—Caleb Dinsmore, aged 75, committed suicide by placing the muzzle of a gun to his eyes and firing the gun with a cane. He left a note saying that he must soon die from a cancer and preferred not to suffer. He had made arrangements for his funeral, even to laying out a suit of clothes in which he wanted to be buried.

Collision on the Rail.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 29.—A train conveying the State Railroad Commissioners on their way to Boston, ran into the rear of a Lowell mixed train at a curve near Ballardvale. Eight cars of the mixed train were derailed, and the locomotive and two cars of the Boston train were damaged. No one was injured, but passengers were delayed two hours by the blockade.

The Feeks' Inquest

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The Coroner's jury impaneled to inquire into the cause of Lineman Feeks' death completed its labors yesterday so far as the taking of testimony was concerned, but did not succeed in locating the company that owned the fatal wire. A verdict is expected this afternoon.

Tom Kelly's Victim Dying.

BOSTON, Oct. 29—Thomas Shea, whose throat was cut by Thomas J. Kelly in a barber shop because Shea had been abusing John L. Sullivan, is said by the hospital physicians to be dying. Kelly waived examination in the Municipal Court yesterday and was held in $25,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

SHOT IN THE HEAD.

An Old Man Commits Suicide in a Public Park.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 29.—The dead body of Oliver Garrison, one of the oldest citizens of St. Louis, was found lying near a seat in Forest Park, still warm and with a revolver beside him. The old man had shot himself through the head.

He was 79 years of age and one of the most prominent business men of the city up to about four years ago, when he retired from active business on account of old age and ill health. It is believed that Mr. Garrison was temporarily insane when he committed the deed. He suffered greatly from kidney trouble of late and spent much of his time walking in the park.

Mr. Garrison, with his brother, D. R. Garrison, built the Conway, the first steamboat to ply betwen St. Louis and New Orleans. Mr. Garrison served for twenty years as President of the Mechanics' Bank. He was also receiver of the Missouri Pacific Railroad just previous to its purchase by Jay Gould. Mr. Garrison has three brothers living, J. R. Garrison, of Boston, Abram, of Pittsburg, and D. R., of this city, besides a sister, two sons and a large circle of more distant relatives.

OLD MR. ASTOR TO MARRY.

A Report to that Effect Stirs Society Circles in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Society circles are discussing a report that Mr. John Jacob Astor, the present head of the Astor family, is about to marry again. He is said to be engaged to Mrs. Bowler, of Cincinnati.

No official announcement of the engagement has been made, and no reliable confirmation of the report could be obtained. On the other hand no denial has been made by the members of the Astor family.

Both Mr. Astor and Mrs. Bowler are now in Europe, and it is stated that Mr. Astor has been very attentive to the lady for a year or more. Mrs. Bowler has been a widow for about six years. She has two children. Her late husband was a nephew of George H. Pendleton, of Ohio, ex-Minister to Germany. He left her a handsome fortune, largely invested in railroad properties.

Mr. Astor is now about 68 years of age. His wealth is generally estimated at about $150,000,000. He is a man of commanding presence, cultivated tastes and aristocratic bearing. For a man of his age, he is remarkably vigorous and active.

HIS HEAD CUT OFF.

A Massachusetts Man Commits Suicide on the Railroad Track.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., Oct. 29.—A man sat down on the West Shore Railroad track here at 6 o'clock last evening as the express train east came thundering along. The wheels took the man's head off clean, without mutilating it or the body. The head fell 60 feet away.

Papers in the man's pockets showed that he was Amos P. Brown, of East Windsor, Mass. There was also a postal card from N. E. Bert of Swift River, Mass., offering Brown a position. The suicide was about 45 years old.

Helen Baldwin Wins the Bicycle Race.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 29.—The score in the 56 hour bicycle match which has just closed was as follows: Helen Baldwin, of Pittsburg, 884 miles; Kitty O'Brien, of Dublin, 764 miles; Jessie Oakes, 764 miles; W. F. Knapp, of Denver, 815 miles; W. J. Morgan, of England, 802 and Edward Reading, of Omaha, 802. The women were given a handicap of 100 miles. Miss Baldwin was awarded first money.

Rate-Cutting Discontinued.

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—After a warfare of several months duration between the Boston and Albany and Fitchburg roads upon western passenger rates, an agreement has been arrived at for a cessation of hostilities and harmony once more takes the place of rate-cutting. New rates will be announced this week. It is surmised that the presence of a member of the Vanderbilt family in Boston may have had something to do with the new arrangement.

Miss Newcombe's Guardian.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Justice Andrews of the Supreme Court has appointed Richard S. Newcombe, guardian ad litem of his daughter Ida Florine Newcombe, in order that suit may be brought against George W. Lederer for the annulment of the marriage ceremony performed in Long Island City a few days ago, in which Miss Newcombe and Lederer were the contracting parties.

Ford Surrenders to the Police.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 29.—Michael Ford, a noted foot-ball player, who was implicated in the larceny of $500 worth of seersucker cloth from the Barnard Mill, early in 1887, has returned here and surrendered to the police. He fled after the robbery and since then he has been in Europe and New York, in which latter place he has been lying sick in a hospital.

Moulders Strike for Higher Wages.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Thirty-five molders employed in Caterpool's Hester Works at Geneva are out on strike, their demand for an increase of wages from $2.25 to $2.50 per day having been refused. The firm manufactures furnances and heaters under the patents of Pierce, Butler & Pierce of Syracuse.

Crazed by Cigarettes.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—John Barry, 25 years old, a son of Policeman Barry, of the Leonard Street Station, was confined in the insane ward of Bellevue Hospital yesterday, and the physicians say that his mind has been affected by smoking too many cigarettes.

More of the Navassa Rioters Now Due.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 29.—The steamer Pirate reports that on Oct. 25th she passed the brigs Romance and Alice between Hatteras and Body Island. These are the vessels that have 124 of the Navassa rioters on board. They ought to arrive in port in a few hours.

The Atlantic Mills Stock Increased.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 29.—The Atlantic Mills, of this city, operated by C. & G. Owens, have increasd the capital stock from $800,000 to $1,500,000. The whole of the increase will be paid in by November 1., and the company will then have no paper out in Boston.

The Mohican Ordered to Samoa.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 29.—The U. S. steamer Mohican, which arrived at Honolulu from Callao a few weeks ago, is under orders to proceed to Samoa to reinforce the Adams, which is now there.

BARNYARD BREVITIES.

CHICKENS are fond of buckwheat; better lay away several bushels as an occasional relish to their daily feed.

INTELLIGENT feeding is as necessary for the hog as for any other animal; it will not thrive on any thing and every thing.

MANY farmers do not appreciate the importance of testing their cows and knowing which are making profitable returns and which are not.

HAVE a clean floor on which to feed the swine. A hog does not like to eat in filth, and it does not improve the pork to compel him to do it, either.

OVER-FEEDING the hens may be the cause of leg weakness, soft eggs, poor hatches and apoplexy, and is often the cause of hens becoming egg-bound.

THE carrot is the root crop preferred by horses. The mode of feeding carrots to horses is to chop them fine and give each horse half a peck three times a week.

IT is claimed that one pound of linseed meal is equal to ten pounds of hay. Being a cooked food, it is easily digested, it is safe to use and cheap compared with its value as food.

AN excellent mode of keeping pumpkins is to take them to the barn and cover them well with hay. It will not injure a pumpkin if it freezes, provided it is used before it thaws.

BE sure that the stables are tight and warm before severe cold weather sets in, and that ample ventilation is provided, so that the stock will not suffer from vitiated air. To combine these two requires careful study and observation.

IF you have no litter round your place for winter for your hens to scratch in, get a lot of dry leaves as they drop in the fall, and in the middle of the winter when every thing is snowed up just watch how your hens will appreciate your thoughtfulness.

IT pays to saturate the woodwork of plows, harrows, rollers and such other farm implements as are necessarily exposed to the weather a good deal with kerosene oil. Pour it into all joints and cracks before painting so as to get the wood full of it.

THE peculiar value of oats for horses is explained as consisting in their facilitating digestion and developing energy in a very marked degree. While they are strengthening and nutritious, they do not fatten unduly, but give firm tissues, spirit and fire, and endurance for prolonged work.

SYSTEM in storage and a place for every thing is as necessary in the barns and stables as in the dwelling house. The loss of time in hunting for an article is much more than the time spared to put it in a proper place. Every thing should be where it can be found easily when wanted, and every animal in the stables should have its appropriate stall.

FILL some unused shed, stall in the barn or the corner of any unused outbuilding, where it can be kept dry with coarse sand, the more gravel, if not too large, the better, for the fowls' use during the winter; spread out over the floor of the hen-house and the dropping board, for it lessens the work of cleaning more than half and makes the job much pleasanter.

OLD-WORLD AFFAIRS.

IN Paris the remains from the dissecting-rooms are now sent to the crematory at Pere la Chaise.

NEVER before has work been so abundant and so well remunerated in Paris as during the exhibition season.

A MARBLE statue of the Princess of Wales, by a French sculptor, is to be executed for erection at Copenhagen.

A ROMAN aqueduct has been lately cleaned and put in order at Sabelies, Spain, and now supplies the town with water.

A FRENCH criminal judge collects tattooes, viz.: "Illustrated" morsels of the skin of executed criminals, which he secures in an album.

A MOVEMENT has been started in England for the erection of a monument to Wilkie Collins in Westminster Abbey or St. Paul's Cathedral.

EUROPEAN railroads are fenced in, have no good crossings, the engines have neither bell nor headlight, and the engineer must stand.

IN the recent autumn maneuvers in Germany the fortifying of an intrenched position with barbed wire fencing was found to be very efficacious.

BELGIUM bakers, milkmen and hucksters make dogs draw their carts. The animal works under the cart, between the wheels. Some sell for $45.

THE English post-office does all the express business in Great Britain; carries parcels at an average cost of eleven cents each, and makes a profit of $2,250,000 a year.

THE erection the other day of a monument to the Danes who fell at Oversee in Schleswig, in 1864, is regarded as the first public admission of complete reconciliation between the Danes and their conquerors.

HER MAJESTY'S Theater, one of the homes of Italian opera in London, has been turned into a spectacular resort. The immense auditorium is transformed into an open market place of Queen Elizabeth's time, the upper stories being converted into old English houses, with latticed windows. Great throngs are expected to visit this new attraction.

DURING the past year many of the members of the women's Liberal associations of England have been engaged in making warm, comfortable clothing for the evicted Irish tenants. It is now suggested that during the coming season they take into consideration the suffering and distress that must inevitably ensue from the effects of the dockers' strikes.

TWO GERMAN athletes lately arived in New York, whose feats of strength, it is said, will be a revelation to the strong men of this country. One can lift 545 pounds with his middle finger, and can pass a weight of 200 pounds slowly over his head with one hand. The other is credited with being able to force a six-inch nail with his bare hand through a two-inch plank.

A LITTLE HUMOR.

POLICE SERGEANT—"Is the man dangerously wounded?" Irish Police Surgeon—"Two of the wounds are mortal, but the third can be cured, provided the man keeps perfectly quiet for at least six weeks."

WILLIE—"Mamma, what does nil desperandum mean?" Mamma (who is married to a politician)—"It means, my child, that there are a good many offices to be distributed yet."

"I NEVER pretend to know a thing that I do not," remarked Brown. "When I don't know a thing I say at once: 'I don't know.'" "A very proper course," said Fogg; "but how monotonous your conversation must be!"

AN old peasant on the south shore of Long Island was telling his visitor how pleasant it was. "But," asked the friend, slapping his face with his handkerchief, "don't you have a great many mosquitoes and sand-flies?" "Ya'as," said the man; "but, then, we sorter like them." "How can that be?" "Wa'al, you see, we feel so kinder good when they go away."

KASKINE.

(THE NEW QUININE.)

No Bad Effect.
No Headache
No Nausea.
No Ringing Ears
Cures Quickly.
Pleasant. Pure.

A POWERFUL TONIC.

A Specific for Malaria, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration.

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PURIFIER. Superior to quinine.

Mr. Lode Hoornbeck, of the U. S. Ship Kearsarge, writes that he meets people almost daily who have used or are using Kaskine, and who affirm from experience that it is superior to quinine in tonic and curative properties, and produces no subsequent bad effects.

Mr. John C. Scarborough, Selma, N. C., writes: "I got malaria in the Southern army, and for a dozen years suffered from its debilitating effects. I was terribly run down when I heard of Kaskine, the new quinine. It helped me at once. I gained 35 pounds."

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists or sent by mail on receipt of price.

BARGAIN HOUSE.

This House has always been noted for hosiery and underwear, and this year we are giving better values than ever. We have everything for Gentlemen, Ladies and Children, in white, red and natural wool. We ask special attention to our 50c flannel shirts, and a natural wool ladies' vest that sells at $1 25, is a good one.

* * * * *

We sell at $2 50 per pair, a good wool 11/4 blanket cheap, at $3 00, and $1 25 buys a cotton-filled comfortable, made of best quality calico.

* * * * *

We have received from the manufacturers, 1,000 Linoleum Mats, size 2x3; regular price 75c., our price 37c. They are just the thing to throw in front of a stove or door.

* * * * *

Our Cloak Department is one of our leading features; 'tis something new with us, and a great success. All our garments are well made, and nice fitting. There are Jackets and Newmarkets for ladies and children in all sizes, and our prices are low.

* * * * *

In Dress Goods we have everything that is new and desirable. There are 50in all wool suitings 50c yard, 40in all wool serges at 47c, 40in wool mixtures at 25c. There are many good values in black goods of all kinds.

* * * * *

Have you tried our 4-button embroid'd Kid Gloves at 65c? Just as good as many that are sold at $1. We average 100 pair a week and no complaints.

* * * * *

Here you will find lamps of all kinds. For the hall there is a very pretty lamp, price $1 90. Hanging lamps from $2 00 up, and stand lamps at any price you want to pay. We deliver goods everywhere.

A THRILLING STORY

Pope Leo's Fleeing Agent After His $600,000.

BOB INGERSOLL IS ATTORNEY.

An Ex-Sheriff Sued for Money Seized and Turned Over to a Foreign State.

The Remarkable Case Now in the United States Circuit Court in New York—King Leopold's Love for Gold—Traced by Belgian Police—Remarkable Chase for the Money.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—There came up in the United States District Court today a case which brings out in clear light a contest between the Pope of Rome and Leopold II., King of the Belgians, as to their respective authority in the appointment of bishops, a dramatic contest between two bishops, the flight of the famous Canon Bernard to this country with some $1,500,000 in trust funds, his kidnapping and return to Belgium, his incarceration, and, all in all, a thrilling account of his strong devotion to his ecclesiastical superiors.

The case is known as Leon Bernard against Peter Bowe, ex-Sheriff of this county, and the suit is brought to recover $300,000 which the Sheriff turned over to Francois Bourgeois in 1883. The counsel for Canon Bernard are Wilcox & Johns, and for Mr. Bowe is Police Commissioner Charles F. McLean. The case comes up on a demurrer to the defendant's plea of the statute of limitations.

For the last few years Bernard has been teaching in London. At the time of the alleged robbery, he says, he was the secretary of Bishop Durousseau. In 1879 Edmond Joseph Dumont was Bishop of Tournai. He was removed, and Durousseau was appointed in his place by the Pope. Bishop Dumont refused to yield to the new Bishop and claimed custody of all the diocesan funds, which, it is alleged, were much greater than the laws of Belgium permit. Bishop Dumont avers that on the evening of December 28, 1879, five men and a locksmith entered his house while he was away, took from his safe all his church records and the funds, put on new locks and shut him out of the house.

This scandal directed the attention of King Leopold II. to the large amount of money held by the diocese. It was feared that the Government would seize the money. The Pope instructed Bishop Durousseau to place it in the hands of some trustworthy person to be conveyed to a place of safety. Bernard, who was the Bishop's secretary and a man of some wealth, was intrusted with this mission. Early in 1880 he came to Canada, bringing with him about $1,200,000. He deposited aoout $360,000 in Canada, and then went to Boston, where he left $125,000 with the Union Safe Deposit Company. In New York he deposited $600,000 with three safe deposit companies. He went to Mexico, and later to Havana, where he was arrested at the instance of King Leopold and taken back to Tournai. While he was in prison there King Leopold began a suit here for $800,000. This suit fell through, and he began a second suit and levied on all the property which Bernard had deposited here. Part of this Bernaad now claims was his own private property.

Bishop Durousseau demanded that the ownership of this property should be settled by a Sheriff's jury here in New York. A suit was also begun against Bernard in Belgium, and the case was taken from New York by the appointment in Belgium of Francois Bourgeois as a receiver. Bourgeois obtained the $600,000. He brought suit in Boston against the Union Safe Deposit Company in Bernard's name, and the $125,000 which was deposited there was delivered to him.

When Bernard was put on trial in Belgium his defense was that the money was given to him in trust, and that he had obeyed his superior in bringing it to this country. He was acquitted and went to London. Another suit was brought against him charging him with having "traffic in trust funds." He was convicted, and an effort to extradite him failed. The Government of Belgium now holds in trust for Bernard 400,000 francs, which is the remainder of his private property. Bernard claims that the Government must account to him for all the money seized. In beginning suit against Mr. Bowe he indirectly brings suit against the Belgian Government through its receiver, who gave bonds to protect Mr. Bowe.

An interesting feature of the case is the appearance of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll as counsel for Canon Bernard, as he will be called on to thunder eloquence against the King of the Belgians in behalf of the Pope himself.

TRAIN INDIGNANT.

He Scoffs at the Idea of Being Examined by Experts.

BOSTON, Oct. 30.—Judge McKim, of the Probate Court, having declined to accept a certified copy of the record of the New York court which pronounced George Francis Train insane in 1875, Lawyer Snow sent Mr. Train a letter asking his consent to be interviewed in his cell by experts.

To this Mr. Train replied: "No. I know a d—sight more about my own mind than any 'expert.' Should Judge call for presence in court, experts can watch and pray there. This is your case, not mine. Lunatics don't employ doctors or lawyers." This action by Mr. Train further complicates his case.

Seized by the Sheriff.

READING, Pa., Oct. 30.—The Sheriff has seized the establishment of Roman Bros., dealers in notions and fancy goods, executions amounting to over $12,000 having been issued against the firm. The creditors are Philadelphia and New York parties.

Left His Wife and Four Children and Debts Amounting to $10,000.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 30.—J. Alexander Harris, member of the firm of J. D. Harris & Co., fruit and vegetable canners, of Milford, has absconded, leaving unpaid debts to the amount of $10,000, and a wife and four children behind him.

His absence was not discovered until yesterday, and now it is learned that Miss May Ellis, his former book-keeper, a handsome young woman, of 18 or 20 years of age, has eloped with him. In a letter to her father, Miss Ellis says she met Harris in Philadelphia, where they were married, and started at once for Liverpool. Warrants have been sent in pursuit of the couple.

Harris' wife has gone to her husband's brother's home in Pittsburg. The absconder's debts are mostly to farmers who sold him peaches and tomatoes. Nearly all Harris' furniture in his house was secretly moved away.

THE CHURCH AND GOD.

Object of the Union Conference of Evangelical Denominations.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 30.—The annual convention of the Union Conference of Evangelical Denominations has begun at the Mt. Vernon M. E. Church. Rev. George A. Needham, of New Jersey, presiding.

The object of the conference, to use the words of its president, is to correct the tendency to practically ignore the presence and ministry of the spirit in the professing church and to warn against this declension and to revive a more practical recognition of His presence and relations to the church and the world.

Bishop A. M. Wilson of the M. E. Church South delivered an address on the "Glorious person and manifold ministry of the Holy Spirit." Rev. T. A. Hoyt, D. D., of Philadelphia, delivered a very able discourse on "The Holy Spirit personal;" and Rev. Julius E. Grammar, of Baltimore, spoke on "The endurement of the Holy Spirit." Rev. G. S. Bishop, D. D., of Orange, N. J., spoke at length on "The Spirit of the Revealer of Christ."

WORK AMONG THE DEAD.

Recovering Bodies at Johnstown and Placing Victims in Permanent Graves.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 30.—Government engineers are here to ascertain the cost of widening and deepening the channels of the streams passing through this city and to erect temporary bridges over the same.

The remains of Michael Lavell were recovered from the debris in Stoney Creek yesterday. One body floated down the creek last night, but was not recovered owing to the darkness. Twenty-three bodies were removed from the temporary to permanent places in Grand View Cemetery. Two were identified.

A Convict Escapes From Auburn Prison.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Cornelius Keefe, a New Yorker, serving a four years term at Auburn Prison has escaped. He was one of a gang of convicts employed in walling up the out-let just outside of the prison and succeeded in eluding the officer in charge. He made a break for liberty and was gone ten minutes before he was missed. Keefe had 29 months to serve. A reward of $50 was offered for his capture. A later despatch says he was captured in the Southern Central coal yards.

Exciting Dog Fight.

NORWALK, Conn., Oct. 30.—In an old barn, just over the Westport line, some fifty sporting men witnessed an exciting battle between "Jim," a mastiff, owned by John Madden, of this place, and "Jack," a bulldog, owned by Ed. Lynch, of New York, for a stake of $300. The Norwalk dog weighed four pounds more than his adversary, and was the favorite, but was defeated easily in an hour and a half by the smaller dog.

Sold Liquor to Altar Boys.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 30.—Rev. Father Lewis Genolin, of the San Fernando Cathedral, made an affidavit against two saloonkeepers, charging them with selling liquor to minors. The priest says that a morning or two since some altar boys who waited upon him during the services at the cathedral were drunk and acted disgracefully, singing the words "We've on a jag and don't give a d——" to the chant of the mass.

Engineers to Meet Next in Pittsburg.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 30.—The engineers' convention elected F. B. Dietrick, of Altoona, Pa., second grand assistant chief engineer to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Cavener, of Chicago, and A. H. Butler, of Pittsburg, third grand chief engineer. The convention decided to hold the next convention at Pittsburg.

Arrested the Foreman.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Charles Thoelen, forty years old, for six years the trusted foreman in the meerschaum pipe factory of J. F. Kaldenberg & Co., has been arrested for the larceny of over $6,000 worth of goods from the firm. J. Steiner, a cigar dealer in First avenue, was also arrested as an accomplice. Thoelen confessed his guilt and gave up 925 of the stolen pipes.

Schooner Sunk in a Collision.

POINT PLEASANT, N. J., Oct. 30.—The schooner Mary A. Hall, from Fernandina for New York, and Isaac H. Tilton from Kennebec for Philadelphia, collided yesterday, the former sinking off this place and the latter being beached near Barnegat. The crew of the Hall took to the boat.

Big Snow Storm at Denver.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 30.—The first snow of the season began falling yesterday, and by night it was about seven inches deep and still falling. There is danger of several roofs being crushed in by the heavy weight of snow upon them.

WORLD CHAMPIONS

The New York Giants Defeat the Brooklyns.

THEY WIN SIX GAMES TO THREE

The Gallant Grooms Made a Plucky Fight for the Honors.

The Last Game the Best of the Series—O'Day was Pitted Against Terry and Both Men Pitched Finely—The Grooms Were Beaten by the Superior Discipline of the Giants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The world's championship was decided on the Polo grounds when the New Yorks won their sixth game from the Brooklyns. It was an excellent exhibition of ball playing, and the Giants had to play hard to win, which they did, and well earned their victory. They outplayed the Brooklyns at every point of the game, and managed to make their hits just at the right time. Terry did exceedingly well, but O'Day carried off the pitching honors.

Brooklyn was first at the bat, and opened the game in a lively manner. O'Brien was given his base on balls, and went to second on Hub Collins' bunt. Then Tom Burns found O'Day for a tremendous hit to the top of center field bank, on which O'Brien and Collins scored, and the batter reached second. From this point the Brooklyns made but two hits during the entire game, and were unable to increase their score.

The New Yorks earned a run in the first inning on Tiernan's two-bagger and Ward's three-baser. In the sixth they tied the score on Ward's hit and steal, Connor's out, Ward getting third on the play and Richardson's sacrifice. In the eighth O'Day got his base on balls, but was forced out at second by Slattery's hit to Terry. Tiernan fouled to Pinkney. Slattery stole second and scored on a wild pitch.

The grooms were quickly retired in the ninth, and the great prize for which the Giants have been struggling since last April was theirs. The faithful cranks cheered them heartily, and the season of 1889 came to an end. The score:

DOMINION DOINGS.

The Canadian Parliament to Consider Its Troubles With the United States.

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—The papers here are discussing matters which will be brought up in the next Parliament, which meets Jan. 16. The fight over the Jesuit bill, the disturbed relations between Canada and the United States and the possibility of extending commercial relations with the neighboring republics will occupy much time of the session.

Overtures are constantly being made by the Imperial authorities here to modify the Canadian Chinese act in view of the possibility of its creating complications which might lead to the injury of British trade with China. British Columbia is urging a reduction of the tax on Chinamen.

BIG CONFLAGRATION.

A Business Block in Akron, Ohio, Destroyed by a Gas Explosion.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 30.—A special from Akron, Ohio, says: About midnight the boiler in the new four story brick block on South Main street, occupied by O'Niel & Dyas, dry goods merchants, exploded. The building took fire and was gutted and is a total loss. The fire then burned through to Howard street, and the loss is very heavy.

The loss to O'Neil & Dyas is estimated at $225,000, with an insurance of $160,000. The Tiger hat store, a three story brick on Howard street was also destroyed, with a loss of about $15,000, and the Pullman restaurant adjoining, loss about $8,000.

The explosion was caused by escaping gas.

The Meyer Will Contest.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 30.—It is announced that a compromise has been effected in the contest over the will of the late millionaire Christopher Meyer of this city, by which his widow, Ellie Meyer, of New York, and granddaughter, Mrs. Mollie Regenaberger, of California, receive large sums each and withdraw from the contest. The only contest against the will now is in behalf of Meyer's insane son, who is in an asylum.

He Married the Girl.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Alexander Martin, arrested at Elizabeth, N. J., and brought here yesterday to answer the charge of felony, was last night married to the complainant, after which he was allowed to depart on his own recognizance. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father John McMenomy. Martin, who claims to be a horse owner and trainer, will return to Elizabeth.

The Christian Workers Adjourn.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The Christian Workers' Convention came to an end last night with a social meeting. Rev. R. H. Cornwall, of Philadelphia, was the principal speaker. The place for holding the next convention has not yet been decided on. It is probable that it will be held in Hartford, Conn.

Jumped From the Hotel Windows.

GENEVA, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Fire was discovered in the Revere House here early in the morning and the occupants barely escaped, many of them jumping from the windows. James Higgins, the proprietor, was somewhat burned in an ineffectual endeavor to save about $500 in bills.

IN FAVOR OF THE PLAINTIFFS.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

The jury in the Frazee Lee will case who went out at 11 o'clock this morning, came in this afternoon at 4 30 o'clock, with a verdict in favor of the heirs and against the Scotch Plains Baptist church.

OUR BOOKS ARE OPEN.

Every day adds new subscribers to the roll of THE PRESS, and its advertising columns are filled by the announcements of all the successful merchants in the city and borough.

We claim a larger paid circulation than any other two papers in Plainfield, and invite an inspection of our subscription and route books for proof of the assertion.

We also claim a larger legitimate advertising patronage than any other two papers in Plainfield, and can prove it by the testimony of those whose ad's appear in these and other columns.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—In another column appears an announcement of interest to those holding tickets for the Kennan lecture.

—At Reform Hall, this evening, Senator John R. McPherson and G. L. Record will address the people. Gov. Green will not be present.

—The people want the freight house moved away. Whether it goes towards Netherwood or Grant avenue stations, doesn't matter, so long as it is moved.

—J. C. Pierson, Jr., the enterprising hardware merchant of West Front street, will make an important announcement to our readers to-morrow. Look for it.

—Mr. Chas F. Denecklau, the plumber and gas fitter, has removed his office from No. 2 Park avenue, to No. 2 Madison avenue. The latter place gives him more facilities to carry on his increasing business.

—Mr. Frank B. Hoagland of Newark, leader for the past two years of the Men's Mass Meeting held at the Y. M. C. A. Conventions of this District, will conduct the Young Men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A., Monday evening next.

—The clergymen of the diocese of Trenton, to which Plainfield belongs, are making arrangements to celebrate the eighth aniversary of Bishop O'Farrell's consecration to the bishoprice on Friday next, at the Cathedral in Trenton.

—You may not have missed them, but the swallows have gone. They quietly took their leave when you were not thinking of them. The blackbirds, robins and other migratory birds are now holding meetings, preparatory to their flight to Southward.

—Prof. M. Haywood gave an opening reception in Turn Hall, last evening, that was a success. His first class in dancing will begin on Tuesday evening of next week. Children's classes in dancing and deportment meet every Monday afternoon at two o'clock.

—The body of John Emmons, a young man, was found on Saturday on a road leading to Englishtown. He lay beside his buggy and the horse stood quietly by. Nothing in the buggy was disturbed and the cause of the young man's death is still wrapped in mystery.

—Mr. C. M. Goddard presided at the Republican mass meeting held in their headquarters last evening. There was a large crowd present, and much enthusiasm. Stirring speeches were made by Messrs Bell of Bergen county, and Wilbur Mott, President of the State League.

—To-morrow evening the Holy Cross church choir will give a novel and interesting entertainment in their Sunday school building. Tableaux and music vocal and instrumental, will make an attractive programme. The admission will be fifty cents, and the proceeds are for the benefit of the organ fund.

Given to the Jury.

The jury in the Frazee Lee will contest went out at Elizabeth today, and up to the hour of going to press no verdict had been reached. This afternoon presiding Judge Van Syckel went to Trenton, and unless the jury agrees upon a verdict during his absence, the entire panel will probably be locked up until Friday. It is not thought possible, however, that the members will agree.

OPEN CAMP FIRE.

The Post Entertains With Bean Soup, Hard Tack, Songs and Speeches.

Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., of this city, held an open camp fire, last evening, and rations of bean soup and hard tack was served out to all who answered the roll call, including a number of ladies who had got past the pickets.

The principal guest of the evening was Gen. Negley, of West Seventh street, who had first seen service in the Mexican War under Winfield Scott in honor of whom the Post was named. The General made a rousing speech, as did also ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph. Commander Brokaw, Past Commander Atwood, and other comrades also spoke. There were recitations by Mr. John Carney and songs by Mr. W. C. Smith, that received hearty applause. Mrs. John Dodge presided at the organ.

The "Camp Fire" was a glowing success, and similar convivial gatherings will be held on every Fifth Tuesday of the month, during the Winter. They will occur in December and April.

Death of a Former Plainfielder.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

Mr. Platt Drake died at his home near Topeka, Ill., October 11, aged 68 years and 6 months. Mr. Drake was born in Warren township, Somerset county, N. J., April 9, 1821. He was the eleventh child of a family of twelve, the only survivor now being an aged brother living near Delaware, Ill., and who was present at the funeral.

Mr. Drake was converted in early life and united with the First Baptist church in Plainfield. He married Miss Julia C. Brant, of the same place in 1845. They moved to Illinois in 1852 and settled in Quiver, Havana township. Thus Mr. Drake lived over half his life in that community. He was the father of sixteen children, nine of whom are living and were all present at his funeral but one son, who is in Nebraska, and was detained by sickness. Mr. Drake was a man of strict integrity, and lived and died in peace with all. He suffered much at times during his illness of three weeks of nervous prostration in connection with palsied limbs of six years standing.

Collision on the Ferry.

Travelers to Plainfield were delayed Sunday evening by a collision on the Jersey City ferry. It occurred at 6.05 o'clock on the North River, just outside the Cortlandt street ferry, between the big Albany tug Victoria and the ferryboat New Jersey. The ferryboat had come across from Jersey City and was entering the slip. The Victoria was running up the river leading a long tow. The tide was coming in rapidly and there was a strong current. The wind was on the opposite side of the ferryboat and probably threw her down, for the tug boat appeared to have struck her on the starboard quarter. She came with such force that she crushed in the guard rail from the wheel aft, and tore the rudder out of place. The tug continued her course and was only slightly scratched in the bow. The New Jersey was laid up, being unfit for service.

Where Does the Money Come From?

Not one person out of fifty that attends the races nowadays goes for the love of the sport, through the desire to see highly organized and well trained thoroughbreds struggle for the mastery. The cold truth is that the whole business has simmered down to the question how to win on the different contests.

Everybody is after the money. The racing associations offer liberal purses, the bookmakers pay big sums for betting privileges, and the public studies form and tries to pick the winner, and they must do it with varying success, judging from the throngs that are to be found at the tracks on race days. Where does the money come from? Perhaps several merchants and salesmen who are worrying through temporary financial embarrassments could tell.

Democratic Delegates.

The Democrats of the city held primaries last evening for the election of delegates to the Assembly Convention at Westfield to-morrow, with the following results:

First ward—Chairman, John Rafferty; Secretary, John J. Kenney; Delegates, S. E. Flower, John Rafferty and Daniel Livingston.

Second ward—Chairman, James Martine; Secretary, John Mortimer; Delegates, Charles B. VanWinkle and Louis H. Brown.

Third ward—Chairman, Levi Kline; Secretary, W. K. McClure; Delegate, James T. Scott.

Fourth ward—Chairman, V. L. Frazee; Secretary, W. H. Warner; Delegates, E. D. Moffett, W. H. Warner, E. C. Searing, J. C. Blimm and Joseph Hawkins.

Officers of the Temperance Aid Society.

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society, held in Reform Hall, yesterday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. P. M. French
1st Vice President—Mrs. Geo. Opdyke
2d " " —Mrs. J. D. Titsworth
3d " " —Mrs. J. E. Stewart
Secretary—Mrs. Cory
Treasurer—Mrs. P. E. Dunham

—Mr. M. M. Thorn, the real estate broker and insurance agent, encountered and treed a large opossum on West Fourth street, a few nights since. The animal climbed a tree and escaped in the darkness.

WHO'LL PAY THIS JURY?

The Case Against Patrick Newell, Begun

The case of the City against Mr. and Mrs. Newell, of West Third street, charged with keeping a disorderly house, came up before Judge Stillman, this morning. Gen'l Jules Fay, of Elizabeth, for the defendant, asked that the complaint against Mrs. Newell be dismissed as the husband alone is responsible for a married woman's acts of the sort charged.

Corporation Counsel Marsh refused to admit that Mrs. Newell was a wife, although she had lived with Newell as such for over twenty years, and borne him seven children. The necessity of proving the marriage was thus put upon the defendants, though Judge Stillman privately assured Gen'l Fay that if the complaint had spoken of Mrs. Newell as the accused's wife, he would have dismissed the charge against her at once.

A jury was demanded by the defendants' counsel, and the Court adjourned until two o'clock this afternoon to give Officer Lynch time to summon a panel.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The marriage of Miss Maggie Manning and Mr. Drayton, is to take place in Grace church, on Wednesday, Nov. 20.

During his stay in this city, Senator McPherson will be the guest of Gen'l and Mrs. Wm. H. Sterling, at their home on First place.

Miss Lizzie Colony, one of the Public School teachers, has been compelled by continued sickness to give up her position and return home.

Gen'l D. T. VanBuren was elected President of the Plainfield Tariff Reform Club, last evening, and Mr. Charles B. VanWinkle, Treasurer.

Miss Anna Petrie and Mr. Charles Hutchinson are to be married on Tuesday, Nov. 5, at the home of the bride on West Sixth street. The affair will be a quiet one.

The latest addition to Plainfield's corps of physicians, is Mr. Jere A. Allis, a young M. D., who has just graduated with high honor, and swings a shingle from 34 West Fifth street.

Mr. Wilson Fiske and family have taken up a Winter residence at 51 Kensington avenue. Mr. Fiske is the owner of some of the most valuable setter dogs by blood and training, in the State.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. VanNeste, of East Second street, returned to their home last evening, after an absence of three weeks. Mrs. VanNeste has been visiting her home at Louisville, Ky., and Mr. Van Neste has been on a business trip West.

District Deputy Grand Master, Jacob Shepard, visited Jerusalem Lodge, of this city, at its regular communication last evening, and there was a fraternal good time in general. Caterer Joseph G. Miller served creamed oysters on toast, that were "regardless."

The ridiculous statement in the news that the funeral of John M. Jackson will be held in Trinity church, is of course false. It will take place Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in the building 28 North avenue, where his family live. Jackson was in the 38th year of his age.

Mr. Herbert R. Ayers, of Broadway and Sixth street, is confined to his home with a very bad eye. He is an employee of the Central Railroad Company. While chipping a bar of steel recently, a piece of the metal flew in his face and cut through the lid into the ball of the eye.

There was a reception given at the home of Mr. L. L. Manning, last evening, in honor of his daughter now, Mrs. Phillip MacIntyre. A number of invited guests were present. The supper was a bountifull one, and Messrs Rogers and Conde furnished instrumental music for dancing.

Mary E. Merritt, wife of James Merritt, Esq., died suddenly of apoplexy at her home on Kensington avenue, last night. She has been for a great many years past a resident of this city. A husband and one son, ex-City Clerk Richard Merritt, survive her. The funeral will take place from the house Friday afternoon at 2:15 o'clock.

Cards of invitation are out for the wedding ceremony of Miss Bertha Taylor, daughter of the late ex-Councilman Wm. Taylor, of East Fifth street, and Mr. Clement Webster, of Philadelphia. The marriage will take place at ten o'clock of the morning of Tuesday, Nov. 12, in the Friends meeting house on Sixth street, Philadelphia.

Eloquent Silence.

The World says: "The campaign has been 'on' now over a month and it is a simple matter of fact that no Republican journal or orator has yet designated a solitary unworthy act of Leon Abbett while Governor of the State for three years. Such silence is more than significant—it is eloquent.

A Little Lodj Saves His Playmate's Life.

Roy Radford, the seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Radford, tripped and fell at full length in a bonfire of leaves near his home at 138 Park avenue. The little lad was rescued from threatened death, by one of his companions, a young son of ex-Councilman O. T. Waring.

Water Power Again.

It is just three months ago today that Plainfield was "torn through the heart by a great flood of water." French Bros raceway across Somerset street, has been repaired, the dam rebuilt, and this afternoon they expect to turn the water on their mill wheels again.

FUR MUFFS AND CAPES.

WE have just received three cases of Muffs, Capes and Fur Trimmings from three of the best Fur Houses in New York, which are now being displayed. The large assortment comprises everything desirable in this line, and we can confidently say that no such exhibition of these goods have ever been made in this city before. THIS WEEK will be the best opportunity to get the choice selections, as later on they will be sold. "A word to the wise," etc., you know.

LACE CURTAINS!—Is another specialty with us this week. We have purchased several "closing out" lots from the Importers, and offer EXTRA BARGAINS in these goods.

WINDOW SHADES!—We have been very agreeably surprised at the increased demand made upon us in this department. Everybody is pleased with the excellent and prompt manner in which our work is done.

PARTIES having houses to Shade or Carpet, will do well to get our "estimate" before ordering elsewhere.

11 West Front Street,

THE MURDERER DISAPPEARS.

A Young Woman the Victim of an Engineer's Disobedience.

Mrs. Anna Higgins, of Bayonne, only twenty-three years of age, left her home and sleeping babe on Wednesday last, shortly after noon, to do some shopping in New York, one of the objects of her mission being the purchase of a wedding present for her sister, whose nuptials had been announced to take place next week. Together with others, she waited at Bayonne station for a scheduled train, and together with them started towards the train which had just come to a standstill on the East-bound track

Mrs. Higgins was accompanied by a friend, Miss Maria Logan, and was looking at a photograph which the lady was showing her. The two ladies had just started to cross the West-bound track, when Miss Logan, who was slightly in the rear, was horrified to see a locomotive bearing directly down upon her friend. She made a frantic effort to pull her out of the way, but on the instant the engine struck the lady, hurling her many feet. Bystanders and train men picked up the inanimate and disfigured body, while others ran hastily for a physician, but the lady gasped her last just as the bearers reached the top step of the station.

It is against the most stringent rules of the N. J. Central Railroad Company for any locomotive or train to pass between a station and a standing passenger train. The locomotive that killed the young woman was one of the P. & R., and was running without any cars behind it. It kept right on after striking its victim, without stopping anywhere, and dashed through Plainfield shortly after. When it reached its destination the engineer disappeared and has not been seen since. If caught he can be convicted of manslaughter.

STATE PRISON YAWNS FOR HIM.

Informer Worsley, the Pet of the "news," Thought to be Hiding Here.

The New Brunswick Home News says: "The authorities are searching for Edwin S. Worsley, of Plainfield, who is wanted on serious charges. Worsley is the man who two years ago figured prominently as Edward J. Murphy, the 'firebug detective.' After securing the conviction for long terms of John M. Jackson and Horace and Louis VanNest, he collected money from the city authorities and disappeared. Securing employment with a railroad agency at Paterson, he was retained two weeks, and then was suddenly discharged on suspicion of having heaped railroad ties on the track in front of an express train for the purpose of 'discovering' the danger and receiving a reward.

"He then, it is alleged, proceeded to make necessary his employment as night watchman, and at this time the aristocratic neighborhood of Broadway and Straight street, Paterson, began to win notoriety for strange cries, pistol shots and attempted burglaries after midnight. The result was that Worsley secured wholesale employment, and was subsequently made a special officer.

"The disturbances increased, however, despite his presence, and many petty burglaries were committed. A policeman reported that Worsley himself was the principal cause of all the trouble. Formal complaints were made and he was to be arrested, but he disappeared. He is thought to be hiding in Plainfield."

He Hears the Bell Ring, but Doesn't Know Where the Clapper Hangs.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Mr. Ulrich objects to being called a temperance man. What does he mean? Is it a disgrace for a Republican candidate, or any party candidate, to be called a "temperance man?" Here is Judge Ulrich's objection as I find it over his own signature. It should be reprinted for the benefit of the public, for it means something:

In the article in last evening's paper about me, you stated that I am "regarded as a strong temperance man." I fear the statement is open to misconstruction, and that I may be falsely placed before my constituency as posing as a Prohibitionist. I would much prefer to be spoken of as a Republican, as the people know what that means and what the Grand Old Party has accomplished upon all questions of temperance and moral reform.

JOHN ULRICH.

Mr. Editor, if this is not a bid for the rum vote of our district, I don't know what is. I don't think that Sheridan Shook, or any brewer, distiller or saloon keeper in the country, would raise so foolish an objection. Can it be possible that there is a temperance man in any part of our country that wants such a man to represent them in any National or State reform?

About all the defeats of reforms in our country in the past have come through just such candidates. For one I cannot throw away my vote for such weakness.

TEMPERANCE.

[Our correspondent is certainly making much ado about nothing. Mr. Ulrich undoubtedly only objects to being called a "temperance man," because nowadays those so called—like our correspondent, for instance—are the most intemperate men in the world in most every way. They are cross-eyed in their political principles, knock-kneed in their political professions, and hump-backed in their political preachings. They are not fit politically to represent a common sense community, and Mr. Ulrich naturally objects to being so labelled.—ED.]

—Voters should register to-morrow if they intend to vote at the coming State election.

CHARGED WITH INCENDIARISM.

New Brunswick Has a High Toned Firebug.

John C. Raymond, a contractor of New York, was put on trial in New Brunswick, Monday, for burning a building to defraud insurance companies. Mrs. Annie Bouton, whose cottage at Iselin was burnt, was indicted with him, but is too sick to be tried.

The list of accusations against Raymond is a long one. He is charged with having made a business of buying houses in order to get them heavily insured, set fire to them, and secure the insurance. The insurance companies say that the offence for which he is on trial is the tenth in a series of house burnings, and that wherever he has gone fire has followed in his track. The crime now charged is that of having set fire to the Adrian Institute at Iselin and seeking to obtain $30,000 of insurance on it.

The Institute stood in Mrs. Bouton's name as owner, but, the prosecutor says, was heavily mortgaged. An insurance of $22,500 was obtained on it, with policies of $7,500 on the furniture. It is alleged that most of the furniture was removed, and that Raymond then burned the house, having first tried to bribe John Leeper, a real estate dealer, who formerly did business at No. 150 Broadway, New York, and afterward at No. 852 Herkimer street, Brooklyn, to do the work for him.

Leeper makes affidavit that Raymond offered him $400 to set fire to the house, and Thomas McGregor, a watchman says that the same offer had been made to him. Raymond has been in jail since last April, when he was brought to New Brunswick from New York after a bitter contest. Among the insurance companies which, it is alleged, he swindled, are the Lancashire, London and Lancashire, Northern, of London, American, American Central, Pennsylvania, and Commercial Union.

ABBETT AND THE G. A. R.

The Splendid Tribute Paid to Him at the Last New Jersey Encampment.

The first testimonial by the Grand Army of the Republic to any Governor of New Jersey was given to ex-Governor Abbett at the twenty-second annual encampment of the Department of New Jersey held at Trenton last February.

A quotation from the printed official proceedings will show what the encampment thought of the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate.

Commander Cole, Past Department Commander, in offering a resolution of thanks to ex-Governor Abbett, spoke as follows:

Commander, gratitude is the strongest trait of civilized man. I move you, and I ask the unanimous consent, that the Assistant Adjutant General be directed to telegraph the unanimous invitation of this encampment to ex-Governor Leon Abbett to attend our camp fire this evening. I would say there has never been a man in the State of New Jersey—a man who filled the executive chair—who was more mindful of the interest of the old soldier than Leon Abbett. He gave our comrades in the State of Maine, for use at the national encampment at Portland, the use of the tents belonging to this State. He assisted Post Commander Nevius very largely in reducing the debt that we were under when he became commander, and it appears to me that we can do no less than remember his services and invite him to our camp-fire this evening. I move the adoption of the resolution.

Comrade Hilton, commander, said: In seconding this motion, I do it most heartily and readily. Though I may think and feel on some matters differently from the ex-Governor, still I think there has been no Governor who has been a stronger friend to the Grand Army than Governor Abbett.

The motion was thereupon put and carried.

HE WISHED HE'D NEVER MET HER.

A Plainfielder in Bad Company Comes to Grief.

(From the Elizabeth Herald.)

George Green, of Plainfield, and a Mrs. Keche, of this city, who is looked upon by the police as a woman of disreputable character, was arraigned this morning before Justice Hetfield charged with acting in a disorderly manner at 2:30 o'clock this morning on Broadway, between First and Second streets, where they were arrested by Officer O'Loughlin. The man hung his head in shame but the woman seemed to have no shame and looked defiantly at those about her.

The Justice disposed of her by committing her to jail for thirty days in default of a fine of $20 and costs, and the man for the same period in default of a fine of $10.

Green begged hard to be permitted to go, saying that he had simply met the woman and was talking to her, he had never seen her before and had no desire to ever set eyes upon her again.

"I have no doubt of that, Mr. Green," replied the Justice, "but then her character is too well known, and there is no excuse at all for you, a married man, being seen in such disreputable company at such an early hour in the morning. No sir, you will have to suffer, it would have been better for you, had you staid in Plainfield."

—THE PRESS owes an apology to the Mount Ararat Standard, of Westfield, for not giving it just credit for an interview with Freeholder Pierson on the matter of county roads.

"What de preacher talk 'bout today brudder Julius?" "Oh, he tole 'bout Samson beat de Philistines, en you know I mose cry to think dem poor creeters could'nt get no Salvation Oil."

Killed by a Dynamite Blast.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 30.—Three Italians were killed and two others badly injured at No. 12 shaft of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre, Coal Company, near Coaldale, last evening. A blast had been prepared, but had failed to explode when the fuse was lighted. The men commenced prying the rocks to ascertain the cause of the failure of the blast, when the whole charge of dynamite and powder suddenly exploded, throwing the rocks in all directions, and killing three of the men as above stated.

The Jury's Verdict in the Feeks Case.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Coroner's Jury in the case of Lineman Feeks, who was killed by an electric shock while repairing wires October 11, rendered a verdict that the fatal current originated in an electric light wire, probably belonging to either the Brush or the United States Electric Light Company.

DAVITT'S OUTBREAK

The Irish Leader to Make Startling Exposures.

TO AFFECT THE LONDON "TIMES"

They Will be More Damaging Than the Confession of Pigott.

He Pictures His Prison Life to the Parnell Commission and Tells How He Was Yoked to a Cart Like a Beast of Burden. Experiences During the Irish Famine of '48.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—In his speech before the Parnell Special Commission Michael Davitt is daily scoring points in favor of the Parnellites and adding to his already well established reputation as an eloquent and forcible orator. As his speech progresses public interest in the proceedings, which at the resumption of the sittings of the Commission had become dormant by reason of the withdrawal of Mr. Parnell from the case, awakens and the court room is again assuming the appearance it presented when the Nationalist defendants were engaged in their daily occupation of knocking down the foundation of forgery, perjury and fraud, upon which the case of the "Times" was based.

The Irish Famine and His Prison Life.

Mr. Davitt held his audience almost breathless while he recited his experiences during the Irish famine in 1848, and moistened the eyes of many of his hearers when he pictured his prison life, an episode of which was his being yoked to a cart like a beast of burden, because with his single arm he was unable to perform the tasks imposed upon him as a man with two arms could have done.

Startling Disclosures Expected.

It is quite evident, from intimations made by Mr. Davitt, from time to time, in the course of his address, that he is on the eve of making some startling disclosures, and this assumption is fortified by an article in the "Freeman's Journal," which asserts that the father of the Land League is rapidly drawing his adversaries to the verge of the precipice, over which they will inevitably be hurled. These disclosures are said to affect the "Times" to a greater degree than did even the confession of the infamous Pigott, and to be of a character rendering it almost impossible for the cut and dried commission to sustain a single allegation made by that paper.

THE MAYBOROUGH FARCE.

The Government Assents to the Release of Father McFadden and Ten Others.

DUBLIN, Oct. 30.—The farce at Mayborough is enjoyed by Irishmen and English lovers of fair play. At the request of the Government Father McFadden consented to plead guilty of obstructing the police at the time that Inspector Martin was murdered in Gweedore last February. He was released on his own recognizance. The other ten prisoners, held on charges similar to those against McFadden, pleaded likewise, and were also allowed to go, sentence being postponed indefinitely. This result of the case is said to be due to the discovery by the Government that the juries in the cases could not be relied upon to convict of murder. It was therefore made known to the prisoners that a plea of guilty of a minor offense would satisfy the prosecution.

This result was brought about, it is said, when it was discovered that the men selected by the prosecution, although opponents of home rule in Ireland, could not conscientiously bring themselves to the point of consigning a fellow countryman to imprisonment for nearly a quarter of a century for the crime of entertaining political opinions at variance with their own, though it is too true that their number is exceedingly small.

Nothing daunted by their failure to convict Gallagher, however, the prosecuting authorities intend to place him on trial again and, with a more subservient and less conscientious jury, hope to send him to keep company with Coll, irrespective of his culpability.

And they are also confident of their ability to convict the other persons indicted through the same star chamber methods.

Americans Apply to the Commission.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Thomas Callan, formerly of Lowell, Mass., who, with James Harkins, of Philadelphia, was convicted of attempting to blow up buildings with dynamite, have applied to the Parnell Commission for permission to make a statement in court. The Judges insisted that he should first furnish the court with a communication in writing giving an idea of the character of the statement be desired to make.

English Envoy to the Vatican.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—General Sir John A. Simmons, commander of her Majesty's forces at Malta, has been gazetted as special Envoy to the Vatican, to confer with the Pope with reference to the jurisdiction of the Catholic Church in Malta.

Balfour Called by the Queen.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Chief Secretary Balfour will go to Balmoral on Friday, the Queen having requested him to make a personal report on the condition of Ireland.

A Professor Cuts His Throat.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—Herr Gosche, Professor of Literature in the University of Halle, has committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor.

Boucicault Must Pay Alimony.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The court has ordered that Dion Boucicault pay $150 per month alimony to his wife, who recently obtained a divorce from him.

A Belgian Glass Plant for America.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 30.—It is stated that a company composed of Belgian glass manufacturers propose to erect a large plate glass plant in this vicinity, in order to hold their American trade in the United States. It is said the new works will be larger than any on this side of the ocean.

An Idle Glass Plant Purchased.

SANDWICH, Mass., Oct. 30.—It is stated that the plant of the Boston & Sandwich Glass Company, which has been idle for three years, has been sold to the Electrical Glass Company, of which Gen. W. R. Draper is president.

CLAN-NA-GAEL SECRETS.

The Secretary of Camp 20 Gives Evidence in the Cronin Case.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—When John O'Connor, secretary of Camp 20, was called as a witness by the State in the Cronin case Attorney Forrest, on behalf of the defendants, objected to any disclosures concerning the Clan-na-Gael. Attorney Donohue, on the other hand, on behalf of John Beggs, guardian of Camp 20, announced that they courted the fullest investigation.

The witness identified Beggs as Senior Guardian, named all the officers of the camp, and said that Dan Coughlin, Martin Burke and Patrick Cooney were members.

He was present at the meeting on February 5. Attorney Longenecker asked him if it was not true that in response to a speech made by Foy, in which Foy charged that there were spies in the camp, Thomas F. O'Connor said that they had better investigate the Triangle, as the members were embezzling funds.

Witness said he heard no such statement. Mr. Longenecker then asked witness if he had forgotten that fact since last night. Witness replied that he had never admitted such to be a fact.

Cross-examined, the witness said: "I did not hear Cronin's name mentioned at that meeting by O'Connor, but understood from a fellow-member that O'Connor said the report of the Trial Committee had been read by Dr. Cronin in another camp." The State's Attorney offered in evidence the constitution of the Clan-na-Gael.

The attorneys for the prosecution are moving carefully and are feeling each step in advance. They have decided to take up the subject of Patrick O'Sullivan's business card for the purpose of proving that the particular card the stranger offered Dr. Cronin had been printed only two days before the doctor was murdered. Attorneys for the prosecution believe this to be the strongest evidence they have against O'Sullivan, not excepting the testimony of the Carlsons, who saw him in daily communication with the murderers occupying the cottage on Ashland avenue.

Besides this testimony it is the intention of the lawyers to introduce new evidence sustaining the belief that a conspiracy in Camp 20, with Dr. Cronin's death as its result, existed. Upward of thirty young Irishmen, all of them members of the Camp, were in the state attorney's office last night, and every one of them testified to the main facts that have already been published. The stories that they will tell will prove beyond a doubt that a conspiracy to get rid of Dr. Cronin was formed in the Camp and was carried to a successful issue.

Following the evidence on this line will come evidence concerning the finding of the bloody trunk on Evanston avenue, and from this point the whole conspiracy will be exposed in detail.

ENGLISH GLASSBLOWERS.

The Men at Jeannette, Pa., Violate the Contract Labor Law.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—District Attorney Lyons, of Pittsburg, has made a report in the matter of the English glass blowers employed at Jeannette, Pa., and whose coming here last spring is said to have been in violation of the Alien Contract Labor Law.

Mr. Lyons thinks there is ample evidence to prove that they came here under contract, and in violation of the law. Acting Secretary Batcheller, of the Treasury, has referred the case to the Attorney-General for an opinion as to the proper legal steps to be taken.

HORRIBLY MANGLED.

Three Men Instantly Killed by the Explosion of a Locomotive Boiler.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 30.—Simon Horg, engineer; John Moyles, fireman, and Thomas, Dougher, driver, were instantly killed last evening by the explosion of a locomotive boiler, while drawing a train of coal cars at the Pierce Coal Company's mines.

The bodies of the victims were horribly mangled, and the locomotive, which was old and defective, was torn to pieces.

They Want the Stone Quarries.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 30.—It is rumored that an English syndicate is negotiating for the entire stone quarry property on Rattle Snake Hill, and that the recent purchase of the Sullivan and Sargent quarries by the New England Granite Company is the first step in the deal. It is also said that the syndicate aims to obtain the Vermont quarries and all the large brickmaking establishments in New England.

A Judge Favors the Wires.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Judge Andrews has handed down his decision in the electric light wire cases, in which he makes permanent the injunction to restrain the Mayor and the Board of Electrical Control from any interference with the wires of the United States and the Brush Illuminating Company. The decision sustains the position taken by the companies as against the city.

The Minister and Organist Resigned.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Oct. 30.—Rev. Henry Bedinger, rector of St. Luke's Church, Mattewan, has resigned his position. He has accepted a call as assistant to Rev. Mr. Saterlee of New York. The organist, Prof. Hopkins, also tendered his resignation. There has been trouble for some time past between the reverend genleman and a portion of his congregation.

Big Wool Failure in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—The failure of Heston & Erben, wool dealers, 119 Chestnut street, with liabilities of between $300,000 and $400,000 is announced. The firm is rated at $150,000, with very good credit. It began business ten years ago. The failure is ascribed to recent shrinkages in values, and to discrimination against wool paper by the banks.

Large Woolen Factory Burned.

BANGOR, Me., Oct. 30.—The large woollen factory owned by G. W. Maxfield has been destroyed by fire. Loss $10,000. It contained 100,000 pounds of pulled wool and a large number of felts valued at $34,000. On this the loss was almost total. Insurance on stock and building $30,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Man and Wife Separated.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 30.—George Baechner, a moulder, has been arrested here by Deputy Marshal Reardon and will be taken to Philadelphia to stand trial on a charge of sending scurrilous matter through the mails. The unlawful mail matter was sent from Philadelphia to parties in this city and caused the separation of a man and wife.

A GRIST OF GENERALITIES.

THERE are 700 species of birds in South America, of which nearly 300 are peculiar. The turkey and the mocking bird belong to the latter class.

EDWARD BELLAMY, the novelist, is a slender, rather good-looking man who wears a mustache and looks no more literary than William D. Howells.

THE chemists of the United States Agricultural Department are about to begin the work of investigating the different artificial foods and infant foods now on the market.

OLIVE SCHREINER, since her phenomenal success, has developed from a plain, shy, retiring girl into a brilliant, self-poised woman, with many pretensions to beauty.

BOSTON gave the new cruiser that was named for her a set of colors. Chicago gave her namesake a set of silver plate, and Philadelphia intends to present her cruiser with a library.

THE jokes some of the New York papers get off on "Hugh Midity" are excrutiatingly funny, but they are a little worn on one side. Try turning them, for some of you boys can turn a very neat joke.

SINCE the general adoption of ten hours for an ordinary day's work, all the objections urged against it have proved groundless. So, it may be, would be the result if eight hours were substituted for ten hours.

IN 1886 five-eighths of the people owned their homes, and three-eighths were the prey of landlordism. In 1889 only three-eighths owned their own homes, and five-eighths were reduced to the rank of tenants.

IN Pennsylvania's coke regions half of the 14,000 workers are Hungarians. The bosses have decided to discontinue employing Hungarians. Germans are to take their places, because of their steadiness, intelligence and their submissiveness.

THE latest developments in trusts is the English syndicate that is trying to corner the enameled and patent leather trade of all America. There are in the United States twenty-six factories. Their total capital is about $5,000,000. They employ about 4,000 men.

THE original English buyers of American breweries, certain London companies, have made actual purchases of twenty-nine establishments in the United States, and stand ready to make further purchases of any concerns that can show a net profit of ten per cent. on the price they ask.

CHAUTAUQUA'S prosperity, it is said, is measured daily by the amount of eggs eaten within its limits. When fifteen hundred dozen eggs a week are eaten, for instance, it is estimated that six thousand persons have been living on the grounds, and that there have been one thousand transient tourists a day for that week.

IN one respect the Paris Exhibition excels all others, for there has never been collected together so fine a display of electrical mechanism of every conceivable kind. There is at present an unparalleled impulse in Europe toward electrical engineering and the desire to extend the use of electricity to all branches of manufactures.

OUR fashion in furs next winter may be confidently expected to lean chiefly to the skin of the Bokharan caracal, a kind of lynx, about the size of a fox and of a uniform brown color, but with long and black ears. At the great fair of Nijni Novgorod this fur was in the greatest demand, and the entire lot offered, 700,000 skins, was bought for the American market.

THE vicissitudes of trade in leather manufactures is very markedly shown in the counties of Durham and Northumberland. Within thirty years twenty tanneries have been closed in these counties, and between forty and fifty currying works; the latter extended to eighteen towns; in five towns currying is still carried on, but to a greater reduced extent, while in thirteen towns the industry has entirely disappeared.

IN reply to a question put to him by a reporter in Paris whether he had almost perfected a far-seeing machine, Edison replied that he is at work upon an invention which will enable a "man in Wall street not only to telephone to a friend near Central Park, but actually to see that friend while conversing with him." This, Mr. Edison thinks, would be a practical and useful invention, and he can see no reason why it should not become a reality.

THE electric motor is going everywhere, but it is a genuine surprise to find that it is making its way into churches, not simply lighting them at night, but operating the organs at half the usual cost of the gas engine or the water power, and with equal efficiency. Eight of the largest church organs in New York are now pumped by electricity, and the pumping of organs in all churches where the electric current can be reached is simply a question of time.

THE centenary of the birth of George Simon Ohm, which takes place on the 16th of next March, is to be celebrated by the erection of a statue of him in Munich, the capital of his native state. To Ohm is due the discovery of two of the most fruitful principles in mathematical physics—the law of the relation between the strength of an electric current and the electro-motive force acting in the conductor, and the law as to the way in which complex musical sounds are perceived by the ear.

THE book of Job and the Proverbs of Solomon contain allusions to the pearl. Amongst the Jews the pearl was the emblem of things especially rare and pure. In the beautiful parable we read that a merchant, hearing of a pearl of great price, sold all that he had in order that he might become the owner of this pearl. The twelve gates of the celestial city were twelve pearls. We can easily understand why the disciple, in picturing a city into which nothing impure or unholy could ever enter, should have selected the type of purity to represent the gates of entrance—"every several gate was one pearl."

AN artesian well in Cordele, Ia., is a wonder. After going down into the earth for about four hundred and fifty feet the contractors struck what was seemingly a strata rock of quicksand. Leaving the pipes all in the well over night they found the next morning that all the piping was heavily charged with magnetism. A small nail laid on the side of the pipe will not fall off. The needle on a surveyor's compass is attracted by this current at least ten feet from the mouth of the well. The magnetic current is so strong that the power of the engine, together with all the pries they have been able to put on the piping, will not draw it from the well.

HE IS NOT TASCOTT.

The Philadelphia Man Not Recognized as the Snell Murderer.

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—The photograph of the young man held in Philadelphia as Tascott, the Snell murderer, was received yesterday. Police officials and others who knew Tascott, say it is not his picture.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—It is the belief of the prison authorities that Albert Sutherland, who is under arrest at Philadelphia as W. B. Tascott, the murderer of millionaire Snell of Chicago, is none other than John Bowman, who was released from the penitentiary a few months ago, after serving a term for burglary in Champaign County. The published description of Sutherland and the partner Bowman correspond in every particular. Another thing is the fact that they both play the guitar and have other similar characteristics.

THE FIRST STUDENTS.

Special Ordination of Priests for the New Catholic University.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 30.—There was a special ordination at the Catholic Cathedral for the Washington University. Richard C. Campbell, Richard C. O'Neill, Thos. Gallagher and George Lucas were ordained priests.

Gallagher goes to the University as a student with nine others from St. Mary's Seminary. O'Neill and Campbell will relieve Father Graaf at the Immaculate Conception, Washington, and Father Fletcher at St. Patrick's, Baltimore, respectively, the two latter also entering the University for higher education. These are the first students selected for the University.

CRUSHED HIS SKULL.

A Dispute Between Prominent Citizens Ends in a Serious Affray.

BELLVERNON, Pa., Oct. 30.—Captain Decatur Abrams, a widely-known river man, and Hon. Jesse M. Bowell, also a steamboat owner and member of the State Legislature, had a dispute which resulted in Bowell calling Abrams a liar.

Abrams threw a stone at Bowell, crushing in his skull. Bowell's injuries are fatal. Abrams boarded his steamer and went to Brownsville, where he was arrested and taken to the Uniontown jail.

A COLLISION AT SEA

Two Vessels Crash in a Fog Off Delaware Breakwater.

CLEOPATRA AND CRYSTAL WAVE

The Crew of Both Vessels Picked Up by a Passing Steamship.

Came Together in the Dark When Going Eight Knots an Hour—The Cleopatra Remained Afloat Four Hours and the Crystal Wave Sank in a Few Minutes—The Cleopatra Insured.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31. — Thirty-nine shipwrecked sailors were brought into port yesterday on the steamer Kanawha to tell the story of a collision by which two well-known steamers, the Cleopatra and the Crystal Wave, were lost off the Delaware Breakwater.

The Cleopatra belongs to the Old Dominion Line, and sailed from West Point, Va., for this port with a cargo of cotton last Monday morning. On Tuesday morning, when about eight miles southeast of the Delaware lightship, she encountered the steamer Crystal Wave. There was a dense fog.

The Cleopatra struck the Crystal Wave between the stem and the paddle-box, staving a big hole in her side and receiving a blow which knocked a hole in her own bow. Both vessels began to leak rapidly. The Crystal Wave went down in less than half an hour. Captain Martin ordered the boats lowered, and with the thirteen members of the crew he pulled away from his rapidly sinking craft.

In the meantime the Cleopatra had began to fill. Captain Dole tried to stop the flood by filling the hole in her bow with cotton, but was unsuccessful. Her crew of twenty-six men and Capt. Dole took to the boats. Then the Kanawha put in an appearance and both crews were picked up. The Cleopatra still floated and the Kanawha made an effort to tow her to this port. A hawser was made fast and for four hours she was towed. She was settling gradually.

In the hold were 1,000 bales of cotton. This was soon saturated and began to swell. The decks were burst off and then the sides of the vessel began to spread. The hawser was cut. The next minute the sides of the Cleopatra gave way and she sank flush with the water. The total loss is placed at $100,000.

The Cleopatra was built at Mystic, Conn., in 1865. She was rebuilt two years ago. She belonged to the International Steamboat Company, who sold her to the Old Dominion Line five months ago for $35,000. She was insured. Her cargo was insured for its full value. $50,000.

The Crystal Wave was a cotton boat, and was brought here by the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company to run as a Long Branch excurson boat. She was purchased about a week ago by Captain Randall and others, of Washington, for $45,000, and left here Sunday night. Captain Randall was on board. He had put all his capital in the boat. She was not insured.

FEDERATION POSSIBLE.

A Movement of the Engineers Toward the Knights of Labor.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 31.—At the Locomotive Engineers' Brotherhood Convention the committee of ten appointed on Monday to confer with a like committee from the Knights of Labor and the Brotherhood of Firemen on the federation question, reported that they were unable to reach any conclusion, and asked for further orders.

The convention added to this committee George W. Vroman, and sent them back for further deliberation. Vroman is a warm supporter of federation and the opinion is that the committee will recommend the adoption of the articles of federation presented at Atlanta, with slight modifications.

Literary School Candidates.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The candidates for the class in practical librarianship which the Regents of the University, by arrangement with the trustees, transferred from the library of Columbia College, New York city, to the State Library last April, have been examined for admission, and nineteen candidates were accepted. Five of the successful candidates are from New York, four from Massachusetts, three from Michigan, two from Pennsylvania, two from Iowa, and one each from New Jersey, Illinois and Missouri. The pupils from outside of the State pay a tuition fee, and all pay forty dollars a year to meet necessary incidental expenses.

Important Reforms Where Needed.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Chief Commissioner Munro, of the Metropolitan Police, has announced his intention of introducing important reforms in the organization of which he is the head, and boldly claims that his force will hereafter be in all respects superior to any similar body in the world.

Stanley and Emin Bey.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—Dr. Schweinfurth, the African explorer, in a letter published here, states that he has received letters to the effect that Emin Bey has succeeded in reaching Captain Wissmann. This justifies the expectation that Stanley and Emin will soon arrive at Mpwapa.

Miss Caldwell to Return Home.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—It is said that Miss Caldwell sails for New York Saturday and that the marriage is off. The "Figaro" announces that Prince Murat left Paris yesterday.

Massage Treatment for the Queen.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Queen is suffering acutely from rheumatic pains in her legs and has engaged the services of an eminent massage practitioner on the advice of her physician.

DEMPSEY'S DISGUST.

He Has No Hope of Getting on a Return Match With La Blanche.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—Jack Dempsey has given up all hope of getting on a return match with La Blanche, the Marine, who recently defeated him. The new conditions existing in the California Athletic Club leave little hope for an encounter between the two men. Five-ounce gloves, which will hereafter be used in all club matches, are too big for a man of Dempsey's build to use against a man like the Marine, and Dempsey will in all probability return to his home in Brooklyn, where he has been promised a great complimentary benefit.

It is reported that the Nonpareil has become disgusted with his position as boxing instructor of the California club and that he has tendered his resignation, but that the directors have refused to accept it.

CHINESE LEPERS.

San Francisco's Board of Health Ship Them to China.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—Five Chinese lepers were shipped home from this city yesterday on a Hong Kong steamer. Among them was Chin Tun, aged 26, who was sent here from New York, where he had been employed as a cook for laborers on the Croton aqueduct works. Chin Tun speaks English well, and said that five years ago he had a bad attack of small pox in New York. He is a paralytic tubecular leper. The lepers present a most horrible sight.

At a secret meeting of the Board of Health, held a few days ago, it was decided that the interest of the city would be served by shipping all the Chinese lepers to China. It is the opinion of experts that these men were tainted with the disease either before leaving China or brought it direct from the Hawaiian Islands.

SHE WAS NERVOUS.

Religious Excitement Brings on a Paralytic Stroke.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Oct. 31. — Mrs. Greening, of New Windsor, is very low with a paralytic stroke brought on by religious excitement.

Mrs. Greening, it is said, presented herself at an Episcopal church and partook of communion. The rector asked subsequently if she had been confirmed. Being told that she was a Methodist, but partook of communion at the Episcopal church, owing to the distance she lived from a Methodist church, she was told that by church rules she could not receive it there again.

This so worked upon her nervous system that it resulted in a paralytic stroke. Mrs Greening is unable to speak.

The Flack Case Again in Court.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Flack's suit for divorce from Sheriff Flack on account of adultery is up in court again. Counsel for Mr. Flack offered to pay Mrs. Flack $30 per week pending the decision of their appeal from the setting aside of the divorce procured by Mr. Flack. They hold that the divorce is still in effect. Counsel for Mrs. Flack objected, and wanted her suit tried irrespective of the other. The Court thought this an unreasonable position, but adjourned the case two days to allow Mrs. Flack's counsel to present further arguments against the proposed arrangement.

Trouble With Italian Laborers.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 31.—The Sheriff having been asked to protect the property of the Raritan River Railroad Company, their Italian laborers acting in a riotous manner, officers were sent to the scene of the trouble, near Milltown, and succeeded in restoring order. The Italians had objected to the use of a steam plow belonging to a contractor who owes them a large sum for wages. The contractor claims that the railroad company has failed to pay him and he is therefore unable to pay the men.

She Left With a Russian Baron.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Theatrical circles are somewhat agitated over the sudden departure for Europe of Marie Halton, one of the Casino soubrettes. The occasion for the young lady's disappearance is said to be the simultaneous evanishment of a Russian Baron, whose attentions to the actress have been conducted on such a marked and lavish scale as to attract general attention. The Baron has been ordered to St. Petersburg, it is said, to accept a diplomatic commission.

Towing Vessels on Sunday.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—In a case testing the legality of towing on Sunday Judge Thompson, in the Superior Court, holds that "vessels coming to the port of Boston have a right to come to the docks on Sunday, and that it is a work of necessity to bring the vessels in, whether by sailors on board or by those in another boat towing them." The prosecution was instituted by persons who are desirous that all Sunday work of this kind should be suspended.

Blast Furnace Boilers Explode.

BELLAIR, Ohio, Oct. 31.—One of the large boilers of the Bellair blast furnances exploded shortly before noon with terrible force, cracking two other boilers in the main battery and wrecking the boiler rooms. The south end of the nail factory was entirely demolished, windows were broken in all the adjoining buildings, and the wreck was scattered over an area of 100 yards. The damage to the mill and adjoining property is $200,000. No one was injured.

20,000 People Destitute.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 31.—Mr. W. Martin, chairman of the Relief Committee, now states that he is convinced from information received that the number of destitute in North Dakota is fully 20,000 families, representing a total of 100,000 peple. The trouble is due to the failure of crops for the past three years.

RAILROAD WRECKS

A Number of Accidents in Various Parts of the Country.

SEVERAL KILLED AND INJURED

Orders Misunderstood and Passenger Cars Run Into a Freight.

A Conductor Killed and Fifteen Cars Are Wrecked on the Erie—Disastrous Collission at Beaver Falls, Pa.—Dining Cars Wrecked on the Rock Island—Crash on the Baltimore and Ohio.

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 31.—Passenger train No. 2, going East over the Norfolk & Western Railroad, collided with the freight train coming West below Buford station.

Lee Jones, fireman on the freight, Sonny McDaniel, a colored tramp, from Lynchburg, and Joe Gwinn, a colored brakeman, were killed.

The following were wounded: L. E. Wickson, conductor on freight, leg lacerated, necessitating amputation, and otherwise injured, it is feared, fatally; Jacob Bowers, extra fireman, right thigh broken, and cut about face and head; Andrew Francis, postal clerk, front teeth knocked out and cut on head and arm; Wm. Steffey, engineer on freight, cut badly on head.

The accident resulted from a misapprehension of orders. When the freight passed Thaxton it had until 1:20 a. m. to reach Buford's Siding, but the conductor read the order 1:40 a m., and thinking he had ample time, ran ahead. An old colored man returning home signalled the passenger train and warned it of the approaching freight train. Speed was reduced, but the collision could not be avoided. Four freight cars, a postal car and both engines were badly wrecked.

The Wreck on the Erie.

OTISVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The wreck on the Erie road near this place was caused by a freight train which had stopped to do some switching. Fifteen empty cars and a caboose, which had been uncoupled from the train, started back down the heavy grade and soon reached a frightful speed and came into collision with another extra freight train that was following. The engine was totally wrecked and burned. Conductor Sloot was killed and the following persons were injured: Les Barret, brakeman; Theo. Fosdyke, engineer, scalded; Brierly, fireman, arm broken and scalded; Brierly, brother to fireman, bruised; George Bradner, brakeman, arm and leg broken.

A Crash at Beaver Falls, Pa.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 31.—An east-bound freight train on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Road ran into the rear of of the Chicago limited express near Beaver Falls, Pa. The engine of the freight train telescoped the observation car of the limited and two freight cars were telescoped. A brakeman named Reeters was instantly killed, and Engineer Dougherty and Fireman Carr were seriously but not fatally injured. The shock threw the passengers on the limited from their berths, but beyond a good shaking up and some slight cuts and bruises they were not hurt. The accident delayed trains several hours.

A Misplaced Switch.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 31.—A west bound passenger train on the Lehigh and Susquehanna Railroad, running about forty miles an hour, plunged through a misplaced switch at Odenwelder's and ran into a train of empty coal cars. About twenty of the latter were demolished and the engine was totally wrecked, standing upright on end in the air when it came to a standstill. The engineer and fireman jumped and escaped. Travel was blocked for several hours.

Collision on the B & O.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—The Baltimore & Ohio passenger train, which left Washington at 9:20, ran into an engine and two freight cars near Canton, while running at a very high speed. The freight train was completely wrecked. The passenger engine was badly smashed up. It was derailed, and came within a foot of going over a steep embankment. The passengers were badly shaken up, but no one was injured. It is claimed that the freight train displayed no lights and had no business on the track.

Ran Into the Express.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—A collision took place on the Rock Island road at Seneca last night. The St. Joseph cannon ball train ran into the rear end of the Denver express, wrecking the dining car of the front train and the engine and baggage car of the cannon ball. Mayor Gibson of Ottawa, Ill., an unknown lady and the engineer of the cannon ball were quite seriously injured.

On Trial for Killing His Brother.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 31.—Edward Walker, charged with killing his brother James during a quarrel in Barley Ryle's store in Stamford last August, is on trial here. Ryle and his son testified that Edward fired the fatal shot while the brothers were in a dispute. The defense will attempt to prove that Ryle, who they claim had a grudge against James, did the shooting.

Gave Up the Chase.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 31.—The result of the chase after Rube Burrow and his partner in Blount county is two dead deputies and one dead bloodhound. The outlaws have escaped and the chase has been abandoned.

The Price of Coke Advanced.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 31.—The market price of coke for the month of November has been advanced from $1.50 to $1.75 per ton.

OUR BOOKS ARE OPEN.

Every day adds new subscribers to the roll of THE PRESS, and its advertising columns are filled by the announcements of all the successful merchants in the city and borough.

We claim a larger paid circulation than any other two papers in Plainfield, and invite an inspection of our subscription and route books for proof of the assertion.

We also claim a larger legitimate advertising patronage than any other two papers in Plainfield, and can prove it by the testimony of those whose ad's appear in these and other columns.

BY THE WAY.

—Oh! for a Y. M. C. A., building.

—Interesting meeting in Reform Hall this evening. All are welcome.

—Voters should not forget to register today, and thus avoid any trouble on election day.

—The third triennial convention of the New Jersey Sunday School Association will be held at Trenton on Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 13 and 14.

—The Board of Trustees of the Crescent League, send invitations to the opening of the Club House on East Second street, next Monday evening.

—From now until after election it will be well for householders to keep their scavenger barrels where they cannot be carried away by the small boy.

—On Thanksgiving Day the Father Mathew T. A. B. Society, of Elizabeth, will visit this city on a target excursion. The society is arranging for a grand time.

—The Y. P. S. C. E., of the Congregational church, hold a sociable in the Church parlors, this evening, to which all the members of the congregation are invited.

—According to the saying, that as old as the moon is when the first snow occurs, so many snows shall we have, we are doomed to have twenty-nine snows this Winter.

—The inhabitants of Mount Bethel are looking forward to Saturday evening when they expect to be addressed by Mr. James E. Martine and W. K. McClure, Esq., of this city.

—The Government has established a branch post office at Elizabethport, the manufacturing district of Elizabeth, and William H. Huiskamper has been appointed Superintendent.

—Prof. Bartholomew's equine paradox, continues to attract large audiences at Music Hall. Yesterday afternoon the hall was crowded with an audience composed mostly of ladies and children.

—$29,230 was contributed by the business men of Chicago during the past year, to carry on the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in that city. 30 persons devote their entire time to the work.

—The regular meetings of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, will hereafter be held in Odd Fellows' Hall, on Friday evenings, at eight o'clock. So says John Sylvester, Chief of Records.

—The members of Mizpah Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Ladies, of this city, will hold a grand bazaar and fair in Turner Hall, during the first week in December, of which due notice will be given later on.

—In accordance with the wish of the late George H. Corliss of Newburyport, Mass., his widow will erect and present a building to the Y. M. C. A. of that place. It will be the finest building in that city of 15,000 inhabitants.

—If the member of the Plainfield Cornet Band who made the most noise through his instrument at the mass meeting, last evening, will pause and reflect for a moment on the uncertainty of life, he will never do so again.

—Now that the time is at hand for setting up the parlor stoves it will be interesting for housewives to know that mica or isinglass lights in stove doors, if soiled from smoke, may be made bright and equal to new by cleaning with salt mixed with vinegar.

—A society event of the season will be a Chrysanthemum show and musicale at the country place of John C. Shaw, Esq., Finderne, the next station beyond Bound Brook. The dates will be Nov. 11 and 12, and further particulars will appear in these columns later.

DEMOCRATIC ASSEMBLY CONVENTION.

Mr. Wm. A. Coddington is Unanimously Nominated for Assembly.

[SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.]

WESTFIELD, Oct. 31.—The Third Assembly District Democratic Convention, met here this afternoon, with a full attendance of the delegates present.

Mr. W. K. McClure, of Plainfield, was made chairman of the Convention, and Mr. J. M. C. Marsh, of this place, secretary.

Mr. William Archibald Coddington of Plainfield, was unanimously declared the nominee for the Assembly from this district.

CHEAP ENOUGH.

The Court Deals Gently With Newell.

Judge Stillman, this morning, fined Patrick Newell, of West Third street, who was convicted yesterday of keeping a disorderly house, $25 without costs. Annie Newell, also convicted of the same charge, was discharged.

So light a penalty is satisfactory only to the convicted. There are nests of illicit rum holes and disorderly houses all about the city, that Chief Carey is endeavoring to break up. But such small penalties will only encourage more.

If Newell was guilty, and the jury so found, he should have been fined $100. And if it was right to convict his wife also, she should have been punished as well.

But then, again, if the Court had made the penalty greater, the convicted would have appealed the case and paid nothing. Twenty-five dollars for a six-months' license, is cheap enough.

The Frazee Lee Ejectment Suit.

The jury in the suit brought by the heirs of Frazee Lee to recover the homestead farm of which he died seized, which has been on trial in the Union Circuit Court at Elizabeth for the past fourteen days, after being out five hours, at 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, returned a verdict for the plaintiffs, notwithstanding Judge VanSyckel charged them strongly in favor of the defendants, and Chancellor McGill had previously made a decree in favor of the will, leaving the property to the Scotch Plains Baptist church. A strong feeling has prevailed all along against the provisions of the will cutting off the relatives and leaving so much to a little village church.

Ex-Chancellor Runyon will at once give notice of application for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was contrary to the weight of evidence in the case, which application will in a few days be argued before Judge VanSyckel. This verdict does not affect the decree of Chancellor McGill giving the personal property to the church, but if not set aside by the Court will give the 40 acres at Two Bridges to the heirs. Other suits—perhaps separate ones—for the 20 odd other pieces of real estate, will likely be brought by the heirs.

Hunted His Coon.

A Mr. Johnson, living near New Providence, this county, has a colored boy in his charge whose penchant for fresh milk he controls by a novel feature.

For quite a while Mr. Johnson thought it strange that some of his cows did not give as much milk as they should under the good care they received. So he watched the cows one day and found that the little darkey—instead of toiling his sweet life away in the broiling sun among potatoe patches, or down in the corn field hard by—he would quench his thirst from the udders of the fairest Jerseys and Durhams, and fold his dark hands beneath his head under the old elm tree, and sleep the sunny day away.

Mr. Johnson came to Plainfield, bought a muzzle which being altered somewhat was made to fit the boy, and the little coon wears it now constantly, except while around the house.

Wrangled Over the Result.

Quite a number of sports gathered at Metuchen a few days ago to witness a 100 yards sprint race between two men named Ryan of Monmouth county, and Dumfries of Woodbridge. Great interest was centered on the result and it is said fully $1,200 were staked. The race ended in a fiasco. The judges were unable to determine the winner, the partisan of each contestant claiming that their representative won by a few inches. The party adjourned to a Justice of the Peace and swore affidavits as to the respective inches by which their representative won. It is probable that the race will be again contested.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. Sarah D. Keeney is very sick of pneumonia at her home on West Fourth street.

Mrs. Alexander Snedeker, formerly of New Market, N. J., but now of Illinois, has been visiting her relatives in this vicinity for the past week.

—The numerous and handsome gold and silver medals to be won at the coming Bicycle Club Tournament, are on exhibition in the window of Randolph's pharmacy.

The first successful blood-purifier ever offered to the public was Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Imitators have had their day, but soon abandoned the field, while the demand for this incomparable medicine increases year by year, and was never so great as at present.

A BIG BEAT.

THE PRESS and the Counsellor Both Get There.

The verdict of the jury at Elizabeth, in favor of the contestants in the Frazee Lee will case, and against the legatee, as published yesterday in no other paper but THE PRESS, bears out the prophecy in these columns of Monday—"If the jury does not agree, it will find for the plaintiffs."

The result is a great victory for Counsellor Lindabury, who despite ex-Chancellor Williamson and other environments of the case, was able to persuade a struck jury to set aside a will. Keep your eye on Richard VanSyckel Lindabury. He'll light high some day. The whole country will hear of him.

NIGHT SCHOOLS.

When They Will Reopen.

The Plainfield public night schools will this Winter be entirely under the control of the Board of Education, as exclusively announced in THE PRESS, last Monday.

The Committee in charge of the details, consisting of Trustees Kirkner, Babcock and Hurlbut, have decided that the class for men will begin Tuesday evening, Nov. 12, and the class for women will begin Monday evening, Dec 2. The men's classes will be held every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and the women's every Monday and Friday, in the High School Building. The teachers to be appointed from the regular ones, have not yet been selected.

The C. C. C. C. Programme.

The Congregational church Chautauqua Circle will meet in the church parlors, Friday evening, at 8 o'clock. All members, and any others who are interested, are invited to attend. The programme will be as follows:

Roll call—Quotations from Mental Philosophy in Chautauquan.
Miss Quis.....Mr. L. S. Goodrich.
Synopsis of Lessons in Political Economy.....Miss N. Davis.
Talk upon chapters 4-6 in How to Judge of a Picture.....Rev. C. L. Goodrich.
Reading from Dickens.....Mrs. J. M. Burnett.
Travelers' club—Rome and Paris.....Mrs. W. L. Patton and Mrs. W. B. Wadsworth.
Questions on Roman History.....Mrs. Patton.
The Story of the Siege of Troy.....Miss Pettis.
Music.....Mrs. B. T. Barnes.

The Newell's Convicted.

The jury in the case of the City vs. Mr. and Mrs. Newell, charged with keeping a disorderly house on West Third street, which was tried before Judge Stillman, yesterday afternoon, came into Court about eleven o'clock last evening, with a verdict of conviction in favor of the City. At the trial Chief Carey had an exhaustive supply of witnesses, and these occupied most of the Court's time. The summing up was begun about six o'clock, and an hour later the case was given to the jury. The first ballot stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal.

Through the Wilds of Pennsylvania.

The members of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein are already looking forward in happy anticipation to a trip through the wilds of Pennsylvania. The trip which is to be made early in the coming year, by the members of the Singing section of this city and the Aurora Society of New Brunswick, will occupy about one week. Messrs Geo. Bremer, Chas. Dresselt and Henry Haurand have been appointed a Committee from the local society to arrange and carry out the details of the proposed trip.

Today's Registration.

The election boards are in session today from 7 A. M. to 8 P. M., for the purpose of revising and correcting the original registry and adding thereto the names of all persons entitled to the right of suffrage in the several wards and election districts at the ensuing election, and who shall appear in person before them, and of erasing therefrom, the name of any person who, after a fair opportunity to be heard, shall be shown not to be entitled to vote therein, by reason of non-residence, or otherwise.

Good Work Well Done.

Manager Charles Runyon of the Telephone office reports that today the extra force of men which have been substituting new and substantial poles for the ones recently in use here, expect to complete their work. In all about sixty new poles have been raised, and an entire new line has been built along South avenue from the Scott Press Works to Netherwood. Mr. Runyon has completed the work in less time than it was thought possible.

Jug Breaking and Entertainment.

The Home Mission Society of the First Baptist church, will hold an entertainment in the Church, at eight o'clock of next Friday evening, to which all its members and friends are cordially invited.

Those having jugs from the Society, are requested to be sure and bring or send them.

Minstrels Coming.

Mr. Charles F. Brown, representing the big minstrel show that the three clever Gorman boys have organized, was in Plainfield today arranging for the appearance of the company at Music Hall, Thursday evening of next week. It is the minstrel show of the season.

FUR MUFFS AND CAPES.

WE have just received three cases of Muffs, Capes and Fur Trimmings from three of the best Fur Houses in New York, which are now being displayed. The large assortment comprises everything desirable in this line, and we can confidently say that no such exhibition of these goods have ever been made in this city before. THIS WEEK will be the best opportunity to get the choice selections, as later on they will be sold. "A word to the wise," etc., you know.

LACE CURTAINS!—Is another specialty with us this week. We have purchased several "closing out" lots from the Importers, and offer EXTRA BARGAINS in these goods.

WINDOW SHADES!—We have been very agreeably surprised at the increased demand made upon us in this department. Everybody is pleased with the excellent and prompt manner in which our work is done.

PARTIES having houses to Shade or Carpet, will do well to get our "estimate" before ordering elsewhere.

DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETING.

A Large Audience Gathers in Reform Hall to Hear Eloquent Addresses by Hon. George H. Record and Hon. John R. McPherson.

The announcement of a grand Democratic mass meeting in Reform Hall, last evening, served to fill that building to overflowing, and included in the audience were many of the representative citizens in the city. The platform decorations and music by the Plainfield Cornet Band helped to beautify and enliven the occasion.

Mr. James E. Martine, president of the City Democratic Executive Committee, under whose auspices the meeting was held, called the assemblage to order, and General Daniel T. VanBuren was elected chairman. With a few modest and well put words, that gentleman took his seat. The following Vice Presidents and Secretaries were announced by Mr. Martine:

Vice Presidents—Gen. Wm H. Sterling, Maj. E A. Gross, Capt S. E. Flower, Hon. R. L. Livingston. D. J. Marshall, Rowland M. Stover, Herman Simmons, James T Scott, J. W. Yates, Louis Fenn Wadsworth, Tell A. Beguelin, Hon. C. W. L Martine, Hon. James Ritchie.

Secretaries—Chas. B. VanWinkle, John Mortimer, Lewis H. Brown, Vincent L. Frazee, Wm. A. Coddington.

The first speaker introduced was the Hon. Geo. H. Record, of Jersey City, and that gentleman spoke for fully an hour on the issues involved in the present campaign. Such as the tickets of the two great parties, the temperance question, ballot reform and equal taxation. Concerning the temperance question in our own city, Mr. Record said it is folly to attempt to prohibit the selling of free rum in Plainfield. Politics now, as in the future, he claimed, are getting to be a serious matter, but the Democratic party, he added, led by ex-President Cleveland has been put on a line of policy and progress in American politics.

Hon. John R. McPherson, United States Senator from New Jersey, was the next speaker introduced. The Senator regretted that upon his first appearance in Plainfield he should be weak in body and voice, and he asked the indulgence of his constitutants to enable him to speak in a low tone.

The learned and eloquent speaker said the object of the meeting was to pledge affection to the Democratic candidates and to renew affiliation to the party's policy. He brought with him good tidings from various parts of the State, which brought forth rounds of applause During the past twenty years, Senator McPherson continued, the State has known none other than a Democratic Governor—such illustrious men as Randolph, Parker, Bedle, McClellan, Abbett, Ludlow and Green—and during their time the party was not guilty of a disgraceful act. Elizabeth and Rahway, he added became monuments of bankruptcy under the Republican rule; the prosperity of the State has been wholly due to the pure and wholesome policy of the Democratic party.

The Senator closed his remarks by alluding to the unjust railroad taxation, and stated that Ex-Governor Abbett had alone brought about a reform in that direction. Referring to the matter of excise, he said, "let the township control itself and one of the greatest reforms in the country will have begun."

The meeting broke up with great enthusiasm, and at its close the speakers were tendered a reception on the platform, where many persons pressed forward to greet the speakers.

GOV. GREEN SENDS HIS REGRETS.

The following letter of regret was received from Gov. Robt. S. Green:

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 26, 1889.

MY DEAR SIR: I have just received your note wishing me to speak at Plainfield on the evening of Wednesday the 30th instant. I regret to say that I have an engagement to speak that evening at Jersey City Heights.

Yours truly,
ROBT. S. GREEN.

A Female Firebug Returned to Jail.

The youthful firebug, Emma Jane Day, at one time a resident here, who, with her sister Henrietta, was convicted of firing a building in Summit and was sentenced to six months in the county jail, was returned to that institution yesterday after being at liberty only two weeks. She was committed by Justice Hatfield of Elizabeth for vagrancy. The girl has no home and seems to have become a hardened character since her previous incarceration. Her sister is in the State Reform school. Emma says no one will give her employment on account of what she did, and she has become so despondent that she threatened to put an end to her life unless the authorities sent her back to prison. She is eighteen years old

Over Fifteen Hundred Persons.

The matinee and evening performance yesterday by Bartholomew's educated horses attracted the two largest audiences ever seen in Music Hall in one day and it shows that the people of Plainfield and vicinity appreciate a refined, meritorious performance. The sale of reserved seats for the remaining four performances indicate a continuation of large audiences. All classes of society are talking about the horses that do everything but talk and the engagement is one of the most pleasant ever presented here.

A Difficulty Surmounted.

It is often very difficult to tell what kind of a laxative to give to a very young child who is suffering. The only medicine which is at the same time perfectly safe, effective and pleasant to take, is HAMBURG FIGS. 25c. Dose, one fig. Mack Drug Co., N. Y. For sale by J. G. Miller.

COST OF THE SCHOOLS

$22,884.25 For Teachers' Salaries Alone.

The following financial statement of the Board of Education, for the year ending August 31, 1889, is of universal interest. The figures show without concealment, what is done with every cent of the large amount of money that is assessed this community for school purposes. And among other things it shows that—though THE PRESS wishes the salaries paid the teachers could be raised again—the first item is as large as it possibly can be made.

A New Printing Machine.

(From the Inland Printer.)

The printing press works of Walter Scott & Co., at Plainfield, N. J., contain many new and useful things in their line, and our representative, who visited the works a short time since, noted especially a flat bed perfecting press, which we deem worthy of mention in our columns. The press is made to be fed either by hand, as usual on any cylinder press, or from a roll of paper, at will, delivering the sheets in front, printed on one or both sides (if on one side, printed side up), by means of a new front delivery. The sheet-cutting device is arranged to cut from the web any length of sheet from 19 to 36 inches, and any width up to 52 inches. The inking apparatus, which is double, is made with table distribution, four form rollers with vibrators and riders. The forms and rollers are easily accessible from both sides and both ends. The delivery is without the usual complication of tapes, delivering the sheets by means of a gripper bar traveling in a horizontal plane and making one revolution to each sheet delivered. It is very simple in construction, and delivers the sheets in perfect order, as if cut on the edges by a cutting machine, at a speed of 1,640 per hour. The machine is substantially constructed, has all the modern improvements, including register racks, trip of impression cylinders, geared sliders, improved roller frames, and will weigh about 15 tons. The machine is provided with an automatic arrangement to prevent "off set."

This machine is specially designed for bookwork or illustrated magazines, and can have a folder attached without interference in any way with the fly. The impression cylinders are both accessible on top, which will greatly facilitate making ready, overlaying, etc., on illustrated work

They are also constructing a similar press with two form rollers, which will run at a speed of 2 400 per hour, delivering the papers folded or flat. It also has the "off set" arrangement and will do as good work as any two-roller press.

Hallow E'en.

All Hallow E'en parties will be in order this evening, and our residents may also hear some strange rappings on their doors and windows. It may not be out of order to state that a padlock on and a bull dog stationed at the front gate may prevent the substitution of an undertaker's sign for the gate.

As a family medicine, Ayer's Pills excel all others. They are suited to every age and, being sugar-coated, are easy to take. Though searching and thorough in effect, they are mild and pleasant in action, and their use is attended with no injurious results.

A Catholic Centennial.

A Catholic Congress is to be held in Baltimore in November from the 10th to the 13th. A number from this city will attend and many subjects of interest for Catholics will be discussed. In connection with this congress there will be a commemoration of the establishment of the Catholic hierarchy, 100 years ago.

Preparations for its celebration have been making for several months, and it will be one of the most brilliant church celebrations that has ever taken place in the United States. Cardinal Gibbons has received acceptances of the invitation to attend from eighty Bishops and others of his rank, including Cardinal Taschereau of Canada, and Archbishops and Bishops from Mexico. The Most Rev. Francis Satolli, Archbishop of Lepanto, will arrive in Baltimore next week as the special representative of the Pope at the celebration.

Catch On.

Beginning to-morrow and until the 15th of the coming month, you can buy anything you want in the way of stoves, lamps, cutlery, tin ware, granite ware, machinists' and carpenters' tools, house furnishing goods, etc., at the regular prices with fifteen per cent. off besides for spot cash. Just think of it! And J. C. Pierson, Jr., at 42 West Front street, makes the offer.

Not in Favor of What is Possible.

The Times says it is "not in favor of as few saloons in Plainfield as is possible," but that it is "in favor of no saloons whatever." Thus it confesses that "no saloons whatever" is impossible.

—The members of the W. C. T. U. Kitchen Garden are holding a reunion in the rooms, 73 West Front street, this afternoon.

—After the present green two-cent postage stamps are used up, the public will be given smaller ones of a carmine color and different design. There will be less for the money, but they'll go just as far.

—This evening, commencing at 8 o'clock, the choir of the Holy Cross church will give an attractive entertainment in their Sunday school building. Tableaux and music will be presented. Tickets to be obtained of choir members or at the door.

—The desks of all the offices in the city today present a particularly ornamental appearance. Handsome bronze inkstands, neat mucilage bottles and other paraphernalia of the sort, are noticeable upon the writing tables of the "brain workers," from the First National bank to THE PRESS sanctum. Mr. L. Fisher, representing A. S. Barnes & Co, of New York, is in town, giving everybody a combination outfit as described above with plenty of red and black ink besides, for $1.

A CHALLENGE.—The proprietors of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup hereby challenge the Faculty to prescribe a remedy more effective than theirs.

I cordially recommend Salvation Oil to all suffering with rheumatism. JOS. S. FOX, cattle dealer, 117 North Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

IS YOUR BAKING POWDER PURE?

Do its Manufacturers Publish the Ingredients Used?

IS IT FREE FROM AMMONIA?

As is well known, ammonia is unhealthful in food, and dries up the bread material.

Protection to consumers of food compounds lies in their ability to choose those made from healthful substances. Unless manufacturers publish just what their baking powder is made of, do not use their goods, but buy instead

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER.

This powder is made only of strictly pure grape cream of tartar, and strictly pure bicarbonate of soda, with a little wheat flour to preserve it. This is attested by the official analyses of Government and State chemists, and physicians, and chemists of Boards of Health throughout the country.

MAY CUT THE LEAGUE

The Brotherhood to Hold a Meeting on Monday.

THE FIRST AUTHENTIC REPORT.

A Great Crowd of Ball Players Expected at the Conference.

It Will be Decided Whether the Brotherhood Will Meet the League—Buck Ewing Predicts Trouble—The Western New York and Pennsylvania Baseball League Organized.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The first authentic report as to what the Base Ball Players' Brotherhood will or will not do was given out by Tim Keefe, the secretary of the organization to-day. The Brotherhood will meet at the Fifth Avenue Hotel on Monday next at 12 o'clock. Every club in the League will be represented, and as near as is known the following delegates will be present: O'Rourke, New York; Pfeffer, Chicago, Irwin, Washington; Brouthers, Boston; Glasscock and Denny, Indianapolis; Hanlon, Pittsburg; Faatz, Cleveland, and Sanders and Buffinton, Philadelphia.

In regard to the meeting Keefe said: "This gathering will be a strictly Brotherhood meeting, at which we will decide as to whether we will meet the League or not. If we agree not to meet the League then we will have a business meeting on Wednesday next." Keefe refused to say what sort of business would be considered at the second meeting. However, it is understood that at the latter meeting several men who are willing to lose their money will be present.

Keefe says that he expects a great crowd of ball players at the meeting on Monday, as every member of the Brotherhood has a right to attend, but only delegates can vote. He said that he could not attempt to give an idea of what would be done, for not only would that be a breach of faith, but he did not exactly know himself. He also said that the New York players had no grievances, and that they were all satisfied. "As to the cause of the trouble between the managers and players," continued he, "the classification and sale of players has caused the most of it."

"What about the reserve rule?" was asked.

"Well, baseball could not live without it, but many abuses have crawled into this same rule that has in some ways made it a farce, and the managers are responsible for it by the high salaries they pay. When they want a man they don't seem to care how much they pay for him."

"What if the League concedes the demands of the players?"

"I am afraid that even if they did so they would go back on their word next summer, when they have us under their control."

"How about the American Association?"

"Oh, we will not trouble their players, and they can just go on as they have been doing."

Up at the Polo grounds Buck Ewing was found. He said: "I hope this trouble will be settled, but I am afraid it will not. As far as the New Yorks are concerned, they are satisfied. The whole kick has been made by the Pittsburg and Indianapolis clubs, and we have been called on to stand by them. As for Mr. Day, he is a good man in a bad place. If his advice had been followed, there would not have been any trouble. Still, he has to suffer with the rest."

New Baseball League.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The Western New York and Pennsylvania Baseball League was organized here by representatives from Dunkirk, Olean and Jamestown, N. Y., and Erie, Meadville and Bradford, Pa. A constitution was adopted and H. W. Tew, of Jamestown, was elected president; Wesley Best, of Meadville, vice-president; Geo. Mayer, of Olean, secretary and treasurer. The number of clubs to compose the organization will be limited to eight.

AT THE THEATRE.

President Harrison Attends the First Performance Since His Inauguration.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Harrison last night for the first time since his inauguration attended a theatrical performance. It was that of the celebrated artiste Rhea as "Josephine, Empress of the French," at Albaugh's Opera House.

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Harrison, Secretary Rusk and wife, Attorney-General Miller and Mrs. Russell Harrison. The Presidential party occupied two stage boxes, and appeared to be delighted with the performance. They came early before the overture began, and remained until the final fall of the curtain at the end of the sixth act. The theatre was crowded, many public officials and prominent people occupying seats in the body of the house.

A NEWPORT WEDDING.

The Marriage of Geo. B. McClellan and Miss Heckscher.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 31.—The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G Heckscher of New York, and Mr. George B. McClellan, son of the late General McClellan were married shortly before noon in All Saint's Memorial Chapel here, Bishop Potter officiating, assisted by the Rev. C. A. L. Richards, of Providence. Miss Heckscher and Miss McClellan, sisters to the contracting parties were the bridesmaids and Mr. J. A. Harriman, of New York, was best man. About 250 guests were at the reception. Delmonico served the collation. The presents numbered over 200 and presented an array of costly jewelry, plate, etc., never before seen at a Newport wedding.

An Embezzling Postmaster.

BOSTON, Oct. 31.—William H. Cate, ex-superintendent of the Chelsea Branch postoffice, who was recently removed from office, arrested and held in $1,000 bail because of a shortage of $650 in his accounts, was again arrested on a warrant charging another embezzlement of $109. He was arraigned before Commissioner Hallett and held for examination.

The Canadian-Chinese Act.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 31.—There is no truth in the report that the imperial government has asked the Dominion authorities to modify the Canadian-Chinese act in order to avert a policy of reprisal on the part of China.

CAUGHT IN CHICAGO.

The Eloping Delaware Couple Arrested and Locked up.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Alex. Harris, who eloped with Miss May Ellis, from Milford, Del., leaving a wife and four children, and unpaid bills to a large amount behind him, was arrested in this city. Miss Ellis was also taken into custody.

They arrived here Tuesday afternoon from Philadelphia, and registered at the Tremont House as man and wife. Yesterday they moved to rooms on the North Side, and later were under arrest. When arrested Harris had money and bank paper to the value of $9,500.

Harris says he couldn't get along with his wife and he could with Miss Ellis. He intends to make the latter his wife as soon as he can get a divorce. Telegrams have been sent to Milford to the authorities, the creditors of Harris and the parents of Miss Ellis, asking for instructions regarding the disposition of the prisoners. Meanwhile they are held at the Central Police Station.

THE CUSHING-GIBBONS MATCH.

They Will Meet for the Championship and $2,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The long-talked-of match between Mike Cushing, the 126-pound champion of the world, and Austin Gibbons, of Paterson, N. J., was finally made last night.

The men came to an agreement and signed articles agreeing to fight for $500 a side and a purse of $1,000 offered by "Doc." McDonough, and the 126-pound championship of the world. Gibbons was represented by his brother James, and Jack McAuliffe, the lightweight champion, looked after Cushing's interests.

Harry Starin was selected as temporary stakeholder, and John Kelley, the king of umpires, the final stakeholder.

The fight will take place within 200 miles of New York about December 1. Both men are well known in the fistic world.

A NEW ENGLAND SYNDICATE.

Prominent Prohibitionists Make a Big Purchase of Iron Ore Lands.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 31.—The East Chattanooga Land Company's big deal has been consummated with a New England syndicate for $5,000,000. All the papers are signed and the money paid. The property consists of 2,000 acres bordering the city, and 1,500 acres of iron ore lands.

The East Tennessee Land Company has been organized with $3,000,000 capital, Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, of New Jersey, president. The other stockholders are all prominent prohibitionists. They have bought 300,000 acres in East Tennessee. The scheme contemplates the development of extensive coal and iron fields, the establishment of a winter and summer resort, and the building of a central iron city.

Banquet to Admiral Walker.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Nearly a hundred naval and army officers and civilian friends of Admiral John G. Walker, met around a banquet board at the Shoreham last night to bid farewell to the Admiral, previous to his departure for Europe in command of the United States' fleet of new cruisers. Covers were laid for ninety-six guests. Admiral Rodgers presided. Secretary Tracy, Admirals Harmony and Greer, and a score or more navy officers, with Generals MacFeely and McKeever, of the army, were present.

Edison's Factory Girls Strike.

HARRISON, N. J., Oct. 31.—Tere was a strike at the Edison factory yesterday against a big reduction of wages. The strikers were the young girls who work there. Some of them earn $8 a week; the reduction, they claim, would make it impossible for them to earn over $6. They remained out for several hours, but returned to work when informed that the old rate of wages would be continued.

The Canon Bernard Case Postponed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Canon Bernard's case against ex-Sheriff Peter B. Bowe, involving the custody of a large amount of Catholic Church funds brought from Belgium by Bernard, came up before Judge Wallace in the United States District Court and Mr. Perkins, of counsel for Bernard, asked further time to prepare his case, and the hearing was set for December 1st.

The Montana Case Dragging Along.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 31.—The attorneys in the Tunnel precinct case in Silver Bow county, consumed the entire day in arguments on a motion of the attorneys for the Democrats for a judgment on the pleadings. No decision was reached. It looks now as though the case would not be finished this week.

Exciting Football Game.

CARLISLE, Pa., Oct. 31.—The Franklin and Marshall College football team met the Dickinson College eleven and were defeated by a score of 10 to 0. The only accidents were a dislocated knee and a broken nose on the part of the Lancasterians.

Crushed to Death Between Bumpers.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 31.—George Munson, a brakeman on the New York Central Road, was crushed to death between bumpers while endeavoring to make a couyling in the Geneva Yard. He was married, and lived at Pittsburg, Pa.

Jake Kilrain Can't Spar in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—The City Clerk has telegraphed Jake Killrain, who had asked if he would be permitted to give a sparring exhibition in this city, that there is a by-law against it, and that any person violating its provisions shall be liable to a fine and imprisonment.

Chicago Tailors Return to Work.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—All the journeymen tailors who went out on strike last week have returned to work. The men went back without insisting upon the discharge of Cutter Hendrickson, who is the cause of all the trouble.

Held on the Charge of Forgery.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—Albert Sutherland who, was supposed to be "Tascott," the murderer of millionaire Snell, was called up for a hearing at the Central Station this afternoon to plead to the charge of forgery.

Bright and Active at 109 Years.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Lewis Andrews, aged 109 years, died at Pottersville, Warren county, yesterday. He was bright and active up to the day of his death.

PEOPLE OF DISTINCTION.

SYDNEY COX died at the hour at which he had made arrangements to lecture on "Wonderland," meaning the new West, which he recently visited.

CARDINAL MANNING'S habits of life are said to be conducted with a regularity that rivals the exactness of a railway time-table. His chief meal is in the middle of the day, when he takes one chop.

MRS. "STONEWALL" JACKSON is engaged upon a biography of her husband, which will contain many facts not printed in previous memoirs. She is not the only "blue stocking" of her family. Her sister, Mrs. Irwin, of Charlotte, is even better known than she as a writer.

JESSE GRANT, a son of the late ex-President, is said to be growing rich in California, where he is farming on a large scale. He is apparently satisfied with his choice of a career, for he says he has very little interest in politics, and never expects to be any thing but a farmer.

PRESIDENT HARRISON and Secretary Blaine, says a writer in the Washington Post, are strikingly alike in the matter of complexion, the peculiar pallor of which defies sunburn, tan or freckles, no matter how prolonged the exposure to the sun to which they may be subjected.

SENORA MANUELA DE MONCADO is one of the wealthiest land-owners in Mexico, and enjoys the reputation of a "cattle queen." One of her ranches is stocked with 400,000 sheep. Her home is in the City of Mexico, but she spends eight months of the year in New York, where she is educating her niece.

DESPITE his ascetic demeanor, Mr. Edison is not altogether destitute of humor. One of his practices is to keep a stock of cigars, composed of wadding and hair, but specially made up in elegant wrappers. These he reserves for critical smokers, gravely informing them that they cost thirty-five cents apiece.

SARCEY, the eminent French critic, once received a check for $1,000 with an invitation to witness a new play. M. Sarcey went at once to the bank, cashed the check and gave the money to an orphanage. Then he went to the theater. Next morning the manager found his piece utterly condemned by the great critic.

WALT WHITMAN is said to be very much bothered by would-be poets, who ask him to read and criticise their productions. The story goes that a few days ago an ambitious young poet called upon him with a tragedy entitled "Columbus," saying that he wanted Mr. Whitman's opinion on its merits. "No, I thank you," said the latter; "I have been paralyzed once."

IN the construction of his palatial summer home on his island in the St. Lawrence river, near Alexandria Bay, George M. Pullman, of Chicago, has provided for the perfect preservation of the room in rough structure of the early days in which General Grant slept while Mr. Pullman's guest. The cottage is to be built around the room, but the dead soldier's old quarters will remain unchanged in every particular, including the furniture.

ROBERT J. BURDETTE, the professional humorist, has been acting as pastor in the Lower Merion Baptist Church, Philadelphia, during the past summer. On Sunday evening he preached his farewell sermon, prior to setting out on a lecture tour. He recently remarked: "I think I shall some day give up lecturing and settle down in a little country parsonage. This is my ideal life, and if I had known enough of theology I might be a preacher now."

JEST AND JOLLITY.

A NEW YORKER, on returning from a two months' trip in the West, was glowingly describing the fertility of the soil and the beauty of the country. "How about the water?" asked a friend. "I neglected to try it," responded the traveler.

AT a railway book-stall.—Fashionable couple are searching for something to read during the approaching journey. She—"'Last days of Pompeii'—what did he die of?" He—"Don't know exactly, but believe it was some sort of eruption."

FOND MOTHER—"See the baby, Henry. He's holding out his hand to you. What do you suppose 'ittle tootsy wants?" Fond Father—"I don't know; but as every body says he takes after you, I suppose 'ittle tootsy wants some pin money."

EDITOR of fresh air fund (to head bookkeeper)—"How much did that summer sanitarium racket net us last year?" Head book-keeper—"Oh, about $—." Editor of fresh air fund—"Very good. We must do something for the little children this year. It seems to pay."

A WEALTHY citizen of Denver, Col., gave an elegant residence to a newly-married daughter. Two lots adjoining it are his property. The younger daughter of the gentleman, upon being spoken to about the fine present to her sister, remarked: "Yes, and we are going to put a sign on the two adjoining lots with these words on it: 'These lots go with the other girl.'"

ASTRONOMICAL ATOMS.

A PATIENT figurer has found that in 21,000,000 years the sun will be as dense as the earth.

AN English lady has left $50,000 to be devoted to photographing the stars, planets and nebulæ.

THE phases of the moon are caused by the different direction of the sun's rays with respect to the moon's surface.

RECENT discoveries made by the use of the spectroscope show that all the heavenly bodies appear to be composed of the same chemical elements.

NUMEROUS observations made in France show that on meeting an insulated metallic or carbon conductor the solar rays communicate to it a positive charge; that the amplitude of this charge increases with the intensity of the rays and decreases with the hygrometric state of the air.

ACCORDING to the best astronomers of modern times, "nothing but the wildest desolation prevails on the surface of the moon, and that mountains exist of 120 miles in diameter, the peaks of which rise often from 7,000 to 16,000 feet in altitude," thus precluding all possibility of our satellite being inhabited.

AGRICULTURAL AXIOMS.

NO MAN ever reaped foul wheat from clean ground and clean seed.

WHEN prices are low is just the time to improve your farm animals.

IF there were more drains on the farm there would be fewer druggists in the village.

MAKE easy and short the way to the butcher of the animal that has learned to break fences.

PAY cash, if you have to borrow money to do it. The banker will charge you less than the merchant for credit.

ON an average the man with the fewest clods in the field in the fall has the most wheat in the field the next summer.

GOOD farming consists as much in overcoming adverse circumstances as in improving fully favorable opportunities.

YOU can not increase your products without increasing your expenses; but production increases at a faster rate than expenses increase. Herein is the greater profit of good farming.

KASKINE,
(THE NEW QUININE.)

No Bad Effect.
No Headache
No Nausea.
No Ringing Ears
Cures Quickly.
Pleasant, Pure.

A POWERFUL TONIC.
A Specific for Malaria, Rheumatism, Nervous Prostration.

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC AND SUCCESSFUL BLOOD PURIFIER. Superior to quinine.

Mr. Lode Hoornbeck, of the U. S. ship Kearsarge, writes that he meets people almost daily who have used or are using Kaskine, and who affirm from experience that it is superior to quinine in tonic and curative properties, and produces no subsequent bad effects.

Mr. John C. Scarborough, Selma, N. C., writes: "I got malaria in the Southern army, and for a dozen years suffered from its debilitating effects. I was terribly run down when I heard of Kaskine, the new quinine. It helped me at once. I gained 35 pounds."

Kaskine can be taken without any special medical advice. $1.00 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. Sold by druggists or sent by mail on receipt of price.
